LABORATORY IS NECESSITY HERE SAY ROTARIANS

Local Service Club Passes Resolution Protesting Its Removal.

SCIENTIFIC LIGHTING.

Members Hear Informative Address On Subject of Much Practical Interest.

That a very large percentage of the lighting in the stores, factories, churches and homes in Canada was utterly out of accord with scientific principles was one of the many interesting statements made to the Peterborough Rotary Club at the Empress today by Frank T. Groome of the Holophane Company, Ltd., specialists in scientific illumination.

Mr. Groome's address on "Eyesight Conservation and Illumination," was one of the most informative in the history of the club and was made the more effective through the use of special apparatus to illustrate his points, Gordon Nicholls of the Northern Electric Company ably assisting in the demonstration.

On motion of Rotarian Dr. Norman Buchanan, seconded by Rotarian Dr. M. A' Morrison, a resolution to be sent to the Provincial Department of Health and the local member of the Legislature was unanimously passed protesting against the removal of the Provincial Laboratory from Peterborough.

Dr. Buchanan, in introducing the motion, declared that the laboratory had been proven of ever greater service to the people of this district and that the Medical Association was unanimously opposed to the laboratory being taken away, while Dr. Morrison remarked that the government should take the viewpoint that the health of the community ranked higher than the saving of a small sum of money. President A. L. Killaly and Past President Roy gave instances of the practical value of the laboratory as gleaned from their own experiences.

Mr. Groome pointed out that eyesight had developed under daylight conditions, said that the problem was to adjust ourselves to conditions brought about by the introduction of artificial lighting. No merchant, he said, would like to feel that the lighting of his window was half blinding his customers, nor would any manufacturer like to think that because of the lighting facilities in his plant his employees were half blind, yet these conditions actually existed in the majority of stores and factories in the country. Similarly it was found that children who started school with normal vision experienced an increasing need for glasses as they progressed with their education. When lighting changes were considered, the speaker said the usual tendency was to put up more lights, instead of studying the scientific methods that would give much more illumination with smaller lamps and with much less injury to the eye.

Mr. Groome, in his demonstration, illustrated the effect of glaring lights in the case of window illuminations and also the bizarre effects produced by the wrong use of colored lights in such illumination. He very strongly urged against the use of colored lighting unless the effect upon the objects to be displayed had been carefully and scientifically studied.

The speaker also illustrated the principle of the modern street lighting, introduced into Peterborough by Mr. Dobbin and commended this method of street illumination as scientific and modern.

The value of the use of proper lighting in the home, stores, schools, factories and churches was clearly set forth by Mr. Groome, who in the half hour at his disposal gave his hearers a large amount of useful and unusual information.

The thanks of the club were extended to the speaker and to Mr. Nicholls on motion of Rotarian S. R. Armstrong.

THIRD CHILD DIES FROM DIPHTHERIA

Annie Smith Succumbs To After Effects of Dread Disease.

NORHAM, Dec. 12.—The community was shocked when it became known on Wednesday that little Annie Smith had passed away, due to paralysis of the throat, following diphtheria. This is the third death in the home of Mr. Amos Smith within the past two weeks, when the home was stricken by the dread disease, diphtheria. Of the six children only three, the two eldest, George and Margaret, and the baby, are left. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved family.

Tie-up Is Averted Chicago Rail Strike

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—A holiday tie-up of Chicago's surface and elevated lines was averted when representatives of the unions and the railway companies decided to continue operations under the original arbitration agreement previously approved by the Federal court.

The decision set aside previous plans of the unions, which had voted to strike on December 15 unless granted 15 cents an hour increase in wages.

AGAWA'S MATE DESCRIBES STAY ON BOARD SHIP

Went Without Food For 38 Hours—Firemen Have Dangerous Trip.

SHIP BADLY BATTERED.

Tug Carrying Rescued Men Is Now Caught in Ice Jam.

DETOUR, Dec. 12 (Canadian Press).—An absorbing tale of harrowing adventures of the crew of the steamer Agawa, stranded on Advance Reef, Mantoulin Island, for ninety hours, thirty-eight hours without food, and the wonderful display of discipline and fortitude in the face of these adversities, was told to-day by John T. Armstrong, second mate, who with fourteen other members of the crew, were conveyed by the tug General to Detour.

The boat left Fort William with two hundred thousand bushels of grain on Sunday, Dec. 4th. The weather turned bad Wednesday and in a strong wind the ship struck the reef. Everything was done to make preparations for the worst, Armstrong said.

"The wind got worse, and during the night we had the full sweep of Lake Huron upon us. The firemen had a dangerous passage forward when driven from the hook of the boat by the waves.

"The seas got gradually worse and the men were ordered to the observation room and the captain's quarters. Unfortunately no food had been brought forward," Armstrong said, "and nothing was eaten until Saturday morning except some chocolates, apples, and figs. We had lots of tobacco."

On Friday the front of the boiler house had been levelled, part of the boat deck torn up, boats washed away and stack knocked down by the seas. Some of the mountainous waves were as high as forty feet above the deck, he said.

Saturday it got calmer and they were able to hack their way through the thick ice to the crew's quarters forward. At daylight they were able to go aft for the first time and get some sandwiches and tea.

During all the miseries, William Johnston, the oiler who was taken off by the yawl on Saturday night, was attacked with what they thought was appendicitis. The yawl arrived with five men on it, who had pulled it overland to the nearest shore point.

On Sunday the tugs General and Strathbogie were both observed, and it was not long before the men were taken off.

Tug Caught in Ice.

SAULT STE MARIE, Dec. 12 (Canadian Press).—The tug General which left Detour to-day for the Sault with members of the rescued crew of the steamer Agawa on board is stuck in the ice near Neebish Cut, and efforts are being made to release her.

TWO PROMINENT MEN PASS AWAY OVER WEEK END

John P. Cunningham and George W. Powell Well Known.

ILL FOR SOME TIME.

Mr. Cunningham Had Conducted Music Store—Mr. Powell C. A. S. Agent.

The death of John Peel Cunningham, which took place on Saturday evening, December 10, lost to the city one of its most widely known and popular citizens; in business, in his church and in his private home life he was known to possess those qualities which made him respected, esteemed, and loved by all with whom he came in contact. A host of friends, not only in the city and district, but in communities elsewhere, learned of his death with sincere regret.

The late John Cunningham was born in the Township of Ops, near Lindsay, on September 5, 1862, and came to Peterborough when but a young man. Here he entered the music business some forty years ago and his store at 404 George Street has since enjoyed an extensive patronage.

In the progress of Murray Street Baptist Church there is more than one indication of his interest and willing hand. For more than twenty years he has served in the choir and other societies of that church.

His passing is mourned by his widow; two daughters, Ruby of Clifton Springs, N.Y., and Mabel at home; two brothers, W. B. and C. H. Cunninghom, of Austin, Manitoba, and two sisters, Miss Susan Cunningham and Mrs. John Reid, the former of Austin, and the latter of Selkirk, Man.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, 517 Stewart Street, on Tuesday, December 13, at 2 p.m., with interment at Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, M.A., of Murray Street Baptist Church, will have charge of the services, both at the house and at the graveside.

GEORGE WENTWORTH POWELL

Born in Cobourg, George Wentworth Powell died in Peterborough on Monday morning, December 12, after a life of seventy-two years, the major portion of which was spent in service not only to his native town but to his adopted home city, Peterborough. His passing marks the loss of a citizen of worth, a loving husband and kindly father.

Gaining his education in the Cobourg common schools and a term in the Belleville Business College, the late Mr. Powell later followed the occupation of butcher and meats dealer, and on coming to Peterborough when a young man of thirty-two years continued in this line of business.

He had been married some nine years previous to Miss Jane Bond of Cobourg and to this union were born two sons, George Roy, and Morley Vincent, of this city, and one daughter, Jane (Mrs. Lloyd Gilders), also of Peterborough.

The late Mr. Powell was actively connected with George Street Methodist (later George Street United) Church as steward, class leader, missionary secretary, chairman of the social service committee, superintendent of Grace Church Sunday School and of the Auburn Sunday School.

However, his interests were on a very broad plane, indeed, for he gained prominence as a school trustee for three years, a member of the City Charity Board of two years, financial secretary Court Chemong.

THE WEATHER

We are now approaching the middle of December, and the weather still keeps unseasonably mild. While temperatures below zero have been recorded in many places, we have escaped severe weather. The lowest Peterboro can boast of is three degrees above zero a week ago yesterday. Last year at this time we had it 12 degrees below zero, and winter had set in in earnest. Good sleighing continued from this date onward during the winter.—W. P.

Chiang Would Break Relations With Russia Unless Soviet Intrigue Is Discontinued

SHANGHAI, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—General Chiang Kai-Shek, who was drafted yesterday to re-enter the Nationalist movement as leader by the Kuomintang conference, declared yesterday that unless Soviet Russia "discontinued its intrigue toward China," the Nationalist government would be compelled to break off relations. This, the General added, would necessitate the closure of the Soviet Consulate in Nationalist territory in China. "The Kuomintang," said General Chiang, "has made me responsible for the tremendous task of re-uniting the party factions and reorganizing the national government in order that the revolution may progress. I intend to exert my full strength to bring peace to the Nationalist territory and resume warfare against Chang Tso-Lin, upon whose elimination depends nation-wide peace in China."

While real unity of the Nationalist factions is considered difficult of realization, Chiang Kai-Shek is believed to be the most likely person capable of its accomplishment.

Continuing his statement, General Chiang said: "I have heard that President Coolidge is considering sending a commission to China to investigate the treaty situation. Nationalist China would consider such action a friendly gesture. It would have a tremendous solidifying effect on Chinese public opinion, possibly resulting in the Southerners and the Northerners uniting on a commission to meet the United States delegation for discussion of treaty revision. The time has arrived for the Powers to meet China in a friendly attempt to break the treaty deadlock which is disrupting trade."

EUROPEAN MINISTERS DISCUSS FRANCO-ITALIAN PROBLEM

Would Lay Ground For Settlement of Dispute Between Nations.

DELICATE QUESTION.

Sir Ronald W. Graham, British Ambasador To Rome Attends Conference.

GENEVA, Dec. 12.—(A.P.)—A frank review of Franco-Italian relations was made by Foreign Minister Briand of France, and Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, yesterday at a luncheon attended by Sir Ronald W. Graham, British ambassador to Rome, especially summoned to Geneva by Sir Austen.

The object was to determine the exact nature of the questions which seemingly have caused recent friction between France and Italy and to lay, if possible, the ground work for a later interview between Monsieur Briand and Signor Mussolini, the Italian premier. Sir Ronald was called in on the conference because of his special knowledge of Italian conditions and the desire of the French foreign minister to hear the views of a third party, excellently placed to study developments.

Delicate Problem.

Yesterday's conference indicated anew that the ground problem makes statesmen nervous about Franco-Italian relations is Il Duce's anxiety to find an economic outlet for Italy's growing population and his desire to have Italians given the privilege of preserving their Italian nationality chiefly in French colonies such as Algeria.

It is pointed out that some 800,000 live on French soil, principally in the southern departments near the Italian frontier and just how quickly these Italians can be absorbed into French national life is a matter of considerable concern to the French government.

In other words, the Franco-Italian problem from the French standpoint is how to foster a reasonable national spirit for the respective countries without permitting Italians on French soil to develop into a menacing element for each government, while from the Italian viewpoint the situation resolves itself into the desire for increased economic possibilities for Italian workers in France proper and French possession, and the privilege of maintaining their national and cultural entity.

The possibility of political co-operation in the Mediterranean as a substitute for political jealousies endangered by such acts as the Italian alliance with Albania as an answer to the French treaty with Jugoslavia, is another matter the statesmen are studying. When the ground work for fruitful conversations has been properly laid, it is believed that a conference between the Italian and French premiers will be arranged, but this will require time.

Sir Austen, in a statement Saturday night, said he did not take a grave view of the differences between France and Italy.

Sir Austen paid tribute to the work of the great powers in helping to secure settlement of the Polish-Lithuanian dispute and in this connection particularly mentioned the contribution of Maxim Litvinoff, Russian vice-commissar for foreign affairs.

Claims Border-Crossing Regulations Contrary to Provisions of Jay Treaty

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 12 (Canadian Press).—The claim that the recent border-crossing regulations of the Department of Labor are contrary to the provisions of the Jay Treaty of 1784 and that certain articles of that instrument are still in effect, was made Saturday by counsel for Mary Cook and an Antonio Danelon of Niagara Falls, Ont., recently stopped at the border by immigration agents for alleged unlawful entry.

The case came before Judge John R. Hazel, in Federal Court in habeas corpus proceedings in behalf of the barred aliens. Judge Hazel reserved decision.

Preston M Albro, lawyer for the aliens, said that Congressional enactments cannot supersede the Jay Treaty unless the treaty is clearly annulled. He also maintained that the new regulations are contrary to the immigration law itself and that the Department of Labor erred in classing communting Canadians immigrants.

Richard W. Grim, representing the Federal Government at the hearing, said that if the recent ruling of the Department of Labor is not upheld, a gateway of entry into this country from every nation in the world would be provided. By establishing residence in Canada, he said, subjects of other countries could pass into the United States on a declaration of business and remain indefinitely. He sought dismissal of the proceedings on the ground that the aliens had a fair hearing before a special board of inquiry, which decided upon their exclusion.

JOHN CRANE IS CANDIDATE FOR THE UTILITIES

Well Known Citizen Yields To Urging of Friends and Will Stand.

RECORD OF SERVICE.

Latest Entrant in Field Has Done Good Work in Other Positions.

The entrance of Mayor Holloway into the Utilities race has been closely followed by that of John Crane, who has authorized The Examiner to announce his candidature.

"I have yielded to the persuasion of many citizens who have for some time been urging me to allow my name to be put forward as a candidate for the Commission," stated Mr. Crane to The Examiner, "and I am now definitely in the race."

Mr. Crane, who recently retired from the management of the local branch of the Dominion Bank, has served the public in various capacities in connection with the Nicholls Hospital Board, for years as a member of the Board of Education, and in other important offices where his judgment has always been valued and his capacity for good work appreciated.

The Examiner recently referred to the fact that Mr. Crane was being praised by many citizens to stand for the Utilities and the present announcement that he has consented to do so will be appreciated by such citizens, and doubtless many others.

Two Men Drowned Coffer Dam Bursts

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 12 (Canadian Press). — Two men were drowned and four others injured, two seriously, when a cofferdam on which they were working in the Welland Canal at Welland, Ont., collapsed Saturday night. The dead are: Achille Besson, 29; Henry Nealis, 34. The injured: Jack Adams; Robert Burke, 58; Robert Lethbridge, 41; Edgar Cerardi.

The men were working on the dam which had been placed around a crib so that the crib could be raised. The crib had been brought near the surface when a cable snapped and the cofferdam collapsed, throwing the workmen into the icy waters.

W. H. BRADBURN TO STAND AGAIN FOR UTILITIES

Retiring Chairman Announces That He Is In Ring For Another Term.

SENIOR MEMBER.

He Has Been Connected With the Utilities For Six Years.

W. H. Bradburn M.P.P. chairman of the Utilities Commission whose three year term expires at the end of the year announced to The Examiner this afternoon that he intends to stand for re-election.

Mr. Bradburn is the senior member of the commission having been first elected to that body six years ago.

Besides his two terms as member of the Utilities Mr. Bradburn has of course been of public service as an alderman and as mayor of the city, while for the past two terms he has represented this riding in the Ontario Legislature.

With his decision to ask the ratepayers for an endorsation of his services in the shape of another three years in office, the campaign for the Utilities Commission now assumes a triangular form, Mayor Holloway and John Crane having previously announced their intention of becoming candidates.

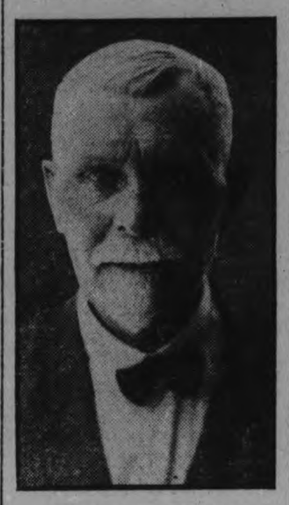
DIED THIS MORNING.



GEORGE W. POWELL,
Long a resident of this city in business, and as C. A. S. Inspector, who died to-day.

Penned in Observation Room of the Steamer Since Thursday.

TUG GIVES AID.

Had Nothing To Eat, With Only Coal Oil Stove For Heat.

TEHKUMMAH, Ont., Dec. 12.—(By Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press.)— The last members of the crew of the Steamer Agawa which ran on Advance Reef, Manitoulin Island, last Wednesday in a snow storm, were taken off the wreck yesterday morning at 9.30. Five of them were brought to Tehkummah after being rescued by the yawl which removed William Johnston, an oiler, Saturday night. The other 14 were taken to Sault Ste. Marie by the tug General.

The five men brought here were Norman Stalker, of Penetang, Samuel Tait of Hamilton, Frank McCully, also of Hamilton, and William Conenigs, of Montreal.

The tug Strathbogie, of Owen Sound, was also near the wreck at this time, but was too late to render any assistance.

Members of the crew told a vivid story of hardship. They were penned in the observation room of the steamer since Thursday with only one small coal oil stove to supply heat. This stove was turned out from time to time to conserve the precious fuel. The force of wind and waves broke one door and one window in the observation room and it was nailed up again. The doors of the state room were used for this purpose. The men said they had nothing to eat. After a dinner on Wednesday evening they did not have a meal until yesterday noon. William Conenigs, the last man to leave the after end of the ship stated that he had remained in the stoke hole to try to keep enough steam in the boiler to supply the heating system on Wednesday night.

Water Fell Into Stoke Hole.

"It was a terrible experience," he told the Canadian Press. "The water washed completely over the stern of the ship and fell into the stoke hole in torrents. Finally the hatches were carried away by the sea and I tried to get out. I climbed up over the boiler and through the skylight to the deck and tried to get up forward. The icy water came over the deck in sheets and I hung on to the life line desperately as the waves hit me. Just as I got safely forward the life line broke and from that time until Saturday no one could get back to the galley. Up in the observation room all the crew were lying about the deck trying to keep warm. A gramaphone helped to while away the tedious hours, while smoking relieved the pangs of hunger. Some of the fellows who never smoked before lit cigars and cigarettes."

The men left all their belongings except the clothes they were wearing when they were rescued from the Agawa. They will remain in Tehkummah until funds are received to enable them to return to their homes. All of them, with the exception of William Johnston of Newmarket, Ontario, who was brought ashore Saturday night, are in good physical condition and were cheerful yesterday.

"Thank God, we got ashore safely!" was the general expression of the five brought here yesterday.

Johnston is suffering from exposure and is in the hospital at Mindemoya, but he was reported yesterday as recuperating from his terrible experiences.

Agawa Partly Damaged

The Agawa owned by the Algoma Central Steamship Lines of the Soo, Ont., is partly a wreck. The spars and rigging on the stern of the boat were washed overboard by the heavy seas, while spray freezing covered her with ice to a depth of several feet in places. Members of the crew said to-day that a hundred tons of ice is clinging to the forward end of the ship. The bow is resting on the bottom in 14 feet of water while there is 42 feet of water under the stern. Efforts to pull the boat from her position on the rock under her own power were hopeless. The Agawa is

NAVIGATION CLOSES.

PORT ARTHUR, December 12.—Canadian Press. — As navigation draws to a close on the great lakes, additional disasters are filtering through. The steamer Oglebay, wrecked at Shot Island, and the Lambton, are recorded in the list of the storm's toll. The Kamloops of the Canada Steamship Lines is among the missing and grave fears are entertained for her safety. The company to-day despatched the tug Islet Prince from Port Arthur to search the north shore of Lake Superior for the missing vessel. The Kamloops was last seen in Whitefish Bay. It does not carry a wireless, and is thought to have got into difficulty and to be lying in shelter.

The tug Champlain, which went to the assistance of the Altadoc, and was reported to be missing to-day, has turned up safe at Portage Entrance, Keewanaw.

The freighter Martian, aground on Hare Island, near Port Arthur, is still fast despite efforts to pull her off the reef.

Navigation closes at 12 o'clock tonight when the special insurance premium expires, and a number of the ships are preparing to clear from the head of the lakes before that hour. The weather is reported moderate on the upper lakes and the high seas have subsided. The fog has lifted and navigation is not difficult. The Hamonic, a passenger ship, is among the ships to clear tonight.

Powers' Determination To Maintain Peace Of Europe Is Feature of Present Session

GENEVA, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The determination of the Powers, great and small including Soviet Russia, to maintain in a permanent way the peace of Europe clearly appears to all the delegates as the feature of the December session of the council of the League of Nations. The council will conclude its work today.

The settlement of the Polish-Lithuanian dispute, which was not as clear cut and definite as some would have liked, is regarded as evidence of Europe's desire for peace, which Premier Waldemaras of Lithuania and M. Zaleski, Polish Foreign Minister, immediately sought to promote in a practical way by conferring yesterday as to measures best suited for the inauguration of normal relations between the two countries.

Premier Waldermaras left for Kovno last night with a document in his pocket calculated to satisfy the aspirations of his fellow countrymen, and that is the declaration read by Jonkheer Beelaerts von Blokland before the council, that the peace settlement between Lithuania and Poland in no wise affects the liquidation of various questions such as the rights Lithuania claims over Vilna.

"To establish permanently the friendly relations, we must negotiate the opening up of the frontier, now closed, and arrange for resumption of communications and travel. We must gradually build up an entente cordiale, which perhaps will lead to diplomatic relations."

BRIEF SESSION.

Agree To Enter Into Direct Negotiations For Settlement.

GENEVA, December 12. — Poland and Lithuania formally declared themselves at peace at a special session of the Council of the League of Nations Saturday night. They agreed to enter into direct negotiations with each other for the settlement of their differences. This probably means that full diplomatic relations will be restored shortly.

Premier Waldemaras of Lithuania, and M. Zaleski, the Polish Foreign Minister, announced before the Council tha they accepted the Polisn-Lithuanian settlement.

Direct Negotiations.

Jonkheeer Beelaerts van Blokland, the Dutch Foreign Minister, submitted to the Council at 10.50 Saturday night his report recommending that Poland and Lithuania, having declared that peace exists between the two countries, should enter into direct negotiations to restore good relations. The report was adopted.

Among other things the report rules that Lithuanian protest regarding Poland's treatment of minorities shall be examined by a committe of the League council.

Marshal Pilsudski Poland's Premie, was in the spectator's section. Many members of the council came from dinners in their evening dress, but Pilsudski was in a black business suit, and Waldemaras, who sat at the Council table, wore a black cutaway. Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, and other Council members, invited Marshal Pilsudski to an official seat,, but he preferred to remain a mere spectator.

COUNTY ENTERS DEBATE LEAGUE

Junior Farmers of This County Will Be Represented in Contest.

CONFERENCE HELD.

Clarence Mann of Bridgenorth, along with several other junior farmers of Peterborough county, accompanied J. B. Nelson, agricultural representative for Peterborough county to a Junior Farmers' conference at Belleville on Friday. This was the second annual conference of the Quinte District Junior Farmers.

The chief business of the meeting was to discuss the holding of another Junior Farmers' Field Day next summer and the organization of debating leagues in this district. The meeting expressed itself as being in favor of county debating schedules and an inter county debating league. The agricultural representatives of the counties represented announced that they would provide a suitable trophy for inter-county debating and Victoria county issued the first challenge.

The chief speaker was Alex McKinney from Brampton, who described the junior farmer work in Peel county and gave some valuable suggestions in connection with the work.

Peterborough county intends taking part in the debating contest.

PEOPLE REPAIR STORM DAMAGE

Campbellford People Engaged in Straightening Up Property After Gale.

SOME INCIDENTS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12 — The local stores are displaying a fine line of Christmas goods. Many citizens are however more concerned with repairing the damage done to their property by the recent high winds.

Perhaps the most disheartening wreck for which the gale was responsible was the new rink, Davidson's Arena. The arches for the roof were almost all in place and were braced and guy-wired for safety, but the wind flattened the entire 13 which had been erected. The crash came about four o'clock in the morning and wakened many citizens who reside in the vicinity.

Even at that Campbellford did not witness the thrilling scenes which were to be seen in Cobourg In one instance a piece of roofing, consisting of some two hundred square feet, was ripped from an office building, carried straight up into the air, and then allowed to side slip toward a large plate glass window. But fate was of a different mind. Just at the critical moment the wind changed its course and crashed into an even larger window on the opposite side of the street In another case every shingle was ripped off one side of a private residence near the lake.

Trees were uprooted along the Kingston highway and telephone communication as well as electric light and power were cut off at intervals during the storm.

MAX MACKENZIE'S PARENTS ANXIOUS

Nephew of Rev. A. W. McKenzie Was Wheelman on Agawa.

"We have had good news, but we cannot be happy in our minds until the boy is back with us," N. S. MacKenzie, father of 17-year-old Maxie MacKenzie, who has been serving as a wheelsman on the Agawa as much for adventure as anything else. "Naturally we are very anxious."

The "we" referred to the lad's parents and his sister, who is at home, and although the words were lacking in any extravagance, they expressed all the cold horror of waiting, waiting for definite, certain word.

Misfortune has dogged the footsteps of young MacKenzie. A few years ago he was warming himself in front of an open fire, the dressing gown he wore caught fire and he was so terribly burned that for a time it was thought that his recovery would be impossible.

Wanted Experience

But he defied death and grew well and has been training on H.M.S. Conway on the River Mersey in England. Only last August he returned to his home. The Agawa had been lying in Collingwood harbor most of the summer and he decided that it would be an interesting experience if he signed on as a wheelsman. He left Collingwood in September.

Mr. MacKenzie is manager of the Bank of Montreal at Collingwood and is a brother of Prof. M. A. MacKenzie of Toronto University, and Rev. A. W. MacKenzie of the Lakefield Preparatory School.

CHIMNEY FIRES ENGAGE BRIGADE

Lakefield Men Answer Several Alarms During Week.

HIGH WIND BLAMED.

LAKEFIELD, December 12. — The Fire Brigade have had the busiest week for some months. On Tuesday a still alarm called a number of the firemen to a chimney fire at the house of Mrs. Thomas Fitz-Gerald on the island between the two bridges. The house is occupied by Rev. and Mrs. Ross. The unusually high chimneys made the work difficult, and reinforcements were sent for. The fire was extinguished with little or no damage.

About 6 a.m. on Thursday a general alarm called the Brigade to a fire at the home of Mr. Ruttle on William Street. The chimney fire was soon put out, and no damage resulted. Prompt action prevented what promised to be a dangerous fire.

At about 12.30 p.m. a still alarm was sent in for Mrs. Anne Kennedy's house on Queen Street, again a chimney blaze, which proved obstinate, and slight damage resulted.

The extremely high wind was regarded as the cause of the fires.

In the case of the first fire, some delay was caused by some of the parties not knowing where to send in the alarm. The proper course is to ring Central, who will attend promptly to the matter.

OLD MASTERS

Three fishers went sailing away to the west,
Away to the west as the sun went down;
Each thought on the woman who loved him the best,
And the children stood watching them out of the town;
For men must work and women must weep,
And there's little to earn, and many to keep,
Though the harbor bar be moaning.

Three corpses lay out on the shining sands
In the morning gleam as the tide went down,
And the women are weeping and wringing their hands
For those who will never come home to the town;
For men must work and women must weep,
And the sooner it's over the sooner to sleep;
And goodby to the bar and its moaning.

WELL ATTENDED.

MILLBROOK, December 12.—The minstrel show, given under A.Y.P.A. auspices in the Sunday School Hall of St. Thomas' Church on Wednesday evening, proved a popular and successful event, all seating accommodation being filled by 8 o'clock, the hour of opening.

Rev. P. C. Howard, assistant clergyman of the parish, was chairman, and in his opening remarks welcomed the audience on behalf of the young people, and explained the intention of the A.Y.P.A. to hold a number of open meetings during the winter months, the initial programme being presented that evening.

Miss Mamie Collins presided at the piano, a new instrument which had been added to the school room furnishings only the previous day. Finished in French grey, with bench to match, and of excellent tone, the piano, which replaces the square one that had been in use for several years, is a decided acquisition not alone for its usefulness in connection with the school sessions on Sunday afternoons, but also for the large number of public gatherings and social events held in the parish hall during the year at fairly frequent intervals.

"Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" was the appropriate chorus sung as an opening number on the programme before the curtain was drawn, disclosing an effective stage arrangement with Mr. Ivan L. H. Gray as interlocutor, in the centre of the group of "minstrels," the ladies wearing white dresses with red ties, and the men white trousers, white vests, and large red bow ties. A huge Union Jack filled in the background of the platform with striking effect.

The end men, with make-up that exactly fitted the part, were apparently quite at home in their several roles, and kept the audience convulsed with laughter by their clever local hits, jokes, and songs. In reply to the interlocutor's query as to the names of these four who arrived late upon the scene, the information given was: Mr. Nosmo King (Dr. N. H. Young), Mr. Sardine Fish (L. W. Hutchison), Mr. Job, "they calls me Alexander for short" (Maurice Gray), and Mr. Thornton, who said he had no name, but would decide on the one of "Baldy Johnston." Others on the platform were: Mrs. (Rev.) P. C. Howard, Mrs. L. H. Gray, Mrs. (Dr.) Young, Misses Muriel Smith, Gladys Gray, Elizabeth Russell; Messrs. R. Stone, E. Budd, A. A. Needler, and H. Gray.

Solos by Mrs. P. C. Howard, "At Sundown" 'and "Charmaine"; solo by Miss Elizabeth Russell, "Sometimes I'm Happy,' 'and by Miss Gladys Gray, "Side by Side"; solo, "Hallelujah," by Mistah Johnston; songs by the end men, "There's a Trick in Pickin' a Chick-Chick-Chicken" and "I'm Goin' to Dance With the Guy What Brung Me." Mr. Hutchison contributed selections on the accordion, and two numbers playing the mouth organ and banjo at the same time, and Mr. R. Stone's solo was, "When a Man Has a Moment to Himself."

A piano duet by Misses Mamie Collins and Ada Attwooll wag given between the first and second parts of the programme, and a happy feature, in response to the demand for encores, was having the entire group of minstrels sing the chorus in unison, the audience being invited to join in. "My Old Kentucky" Home" was the chorus that opened the second part of the programme.

In his opening remarks the chairman particularly mentioned the indebtedness of the A.Y.P.A. to Miss Collins for her help as an accompanist; to Mr. Thornton, who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan H. Gray, and is experienced in minstrel show activities, for introducing pep into the programme material and its manner of presentation; and to Mrs. Ivan Gray, convenor, and the other members of the Programme Committee, for the time and labor they had willingly given toward the preparation of the evening's entertainment.

The next regular meeting of the A.Y.P.A. is on Wednesday, December 21, and will take the form of a Christmas party.

RAWDON PUPIL WINS EATON TROPHY

MARMORA, Dec. 12.—Billy Heath, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heath, of Harold and pupil in S. S. No. 13, Rawdon, of which Miss Dora Osborne is teacher, won the greatest number of points at Stirling Fair last September. As a result he earned the T. Eaton silver cup, which is now in his possesion. Also he was awarded the certificate for obtaining the highest number of points of any pupil in the school. These certificates come from the Department of Education and are received in duplicate, one for the scholar and the other for the school.

Marmora is to have a Choral Society, for which it is hoped to secure a membership of at least forty. The home of Mr. W. A. Sanderson was chosen for the inaugural meeting, held last Tuesday evening. There was an attendance of approximately twenty enthusiasts. Young people possesing any musical talent are invited to the practices.

TWO MEN SEEK WARDEN'S CHAIR

C. H. Davidson and Dr. Hess Will Be Candidates For Counties Office.

IF ELECTED TO COUNCIL.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12.—Since the final session of the December meeting of the Counties Council of Northumberland and Durham in Cobourg last week, there has been considerable speculation among those interested as to who will be the Warden for the next term. There must still be some optimists in the district as the election to the Counties Council is automatic with the election to the municipal councils. Following these elections, the Warden has to be elected by the vote of his fellow-councillors. As none of these elections have yet taken place, nor have the nominations, it is rather a far cry to say who will be Warden. C. H. Davidson, Campbellford, and Dr. Hess, Hastings, if the municipal elections are favorable to them, have announced to the members of the Council that they will be in the running for the Warden's chair.

After looking over the list of Wardens for some years back, and also taking into consideration service which Mr. Davidson has had in the local council as well as the Counties Council, he may be considered a likely candidate. To quote his own words, he is going to run for Deputy Reeve again at the municipal elections in Campbellford, and, if elected, for the Wardenship of the two counties if he only gets his own vote for the latter. As both Mr. Davidson and Dr. Hess were very popular with their fellow-councillors at the December session, a close vote will probably be the case if they are again elected to represent their communities at the Counties Council and are the only two contestants for the honors.

Changes its own Records

WHEN you turn on the current, the turntable starts to revolve; a mechanical "hand" takes the first record from the group of twelve and places it on the turntable; the tone-arm moves into position; the sound-box is lowered and the music begins. At the end of the selection, the mechanical "hand" removes the record from the turntable, slides it gently into a felt-lined concealed drawer, and "picks off" the next record from the magazine arm. These operations are repeated until the last record is played, then the mechanism stops automatically.

So magnificent an instrument demands an exterior of exceptional beauty. Victor craftsmen have designed a distinguished cabinet for the Automatic Orthophonic Victrola, in which every luxurious touch that ingenuity can devise has been incorporated.

The price of the automatic instrument is $775. Other models of the Orthophonic Victrola Instruments are obtainable at prices ranging from $790. down to $115.

Obtainable on convenient terms from "His Master's Voice" Dealers. Demonstrations now going on. If your dealer hasn't one he will order it for you.

OVERSEAS MAIL IS BIG THIS YEAR

STAFF VERY BUSY.

From now until well after Christmas the Post Office authorities and staff will be about as busy as can be and it asks citizens to accord the most thoughtful co-operation possible during this time. Timely and proper mailing and addressing of Christmas mail is much to be desired.

Postmaster Lacheur, in speaking to The Examiner stated that the overseas mail of the 1927 Christmas season has been the largest of any since the war, as far as the local office is concernd.

Last Saturday, December 3 was the last day of mailing which would ensure delivery before December 25 and apparently the majority have governed themselves accordingly. However, there will probably be more mail to be taken on board before the S.S. Montcalm sails for the Motherland on December 15.

Mail For U.S.

As the Postal authorities have advised that all mail intended to cross the border be in by Saturday, December 10, the local staff is kept busy at present preparing the usual shipment which is also well up to former years.

Time of Mailing.

So that mail to the other provinces within the Dominion may be delivered on time the following dates are suggested:

Mail for British Columbia, December 14; for Alberta, December 15; for Saskatchewan, December 16; for Manitoba, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, December 17; for Quebec, December 19. Mail to be delivered within Ontario should be in on December 19 also.

Local Mails.

Though December 22nd has been set as the final day to ensure delivery locally, it is hoped that Peterborough people will have their Christmas mail in before that time. There is a courtesy extended of which not everyone is aware, that is, if Christmas cards are mailed now they will be held in the Post Office until their delivery is timely.

A Few Suggestions.

When securing Christmas greeting cards, be certain that they are of fairly large size, says Mr. Lacheur. Address them fully and place the name and address of the sender in the upper left hand corner. If these instruction are followed there will be no danger of the address becoming obliterated during passage through the cancellation machine or of loss when the envelopes are being tied in packages. If the smaller cards and envelopes are used there is this risk to be taken.

Any parcel worth mailing is worthy of proper packing and almost any parcel may be insured, in fact the Post Office authorities advocate this precaution.

Many people avail themselves of the convenience of purchasing stamps from the postmen and with regard to this there is but one suggestion to be offered, that the persons so doing have the right change ready to save the postmen time and inconvenience.

RESCUED SAILORS

loaded within a few feet of the hatch tops with wheat for winter storage, it being the last trip of the season. It is expected that this wheat will be a total loss since the hatch covers were washed away allowing tons of water to pour in on it. The waves ripped and tore at the boat even tearing up the wooden deck in many places.

Wreckage drifting into Michael Bay lead to the belief that the vessel was a total loss. Residents of the south shore of the Manitoulin Island established camps along the beach and kept a 24 hour watch in expectation that the crew would attempt to make the shore in the life boats. None did so however because the life boats were iced in and the sea too rough. However a light seen aboard the Agawa on Friday night established the fact that there was still life aboard. From then on efforts to reach the boat were redoubled. The tug Strathbogie was reported to have cleared from Tobermory on Saturday while the fishing tug Charlie Jones at Providence Bay was chopped from her icy berth in that harbor. Neither, however, could get out to the Agawa, and it remained for five men from South Bay here to discover and communicate with the stranded crew.

They dragged a yawl over land from South Bay, eight miles to Michael's Bay. They launched their tiny craft in a raging surf and rowed the yawl to the wreck. There Johnston was lowered into the small boat from the deck of the freighter, and the return trip was safely accomplished.

All members of the crew testified yesterday to the daring seamanship of the yawl volunteer crew.

The camps at Michael's Bay were abandoned yesterday afternoon and nothing is left to indicate the commotion of the last few days except the bulk of the Agawa barely discernable through the gloom, and hatch covers, doors, chairs, and the multitude of things that have drifted ashore since Wednesday.

Saved By Fishermen.

The annals of shipping on the Great Lakes probably hold no more stirring account of perils bravely faced for the sake of sailors in wrecked vessels than that of five fearless Manitoulin Island fishermen who were first to reach the steamer Agawa after she had been three days aground two miles from shore in Michael's Bay.

Struggling with their yawl over eight miles of terrible roads and then launching bravely into perilous waters the fishermen battled their way to the stranded freighter and brought back a sick member of the imprisoned crew to shore where he was rushed to shelter and given medical attendance. That was Saturday night.

On Sunday morning, the fishermen repeated the trip and took off four men — the remaining members of the Agawa's crew—the others having been taken aboard the tug General, which continued toward Sault Ste. Marie.

The crew of the Altadoc, ashore on Keweenaw Point, Lake Superior, were taken off, part on Saturday and the rest late on Sunday by the United States coastguard cutter Crawford, which is reported to have been hampered seriously by high seas and dangerous ice formations.

The crew of the Oglebay, ashore on Shot Point, ten miles west of Marquette, Mich., were taken safely off on Saturday by the coastguard and a tug.

The Martian, hard aground 15 miles from Port Arthur, is reported in no danger and her crew is still aboard.

No word has been received in the Soo of the steamer Saskatoon of the Canada Steamship Line, which was due upbound Friday night. Anxiety is felt for her.

AGROUND AT PARISIENNE.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., December 12 (Canadian Press). — The vessel aground on Isle Parisienne is the steamer Lambton, of the Matthews Steamship Company, according to word reaching the Sault yesterday afternoon. The message states that the crew of the Lambton have abandoned the boat, and efforts are now being made to find them.

The fact that there was a vessel aground on Isle Parisienne was first reported by the steamer Sarnian, which sent a wireless to the American Soo. The Sarnian reported that the vessel was well up on the rocks and was covered with ice. The tugs Illinois and Sabin, of the Thompson Towing and Wrecking Company, were despatched from the American Soo to Whitefish Point, where they picked up a life-saving crew, and set out to the scene of the reported wreck. They are now trying to find the crew.

It was first thought that the vessel was the steamer King, which had been reported missing, but this was found to be an error.

The steamer Eades, which also reported seeing the steamer aground at Parisienne Island on arriving at the American Soo ship canal, ran into trouble herself after proceeding down the St. Mary's River, puncturing a hole in her forward tanks. The tug Alabama of the Thompson Towing and Wrecking Company, has gone with a pump and air compressor to her assistance.

Stuck in the Ice.

Five vessels were reported yesterday afternoon stuck fast in the ice at Hay Lake . They are the N. M. Clement, Sarnian, Home Smith, L. R. Davidson, and C. L. Hutchison. Tugs were sent down to assist them.

Ice conditions below the Sault are reported bad, where drift ice and snow is reported to be piling up in the lower entrance to the Neebish Channel. The mercury mounted to 20 above zero yesterday, but is falling again. There is also heavy ice above the canals here.

Altadoc Crew Safe.

According to word received at the American Soo Ship Canal, the crew of the steamer Altadoc, on the rocks at Keeweenaw Point, was taken off on Saturday by a coastguard boat from Two Harbors. The Altadoc crew were expected to leave Calumet last night and pass through the Sault to-day for the east.

The steamer Brockton, which with the steamer Britt was released from the ice in Mud Lake on Saturday and proceeded down-bound, is missing, and is causing some anxiety.

The steamers Midland Prince and Bayton, which left the Sault on Friday, are believed safe somewhere on Lake Superior. No word has been received of the Government Light tender, Murray Stewart, which is taking off the light-keepers, but it is thought to be safe. It carries no wireless.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

WOOLER UNITED CHURCH.

WOOLER, Dec. 12.— The pastor, Rev. H. B. Neal, delivered an interesting sermon at the United church on Sunday, Dec. 4th, taking for his text, "Behold I set before you an open door." Jesus embraced all mankind when He said, "Go ye into all the world, Samaria and uttermost parts of the earth, and preach the gospel to every creature." The question of to-day is: "What is the matter with China?" The missionaries did not withdraw with their own accord, but the British ambasasdor said("You must leave."

British and French history shows that all other nations pased through similar experiences and it has taken five hundred years to pass through. China is passing through experiences and revolutions marvellously quiet, all through these twenty years. China is working out her own life and her own destiny. There are 27,000 Chinese working. When left to themselves they found themselves ridiculed and despised, but they are remaining loyal. In Japan one of every five hundred is a Christian, and in Korea one of every two hundred is a Christian. Africa, with it 5,000 miles north and south and 4,000 miles east and west, offers an opportunity for service with the story of Jesus Christ. Surely the harvest is great and the laborers are few. It is a great privilege and opportunity to serve.

At the evening service, the pastor chose for his text the nineteenth verse of the twenty-sixth chapter of the Book of the Acts. The story of Paul, his great personality. Next to Jesus Christ is Paul, as a Christian. The secret of manifold labors was that he was not disobedient. Paul was a Roman citizen, and while he was in prison ,after his three missionary journeys, this was rest and freedom. Festus told Agrippa of his interesting prisoner. "Let us see him and hear him talk," said Agrippa. Paul's speech is recorded in the twenty-sixth chapter of Acts. So convincingly does he speak that the king is almost persuaded to become a follower of Paul. Later Paul is condemned to death ,and these are his words, "Now I am ready, the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought the good fight and I have kept the faith."

TROTSKY OUT AGAIN.

Leon Trotsky as he is today. He has recently been ousted from all positions connected with the official Soviet organization as the result of his antagonism to the Stalin regime at Moscow.

CONGREGATION TOLD OF BUDGET

Rev. W. A. Cameron, of Toronto, Gives Address at St. Andrew's.

EXPLAINS NEEDS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12. — At the morning service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday, the pulpit was occupied by the Reverend W. A. Cameron of Toronto. He was assisted by the Reverend George McGregor of Prescott. There was a large congregation to hear the message which the reverend gentleman had to deliver.

At the present time, the Presbyterian Church is considering its budget for the coming year and it is not an uncommon thing to have men, specially versed in the details of this important affair, visit the different churches in the presbyteries and speak on the money matters of the church. As a general rule these sermons are of the "dry" variety, and few members come to hear what is being said. They seem to think they are going to be victims of highway robbery in broad daylight, and find excuses to warrant their absence from the usual Sunday morning service.

But this did not seem to be the case with the service yesterday morning. There was a larger congregation than usual. Those who failed to hear Mr. Cameron in the morning and did not go to Burnbrae in the evening were unfortunate in so far as they have missed hearing a most interesting and instructive sermon, which might be called an address in part.

After speaking to the children, as is the custom of the church here, Mr. Cameron selected his text from Matthew 10, verse 8, and the last clause in that verse, namely, Freely ye have received, freely give. This is a favorite text for many clergymen at times when they are called upon to speak on or refer to the finances of the church, but Mr. Cameron treated the subject in something of a new way. Impression, he said, was necessary before there could be any expression. The first expression a new born baby made was a cry. Before the child could make this cry there must have been an impression of pain or something to cause the expression. From this humble but illustrative beginning, Mr. Cameron continued his way through various stages to the life of Christ and his relations to the church and to the world.

The budget for the year 1928 has been set at $650,000.00. This is not a figure set by guess, but the result of careful calculation in the most approved business manner. Mr. Cameron explained that each department made an accurate estimate of the funds which it would require to carry out the program before it for the year and submitted this report to the head office. If, when all the departments had submitted their estimates, the grand total was found to be too large, there was sufficient "paring" done to bring the amount to as low a total as possible.

Quite recently, said Mr. Cameron, there was a drive for funds for several charities in the City of Toronto. The men who were in charge of the administration of the funds were quite satisfied with the fact that it was going to require seven per cent of the total to accomplish their work. This seemed to be quite a reasonable percentage. When keen business men were staisfied to set aside seven per cent for administration purposes, Mr. Cameron thought the Presbyterian Church ought to be very proud of the fact that it was only going to require a little over five per cent to administer the budget fund for the church during the year 1928.

With regard to the missionary work of the church, Mr. Cameron seemed to favor home missions. He said that the church had come in for some very severe criticism occasionally where its missionary endeavors were concerned, but that he himself was very thankful that the Apostle Paul had come west instead of east. Had Paul gone east, he was inclined to believe that the civilized world would now be in that section of the globe, and people in the western hemisphere would be deriving the benefit of the foreign missionaries of other lands. It was very gratifying to him to know that the reverse was true.

The Presbyterian Church, he claimed, was a national church, and in that he did not mean that it was a state church. He merely wished to convey that the church was functioning in every province of the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific. In the last year, he said, it had made considerable progress. Many congregations who were dependent on the budget for support, were either self-supporting or approaching that stage. In nearly every case the budget allotment to these churches had been decreased in proportion to the increase in the prosperity of the congregation.

The sermon-address was very interesting and instructive to any person who is at all interested in the affairs of the church. Though it might be termed an appeal for money, yet it was not put in such a way as to cause any loss of interest. The information received was something which every church member should know.

A BETTER START.

Peterborough's municipal election is taking on definite form much earlier than usual, and that is a condition that should lead to greater interest in civic matters and in a larger vote on New Year's Day.

Already two aspirants for the mayoralty are in the field, Mayor Holloway, who retires from the chief magistrate's chair at the end of the year, and John Crane have announced that they will be candidates for the Utilities Commission, and three or four candidates for the Council and one for the Board of Education have definitely declared that they will stand.

This is a much better start than Peterborough usually experiences in the annual civic sweepstakes in which there has almost always been a tendency to stay out of the fight until the last moment, sometimes indeed until the last minute or two of the period for the qualification of candidates.

With so many aspirants already committed and others likely to declare themselves within the next few days, it looks as if the vote on New Year's Day will be a much more extensive expression of public opinion than has been the case in many previous elections.

The fact that so many candidates are early in the field indicates a healthy condition and is welcomed on that account.

BRINGING THEM HOME.

The promise made by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, that each Province in Canada that undertakes to embark on a scheme of repatriating its citizens who have gone to other countries will be assisted by the Federal Government up to the amount of $50,000, should be full of interest to Provincial administrations.

No better material for giving Canada the increased population that is necessary for the solution of many of this country's problems could be found than among the thousands of Canadians who have taken up residence elsewhere, and many of whom might be glad to return to their native land if some measure of assistance were forthcoming.

Such people do not have to be assimilated as do other immigrants.

They do not have to learn to adopt themselves to Canadian ways or Canadian habits.

They are at home as soon as they arrive, and they are therefore of immediate value to the community.

The Federal Government's offer of dollar for dollar to the Provinces would make available a total sum of some $900,000, and this expended intelligently would unquestionably produce results that would be decidedly beneficial.

THE LIQUOR CONTROL ACT.

The statement made by D. B. Hanna, Chairman of the Liquor Control Board, that more than 99 per cent. of the people of Ontario are behaving decently and sensibly in regard to the Government sale of liquor is probably a more accurate survey of the situation than the resolution passed by the U.F.O. condemning Government control in general terms.

Since the second issue of permits began on November 1st only 133,000 have been sold in the whole Province, which does not indicate a very marked desire on the part of the people to take advantage of the sale of liquor.

Nor are there any other indications so far as the operation of the system in this district is concerned that justify such a wholesale condemnation of Government control as has been made by the U.F.O.

That system is doubtless far from perfect—no method that has yet been attempted of dealing with the liquor question has ever been perfect—but at least it takes the sale of liquor out of the hands of bootleggers and puts the profit into the Provincial Treasury instead of into the pockets of illicit dealers; it allows those who do not believe that to drink liquor is a crime a chance to secure their supplies legally and as citizens of a free country instead of illegally and as criminals; it is severe on those who abuse the privilege, as it should be, and if it is enforced by municipal and Provincial police everywhere, as it is meant to be enforced, the results should be more generally satisfactory than they were under the Act the present legislation has supplanted.

ASHBURNHAM'S REPRESENTATION.

Whether or not they agree with his method of solving the problem, most people reading the complaint of a ratepayer in another column in regard to Ashburnham's lack of representation in the City Council will agree with him that the East Ward should have a voice in the deliberations of Peterborough's executive board.

For a number of years there has been no Alderman from that section of the city in the Council.

There should be.

There are many matters perhaps not of general importance but of moment to the people of a particular neighborhood that require attention, and it is in the readjustment of these matters that the services of an Alderman who lives in the section and knows its requirements are most needed.

Ashburnham has been deprived of an advocate in the Council for some time, and there is a feeling among the people in the East Ward that only a return to the ward system would ensure them of proper representation.

It is to be hoped that the nomination list will include the name of an Ashburnham candidate qualified to give good service, and that the people of the whole city will see to it that the ward over the river is represented in next year's Council.

In any event the members of the 1928 Council who will be called upon to fill several aldermanic vacancies by appointment might do well to consider whether they should not in justice to Ashburnham appoint a man from that ward to fill one of the gaps.

ONTARIO'S FINANCES.

Ontario's annual financial statement, just presented by the Provincial Treasurer, shows the Province to be in an extraordinarily prosperous condition. Revenue, to begin with, reached the enormous total of $56,296,000. Exactly what this means may be more clearly realized by recalling that the year after Confederation the total revenue of the whole Dominion was but $13,000,000, and that by 1902, when Canada was thought to be abnormally prosperous, the whole of Federal income was but $58,000,000.

There are sources of revenue today, of course, which an older generation never dreamt of. Thus, last year, profits from the Ontario Liquor Commission produced (in five months) $3,300,000. Gasoline revenue totalled $4,000,000; race tracks brought in $2,152,000; and the amusement tax $1,664,000.

Delivering a budget speech in the British House on one occasion, Robert Lowe, who had a large surplus from excise duties, said that England had "drunk herself out of debt." There are probably people among us today who will hold that Ontario is duplicating the performance; who will see little good in a people paying their debts by patronizing liquor shops, betting at race tracks, and indulging in motors and movies. There is, however, another side to the story. There is the side that, after all, drunkenness has not increased in the Province, and that if today the Government is getting millions out of liquor profits it is only taking something which, in past years, went into the pockets of bootleggers. And so with race tracks. He would be a bold moralist who would argue that it is wrong to put a tax on betting.

But there is something else. It is that if people in these so-called decadent times spend money recklessly for the more frivolous things of life, it is also true that they are willing to be taxed in order to make life less unkind for the more unfortunate among them. Thus, last year, as is shown by the Provincial statement, there were enormous increases in grants to hospitals and charitable institutions; increases for education; increases for mothers' allowances; increases for industrial schools; advances for everything that makes for the social and moral benefit of the people. In the "good old days" that some bewail, such expenditures were almost unheard of.

Despite all these outlays the Government presents a splendid surplus. After meeting all liabilities, and taking care of all its discounts, it was able to pay $3,000,000 off the Provincial debt and achieve a further cash surplus of $278,000. This, by far, is the most hopeful financial statement that the Province has had in years; all the more so seeing that it is accompanied by a promise of further tax reductions.—Ottawa Journal.

KEEPING THEM AT HOME.

With the object of keeping technically trained men in Canada, the Technical Service Council has been organized and is said to be in a strong condition. During the past too many such men have left this country for the United States, and it is high time that something was done to stop the exodus. Canada needs these men, and will need them in increasing numbers when the development period opens in earnest, as it is bound to do before long. In ths expansion of mining and of industry, men with technical knowledge are essential if the most is to be made of opportunity.

While many technically trained Canadians have left Canada upon graduation, the great majority were forced to do so by circumstances. They would have liked to remain in Canada, but there were no positions for them. If they wished to continue in their profession they had to go. They went, and Canada was the poorer for their going.

The Technical Service Council is endeavoring to keep expert Canadians at home, and deserves the support of all true Canadians. It plans to work in a practical way by placing graduates in positions when they graduate. This really is the only way to keep ambitious young men at home. It does no good to appeal merely to their patriotism. These young men are just as patriotic as those who urge them to stay in the land of their birth. Waving the flag is all right, but this process will not keep the wolf from the door or gratify one's ambitions. These young men went, not because they were unpatriotic, but because they wanted to get on in the world. And they have got on and have helped to build up a foreign country. Canada needs these men of ambition, of vision, of training. Therefore, the effort of the Technical Service Council, by providing them with what they trained to secure—jobs—is a sensible one.

The way in which the Council, which is nation-wide, functions, is indicated in the following statement of the Secretary's duties:

"He shall visit and become, as thoroughly as possible, acquainted with the undergraduates of our Provincial technical institutions and scientific colleges, to the end that he may counsel with them and their professors and study their inclinations and qualifications.

"He shall visit our manufacturing plants so that he may know our plant managers and executives and discuss with them the possibilities of this organization; ascertain, if possible, where technical knowledge and experience may be more fully utilized, and when such opening does develop, he will be expected to recommend and arrange interviews between employers and the men available who are, in his opinion, best fitted for such work both from the standpoint of inclination and proven ability."

Here, surely, is a practical way of solving the problem of keeping Canada's trained men at home, and with the sympathies of the employers aroused and with men trained to meet their requirements, there should be no difficulty in placing many graduates who otherwise would be unplaced. Such an organization as the Technical Service Council should have been formed long ago. A similar organization has been a notable success in the States. But it's better late than never. All success to the Canadian Council.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

At least you do not need to leave it until the last week. Finish that Christmas shopping now.

The U.F.O. has condemned the Liquor Control Act, but Mr. Hanna's shops are still open for business.

Legal expenses in connection with the recent police probe cost the city of Windsor $2,580, but doubtless the citizens believe they got good value for their money.

A Kansas man has perfected a seedless tomato, but the praise for inventing a squirtless grapefruit yet remains to be won.

"The Ontario Government spent $107,000 on advertising tourist attractions. Tourists spent $30,000,000 in the Province during the past year. Yes," says The Globe, "advertising pays."

Miss MacPhail had better be careful or there will be no parcel from Mr. Drury on the Christmas tree.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, December 12 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in grain here on Saturday was extremely dull, there being practically no demand from foreign buyers. The spot trade was also quiet, but the tone of the market was firm.

The demand for spring and winter wheat grades of flour was moderate, and prices were unchanged.

Owing to the continued good demand for millfeed for domestic consumption and for shipment to the United States, the undertone to the market was strong, but there was no further change in prices. A good trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats and prices ruled firm.

A feature of the egg trade of late has been increased importations of fresh eggs from the United States owing to the fact that dealers here have been in a position to make purchases of such at lower prices than those offered from British Columbia. The trade continued active and prices were steady. A moderate amount of business was also done in Canadian storage eggs. The receipts on Saturday was 176 cases.

The butter trade continued of a limited character, but prices were steady. The receipts were 418 packages.

Outside of a moderate amount of business transacted with United States buyers in current receipts of Western No. 1 white and colored cheese at 19¼c to 19½c per pound, the local market was quiet. The receipts were 274 boxes.

Editor, Evening Examiner.

Sir,—At the meeting of Claraday ratepayers on Tuesday, December 6, I was asked by Mr. Arnott, in regard to a statement I made, where did I get my information. My reply, from yourself, is correct as reported in the Examiner. Mr. Arnott is quoted as saying he might retire. He has on numerous occasions expressed himself to me as being desirous of giving up office, on one or two occasions in the presence of others. Also he has expressed himself in like manner to others, some of them being at the meeting, and who have expressed themselves as being disgusted at the attempt he made to challenge my truthfulness in this matter. On more than one occasion he has asked me if I would accept nomination in his place, which I firmly and frankly declined. It was on his own statement that he wished to retire, that a few ratepayers thought it opportune to try and secure the return of a resident from Claraday, Mr. James Milby being selected, and who, I think, is worthy of the support of the ratepayers of North Monaghan. Section No. 2, Brownton, is well served by Mr. May, the farming section by Mr. Webber. I hope the ratepayers will note the suggestion to form an association as a means of fostering an interest in the affairs of the township. A meeting will be called in due course to organize the same.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space,—Yours truly,

R. W. BUTLER.

DUNSFORD W.M.S. HAS GIFT EXCHANGE

Next Meeting Will Be Annual One—Dunsford News.

DUNSFORD, Dec. 10.—The Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Thomas James Thurston on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of fifteen members and two visitors. The meeting was opened with the hymn, "Take Time to be Holy", after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Norma Humphrey. The treasurer, Mrs. W. F. Thurston, gave a full report. "Onward Christian Soldiers" was then sung. The scripture lesson was taken by the president, Mrs. T. J. Thurston, from Mark 16, verses 1 to 13. Mrs. Rev. John Everson led in prayer.

A synopsis of chapter two, of the study book, was read by Miss Norma Humphrey. Miss Evelyn Thurston agreed to take the next chapter and Mrs. W. F. Thurston the scripture lesson. Mrs. Ezra Thurston and Miss Flossie Everson were appointed a programme committee for the January meeting. A piano solo, "The Old Oaken Bucket" with variations was given by Miss Norma Humphrey and was much enjoyed. The offering was taken and the meeting was brought to a close by the hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds" and prayer by Mrs. Silas Thurston.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Miss Evelyn Thurston, Mrs. Rev. John Everson and Mrs. F. E. Gordon. The exchange of gifts which was arranged for at the November meeting was successfully carried out by placing the gifts on the table and selling without the purchaser seeing what she was getting. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Irwin Thurston. It will be the annual meeting.

The Young People's League held their monthly social evening in the hall on Wednesday evening. The meeting opened with hymn and prayer. The vice-president, Mrs. Milburn Thurston, took charge of the social events and gave an interesting paper on, "Canada Since Confederation", which was much enjoyed. The roll was called with seventeen members in attendance. The members then took part in several contests, namely pie quartet, musical answers, and proverbs. Prizes were given for the latter. Mrs. Milburn Thurston received a china cup and saucer as first prize awarded to the ladies and Mr. C. LaPlain received a leather purse as first prize awarded the gentlemen. The benediction was repeated after which lunch was served.

The first meeting of the Teacher Training Class for East Emily was held in Emily United church Thursday evening. There were twelve members present. The pastor, Rev. John F. Everson took charge of the class. The first part of the evening was spent in the singing of hymns and prayer by Mr. Alex Elliott after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. Chapter one of the study book, "The Teacher", was discussed and explained by the leader and the members decided to hold their next meeting on Monday evening. The meeting was closed by the benediction.

Messrs. Storms and Reynolds of Warsaw, who have been hauling telephone poles from Bobcaygeon to Marmora, experienced some difficulty on account of icy roads and upon two occasions when the car stalled they were forced to unload and reload the poles on the edge of this village.

Rev. John F. Everson, pastor of Dunsford, attended the Lindsay Presbytery meeting held at Beaverton on Tuesday.

Emily school is closed owing to the illness of the teacher, Mr. Hugh Elliot.

The Township Executive meeting is to be held in Dunsford church on Tuesday evening for the purpose of creating a greater interest in Teacher Training and Organized Class work.

CABINET FORBIDS STUDENT MEETINGS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 10.—(A.P.). — Alarmed by the possibility of fresh anti-Semitic outbreaks throughout Rumania, the cabinet in collaboration with military authorities yesterday forbade student meetings of any kinds to-day, which is the fifth anniversary of the student movement for application of the co-called numerous clauses which limit the activities of minorities in all forms of public life.

The government is thoroughly aroused over unfortunate acts of violence committed by Gentile students against Hebrews at Oradea Mare, Cluj and other towns with large Semitic populations. Already it has made scores of arrests of ringleaders, whom it promises to punish to the limit.

All military commanders have been instructed to prevent a recurrence of disorders in Transylvania, which are estimated to have caused nearly $1,000,000 damage.

In order to forestall false or sensational reports abroad about Rumania's internal situation, the government continues to allow foreign dispatches to go uncensored but maintains strict surveillance over local newspapers which appear daily with great gaping white spaces, leading the public to believe even's are worse than actually reported.

The latest report from the seat of disturbances says students who have been holding a congress at Oradea Mare wrecked six synagogues, broke iron gratings in front of tabernacles, seized sacred objects, and confiscated rabbis' vestments, when the students later donned themselves in a burlesque of the Jewish religious rituals.

The depredations extended to other than Jewish minorities. For example, at Oradea Mare the students demolished the offices of two Hungarian Catholic newspapers, the "Nagyvarad," and "Esti Hirlap."

When General Raplica, commander of the garrison at Oradea More, attempted to intervene, he was assaulted by the students en masse after the students held a reunion at which they conducted a mock funeral ceremony for Raplica.

Despite government efforts in New Zealand to favor British goods, the people continue to use those from America.

LABORATORY IS NECESSITY HERE SAY ROTARIANS

Local Service Club Passes Resolution Protesting Its Removal.

SCIENTIFIC LIGHTING.

Members Hear Informative Address On Subject of Much Practical Interest.

That a very large percentage of the lighting in the stores, factories, churches and homes in Canada was utterly out of accord with scientific principles was one of the many interesting statements made to the Peterborough Rotary Club at the Empress today by Frank T. Groome of the Holophane Company, Ltd., specialists in scientific illumination.

Mr. Groome's address on "Eyesight Conservation and Illumination," was one of the most informative in the history of the club and was made the more effective through the use of special apparatus to illustrate his points. Gordon Nicholls of the Northern Electric Company ably assisting in the demonstration.

On motion of Rotarian Dr. Norman Buchanan, seconded by Rotarian Dr. M. A' Morrison, a resolution to be sent to the Provincial Department of Health and the local member of the Legislature was unanimously passed protesting against the removal of the Provincial Laboratory from Peterborough.

Dr. Buchanan, in introducing the motion, declared that the laboratory had been proven of ever greater service to the people of this district and that the Medical Association was unanimously opposed to the laboratory being taken away, while Dr. Morrison remarked that the government should take the viewpoint that the health of the community ranked higher than the saving of a small sum of money. President A. L. Killaly and Past President Roy gave instances of the practical value of the laboratory as gleaned from their own experiences.

Mr. Groome pointed out that eyesight had developed under daylight conditions, said that the problem was to adjust ourselves to conditions brought about by the introduction of artificial lighting. No merchant, he said, would like to feel that the lighting of his window was half blinding his customers, nor would any manufacturer like to think that because of the lighting facilities in his plant his employees were half blind, yet these conditions actually existed in the majority of stores and factories in the country. Similarly it was found that children who started school with normal vision experienced an increasing need for glasses as they progressed with their education. When lighting changes were considered, the speaker said the usual tendency was to put up more lights, instead of studying the scientific methods that would give much more illumination with smaller lamps and with much less injury to the eye.

Mr. Groome, in his demonstration, illustrated the effect of glaring lights in the case of window illuminations and also the bizarre effects produced by the wrong use of colored lights in such illumination. He very strongly urged against the use of colored lighting unless the effect upon the objects to be displayed had been carefully and scientifically studied.

The speaker also illustrated the principle of the modern street lighting, introduced into Peterborough by Mr. Dobbin and commended this method of street illumination as scientific and modern.

The value of the use of proper lighting in the home, stores, schools, factories and churches was clearly set forth by Mr. Groome, who in the half hour at his disposal gave his hearers a large amount of useful and unusual information.

The thanks of the club were extended to the speaker and to Mr. Nicholls on motion of Rotarian S. R. Armstrong.

THIRD CHILD DIES FROM DIPHTHERIA

Annie Smith Succumbs To After Effects of Dread Disease.

NORHAM, Dec. 12.—The community was shocked when it became known on Wednesday that little Annie Smith had passed away, due to paralysis of the throat, following diphtheria. This is the third death in the home of Mr. Amos Smith within the past two weeks, when the home was stricken by the dread disease, diphtheria. Of the six children only three, the two eldest, George and Margaret, and the baby, are left. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved family.

Tie-up Is Averted Chicago Rail Strike

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—A holiday tie-up of Chicago's surface and elevated lines was averted when representatives of the unions and the railway companies decided to continue operations under the original arbitration agreement previously approved by the Federal court.

The decision set aside previous plans of the unions, which had voted to strike on December 15 unless granted 15 cents an hour increase in wages.

AGAWA'S MATE DESCRIBES STAY ON BOARD SHIP

Went Without Food For 38 Hours—Firemen Have Dangerous Trip.

SHIP BADLY BATTERED.

Tug Carrying Rescued Men Is Now Caught in Ice Jam.

DETOUR, Dec. 12 (Canadian Press).—An absorbing tale of harrowing adventures of the crew of the steamer Agawa, stranded on Advance Reef, Mantoulin Island, for ninety hours, thirty-eight hours without food, and the wonderful display of discipline and fortitude in the face of these adversities, was told to-day by John T. Armstrong, second mate, who with fourteen other members of the crew, were conveyed by the tug General to Detour.

The boat left Fort William with two hundred thousand bushels of grain on Sunday, Dec. 4th. The weather turned bad Wednesday and in a strong wind the ship struck the reef. Everything was done to make preparations for the worst, Armstrong said.

"The wind got worse, and during the night we had the full sweep of Lake Huron upon us. The firemen had a dangerous passage forward when driven from the back of the boat by the waves.

"The seas got gradually worse and the men were ordered to the observation room and the captain's quarters. Unfortunately no food had been brought forward," Armstrong said, "and nothing was eaten until Saturday morning except some chocolates, apples, and figs. We had lots of tobacco."

On Friday the front of the boiler house had been levelled, part of the boat deck torn up, boats washed away and stack knocked down by the seas. Some of the mountainous waves were as high as forty feet above the deck, he said.

Saturday it got calmer and they were able to hack their way through the thick ice to the crew's quarters forward. At daylight they were abie to go aft for the first time and get some sandwiches and tea.

During all the miseries, William Johnston, the oiler who was taken off by the yawl on Saturday night, was attacked with what they thought was appendicitis. The yawl arrived with five men on it, who had pulled it overland to the nearest shore point.

On Sunday the tugs General and Strathbogie were both observed, and it was not long before the men were taken off.

Tug Caught in Ice.

SAULT STE MARIE, Dec. 12 (Canadian Press).—The tug General which left Detour to-day for the Sault with members of the rescued crew of the steamer Agawa on board is stuck in the ice near Neebish Cut, and efforts are being made to release her.

TWO PROMINENT MEN PASS AWAY OVER WEEK END

John P. Cunningham and George W. Powell Well Known.

ILL FOR SOME TIME.

Mr. Cunningham Had Conducted Music Store—Mr. Powell C. A. S. Agent.

The death of John Peel Cunningham, which took place on Saturday evening, December 10, lost to the city one of its most widely known and popular citizens; in business, in his church and in his private home life he was known to possess those qualities which made him respected, esteemed, and loved by all with whom he came in contact. A host of friends, not only in the city and district, but in communities elsewhere, learned of his death with sincere regret.

The late John Cunningham was born in the Township of Ops, near Lindsay, on September 5, 1862, and came to Peterborough when but a young man. Here he entered the music business some forty years ago and his store at 404 George Street has since enjoyed an extensive patronage.

In the progress of Murray Street Baptist Church there is more than one indication of his interest and willing hand. For more than twenty years he has served in the choir and other societies of that church.

His passing is mourned by his widow; two daughters, Ruby of Clifton Springs, N.Y., and Mabel at home; two brothers, W. B. and C. H. Cunninghom, of Austin, Manitoba, and two sisters, Miss Susan Cunningham and Mrs. John Reid, the former of Austin, and the latter of Selkirk, Man.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, 517 Stewart Street, on Tuesday, December 13, at 2 p.m., with interment at Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, M.A., of Murray Street Baptist Church, will have charge of the services, both at the house and at the graveside.

GEORGE WENTWORTH POWELL

Born in Cobourg, George Wentworth Powell died in Peterborough on Monday morning, December 12, after a life of seventy-two years, the major portion of which was spent in service not only to his native town but to his adopted home city, Peterborough. His passing marks the loss of a citizen of worth, a loving husband and kindly father.

Gaining his education in the Cobourg common schools and a term in the Belleville Business College, the late Mr. Powell later followed the occupation of butcher and meats dealer, and on coming to Peterborough when a young man of thirty-two years continued in this line of business.

He had been married some nine years previous to Miss Jane Bond of Cobourg and to this union were born two sons, George Roy, and Morley Vincent, of this city, and one daughter, Jane (Mrs. Lloyd Gilders), also of Peterborough.

The late Mr. Powell was actively connected with George Street Methodist (later George Street United) Church as steward, class leader, missionary secretary, chairman of the social service committee, superintendent of Grace Church Sunday School and of the Auburn Sunday School.

However, his interests were on a very broad plane, indeed, for he gained prominence as a school trustee for three years, a member of the City Charity Board of two years, financial secretary Court Chemong.

THE WEATHER

We are now approaching the middle of December, and the weather still keeps unseasonably mild. While temperatures below zero have been recorded in many places, we have escaped severe weather. The lowest Peterboro can boast of is three degrees above zero a week ago yesterday. Last year at this time we had it 12 degrees below zero, and winter had set in in earnest. Good sleighing continued from this date onward during the winter.—W. P.

Chiang Would Break Relations With Russia Unless Soviet Intrigue Is Discontinued

SHANGHAI, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—General Chiang Kai-Shek, who was drafted yesterday to re-enter the Nationalist movement as leader by the Kuomintang conference, declared yesterday that unless Soviet Russia "discontinued its intrigue toward China," the Nationalist government would be compelled to break off relations. This, the General added, would necessitate the closure of the Soviet Consulate in Nationalist territory in China. "The Kuomintang," said General Chiang, "has made me responsible for the tremendous task of re-uniting the party factions and reorganizing the national government in order that the revolution may progress. I intend to exert my full strength to bring peace to the Nationalist territory and resume warfare against Chang Tso-Lin, upon whose elimination depends nation-wide peace in China."

While real unity of the Nationalist factions is considered difficult of realization, Chiang Kai-Shek is believed to be the most likely person capable of its accomplishment.

Continuing his statement, General Chiang said: "I have heard that President Coolidge is considering sending a commission to China to investigate the treaty situation. Nationalist China would consider such action a friendly gesture. It would have a tremendous solidifying effect on Chinese public opinion, possibly resulting in the Southerners and the Northerners uniting on a commission to meet the United States delegation for discussion of treaty revision. The time has arrived for the Powers to meet China in a friendly attempt to break the treaty deadlock which is disrupting trade."

EUROPEAN MINISTERS DISCUSS FRANCO-ITALIAN PROBLEM

Would Lay Ground For Settlement of Dispute Between Nations.

DELICATE QUESTION.

Sir Ronald W. Graham, British Ambasador To Rome Attends Conference.

GENEVA, Dec. 12.—(A.P.)—A frank review of Franco-Italian relations was made by Foreign Minister Briand of France, and Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, yesterday at a luncheon attended by Sir Ronald W. Graham, British ambassador to Rome, especially summoned to Geneva by Sir Austen.

The object was to determine the exact nature of the questions which seemingly have caused recent friction between France and Italy and to lay, if possible, the ground work for a later interview between Monsieur Briand and Signor Mussolini, the Italian premier. Sir Ronald was called in on the conference because of his special knowledge of Italian conditions and the desire of the French foreign minister to hear the views of a third party, excellently placed to study developments.

Delicate Problem.

Yesterday's conference indicated anew that the ground problem makes statesmen nervous about Franco-Italian relations is Il Duce's anxiety to find an economic outlet for Italy's growing population and his desire to have Italians given the privilege of preserving their Italian nationality chiefly in French colonies such as Algeria.

It is pointed out that some 800,000 live on French soil, principally in the southern departments near the Italian frontier and just how quickly these Italians can be absorbed into French national life is a matter of considerable concern to the French government.

In other words, the Franco-Italian problem from the French standpoint is how to foster a reasonable national spirit for the respective countries without permitting Italians on French soil to develop into a menacing element for each government, while from the Italian viewpoint the situation resolves itself into the desire for increased economic possibilities for Italian workers in France proper and French possession, and the privilege of maintaining their national and cultural entity.

The possibility of political co-operation in the Mediterranean as a substitute for political jealousies endangered by such acts as the Italian alliance with Albania as an answer to the French treaty with Jugoslavia, is another matter the statesmen are studying. When the ground work for fruitful conversations has been properly laid, it is believed that a conference between the Italian and French premiers will be arranged, but this will require time.

Sir Austen, in a statement Saturday night, said he did not take a grave view of the differences between France and Italy.

Sir Austen paid tribute to the work of the great powers in helping to secure settlement of the Polish-Lithuanian dispute and in this connection particularly mentioned the contribution of Maxim Litvinoff, Russian vice-commissar for foreign affairs.

Claims Border-Crossing Regulations Contrary to Provisions of Jay Treaty

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 12 (Canadian Press).—The claim that the recent border-crossing regulations of the Department of Labor are contrary to the provisions of the Jay Treaty of 1784 and that certain articles of that instrument are still in effect, was made Saturday by counsel for Mary Cook and an Antonio Danelon of Niagara Falls, Ont., recently stopped at the border by immigration agents for alleged unlawful entry.

The case came before Judge John R. Hazel, in Federal Court in habeas corpus proceedings in behalf of the barred aliens. Judge Hazel reserved decision.

Preston M Albro, lawyer for the aliens, said that Congressional enactments cannot supersede the Jay Treaty unless the treaty is clearly annulled. He also maintained that the new regulations are contrary to the immigration law itself and that the Department of Labor erred in classing communting Canadians immigrants.

Richard W. Grim, representing the Federal Government at the hearing, said that if the recent ruling of the Department of Labor is not upheld, a gateway of entry into this country from every nation in the world would be provided. By establishing residence in Canada, he said, subjects of other countries could pass into the United States on a declaration of business and remain indefinitely. He sought dismissal of the proceedings on the ground that the aliens had a fair hearing before a special board of inquiry, which decided upon their exclusion.

JOHN CRANE IS CANDIDATE FOR THE UTILITIES

Well Known Citizen Yields To Urging of Friends and Will Stand.

RECORD OF SERVICE.

Latest Entrant in Field Has Done Good Work in Other Positions.

The entrance of Mayor Holloway into the Utilities race has been closely followed by that of John Crane, who has authorized The Examiner to announce his candidature.

"I have yielded to the persuasion of many citizens who have for some time been urging me to allow my name to be put forward as a candidate for the Commission," stated Mr. Crane to The Examiner, "and I am now definitely in the race."

Mr. Crane, who recently retired from the management of the local branch of the Dominion Bank, has served the public in various capacities in connection with the Nicholls Hospital Board, for years as a member of the Board of Education, and in other important offices where his judgment has always been valued and his capacity for good work appreciated.

The Examiner recently referred to the fact that Mr. Crane was being praised by many citizens to stand for the Utilities and the present announcement that he has consented to do so will be appreciated by such citizens, and doubtless many others.

Two Men Drowned Coffer Dam Bursts

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 12 (Canadian Press). — Two men were drowned and four others injured, two seriously, when a cofferdam on which they were working in the Welland Canal at Welland, Ont., collapsed Saturday night. The dead are: Achille Besson, 29; Henry Neallis, 34. The injured: Jack Adams; Robert Burke, 58; Robert Lethbridge, 41; Edgar Cerardi.

The men were working on the dam which had been placed around a crib so that the crib could be raised. The crib had been brought near the surface when a cable snapped and the cofferdam collapsed, throwing the workmen into the icy waters.

SENIOR MEMBER.

He Has Been Connected With the Utilities For Six Years.

W. H. Bradburn M.P.P. chairman of the Utilities Commission whose three year term expires at the end of the year announced to The Examiner this afternoon that he intends to stand for re-election.

Mr. Bradburn is the senior member of the commission having been first elected to that body six years ago.

Besides his two terms as member of the Utilities Mr. Bradburn has of course been of public service as an alderman and as mayor of the city, while for the past two terms he has represented this riding in the Ontario Legislature.

With his decision to ask the ratepayers for an endorsation of his services in the shape of another three years in office, the campaign for the Utilities Commission now assumes a triangular form, Mayor Holloway and John Crane having previously announced their intention of becoming candidates.

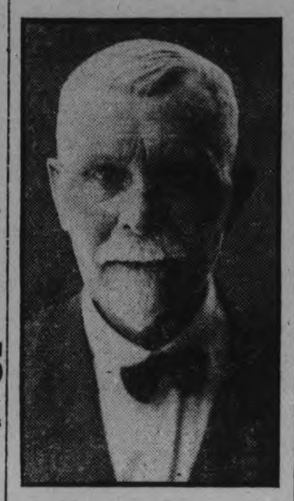
DIED THIS MORNING.



GEORGE W. POWELL,
Long a resident of this city in business, and as C. A. S. Inspector, who died to-day.

Penned in Observation Room of the Steamer Since Thursday.

TUG GIVES AID.

Had Nothing To Eat, With Only Coal Oil Stove For Heat.

TEHKUMMAH, Ont., Dec. 12.—(By Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press.)— The last members of the crew of the Steamer Agawa which ran on Advance Reef, Manitoulin Island, last Wednesday in a snow storm, were taken off the wreck yesterday morning at 9.30. Five of them were brought to Tehkummah after being rescued by the yawl which removed William Johnston, an oiler, Saturday night. The other 14 were taken to Sault Ste. Marie by the tug General.

The five men brought here were Norman Stalker, of Penetang, Samuel Tait of Hamilton, Frank McCully, also of Hamilton, and William Conenigs, of Montreal.

The tug Strathbogie, of Owen Sound, was also near the wreck at this time, but was too late to render any assistance.

Members of the crew told a vivid story of hardship. They were penned in the observation room of the steamer since Thursday with only one small coal oil stove to supply heat. This stove was turned out from time to time to conserve the precious fuel. The force of wind and waves broke one door and one window in the observation room and it was nailed up again. The doors of the state room were used for this purpose. The men said they had nothing to eat. After a dinner on Wednesday evening they did not have a meal until yesterday noon. William Conenigs ,the last man to leave the after end of the ship stated that he had remained in the stoke hole to try to keep enough steam in the boiler to supply the heating system on Wednesday night.

Water Fell Into Stoke Hole.

"It was a terrible experience," he told the Canadian Press. "The water washed completely over the stern of the ship and fell into the stoke hole in torrents. Finally the hatches were carried away by the sea and I tried to get out. I climbed up over the boiler and through the skylight to the deck and tried to get up forward. The icy water came over the deck in sheets and I hung on to the life line desperately as the waves hit me. Just as I got safely forward the life line broke and from that time until Saturday no one could get back to the galley. Up in the observation room all the crew were lying about the deck trying to keep warm. A gramaphone helped to while away the tedious hours, while smoking relieved the pangs of hunger. Some of the fellows who never smoked before lit cigars and cigarettes."

The men left all their belongings except the clothes they were wearing when they were rescued from the Agawa. They will remain in Tehkummah until funds are received to enable them to return to their homes. All of them, with the exception of William Johnston ,of Newmarket, Ontario, who was brought ashore Saturday night, are in good physical condition and were cheerful yesterday.

"Thank God, we got ashore safely!" was the general expression of the five brought here yesterday.

Johnston is suffering from exposure and is in the hospital at Mindemoya, but he was reported yesterday as recuperating from his terrible experiences.

Agawa Partly Damaged

The Agawa ,owned by the Algoma Central Steamship Lines of the Soo, Ont., is partly a wreck. The spars and rigging on the stern of the boat were washed overboard by the heavy seas, while spray freezing covered her with ice to a depth of several feet in places. Members of the crew said to-day that a hundred tons of ice is clinging to the forward end of the ship. The bow is resting on the bottom in 14 feet of water while there is 42 feet of water under the stern. Efforts to pull the boat from her position on the rock under her own power were hopeless. The Agawa is

NAVIGATION CLOSES.

PORT ARTHUR, December 12.—Canadian Press. — As navigation draws to a close on the great lakes, additional disasters are filtering through. The steamer Oglebay, wrecked at Shot Island, and the Lambton, are recorded in the list of the storm's toll. The Kamloops of the Canada Steamship Lines is among the missing and grave fears are entertained for her safety. The company to-day despatched the tug Islet Prince from Port Arthur to search the north shore of Lake Superior for the missing vessel. The Kamloops was last seen in Whitefish Bay. It does not carry a wireless, and is thought to have got into difficulty and to be lying in shelter.

The tug Champlain, which went to the assistance of the Altadoc, and was reported to be missing to-day, has turned up safe at Portage Entrance, Keewanaw.

The freighter Martian, aground on Hare Island, near Port Arthur, is still fast despite efforts to pull her off the reef.

Navigation closes at 12 o'clock tonight when the special insurance premium expires, and a number of the ships are preparing to clear from the head of the lakes before that hour. The weather is reported moderate on the upper lakes and the high seas have subsided. The fog has lifted and navigation is not difficult. The Hamonic, a passenger ship, is among the ships to clear tonight.

Powers' Determination To Maintain Peace Of Europe Is Feature of Present Session

GENEVA, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The determination of the Powers, great and small including Soviet Russia, to maintain in a permanent way the peace of Europe clearly appears to all the delegates as the feature of the December session of the council of the League of Nations. The council will conclude its work today.

The settlement of the Polish-Lithuanian dispute, which was not as clear cut and definite as some would have liked, is regarded as evidence of Europe's desire for peace, which Premier Waldemaras of Lithuania and M. Zaleski, Polish Foreign Minister, immediately sought to promote in a practical way by conferring yesterday as to measures best suited for the inauguration of normal relations between the two countries.

Premier Waldermaras left for Kovno last night with a document in his pocket calculated to satisfy the aspirations of his fellow countrymen, and that is the declaration read by Jonkheer Beelaerts von Blokland before the council, that the peace settlement between Lithuania and Poland in no wise affects the liquidation of various questions such as the rights Lithuania claims over Vilna.

"To establish permanently the friendly relations, we must negotiate the opening up of the frontier, now closed, and arrange for resumption of communications and travel. We must gradually build up an entente cordiale, which perhaps will lead to diplomatic relations."

ENVOYS REACH AGREEMENT IN POLISH DISPUTE

Poland and Lithuania End State of War in Eastern Europe.

BRIEF SESSION.

Agree To Enter Into Direct Negotiations For Settlement.

GENEVA, December 12. — Poland and Lithuania formally declared themselves at peace at a special session of the Council of the League of Nations Saturday night. They agreed to enter into direct negotiations with each other for the settlement of their differences. This probably means that full diplomatic relations will be restored shortly.

Premier Waldemaras of Lithuania, and M. Zaleski, the Polish Foreign Minister, announced before the Council tha they accepted the Polisn-Lithuanian settlement.

Direct Negotiations.

Jonkheeer Beelaerts van Blokland, the Dutch Foreign Minister, submitted to the Council at 10.50 Saturday night his report recommending that Poland and Lithuania, having declared that peace exists between the two countries, should enter into direct negotiations to restore good relations. The report was adopted.

Among other things the report rules that Lithuanian protest regarding Poland's treatment of minorities shall be examined by a committe of the League council.

Marshal Pilsudski Poland's Premie, was in the spectator's section. Many members of the council came from dinners in their evening dress, but Pilsudski was in a black business suit, and Waldemaras, who sat at the Council table, wore a black cutaway. Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, and other Council members, invited Marshal Pilsudski to an official seat,, but he preferred to remain a mere spectator.

COUNTY ENTERS DEBATE LEAGUE

Junior Farmers of This County Will Be Represented in Contest.

CONFERENCE HELD.

Clarence Mann of Bridgenorth, along with several other junior farmers of Peterborough county, accompanied J. B. Nelson, agricultural representative for Peterborough county to a Junior Farmers' conference at Belleville on Friday. This was the second annual conference of the Quinte District Junior Farmers.

The chief business of the meeting was to discuss the holding of another Junior Farmers' Field Day next summer and the organization of debating leagues in this district. The meeting expressed itself as being in favor of county debating schedules and an inter county debating league. The agricultural representatives of the counties represented announced that they would provide a suitable trophy for inter-county debating and Victoria county issued the first challenge.

The chief speaker was Alex McKinney from Brampton, who described the junior farmer work in Peel county and gave some valuable suggestions in connection with the work.

Peterborough county intends taking part in the debating contest.

PEOPLE REPAIR STORM DAMAGE

Campbellford People Engaged in Straightening Up Property After Gale.

SOME INCIDENTS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12 — The local stores are displaying a fine line of Christmas goods. Many citizens, are however more concerned with repairing the damage done to their property by the recent high winds.

Perhaps the most disheartening wreck for which the gale was responsible was the new rink, Davidson's Arena. The arches for the roof were almost all in place and were braced and guy-wired for safety, but the wind flattened the entire 13 which had been erected. The crash came about four o'clock in the morning and wakened many citizens who reside in the vicinity.

Even at that Campbellford did not witness the thrilling scenes which were to be seen in Cobourg In one instance a piece of roofing, consisting of some two hundred square feet, was ripped from an office building, carried straight up into the air, and then allowed to side slip toward a large plate glass window. But fate was of a different mind. Just at the critical moment the wind changed its course and crashed into an even larger window on the opposite side of the street In another case every shingle was ripped off one side of a private residence near the lake.

Trees were uprooted along the Kingston highway and telephoue communication as well as electric light and power were cut off at intervals during the storm.

MAX MACKENZIE'S PARENTS ANXIOUS

Nephew of Rev. A. W. McKenzie Was Wheelman on Agawa.

"We have had good news, but we cannot be happy in our minds until the boy is back with us," N. S. MacKenzie, father of 17-year-old Maxie MacKenzie, who has been serving as a wheelsman on the Agawa as much for adventure as anything else. "Naturally we are very anxious."

The "we" referred to the lad's parents and his sister, who is at home, and although the words were lacking in any extravagance, they expressed all the cold horror of waiting, waiting for definite, certain word.

Misfortune has dogged the footsteps of young MacKenzie. A few years ago he was warming himself in front of an open fire, the dressing gown he wore caught fire and he was so terribly burned that for a time it was thought that his recovery would be impossible.

Wanted Experience

But he defied death and grew well and has been training on H.M.S. Conway on the River Mersey in England. Only last August he returned to his home. The Agawa had been lying in Collingwood harbor most of the summer and he decided that it would be an interesting experience if he signed on as a wheelsman. He left Collingwood in September.

Mr. MacKenzie is manager of the Bank of Montreal at Collingwood and is a brother of Prof. M. A. MacKenzie of Toronto University, and Rev. A. W. MacKenzie of the Lakefield Preparatory School.

HIGH WIND BLAMED.

LAKEFIELD, December 12. — The Fire Brigade have had the busiest week for some months. On Tuesday a still alarm called a number of the firemen to a chimney fire at the house of Mrs. Thomas Fitz-Gerald on the island between the two bridges. The house is occupied by Rev. and Mrs. Ross. The unusually high chimneys made the work difficult, and reinforcements were sent for. The fire was extinguished with little or no damage.

About 6 a.m. on Thursday a general alarm called the Brigade to a fire at the home of Mr. Ruttle on William Street. The chimney fire was soon put out, and no damage resulted. Prompt action prevented what promised to be a dangerous fire.

At about 12.30 p.m. a still alarm was sent in for Mrs. Anne Kennedy's house on Queen Street, again a chimney blaze, which proved obstinate, and slight damage resulted.

The extremely high wind was regarded as the cause of the fires.

In the case of the first fire, some delay was caused by some of the parties not knowing where to send in the alarm. The proper course is to ring Central, who will attend promptly to the matter.

OLD MASTERS

Three fishers went sailing away to the west,
Away to the west as the sun went down;
Each thought on the woman who loved him the best,
And the children stood watching them out of the town;
For men must work and women must weep,
And there's little to earn, and many to keep,
Though the harbor bar be moaning.

Three corpses lay out on the shining sands
In the morning gleam as the tide went down,
And the women are weeping and wringing their hands
For those who will never come home to the town;
For men must work and women must weep,
And the sooner it's over the sooner to sleep;
And goodby to the bar and its moaning.
—Charles Kingsley: From The Three Fishers.

A.Y.P.A. HOLDS MINSTREL SHOW

WELL ATTENDED.

MILLBROOK, December 12.—The minstrel show, given under A.Y.P.A. auspices in the Sunday School Hall of St. Thomas' Church on Wednesday evening, proved a popular and successful event, all seating accommodation being filled by 8 o'clock, the hour of opening.

Rev. P. C. Howard, assistant clergyman of the parish, was chairman, and in his opening remarks welcomed the audience on behalf of the young people, and explained the intention of the A.Y.P.A. to hold a number of open meetings during the winter months, the initial programme being presented that evening.

Miss Mamie Collins presided at the piano, a new instrument which had been added to the school room furnishings only the previous day. Finished in French grey, with bench to match, and of excellent tone, the piano, which replaces the square one that had been in use for several years, is a decided acquisition not alone for its usefulness in connection with the school sessions on Sunday afternoons, but also for the large number of public gatherings and social events held in the parish hall during the year at fairly frequent intervals.

"Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" was the appropriate chorus sung as an opening number on the programme before the curtain was drawn, disclosing an effective stage arrangement with Mr. Ivan L. H. Gray as interlocutor, in the centre of the group of "minstrels," the ladies wearing white dresses with red ties, and the men white trousers, white vests, and large red bow ties. A huge Union Jack filled in the background of the platform with striking effect.

The end men, with make-up that exactly fitted the part, were apparently quite at home in their several roles, and kept the audience convulsed with laughter by their clever local hits, jokes, and songs. In reply to the interlocutor's query as to the names of these four who arrived late upon the scene, the information given was: Mr. Nosmo King (Dr. N. H. Young), Mr. Sardine Fish (L. W. Hutchison), Mr. Job, "they calls me Alexander for short" (Maurice Gray), and Mr. Thornton, who said he had no name, but would decide on the one of "Baldy Johnston." Others on the platform were: Mrs. (Rev.) P. C. Howard, Mrs. L. H. Gray, Mrs. (Dr.) Young, Misses Muriel Smith, Gladys Gray, Elizabeth Russell; Messrs. R. Stone, E. Budd, A. A. Needler, and H. Gray.

Solos by Mrs. P. C. Howard, "At Sundown" 'and "Charmaine"; solo by Miss Elizabeth Russell, "Sometimes I'm Happy,' 'and by Miss Gladys Gray, "Side by Side"; solo, "Hallelujah," by Mistah Johnston; songs by the end men, "There's a Chick in Pickin' a Chick-Chick-Chicken" and "I'm Goin' to Dance With the Guy What Brung Me." Mr. Hutchison contributed selections on the accordion, and two numbers playing the mouth organ and banjo at the same time, and Mr. R. Stone's solo was, "When a Man Has a Moment to Himself."

A piano duet by Misses Mamie Collins and Ada Attwooll was given between the first and second parts of the programme, and a happy feature, in response to the demand for encores, was having the entire group of minstrels sing the chorus in unison, the audience being invited to join in. "My Old Kentucky" Home" was the chorus that opened the second part of the programme.

In his opening remarks the chairman particularly mentioned the indebtedness of the A.Y.P.A. to Miss Collins for her help as an accompanist; to Mr. Thornton, who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan H. Gray, and is experienced in minstrel show activities, for introducing pep into the programme material and its manner of presentation; and to Mrs. Ivan Gray, convenor, and the other members of the Programme Committee, for the time and labor they had willingly given toward the preparation of the evening's entertainment.

The next regular meeting of the A.Y.P.A. is on Wednesday, December 21, and will take the form of a Christmas party.

RAWDON PUPIL WINS EATON TROPHY

MARMORA, Dec. 12.—Billy Heath, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heath, of Harold and pupil in S. S. No. 13, Rawdon, of which Miss Dora Osborne is teacher, won the greatest number of points at Stirling Fair last September. As a result he earned the T. Eaton silver cup, which is now in his possesion. Also he was awarded the certificate for obtaining the highest number of points of any pupil in the school. These certificates come from the Department of Education and are received in duplicate, one for the scholar and the other for the school.

Marmora is to have a Choral Society, for which it is hoped to secure a membership of at least forty. The home of Mr. W. A. Sanderson was chosen for the inaugural meeting, held last Tuesday evening. There was an attendance of approximately twenty enthusiasts. Young people possesing any musical talent are invited to the practices.

TWO MEN SEEK WARDEN'S CHAIR

C. H. Davidson and Dr. Hess Will Be Candidates For Counties Office.

IF ELECTED TO COUNCIL.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12.—Since the final session of the December meeting of the Counties Council of Northumberland and Durham in Cobourg last week, there has been considerable speculation among those interested as to who will be the Warden for the next term. There must still be some optimists in the district as the election to the Counties Council is automatic with the election to the municipal councils. Following these elections, the Warden has to be elected by the vote of his fellow-councillors. As none of these elections have yet taken place, nor have the nominations, it is rather a far cry to say who will be Warden. C. H. Davidson, Campbellford, and Dr. Hess, Hastings, if the municipal elections are favorable to them, have announced to the members of the Council that they will be in the running for the Warden's chair.

After looking over the list of Wardens for some years back, and also taking into consideration service which Mr. Davidson has had in the local council as well as the Counties Council, he may be considered a likely candidate. To quote his own words, he is going to run for Deputy Reeve again at the municipal elections in Campbellford, and, if elected, for the Wardenship of the two counties if he only gets his own vote for the latter. As both Mr. Davidson and Dr. Hess were very popular with their fellow-councillors at the December session, a close vote will probably be the case if they are again elected to represent their communities at the Counties Council and are the only two contestants for the honors.

WHEN you turn on the current, the turntable starts to revolve; a mechanical "hand" takes the first record from the group of twelve and places it on the turntable; the tone-arm moves into position; the sound-box is lowered and the music begins. At the end of the selection, the mechanical "hand" removes the record from the turntable, slides it gently into a felt-lined concealed drawer, and "picks off" the next record from the magazine arm. These operations are repeated until the last record is played, then the mechanism stops automatically.

So magnificent an instrument demands an exterior of exceptional beauty. Victor craftsmen have designed a distinguished cabinet for the Automatic Orthophonic Victrola, in which every luxurious touch that ingenuity can devise has been incorporated.

A BETTER START.

Peterborough's municipal election is taking on definite form much earlier than usual, and that is a condition that should lead to greater interest in civic matters and in a larger vote on New Year's Day.

Already two aspirants for the mayoralty are in the field, Mayor Holloway, who retires from the chief magistrate's chair at the end of the year, and John Crane have announced that they will be candidates for the Utilities Commission, and three or four candidates for the Council and one for the Board of Education have definitely declared that they will stand.

This is a much better start than Peterborough usually experiences in the annual civic sweepstakes in which there has almost always been a tendency to stay out of the fight until the last moment, sometimes indeed until the last minute or two of the period for the qualification of candidates.

With so many aspirants already committed and others likely to declare themselves within the next few days, it looks as if the vote on New Year's Day will be a much more extensive expression of public opinion than has been the case in many previous elections.

The fact that so many candidates are early in the field indicates a healthy condition and is welcomed on that account.

BRINGING THEM HOME.

The promise made by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, that each Province in Canada that undertakes to embark on a scheme of repatriating its citizens who have gone to other countries will be assisted by the Federal Government up to the amount of $50,000, should be full of interest to Provincial administrations.

No better material for giving Canada the increased population that is necessary for the solution of many of this country's problems could be found than among the thousands of Canadians who have taken up residence elsewhere, and many of whom might be glad to return to their native land if some measure of assistance were forthcoming.

Such people do not have to be assimilated as do other immigrants.

They do not have to learn to adopt themselves to Canadian ways or Canadian habits.

They are at home as soon as they arrive, and they are therefore of immediate value to the community.

The Federal Government's offer of dollar for dollar to the Provinces would make available a total sum of some $900,000, and this expended intelligently would unquestionably produce results that would be decidedly beneficial.

THE LIQUOR CONTROL ACT.

The statement made by D. B. Hanna, Chairman of the Liquor Control Board, that more than 99 per cent. of the people of Ontario are behaving decently and sensibly in regard to the Government sale of liquor is probably a more accurate survey of the situation than the resolution passed by the U.F.O. condemning Government control in general terms.

Since the second issue of permits began on November 1st only 133,000 have been sold in the whole Province, which does not indicate a very marked desire on the part of the people to take advantage of the sale of liquor.

Nor are there any other indications so far as the operation of the system in this district is concerned that justify such a wholesale condemnation of Government control as has been made by the U.F.O.

That system is doubtless far from perfect—no method that has yet been attempted of dealing with the liquor question has ever been perfect—but at least it takes the sale of liquor out of the hands of bootleggers and puts the profit into the Provincial Treasury instead of into the pockets of illicit dealers; it allows those who do not believe that to drink liquor is a crime a chance to secure their supplies legally and as citizens of a free country instead of illegally and as criminals; it is severe on those who abuse the privilege, as it should be, and if it is enforced by municipal and Provincial police everywhere, as it is meant to be enforced, the results should be more generally satisfactory than they were under the Act the present legislation has supplanted.

ASHBURNHAM'S REPRESENTATION.

Whether or not they agree with his method of solving the problem, most people reading the complaint of a ratepayer in another column in regard to Ashburnham's lack of representation in the City Council will agree with him that the East Ward should have a voice in the deliberations of Peterborough's executive board.

For a number of years there has been no Alderman from that section of the city in the Council.

There should be.

There are many matters perhaps not of general importance but of moment to the people of a particular neighborhood that require attention, and it is in the readjustment of these matters that the services of an Alderman who lives in the section and knows its requirements are most needed.

Ashburnham has been deprived of an advocate in the Council for some time, and there is a feeling among the people in the East Ward that only a return to the ward system would ensure them of proper representation.

It is to be hoped that the nomination list will include the name of an Ashburnham candidate qualified to give good service, and that the people of the whole city will see to it that the ward over the river is represented in next year's Council.

In any event the members of the 1928 Council who will be called upon to fill several aldermanic vacancies by appointment might do well to consider whether they should not in justice to Ashburnham appoint a man from that ward to fill one of the gaps.

ONTARIO'S FINANCES.

Ontario's annual financial statement, just presented by the Provincial Treasurer, shows the Province to be in an extraordinarily prosperous condition. Revenue, to begin with, reached the enormous total of $56,296,000. Exactly what this means may be more clearly realized by recalling that the year after Confederation the total revenue of the whole Dominion was but $13,000,000, and that by 1902, when Canada was thought to be abnormally prosperous, the whole of Federal income was but $58,000,000.

There are sources of revenue today, of course, which an older generation never dreamt of. Thus, last year, profits from the Ontario Liquor Commission produced (in five months) $3,300,000. Gasoline revenue totalled $4,000,000; race tracks brought in $2,152,000; and the amusement tax $1,664,000.

Delivering a budget speech in the British House on one occasion, Robert Lowe, who had a large surplus from excise duties, said that England had "drunk herself out of debt." There are probably people among us today who will hold that Ontario is duplicating the performance; who will see little good in a people paying their debts by patronizing liquor shops, betting at race tracks, and indulging in motors and movies. There is, however, another side to the story. There is the side that, after all, drunkenness has not increased in the Province, and that if today the Government is getting millions out of liquor profits it is only taking something which, in past years, went into the pockets of bootleggers. And so with race tracks. He would be a bold moralist who would argue that it is wrong to put a tax on betting.

But there is something else. It is that if people in these so-called decadent times spend money recklessly for the more frivolous things of life, it is also true that they are willing to be taxed in order to make life less unkind for the more unfortunate among them. Thus, last year, as is shown by the Provincial statement, there were enormous increases in grants to hospitals and charitable institutions; increases for education; increases for mothers' allowances; increases for industrial schools; advances for everything that makes for the social and moral benefit of the people. In the "good old days" that some bewail, such expenditures were almost unheard of.

Despite all these outlays the Government presents a splendid surplus. After meeting all liabilities, and taking care of all its discounts, it was able to pay $3,000,000 off the Provincial debt and achieve a further cash surplus of $278,000. This, by far, is the most hopeful financial statement that the Province has had in years; all the more so seeing that it is accompanied by a promise of further tax reductions.—Ottawa Journal.

KEEPING THEM AT HOME.

With the object of keeping technically trained men in Canada, the Technical Service Council has been organized and is said to be in a strong condition. During the past too many such men have left this country for the United States, and it is high time that something was done to stop the exodus. Canada needs these men, and will need them in increasing numbers when the development period opens in earnest, as it is bound to do before long. In ths expansion of mining and of industry, men with technical knowledge are essential if the most is to be made of opportunity.

While many technically trained Canadians have left Canada upon graduation, the great majority were forced to do so by circumstances. They would have liked to remain in Canada, but there were no positions for them. If they wished to continue in their profession they had to go. They went, and Canada was the poorer for their going.

The Technical Service Council is endeavoring to keep expert Canadians at home, and deserves the support of all true Canadians. It plans to work in a practical way by placing graduates in positions when they graduate. This really is the only way to keep ambitious young men at home. It does no good to appeal merely to their patriotism. These young men are just as patriotic as those who urge them to stay in the land of their birth. Waving the flag is all right, but this process will not keep the wolf from the door or gratify one's ambitions. These young men went, not because they were unpatriotic, but because they wanted to get on in the world. And they have got on and have helped to build up a foreign country. Canada needs these men of ambition, of vision, of training. Therefore, the effort of the Technical Service Council, by providing them with what they trained to secure—jobs—is a sensible one.

The way in which the Council, which is nation-wide, functions, is indicated in the following statement of the Secretary's duties:

"He shall visit and become, as thoroughly as possible, acquainted with the undergraduates of our Provincial technical institutions and scientific colleges, to the end that he may counsel with them and their professors and study their inclinations and qualifications.

"He shall visit our manufacturing plants so that he may know our plant managers and executives and discuss with them the possibilities of this organization; ascertain, if possible, where technical knowledge and experience may be more fully utilized, and when such opening does develop, he will be expected to recommend and arrange interviews between employers and the men available who are, in his opinion, best fitted for such work both from the standpoint of inclination and proven ability."

Here, surely, is a practical way of solving the problem of keeping Canada's trained men at home, and with the sympathies of the employers aroused and with men trained to meet their requirements, there should be no difficulty in placing many graduates who otherwise would be unplaced. Such an organization as the Technical Service Council should have been formed long ago. A similar organization has been a notable success in the States. But it's better late than never. All success to the Canadian Council.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

At least you do not need to leave it until the last week. Finish that Christmas shopping now.

The U.F.O. has condemned the Liquor Control Act, but Mr. Hanna's shops are still open for business.

Legal expenses in connection with the recent police probe cost the city of Windsor $2,580, but doubtless the citizens believe they got good value for their money.

A Kansas man has perfected a seedless tomato, but the praise for inventing a squirtless grapefruit yet remains to be won.

"The Ontario Government spent $107,000 on advertising tourist attractions. Tourists spent $80,000,000 in the Province during the past year. Yes," says The Globe, "advertising pays."

Miss MacPhail had better be careful or there will be no parcel from Mr. Drury on the Christmas tree.

The Prince of Wales is to visit Kenya and other British possessions in East Africa. His Royal Highness evidently means to study every part of the Empire.

Perhaps the Toronto Police Commission can get Big Bill Thompson to tell them how he drove all the crooks out of Chicago.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, December 12 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in grain here on Saturday was extremely dull, there being practically no demand from foreign buyers. The spot trade was also quiet, but the tone of the market was firm.

The demand for spring and winter wheat grades of flour was moderate, and prices were unchanged.

Owing to the continued good demand for millfeed for domestic consumption and for shipment to the United States, the undertone to the market was strong; but there was no further change in prices. A good trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats and prices ruled firm.

A feature of the egg trade of late has been increased importations of fresh eggs from the United States owing to the fact that dealers here have been in a position to make purchases of such at lower prices than those offered from British Columbia. The trade continued active and prices were steady. A moderate amount of business was also done in Canadian storage eggs. The receipts on Saturday was 176 cases.

The butter trade continued of a limited character, but prices were steady. The receipts were 418 packages.

Outside of a moderate amount of business transacted with United States buyers in current receipts of Western No. 1 white and colored cheese at 19¼c to 19½c per pound, the local market was quiet. The receipts were 274 boxes.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

Editor, Evening Examiner.

Sir,—At the meeting of Claraday ratepayers on Tuesday, December 6, I was asked by Mr. Arnott, in regard to a statement I made, where did I get my information. My reply, from yourself, is correct as reported in the Examiner. Mr. Arnott is quoted as saying he might retire. He has on numerous occasions expressed himself to me as being desirous of giving up office, on one or two occasions in the presence of others. Also he has expressed himself in like manner to others, some of them being at the meeting, and who have expressed themselves as being disgusted at the attempt he made to challenge my truthfulness in this matter. On more than one occasion he has asked me if I would accept nomination in his place, which I firmly and frankly declined. It was on his own statement that he wished to retire, that a few ratepayers thought it opportune to try and secure the return of a resident from Claraday, Mr. James Milby being selected, and who, I think, is worthy of the support of the ratepayers of North Monaghan, Section No. 2, Brownton, is well served by Mr. May, the farming section by Mr. Webber. I hope the ratepayers will note the suggestion to form an association as a means of fostering an interest in the affairs of the township. A meeting will be called in due course to organize the same.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space,—Yours truly,

R. W. BUTLER.

DUNSFORD, Dec. 10.—The Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Thomas James Thurston on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of fifteen members and two visitors. The meeting was opened with the hymn, "Take Time to be Holy", after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Norma Humphrey. The treasurer, Mrs. W. F. Thurston, gave a full report. "Onward Christian Soldiers" was then sung. The scripture lesson was taken by the president, Mrs. T. J. Thurston, from Mark 16, verses 1 to 13. Mrs. Rev. John Everson led in prayer.

A synopsis of chapter two, of the study book, was read by Miss Norma Humphrey. Miss Evelyn Thurston agreed to take the next chapter and Mrs. W. F. Thurston the scripture lesson. Mrs. Ezra Thurston and Miss Flossie Everson were appointed a programme committee for the January meeting. A piano solo, "The Old Oaken Bucket" with variations was given by Miss Norma Humphrey and was much enjoyed. The offering was taken and the meeting was brought to a close by the hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds" and prayer by Mrs. Silas Thurston.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Miss Evelyn Thurston, Mrs. Rev. John Everson and Mrs. F. E. Gordon. The exchange of gifts which was arranged for at the November meeting was successfully carried out by placing the gifts on the table and selling without the purchaser seeing what she was getting. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Irwin Thurston. It will be the annual meeting.

The Young People's League held their monthly social evening in the hall on Wednesday evening. The meeting opened with hymn and prayer. The vice-president, Mrs. Milburn Thurston, took charge of the social events and gave an interesting paper on, "Canada Since Confederation", which was much enjoyed. The roll was called with seventeen members in attendance. The members then took part in several contests, namely pie quartet, musical answers, and proverbs. Prizes were given for the latter. Mrs. Milburn Thurston received a china cup and saucer as first prize awarded to the ladies and Mr. C. LaPlain received a leather purse as first prize awarded the gentlemen. The benediction was repeated after which lunch was served.

Rev. John F. Everson, pastor of Dunsford, attended the Lindsay Presbytery meeting held at Beaverton on Tuesday.

Emily school is closed owing to the illness of the teacher, Mr. Hugh Elliot.

The Township Executive meeting is to be held in Dunsford church on Tuesday evening for the purpose of creating a greater interest in Teacher Training and Organized Class work.

CABINET FORBIDS STUDENT MEETINGS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 10.—(A.P.). — Alarmed by the possibility of fresh anti-Semitic outbreaks throughout Rumania, the cabinet in collaboration with military authorities yesterday forbade student meetings of any kinds to-day, which is the fifth anniversary of the student movement for application of the co-called numerous clauses which limit the activities of minorities in all forms of public life.

The government is thoroughly aroused over unfortunate acts of violence committed by Gentile students against Hebrews at Oradea Mare, Cluj and other towns with large Semitic populations. Already it has made scores of arrests of ringleaders, whom it promises to punish to the limit.

All military commanders have been instructed to prevent a recurrence of disorders in Transylvania, which are estimated to have caused nearly $1,000,000 damage.

In order to forestall false or sensational reports abroad about Rumania's internal situation, the government continues to allow foreign dispatches to go uncensored but maintains strict surveillance over local newspapers which appear daily with great gaping white spaces, leading the public to believe even's are worse than actually reported.

The latest report from the seat of disturbances says students who have been holding a congress at Oradea Mare wrecked six synagogues, broke iron gratings in front of tabernacles, seized sacred objects, and confiscated rabbis' vestments, when the students later donned themselves in a burlesque of the Jewish religious rituals.

The depredations extended to other than Jewish minorities. For example, at Oradea Mare the students demolished the offices of two Hungarian Catholic newspapers, the "Nagyvarad," and "Esti Hirlap."

When General Raplica, commander of the garrison at Oradea More, attempted to intervene, he was assaulted by the students en masse later the students held a reunion at which they conducted a mock funeral ceremony for Raplica.

Despite government efforts in New Zealand to favor British goods, the people continue to use those from America.

OVERSEAS MAIL IS BIG THIS YEAR

STAFF VERY BUSY.

From now until well after Christmas the Post Office authorities and staff will be about as busy as can be and it asks citizens to accord the most thoughtful co-operation possible during this time. Timely and proper mailing and addressing of Christmas mail is much to be desired.

Postmaster Lacheur, in speaking to The Examiner stated that the overseas mail of the 1927 Christmas season has been the largest of any since the war, as far as the local office is concernd.

Last Saturday, December 3 was the last day of mailing which would ensure delivery before December 25 and apparently the majority have governed themselves accordingly. However, there will probably be more mail to be taken on board before the S.S. Montcalm sails for the Motherland on December 15.

Mail For U.S.

As the Postal authorities have advised that all mail intended to cross the border be in by Saturday, December 10, the local staff is kept busy at present preparing the usual shipment which is also well up to former years.

Time of Mailing.

So that mail to the other provinces within the Dominion may be delivered on time the following dates are suggested:

Mail for British Columbia, December 14; for Alberta, December 15; for Saskatchewan, December 16; for Manitoba, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, December 17; for Quebec, December 19. Mail to be delivered within Ontario should be in on December 19 also.

Local Mails.

Though December 22nd has been set as the final day to ensure delivery locally, it is hoped that Peterborough people will have their Christmas mail in before that time. There is a courtesy extended of which not everyone is aware, that is, if Christmas cards are mailed now they will be held in the Post Office until their delivery is timely.

A Few Suggestions.

When securing Christmas greeting cards, be certain that they are of fairly large size, says Mr. Lacheur. Address them fully and place the name and address of the sender in the upper left hand corner. If these instruction are followed there will be no danger of the address becoming obliterated during passage through the cancellation machine or of loss when the envelopes are being tied in packages. If the smaller cards and envelopes are used there is this risk to be taken.

Any parcel worth mailing is worthy of proper packing and almost any parcel may be insured, in fact the Post Office authorities advocate this precaution.

Many people avail themselves of the convenience of purchasing stamps from the postmen and with regard to this there is but one suggestion to be offered, that the persons so doing have the right change ready to save the postmen time and inconvenience.

loaded within a few feet of the hatch tops with wheat for winter storage, it being the last trip of the season. It is expected that this wheat will be a total loss since the hatch covers were washed away allowing tons of water to pour in on it. The waves ripped and tore at the boat even tearing up the wooden deck in many places.

Wreckage drifting into Michael Bay lead to the belief that the vessel was a total loss. Residents of the south shore of the Manitoulin Island established camps along the beach and kept a 24 hour watch in expectation that the crew would attempt to make the shore in the life boats. None did so however because the life boats were iced in and the sea too rough. However a light seen aboard the Agawa on Friday night established the fact that there was still life aboard. From then on efforts to reach the boat were redoubled. The tug Strathbogie was reported to have cleared from Tobermory on Saturday while the fishing tug Charlie Jones at Providence Bay was chopped from her icy berth in that harbor. Neither, however, could get out to the Agawa, and it remained for five men from South Bay here to discover and communicate with the stranded crew.

They dragged a yawl over land from South Bay, eight miles to Michael's Bay. They launched their tiny craft in a raging surf and rowed the yawl to the wreck. There Johnston was lowered into the small boat from the deck of the freighter, and the return trip was safely accomplished.

All members of the crew testified yesterday to the daring seamanship of the yawl volunteer crew.

The camps at Michael's Bay were abandoned yesterday afternoon and nothing is left to indicate the commotion of the last few days except the bulk of the Agawa barely discernable through the gloom, and hatch covers, doors, chairs, and the multitude of things that have drifted ashore since Wednesday.

Saved By Fishermen.

The annals of shipping on the Great Lakes probably hold no more stirring account of perils bravely faced for the sake of sailors in wrecked vessels than that of five fearless Manitoulin Island fishermen who were first to reach the steamer Agawa after she had been three days aground two miles from shore in Michael's Bay.

Struggling with their yawl over eight miles of terrible roads and then launching bravely into perilous waters the fishermen battled their way to the stranded freighter and brought back a sick member of the imprisoned crew to shore where he was rushed to shelter and given medical attendance. That was Saturday night.

On Sunday morning, the fishermen repeated the trip and took off four men — the remaining members of the Agawa's crew—the others having been taken aboard the tug General, which continued toward Sault Ste. Marie.

The crew of the Altadoc, ashore on Keweenaw Point, Lake Superior, were taken off, part on Saturday and the rest late on Sunday by the United States coastguard cutter Crawford, which is reported to have been hampered seriously by high seas and dangerous ice conditions.

The crew of the Oglebay, ashore on Shot Point, ten miles west of Marquette, Mich., were taken safely off on Saturday by the coastguard and a tug.

The Martian, hard aground 15 miles from Port Arthur, is reported in no danger and her crew is still aboard.

No word has been received in the Soo of the steamer Saskatoon of the Canada Steamship Line, which was due upbound Friday night. Anxiety is felt for her.

AGROUND AT PARISIENNE.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., December 12 (Canadian Press). — The vessel aground on Isle Parisienne is the steamer Lambton, of the Matthews Steamship Company, according to word reaching the Sault yesterday afternoon. The message states that the crew of the Lambton have abandoned the boat, and efforts are now being made to find them.

The fact that there was a vessel aground on Isle Parisienne was first reported by the steamer Sarnian, which sent a wireless to the American Soo. The Sarnian reported that the vessel was well up on the rocks and was covered with ice. The tugs Illinois and Sabin, of the Thompson Towing and Wrecking Company, were despatched from the American Soo to Whitefish Point, where they picked up a life-saving crew, and set out to the scene of the reported wreck. They are now trying to find the crew.

It was first thought that the vessel was the steamer King, which had been reported missing, but this was found to be an error.

The steamer Eades, which also reported seeing the steamer aground at Parisienne Island on arriving at the American Soo ship canal, ran into trouble herself after proceeding down the St. Mary's River, puncturing a hole in her forward tanks. The tug Alabama of the Thompson Towing and Wrecking Company, has gone with a pump and air compressor to her assistance.

Stuck in the Ice.

Five vessels were reported yesterday afternoon stuck fast in the ice at Hay Lake . They are the N. M. Clement, Sarnian, Home Smith, L. R. Davidson, and C. L. Hutchison. Tugs were sent down to assist them.

Ice conditions below the Sault are reported bad, where drift ice and snow is reported to be piling up in the lower entrance to the Neebish Channel. The mercury mounted to 20 above zero yesterday, but is falling again. There is also heavy ice above the canals here.

Altadoc Crew Safe.

According to word received at the American Soo Ship Canal, the crew of the steamer Altadoc, on the rocks at Keeweenaw Point, was taken off on Saturday by a coastguard boat from Two Harbors. The Altadoc crew were expected to leave Calumet last night and pass through the Sault to-day for the east.

The steamer Brockton, which with the steamer Britt was released from the ice in Mud Lake on Saturday and proceeded down-bound, is missing, and is causing some anxiety.

The steamers Midland Prince and Bayton, which left the Sault on Friday, are believed safe somewhere on Lake Superior. No word has been received of the Government Light tender, Murray Stewart, which is taking off the light-keepers, but it is thought to be safe. It carries no wireless.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

WOOLER UNITED CHURCH.

WOOLER, Dec. 12.— The pastor, Rev. H. B. Neal, delivered an interesting sermon at the United church on Sunday, Dec. 4th, taking for his text, "Behold I set before you an open door." Jesus embraced all mankind when He said, "Go ye into all the world, Samaria and uttermost parts of the earth, and preach the gospel to every creature." The question of to-day is: "What is the matter with China?" The missionaries did not withdraw with their own accord, but the British ambasasdor said("You must leave."

British and French history shows that all other nations pased through similar experiences and it has taken five hundred years to pass through. China is passing through experiences and revolutions marvellously quiet, all through these twenty years. China is working out her own life and her own destiny. There are 27,000 Chinese working. When left to themselves they found themselves ridiculed and despised, but they are remaining loyal. In Japan one of every five hundred is a Christian, and in Korea one of every two hundred is a Christian. Africa, with it 5,000 miles north and south and 4,000 miles east and west, offers an opportunity for service with the story of Jesus Christ. Surely the harvest is great and the laborers are few. It is a great privilege and opportunity to serve.

At the evening service, the pastor chose for his text the nineteenth verse of the twenty-sixth chapter of the Book of the Acts. The story of Paul, the great personality, went to Jesus Christ is Paul, as a Christian. The secret of manifold labors was that he was not disobedient. Paul was a Roman citizen, and while he was in prison ,after his three missionary journeys, this was rest and freedom. Festus told Agrippa of his interesting prisoner. "Let us see him and hear him talk," said Agrippa. Paul's speech is recorded in the twenty-sixth chapter of Acts. So convincingly does he speak that the king is almost persuaded to become a follower of Paul. Later Paul is condemned to death ,and these are his words, "Now I am ready, the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought the good fight and I have kept the faith."

CONGREGATION TOLD OF BUDGET

Rev. W. A. Cameron, of Toronto, Gives Address at St. Andrew's.

EXPLAINS NEEDS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12. — At the morning service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday, the pulpit was occupied by the Reverend W. A. Cameron of Toronto. He was assisted by the Reverend George McGregor of Prescott. There was a large congregation to hear the message which the reverend gentleman had to deliver.

At the present time, the Presbyterian Church is considering its budget for the coming year and it is not an uncommon thing to have men, specially versed in the details of this important affair, visit the different churches in the presbyteries and speak on the money matters of the church. As a general rule these sermons are of the "dry" variety, and few members come to hear what is being said. They seem to think they are going to be victims of highway robbery in broad daylight, and find excuses to warrant their absence from the usual Sunday morning service.

But this did not seem to be the case with the service yesterday morning. There was a larger congregation than usual. Those who failed to hear Mr. Cameron in the morning and did not go to Burnbrae in the evening were unfortunate in so far as they have missed hearing a most interesting and instructive sermon, which might be called an address in part.

After speaking to the children, as is the custom of the church here, Mr. Cameron selected his text from Matthew 10, verse 8, and the last clause in that verse, namely, Freely ye have received, freely give. This is a favorite text for many clergymen at times when they are called upon to speak on or refer to the finances of the church, but Mr. Cameron treated the subject in something of a new way. Impression, he said, was necessary before there could be any expression. The first expression a new born baby made was a cry. Before the child could make this cry there must have been an impression of pain or something to cause the expression. From this humble but illustrative beginning, Mr. Cameron continued his way through various stages to the life of Christ and his relations to the church and to the world.

The budget for the year 1928 has been set at $650,000.00. This is not a figure set by guess, but the result of careful calculation in the most approved business manner. Mr. Cameron explained that each department made an accurate estimate of the funds which it would require to carry out the program before it for the year and submitted this report to the head office. If, when all the departments had submitted their estimates, the grand total was found to be too large, there was sufficient "paring" done to bring the amount to as low a total as possible.

Quite recently, said Mr. Cameron, there was a drive for funds for several charities in the City of Toronto. The men who were in charge of the administration of the funds were quite satisfied with the fact that it was going to require seven per cent of the total to accomplish their work. This seemed to be quite a reasonable percentage. When keen business men were staisfied to set aside seven per cent for administration purposes, Mr. Cameron thought the Presbyterian Church ought to be very proud of the fact that it was only going to require a little over five per cent to administer the budget fund for the church during the year 1928.

With regard to the missionary work of the church, Mr. Cameron seemed to favor home missions. He said that the church had come in for some very severe criticism occasionally where its missionary endeavors were concerned, but that he himself was very thankful that the Apostle Paul had come west instead of east. Had Paul gone east, he was inclined to believe that the civilized world would now be in that section of the globe, and people in the western hemisphere would be driving the benefit of the foreign missionaries of other lands. It was very gratifying to him to know that the reverse was true.

The Presbyterian Church, he claimed, was a national church, and in that he did not mean that it was a state church. He merely wished to convey that the church was functioning in every province of the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific. In the last year, he said, it had made considerable progress. Many congregations who were dependent on the budget for support, were either self-supporting or approaching that stage. In nearly every case the budget allotment to these churches had been decreased in proportion to the increase in the prosperity of the congregation.

The sermon-address was very interesting and instructive to any person who is at all interested in the affairs of the church. Though it might be termed an appeal for money, yet it was not put in such a way as to cause any loss of interest. The information received was something which every church member should know.

The strongly dominant sign today is benefic, according to astrology, which finds conditions favorable to most human activities.

This is a planetary government most auspicious for all who hold the reins of power, financial or political.

The rule seems to foreshadow continued power for those who hold political office or who guide great corporations.

Banks and bankers should benefit at this time, for the sway encouraged conservative policies and wise administration of business affairs.

There is a lucky sign for the heads of educational institutions, but college presidents will be more fortunate than public school superintendents or principals.

In many places polities will interfere with public institutions and the people will resent changed conditions, the seers prophesy.

The partial eclipse of the Sun, December 24, is read as fortunate for the film and theatrical worlds.

Saturn and mars will bring great activity to the steel, railway and other interests dependent on iron products.

Great loss of life abroad by war or earthquake or both is prognosticated.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

When at a few minutes before eight the doorbell rang, Rhoda flew to answer it. Dressed in the black satin afternoon dress that Faith had given her for her audition before San Remo, and with her honey-gold hair fluffed about her plump pink-and-white face, the girl was almost beautiful.

Rhoda flung open the door, then squealed with delight. "Oh, Nils, you look gorgeous! Where on earth did you get those evening clothes? Oh, I wish you were my boy friend, instead of just my brother! Did you bring me flowers? You angel!"

While Nils was laughing at his sister and kissing her, Faith had an opportunity to stare at him unnoticed. She thought she had never seen so magnificent a man in her life. His tall, broad shouldered, slim-waisted young body was impeccably clad in dinner clothes, the tuxedo fitting him as if it had been tailored for him. Suspended from the forefinger of his gloved right hand was a large square florist's box tied with purple ribbon.

"I ordered the togs when I was here a month ago," Nils answered his sister's first question. "They were waiting for me. Like 'em? Good! The flowers are for you and Miss Cherry. The orchids for her, the pink rosebuds for you. Why didn't you tell me this afternoon you didn't have an evening dress with you? I should have bought you one. But you look pretty enough to get a dozen boy friends, if that's what you want. Good evening, Mrs. Hathaway. Is Miss Cherry ready?" He spoke with the easy confidence of a man who is accustomed to getting what he wants.

"Good evening, Mr. Jonson," Faith went to meet him with outstretched hand, her face suffused with a flush of embarrassment. "I'm afraid you misunderstood. My sister had a previous engagement when you asked her to go to the opera to-night. She's expecting Mr. Bruce Patton. I'm awfully sorry ——"

"Patton?" the young giant repeated slowly, his incredibly blue eyes narrowing. "I met him to-day when I took Miss Lane back to her office after lunch. I wonder if I may speak to her?"

Not by the flicker of an eyelash or the tightening of a muscle did the immaculately clad young Norse giant betray anger or disappointment; on the contrary, Faith received the impression that he was amused or at least exhilarated by this new evidence that Cherry had declared war.

"Well! Here I am! What do you want?" Cherry's clear, light voice challenged from the archway between dining-room and living-room.

Posed against the somber richness of the brocaded damask portieres that Faith had hung for the winter, Cherry's tiny body, clad in shimmering gold, was like an exquisitely painted portrait of a fashion mannequin. An electric candle, in a wrought-iron wall fixture just above her head, made an aureole of her glorious copper-and-gold curls and lit to luminous splendor the strange, living gold of her eyes. Even Faith, who was familiar with her beauty, drew in her breath sharply with admiration and envy.

"Thank you!" Nils Jonson bowed slightly, his whole face gleaming with a smile. "You've given me just what I most wanted—an opportunity to see you."

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ICE BOAT.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Very cold it was in Woodland, near the Orange Ice Mountains, where Uncle Wiggily had built his hollow stump bungalow. Jack Frost had frozen the duck pond so that it looked as if a sheet of glass covered the water. On the fields, once so green, was now a covering of white snow. Uncle Wiggily looked from his window out toward the frozen duck pond, and his wife said:

"Don't you wish you lived in the Southland, where it is always summer?"

"No, I can't say that I do," answered the rabbit gentleman as he twinkled his pink nose.

"I do!" chirped Skipper, the black cricket who was living in a snug crack between the bricks of the rabbit gentleman's fireplace. "I wish it was always summer. But it is as warm as summer in your bungalow, Uncle Wiggily, even if it is winter outside, so I don't care."

"I am not afraid of cold weather!" laughed Mr. Longears. "I have a warm fur coat, and I am going out now and see what adventure I may have."

"Where are you going?" asked his wife.

"I am going for a ride on my ice boat," answered the rabbit. "My ice boat is down on the frozen duck pond and soon I shall be skimming along when the wind blows." As he opened the front door to go out, Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy called to him:

"Will you please bring me some sheets of sandpaper when you come back home after riding in your ice boat?"

"I shall do that for you with pleasure," Uncle Wiggily answered. "But why do you want sandpaper?"

He started to run.

"There is an old blue chair in my kitchen," answered the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I want to paint it a bright red. But before I can do that I must get the old blue paint off. I can rub the blue paint off with sandpaper if you will bring me some."

"I shall do that," promised the bunny, and he started out of the door, but his wife called to him:

"One moment, please, Wiggy, dear?"

"What is it?" asked Mr. Longears, smiling through his whiskers. "Do you want some sandpaper, also?"

"No," replied his wife. "But hadn't you better wear your rubbers?"

"No, thank you," said her husband. "I am not going to walk on the ice, I am going to ride over it in my boat, so I will not need rubbers to keep me from slipping, thank you."

At last Uncle Wiggily was on his way. Before he reached his ice boat he passed a store that sold sandpaper, so he bought several of the rough sheets. Sandpaper, you know is tough, brown paper with rough and glued on it and it is very scratchy and scritchie.

"Now for a fine sail!" chuckled Mr. Longears as he climbed aboard his ice boat with the sheets of rough paper. "I'll sail across the duck pond and back again." An ice boat, you know, is made from wood almost in the shape of the letter T and on the bottom of the T is a thing like a big skate or a sled runner. There are two other runners, one on each end of the cross-piece of the T. There is a sail, just as on a sail boat, and a rudder with which to steer the ice boat.

The wind was blowing hard as Uncle Wiggily started off in his ice boat and he sailed very fast. He went whizzing across the frozen pond and he was having a fine time until, all of a sudden, he looked back and saw the Bushy Bear chasing him.

"Ho! Ho!" laughed the bunny gentleman. "My ice boat will sail much faster than the Bushy Bear can run." So Uncle Wiggily hoisted a bit more of the sail, and the ice boat shot ahead so fast that it spilled Mr. Longears right out. Right out on the ice the bunny gentleman was tossed, and away his boat went sailing all by itself.

"Ho! Ho!" growled the Bushy Bear. "Now I can catch you! With my sharp claws sticking in the ice, I can run much faster than you can hop!"

"We shall see!" said Uncle Wiggily. So he started to run, and then he wished he had his rubbers, for he kept slipping this way and that way until, as he looked back, he saw the Bushy Bear was very close.

"Oh, if there was only some way so I wouldn't slip!" thought Mr. Longears. Then he remembered Nurse Jane's sheets of rough sandpaper in his pocket. Quickly taking them out, Uncle Wiggily wrapped first one paw and then the other in a sheet of sandpaper, tying them on with strings. And with this rough stuff on his feet the bunny no longer slipped and slid on the ice. He could run as well as if he had spikes in his shoes and soon he was far, far ahead of the Bushy Bear. A little later Mr. Longears was safe on shore and the Bushy Bear had to run away.

So he didn't get any rabbit to eat, and when the wind went down the bunny uncle got his ice boat again, and all was well.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

For street wear you may wear square earrings of gold and marquisite studded with rhinestones like those shown on the head. Below are shown large pearl earrings, a pair of sapphires edged with silver and another of antique gold with small colored stones.

"I'm very beautiful," she said placidly, as she glanced over her shoulder in the glass.

"Humph!" said William. "You keep your cloak on, or nobody will look at my play. Shan't you wear earrings?"

"Mattie! Shall I wear earrings?"

"No, my lamb. Your ears are so lovely without."

It is Emily Crowne in Margaret Kennedy's new novel, "Red Sky at Morning," who stands surveying herself in the glass. Her brother William, like most men, favors earrings—but Mattie, the elderly maid, has her way. Probably Emily did look better without them. But most of us are not quite so beautiful as Emily Crowne, and we do need earrings to make us look our very best in the evening.

I have often tried to figure out just why it is that most women look so much more intriguing with earrings than without. Earrings seem to do something to the proportions of the face, something to the eyes, nose, mouth and chin—even to the disposition.

Fortunately for us earrings are very much in fashion, and we can wear them any time we choose—even on the golf links or in bathing. Some women wear them with their negligees, and I know one woman who even wears them to bed. But then she is superstitious. She wears a pair of greenish turquoise earrings which she insists keep away insomnia.

The sketch shows some of the very newest earrings. A pair not shown that are very new are small drop earrings of yellow gold and jade. Small pendants are much in favor now, and look much better than long ones when the ears are exposed. Etched crystal jewelry has been revived and to go with necklace and bracelets of this substance there is a pair of lovely earrings with etched crystal pendants.

PEOPLE DECIDE TO BUILD NEW UNITED CHURCH

Mark Street Congregation Is Unanimous in Decision To Build.

WILL UNDERTAKE CANVASS.

New Building at Mark and Hunter Streets Would Cost $30,000, Committee Says.

By a unanimous standing vote Mark Street United Church Congregation voted yesterday morning to accept the recommendation of the special committee that a new church be built on the corner of Mark and Hunter Streets, on the lot now owned by the church. The committee's recommendation was presented by William Tinker, who moved that it be accepted.

In presenting the report Mr. Tinker stated his belief that yesterday was an important day in the history of Mark Street congregation. The recommendation could be rejected and let die and possibly it would mean letting Mark Street United Church die, too. Adoption of the resolution would mean going on with the matter and the erection of a new church, possibly earlier than the people expected, which would be a guiding point for their children.

A. Ward Gamble, Superintendent of the Sunday School and a member of the committee, in seconding the motion, stressed the necessity of providing more space for the children.

The matter was introduced by the pastor, the Rev. A. E. Thornley, who went over the recent events leading up to yesterday morning's meeting. The committee had been appointed and had reported against rebuilding the present church, deeming it preferable to erect a new one at a cost of $30,000. The men of the other United Church had been asked to help form a larger committee to go into the matters of finance. This help had been cheerfully given.

After the resolution had been moved, Mr. Thornley pointed out that every member and adherent of the church who wished could speak. As no person had any remarks to make, he called for the vote, pointing out that a vote in favor of the resolution meant authorizing the committee to start a canvass to find out whether the funds could be raised. The church would not be put up without a good percentage of the money being in sight, the committee proceeding carefully and prayerfully according to the custom of the church. It was not the intention to do anything that would get the people in difficulty.

The vote was then taken, practically every person in the congregation, which filled the church, standing, those remaining seated being visitors and children.

Sermon Fits Occasion

The sermon and lesson were in accordance with the important decision to be made. The text was part of the twenty-fourth chapter of the second Book of samuel: "Neither will I offer burnt offerings unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing."

Mr. Thornley recounted the events leading up to this declaration by David. Against God's command he had taken a census, an act of opposition so foolish that even Joab, his commander-in-chief, who was not noted as a scrupulous man, had reproved him. The prophet Gad offered him the choice of a famine, an invasion by enemies, or a pestilence. David chose the pestilence, saying it was better to fall into the hands of God than of man, but when he saw his people dying around him he prayed for some punishment on himself.

Gad brought to David the command of God that he should offer a sacrifice on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite, one of the race from which David had captured Jerusalem. When David went to buy the floor Araunah offered him the floor and the oxen to sacrifice, but David refused to sacrifice that which cost him nothing and paid a high price for the site and all he used.

David also gathered up money and material to build a temple but God would not let him as he had been a man of war, so Solomon built it, when he succeeded his father as king. The temple, said Mr. Thornley cost David something; it cost Solomon something; it cost the children of Israel something to keep up the sacrifices in it for they had to give of the best animals in their flocks. God meant that it should cost them something so they would keep alive the fire of love on the altars of their hearts.

After the division of Israel the people of Judah kept up the services of the temple. On their return after the captivity the people started immediately to rebuild the temple. These things cost them something.

The meaning of these sacrifices, said the speaker, was to point to Christ. If these things cost something, he asked, how much more did the great sacrifice upon the cross cost? There is no more offering for sin. Salvation is free and without price. The temple is no more to be restored.

No Sacrifices Now.

God does not want the offerings of the people burned. He is not to be worshipped in only one place, but is a spirit to be worshipped everywhere. At the same time the chapter read for the lesson (Hebrews 10) says the people are not to forsake assembling together. He wants His people to worship and remember Him in the ordinance of His house, and then to go forth witnessing for Him in all parts of the earth. That's what church buildings are for, continued Mr Thornley. God's people gather together in them and let their light shine out.

"We are thinking here of the need for a new church in which to worship, work, preach and teach. Nobody wants to throw a slight on this church, for many good and great things have been done by the people who worshipped here, but we know it is not adequate for the work of the United Church on this side of the river.

"Some people say we should build," said the pastor. "Others say we are not able. I think we should consider what God would have us do. Is this house adequate for the work? If it isn't don't you think God wants us to honor Him by providing a larger place? Don't you think God is able to lead us to victory?"

That the matter had hung fire for twelve years, since the lot on the corner of Mark and Hunter streets, was bought, was mentioned by the speaker, who stated that the committee would report at the conclusion of the service. There are many, he said, who point out the dangers and the difficulties to be met, but people are optimistic in their own business and can afford to be optimistic in God's work.

He concluded with the homely advice: "Just buckle in, and take off your coat, and go to it; and start in to sing as you tackle the thing, that couldn't be done, and do it."

Music by the choir included a male quartette, "Far Away," sung by Messrs Binks, Brown, L. Agnew and C. Agnew, and an anthem, "I Will Arise," which included a quartette by Mrs. Wand, Miss G. Curry, Mr. Binks and L. Agnew.

ENGINE HOUSE BLOWN OVER

Residents of Warsaw Alarmed By Force of Wind Storm.

WARSAW, Dec. 12.—The rain and wind on Wednesday night took away almost every vestige of snow. The wind made people very uneasy.

Many trees were blown down. On the second line of Douro, north from the Dummer Road, a tree fell, putting the telephone line out of order, and making it difficult for a vehicle to pass.

During the night a piece of roofing from one of Thomas Cooper's barns was blown off, and Allan Payne's engine house was blown over. No one has travelled on the roads unless by absolute necessity, since the storm.

The cold was not so intense, only about eighteen degrees fahrenheit. In the village the gale was not so noticeable.

Why Women Wanted
And Science Developed
A New-Type Hygiene

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

MODERN women with the business world to face, and a more tense social life to lead, demanded greater protection in meeting their greatest hygienic handicap. As a result, the old-time sanitary "pad" is fast disappearing.

Over 80% of better-class women now employ KOTEX—more than a sanitary pad: true scientific protection. Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the newly perfected super-absorbent, it is five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Kotex also DEODORIZES while it acts. Also, it is discarded easily as tissue. No laundry, no disposal problem.

Packed 12 in a box. At any store. Look for name Kotex on the box. If it is not there, take care; it is not real Kotex.

OTHER CITIES LIKE PETERBORO' HAVE THEIR OWN LABORATORIES

District M. O. H. Says Deputy Minister Offered To Hand Over Keys.

ASSET TO CITY.

Department Considers the Remainder of District is Easily Served From Toronto.

The decision of the Provincial Government to close the Peterborough Branch Laboratory, or, at any rate, to sever connections with it, appears to be final, and within a short time the closing process will be applied as was the case with the Owen Sound and Sault Ste. Marie branches.

With the Department, the establishment of a branch laboratory is a means of safeguarding the health of the people of the Province and not especially to serve the town or city in which it is located. In deciding to close the Peterborough branch, the Department was and is governed by the fact that with the loss of the local laboratory the health of this section will not be threatened because outside communities at present served by it are also in a position to communicate, say, with Toronto quite as easily and speedily.

Insofar as Peterborough is concerned, the presence of the Branch Laboratory was a distinct asset though the Province may not feel justified in maintaining it for the city's convenience. Many cities of similar size, such as Oshawa, St. Catharines, Windsor, and others maintain their own civic laboratories. In other words, the local laboratory facilities are civic rather than provincial, said Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Officer of Health, in conversation with The Examiner.

When asked if there is a possibility of a local branch being established by the city, Dr Sutton stated that to meet the local needs as set forth by a meeting of the Medical Society, at which Mayor W. T. Holloway, Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., and others were present, Dr. W. S. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, had offered to hand over the keys of the present branch if the city would assume it. If it was considered advisable to have the City Laboratory in connection with one of the hospitals, the Department would have the fittings transferred there. It necessarily follows that the hospitals will have to increase their laboratory facilities in order to keep up their standardization, to the extent that they have been using the present branch laboratory.

The V. D. Clinic has been constantly growing in usefulness, and the number of patients treated is steadily increasing so that it appears absolutely necessary to the City of Peterborough that this clinic be continued.

LADIES' AID HOLDS BAZAAR

"Confederation Jubilee" Sale Held By Ladies of Millbrook United Church.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 10—The "Confederation Jubilee" bazaar, held under Ladies' Aid auspices, in the basement of the United Church on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, was a very enjoyable and successful event though the weather, particularly on the second day, was anything but favorable.

The decorative scheme was of a patriotic character, featuring red, white, and blue drapings, streamers, and bunting, with flags in abundance, while Christmas trees, red bells, wreaths, and glittering tinsel brought a Yuletide atmosphere in keeping with the season. The platform was arranged as an old-fashioned parlor with tall red candles burning on the quaintly-draped piano, a big floor lamp, spinning-wheel and old-time pictures, particularly one of the Fathers of Confederation, as part of its furnishings.

A fernery, and big vases of poinsettias and red roses, with red candle burning in brass holders, were to be seen everywhere, and a feature that was appreciated to the fullest extent was the sitting-room arranged in the centre of the floor space, with comfortable chairs, and small tables, conveniently placed.

There was a booth for every province, and business was quite brisk from the opening hour at 3 p.m. on Wednesday. Rev. Joseph Wilks was in charge of the formal opening, the pastor being unavoidably absent on business. The singing of The Doxology was followed by an invocation by Mr. Wilks, and the chorus, "O Canada," was sung by all present. Interesting reminiscences of Confederation days were given by Rev. Mr. Wilks, and little Audrey Garside presented "Britannia (Mrs. F. P. Stinson), with an arm sheaf of roses and daffodils, "Miss Canada" (Miss Helen Larmer), was also on the platform with Britannia, both in appropriate costume, and shared in the fragrant gift.

After the singing of the National Anthem, Mr. Wilks declared the bazaar officially opened for business and the sale immediately began. This was the first occasion that a formal opening had been arranged for the annual bazaar, and the innovation proved both interesting and popular.

The social side of the event was recognized in the informal program given each evening, for which quite a number remained, community singing of hymns and patriotic songs being one feature, while vocal solos were contributed by Mrs. G. W. Sayles, and Mr. Errol Hansman, and readings by Misses Jean Burnham, Dorothy Crossley, and Alberta Brock. Piano solos were contributed by Misses Estelle Hetherington and Ella Elson.

The "Country Store" was near the entrance door, and was in charge of Mrs. T. H. Aiken and Mrs. A. J. Henderson; "Alberta" was the province represented with vegetables, fruits, etc., for sale. Next door was "British Columbia," the home-made baking counter, and a brisk sale was conducted by Mrs. A. J. Brown and Mrs. J. L. Byam, the stock having to be replenished repeatedly so steady was the demand of the toothsome wares displayed.

"Quebec" was the booth where dainty fancywork was readily purchased by the many customers who found at this counter the "Mecca" where their wants were fully met, Mrs. George Locke, Mrs. J. McKnight, and Mrs. W. E. Ball being the obliging "saleladies." Aprons, in many attractive patterns, were in charge of Mrs. G. E. Burnham and Mrs. C. C. Garside, "Manitoba" being the name of this booth, with towels, embroidered and lace-trimmed, candlesticks and other articles in waxed work, also for sale. "Nova Scotia" had a lovely showing of dolls, dolls' clothes, and children's wear, dainty in coloring and design, attractively arranged, Miss May Duncan, and Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard, the latter wearing a becoming "Evangeline costume, ready to attend to all customers. Next door was "Prince Edward Island," where home-made candy was temptingly shown in various containers, and here many a "sweet tooth" found full satisfaction; Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Miss E. Hansmand, and Miss Jean Burnham disposed of the wares.

The tea tables, daintily laid at the farther end of the large room, were representative of two provinces, Ontario and Saskatchewan; the former had a "Harvester's" figure for centre surrounded by miniature wheat sheaves, and the latter two tiny pine Christmas trees, appropriately trimmed; both were lighted by tall red candles in brass sticks, and were filled again and again during the tea hour on both days. Mrs. W. Fred Fallis and Mrs. Will Armstrong were conveners in charge, and assisting were: Mrs. John Rowland, Mrs. I. M. Nattress, Mrs. H. A. Fallis, Mrs. L. W. Smith, Mrs. E. Armstrong, Mrs. W. Larmer, Mrs. W. Mullen, Mrs. M. Brock, Mrs. H. Ball, Mrs. J. H. George, Misses Elinor and Wilma Fallis, and Mrs. Stuart Fallis.

The "fish pond" took a new form this year, a Christmas tree, laden with parcels large and small, and trimmed with tinsel and red bells, representing "New Brunswick," being arranged on the "touch and take" plan, and was well patronized by the kiddies throughout the two days' sale. Mrs. W. West and Miss Burnham attended to the children's wants and even some of the grown-ups could not resist "trying their luck" curiosity making strong appeal.

Miss M. E. Needham, the efficient president of the Aid, had a general oversight of all the activitites, and as hostess gave gracious greeting to all comers, courtesy and welcome being hall-marks of the bazaar throughout.

A number of the men volunteered ready assistance with the heavier tasks when preparations were in progress, and in the cleaning-up process afterward. Financially receipts were about $200.00, and a good deal more money is to come in.

GIVING CHAPEL TO CEMETERY

Lady Eaton Offers To Put Up Memorial Building at Omemee.

TO ARRANGE GROUNDS.

OMEMEE, Dec. 10.—On Saturday afternoon, by the request of Messrs. John and Arthur McCrea of Toronto, a special meeting of the Emily Cemetery Board was held in the village. The McCrea brothers, who came to their home town on behalf of their sister, Lady Eaton, laid a proposition before the board which met with much approval. Their plan is to build in the early spring a chapel to the memory of their beloved dead who are laid to rest in the Emily cemetery. The building, which will replace the small frame structure, will be a two storey one with ample provision in the basement for tools, etc., and will be erected in the western end of the cemetery. A new entrance will also be made at the west end and possibly other improvements will be added. Mr. Whittick, who is Lady Eaton's landscape gardener, accompanied them to Omemee, and will commence at once drawing up the plans for the proposed improvements.

Mr. Wilbur Paul, who recently had three horses killed by a C.N.R. train when they broke out of the field and got on the track in the night, received compensation last week from the railway company to the amount of $300.

TALK ON ANIMALS IS GIVEN CHILDREN

Joseph Wearing Addresses the Junior Humane Society.

The bi-weekly meeting of the Junior Humane Society was held on Thursday of last week in St. John's Sunday School Hall. The meeting opened with President W. N. Turner in the chair. The meeting was called to order and the song "Cruel Acts and Dire Oppression," was sung. The society's try-promise was then repeated by all. One of the members reported knowing of a family who kept a dog penned up in a very small shed, and if the dog got out, would be beaten for doing so. This matter will be attended to by the society's inspector. The entertainment section of the programme was then begun. Misses Vera and Freida Kilshire favored the meeting with a piano duet, entitled "The Chariot Race" or "Ben Hur March." This number drew much applause. Miss Dorothy Kimberley then gave a reading on "Sir Walter Scott and His Dogs.

The chairman then introduced Mr. Joseph Wearing as the special speaker for the meeting. Mr. Wearing gave a most inspiring address, and those members who were not present—and there were quite a number—certainly missed a treat.

The speaker told of the reason for having meetings and spoke of them as meetings of lovers of dumb animals. He said that domestic animals did not jump from their wild state to their present state, but that through kindness started centuries ago the dog, cat, and other animals have become the useful, affectionate, domestic animals of to-day. He said that as hate breeds hate, so love breeds love. Thus the more we love an animal the more it loves us. The speaker said that he could see no sport in deer hunting or duck hunting. In the case of the former the speaker told of hunters going out, setting the dogs on the track of the deer, then as the dog chases a deer into view, shooting at it. "That is not sport," Mr. Wearing said. (Applause.) In the second case, Mr. Wearing spoke of using decoy ducks to attract other ducks, and then as the ducks come the hunter shoots them. They had no chance to escape. "To-day," the speaker said, "we do not need that kind of meat." The speaker showed that there was no reason for the wilful killing of those animals. Mr. Wearing, before closing, suggested putting water basins on lawns in summer time, as birds, like humans, become thirsty.

A vote of thanks was moved by Donald Howson, and seconded by Garfield Johnson, to the speaker who had so kindly given of his time to be with the society.

The song, "Dare to do right," was then sung.

The president deplored the small attendance and called the next meeting for December 22. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

JUNIOR FARMERS HOLD CONFERENCE

In Massey Library, O.A.C. Guelph, on Tuesday, Dec. 6th, the third annual conference of junior farmers was held with an attendance of over one hundred boys and many of the Agricultural representatives.

Director of Agricultural Representative, R. S. Duncan of Toronto gave a concise outline of the growth of junior farmer work in this province since 1914 until now there are eleven county associations, 109 local junior farmer associations, and 3,925 junior farmer members. The slogan of these young men is "Self help and community betterment."

Discussion was held on ways and means of developing community leadership among young people of Ontario by public speaking contests, debates, plays, live stock judging, musical festivals and athletics. The need of greater work among the early teen age boys and girls on the farms was also emphasized by any of the speakers. Among those who attended the conference from Durham County and expressed themselves as being delighted with the enthusiasm shown were Carmen Seymour, Ida; William Hamilton, Blackstock; Norman Earl, Millbrook, and Agricultural Representative J. Y. Kellough. At a banquet given by Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, on Wednesday at Guelph, he declared that the junior farmer work was one of the most important phases of endeavor carried on by the Agricultural representatives.

DURHAM BOYS PLACED TENTH

25 COUNTIES ENTERED.

At the annual live stock judging competition, held at the Ontario Provincial Winter Show, Guelph, on Monday, December 5th, the Durham County team composed of Carmen Seymour, Ida; William Hamilton, Blackstock, and Norman Earl, Millbrook, stood tenth out of twenty-five entries.

C. W. Seymour stood sixth with a score of 786 out of a possible 1,000 points and tied for second place on dairy cattle, with a score of 196 out of 200. Norman Earle won third money on beef cattle and William Hamilton did good work, too. The team had a total of 2,168 points while Dufferin County, winners of the trophy, had 2,291. Competition was keen and the judges made special mention of the splendid work done by the boys this year. Agricultural Representative J. Y. Kellough, while highly pleased with the results, feels that with a little more time devoted to coaching the boys they would stand right near the top.

UNITED Y.P.L. HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

Rev. A. C. Hie Gives Talk on Little Things of Life.

HASTINGS, Dec. 10.—The Young People's League of the United church held its regular weekly meeting on Wednesday night with about forty present. The League opened with a song service, after which Mr. I. Bond led in prayer, followed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Metcalfe, first vice-president.

The scripture reading was given by Mr. Bryant Scriver. Mr. Hie then gave a very interesting address on "The Little Things in Life" and through several illustrations explained to the young people that it was the small things, done well in early life, that built a strong and firm character. After the offering had been taken a hymn was sung, after which all repeated the Mizpah prayer.

REBEKAHS HOLD DISTRICT MEETING

Ladies of Belleville Area Meet at Madoc—Lodge Elects Officers.

MADOC, Dec. 10.—The Belleville district meeting of the Rebekah Lodge was held here on Friday last in the Oddfellows Hall. Delegates were present from Tweed, Stirling, Frankford and Belleville.

Mr. Ormand of Belleville, District Deputy President was chairman and Mrs. Watts of Peterboro, a past president, conducted the business. All delegates and friends were entertained at supper in the dining room.

The evening session was well attended, the hall being crowded. The officers for Oakdale Rebekah Lodge were elected for 1928:

N.G.—Miss Ruby Nicholl.
V.G.—Mrs. R. Wellman.
Rec. Sec.—Mrs. B. Tanner.
Fin. Sec.—Mrs. J. E. Morrison.
Treas—Mrs. A. Smith.

After the speeches and business were concluded a musical program was given and much enjoyed.

The Madoc quartette, Messrs. Gillespie, Wellman, Ross and Hawthorne, were at their best. Duets were given by Mrs. A. Kincaid and Miss Kellar, solos by Miss Vandervoort, and a reading by Miss R. Nicholl. Refreshments were served and dancing was indulged in for a time before the close of the evening.

In spite of heavy rain all day and nearly impassable roads, the Oddfellows dance on Monday night was well attended locally.

The Victor Young Serenaders furnished the music and though this is their first appearance in town they were congratulated on furnishing the best music heard here in some time. Proceeds of dance, $118.00.

KNOX W.M.S. MEETS.

Reports On Year's Work Are Given By Various Officers.

The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Knox church was held on Thursday, Dec. 8, with a good attendance.

The meeting opened with the usual devotional exercises, the Bible reading from Luke 2, and "The First Christmas Morn" was given by Mrs. McCurdy, and prayer by the Rev. Mr. McDonald.

Mrs. Watt gave a very practical talk on the work at the end of the year.

Reports were received from the different departments of the work and the annual report of the treasurer and secretary were also given.

Annual reports were also received from the Helen Roger, Y.W.A., the Go-Forth Y.W.A. and the Mission Band.

These reports were very encouraging, showing interest and progress in all the different branches of the Missionary work of the church.

Miss Dickson gave a very helpful talk on the opportunites and spirit of the W.M.S. and Rev. Mr. McDonald added a few words of encouragement of the work that had been accomplished during the year.

The meeting closed with the Lord's prayer.

Missionaries Give Addresses at Several Places in Conference.

Continuing the missionary effort of the United Church of Canada in the Bay of Quinte conference, a number of pastors exchanged pulpits on Sunday and several special speakers were heard. Rev. Robert Laird, D.D., Toronto, preached at Tweed, and Rev. G. A. Williams of Formosa at Cavan and Omemee.

Rev. W. E. Smith, M.D., of China, preached at Rednersville and will lecture on Monday in Port Hope, telling of prospects in Fushuen, West China, his latest field.

Dr. Laird, who is treasurer of the United Church of Canada, returned lately from a study of home mission conditions in western Canada and reports a strong movement there toward extension and self-support. Important sections of the West are still underchurched, he says.

Rev. Mr. Williams, a returned missionary, has lately become conference organizer of maintenance and extension work, working in co-operation with presbytery committees.

Improvement Steady.

Prospects for an increased steadiness of missionary support throughout the conference are considered brighter than a year ago. H. W. Ackerman, Belleville, is chairman of the conference committee, and some strong rallies have been held and a large number of congregations canvassed already.

Rev. W. T. Gunn, D.D., Toronto, who gave thirteen addresses in Renfrew Presbytery in eight days, reports large gatherings at missionary banquets, more than 100 attending at Carleton Place and 200 at Pembroke. At Pakenham the men turned out in goodly numbers to a meeting that had the spirit of an old-time laymen's banquet.

In Nine Months' Year.

Fraserville and Bridgenorth, in Peterborough Presbytery reports prospects of raising more than three-quarters of their yearly allocation in the present nine months' year.

West Huntingdon, in Kingston Presbytery, expects to exceed this standard and may raise the whole yearly allocation in the nine months. Arden, now completing the canvass, is aiming at the same goal.

The historic Picton district in Belleville Presbytery is well organized under the direction of Rev. W. H. J. Smyth, of Wellington, and Prince Edward County is expecting to do better than last year.

PICTURES GIVEN TO OLD TEACHER

Mrs. Honora Moher Receives Gift From Pupils of 60 Years Ago.

DOURO, December 10. — A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Moher, when a number of old school pupils called to make a unique presentation to to their school teacher of sixty years ago, Mrs. Honora Moher. The presentation took the form of a short address signed by her old pupils and mounted in the centre of a nicely decorated cardboard, near the top of which was a cabinet size picture of the teacher, while around the address were mounted in half-cabinet size, photographs of each of her old pupils, the photographs having been recently taken.

The individuals of this old school class came not only from Douro, but also from Peterborough and the surrounding townships. Splendid music was furnished by Dr. and Mrs. Munro, who rendered some choice selections of Scottish tunes on the violin and piano, also some Irish jigs and reels, which warmed up the hearts of the school boys and girls of sixty years ago, and brightened up those faded pictures of childhood which hang forgotten on memory's walls. Many were the schoolday tales related, many the jokes of youth rehearsed. It was a grand re-union of old-time chums and was well enjoyed by all who were present. Old-time songs were sung, while there was also step-dancing which might well be envied by the young folks of to-day. Some splendid selections of music were rendered by Olan and Robert Leahy.

An appetizing fowl supper was served by Mrs. Vincent Moher which was done ample justice by over sixty guests.

After supper the presentation was made by P. G. Towns. Mr. Towns said that while he was a member of the class, it afforded him much pleasure in presenting the picture to Mrs.Moher, also it was a pleasure to see so many of the pupils turn out through the storm to do honor to their old teacher ,which she deserved so well. Mr. Augustus Whibbs was called upon to read the address, which was as follows:

To Mrs. Honora Moher.

Dear Teacher,—Many years have passed since we, your pupils, played together as little boys and girls. Today, as old men and women, we look back with pleasure to childhood's days over a span of sixty years. Time has changed our features, grey hairs now adorn our heads, but memory carries us back to the old schoolhouse, and our hearts are just the same. Wishing you many happy days, dear teacher,—

Signed:

Mrs. M. Kylie, Mrs. James W. Collins, Mrs. Edward Carlow, Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald, Mrs. Ellen Walsh, Mrs. Bridget Sullivan, Mrs. John R. Allen, Mrs. Dennis Guerin, Mrs. Elizabeth Hanrahan, George Hamilton, George Rutherford, Maurice O'Brien, Patrick Leahy, E. J. McCarthy, Augustus Whibbs, Patrick O'Brien, William Barry, Patrick Barry, John Condon, Mrs. Edward Sullivan, Mrs. Daniel Maloney, Mrs. Jeremiah Moher, Dennis O'Brien, Michael Hanrahan.

nis O'Brien, Michael Hanrahan, Jas. O'Brien, Dennis McCarthy.

Dr. Munro was next called on for an address. In his usual genial manner, Dr. Munro stated that when he received the invitation, he did not know what the event was, but looked with admiration on the turnout to show their esteem to their old-time teacher, which was a tribute to her. He said in these fast days it showed an example of unselfishness, showed that people were not living all for themselves. Unselfishness can only come through training in the home, the school, and the church. He congratulated Mrs. Moher and extended good wishes to her and her pupils.

Mrs. Moher was then called on for a few words. She was deeply moved, and Mr. James Healey, in her behalf, thanked all the old pupils for the kindness shown her.

All joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne," thus bringing a pleasant evening to a close.

COUNCIL GRANTS VETERANS MONEY

Gives $7.00 in Lieu of Reduction in Rent of Town Hall.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 12.—The regular meeting of the Village Council was held on Monday evening, Dec. 5, with all the members present.

J. Evans addressed the council, requesting a rebate in hall rent for the play, "Fragments of France," which is being put on by the War Veterans on Thursday, Dec. 15th, the proceeds of which is going to repair the memorial gates at the park. Instead of granting a rebate for this occasion, the council, on motion of Councillors Gordon and Spencer, gave $7.00 to the War Veterans, as it was not in accordance with their regulations to lower the rate for the hall rental.

F. B. McAdam also addressed the council, requesting a rebate in dog tax, claiming that he had lost the dog a short time after he had been assessed. As the law forbids any rebate of dog tax unless in a case of error in the roll, the council took no action.

WILL OPEN CLOTHES SHOP

Rumor has it that the second Lady Terrington, who was formerly Mrs. Rena de Vere Humphrey, is to open a frock and gown shop in the west end of London. It will be recalled that her present husband has been much in the news of late. Little more than a year ago he occupied a high place in finance, politics, the legal profession, the publishing world and society, with a fortune estimated at over $2,000,000 and with a talented wife—the former Mrs. Guy Sebright—who was one of the first four women to hold a seat in the British House of Commons and who was then known as "the best-dressed M.P." But Lord Terrington became infatuated with Mrs. Humphrey and left for France with her. While he was in voluntary exile, his wife obtained a divorce and a substantial alimony settlement. Meanwhile the baron's business interests were being neglected and a financial crash ensued. The ABOVE portrait of the present Lady Terrington is a previous unpublished one. Maroons Lose to Detroit 4-1 In N. H. L. Fixture

TIGERS SWAMP MONTREAL CLUB TO WIN TUSSLE

Maroon Defence Unable To Cope With Play of Cougars.

FINAL SCORE 4 TO 1.

Back-checking in the Third Aids Detroit Win N.H.L. Fixture.

MONTREAL, Dec. 12 (Canadian Press). — Detroit Cougars' brilliant young forward line swamped the Maroons' defence and back-checking in the third period of their National Hockey League engagement here Saturday night to win 4 goals to 1. Aurie J. Shephard, Carson Cooper and Hay tore through the defences to score, Aurie in the second period and the other three in the last session.

Maroons missed Stewart on their forward line, but Stewart would not have won Saturday night's game for them. Their offensive efforts, coming up against Reg. Noble's crafty stick and "Happy" Holmes' brilliant goal-tending, looked weak.

Detroit's goals all came from good hockey. In the second period, Shepherd brought the puck down to the goal and Aurie grabbed it to beat Benedict. In the last period Carson Cooper took a pass from Walker to make it two up and Shepherd stickhandled his way slowly through the Maroon guard to get the third. Phillips scored his team's goal by taking Siebert's rebound to left the puck over Holmes who had dropped to the ice to stop the wing-man's shot. Hay replied in less than a minute with a lone rush to get Detroit's last goal.

Brown, Traub and Noble were a capable defence in front of Holmes. Dutton, Siebert and Phillips locked best for the Maroons.

Detroit faced a hard week-end, going from here immediately after the game to dash to the Michigan City to play Boston last night then returning here to meet Canadiens on Tuesday.

Oatman and Carson Cooper received major penalties for fighting. The two had been jousting along the boards and suddenly dropped their sticks and came to blows. They were quickly separated and banished.

There were 9,000 people in the rink. As many of these were Canadien supporters Detroit's efforts were well applauded.

The first period opened quietly with each team feeling the other out. Dutton had a narrow shave on his own rebound and a minute later a Dutton-Carson rush came close to scoring. Many Maroon rushes were being stopped on Noble's stick. At this stage of the match Holmes was working much harder than Benedict. Noble brought Benedict to his knees with a weaving rush. Stan. Brown deflected a hard shot from Dutton. With Carson off for tripping Siebert tricked his way through the Detroit defence for a near attempt at scoring. The period ended with Hay and Siebert making successive rushes.

Early in the middle frame Traub arrested a promising Phillips-Ward rush with fast skating. Hay scored an offside goal and play gave promise of pepping up. J. Sheppard, Phillips and Munro made attempts trying for the rebounds, unsuccessfully. Emms and Cooper received penalties for checking along the boards and play slowed up again. A Traub-Hay pass went wrong. Dutton missed a fine scoring chance with a poor shot. Aurie scored from a pass from Shepherd, and the latter nearly made it two up on a dangerous rush.

The third period found the Detroit forwards going at a great clip. Before eleven minutes had gone they had pulled the score up from one goal to four, while Maroons had scored their lone counter. The scores stung Maroon into action and they swarmed around Holmes, Dune. Munro in particular, having hard luck not to score.

Referees: Cooper Smeaton and Bobby Hewitson.

First Period:
No Score.

Amateur Teams Out In Cup Competition

LONDON, England, December 12 (Canadian Press Cable). — The second round proper of the English Football Association Cup competition was played on Saturday, and it marked the disappearance of the remainder of the amateur teams, except the Caledonians. Loasey, the Northampton centre-forward, broke his leg in the match with Brighton and Hove, and as his team is in close struggle with Millwall for league leadership, this cup tie, though Northampton won, is likely to prove expensive. Reid of Luton did the hat-trick against Norwich, while Harley got four goals for New Brighton against Rhyl. The Caledonians, who played Bath, just won out by getting the only goal scored. Conridge netted after seven minutes of play. After that the Londoners played a defensive game and were always able to nip the Bath offensives before they got dangerous. Northampton scored through Daly. Loasby was hurt ten minutes from the start, but the Northampton team always had the advantage of the play.

HOME BREDS WIN BIKE MARATHON

Defeat French Team With Lead of 588 Sprint Points.

NEW RECORD SET.

NEW YORK, December 12. — A pair of youthful homebreds, Freddie Spencer of Plainfield, N. J., and Charley Winter of New York, Saturday night won the 43rd international six day bike race with a lead of 588 sprint points over the "red devils" of France, Georges Paudet and Gabriel Marcillas. The leaders were tied in mileage and total laps at the close of 144 hours of consecutive racing.

Otto Petri, German star, and Norman Hill of San Jose, Calif., landed third place a lap behind the leaders through masterly riding in the final sprint hour that brought the race to a close at 11 p.m. Leading the second division, two laps behind the pace setters, was the team of Reggie McNamara, the iron man of the whirring wheels, and Franco Georgetti, of Italy, defending champions. They were tied in the distance with Castano Belloni and Gerard Debasts, Italian-Belgian team, and the Holland-American combination of Klas Vannsk and Dave Lands of Irvington, N. J.

To win the distance crown Spencer and Winter pedalled 2552 miles and nine laps, as did Paudet and Marcillao. During the sprint sessions that have marked the grind, however, the winners totalled 737 points to 149 for the Frenchmen.

The old record for laps in six days riding set at 316 in Chicago two years ago toppled Friday and was boosted to 360 in the final sprint hour when three laps were pilfered. The riding was hard and clean and marked by the absence of any serious spills.

The threat of "Iron Reggie," winner of the past three races in the Garden and his game little Italian partner, petered out in the final hour under the fierce pace set by Spencer and Winter. After stealing four laps on the field on Friday night to gain second place, the veterans saw all hope fade when both the winners and the second team lapped the field in the final hour shorly after Petri and Hill took second place with the first stolen circuit of the night.

BY WERNER LAUFER

Just how good is Mickey Walker?

Or let's put it this way. What part is luck playing in the present fistic fireworks, furnished by the Elizabeth, N.J., Irishman?

This question is met with a dumb look from the educated boys who had the boss of the middies pegged as one about ready for the cleaners. Most of them figured the "Toy Bulldog" was on his last legs and even after his sensational ten-round knockout of Tommy Milligan in London, they merely giggled and said funny things about the British exponents of the manly art.

The "Mick" then returned to the states and started a tour of the jungles, handing out the leather colic to all who got in there with him "Just a little more easy jack before he hangs up the mittens or is bumped out from under the crown," was the way the smart fellows had it doped. "Just wait 'til 'Tiger' Flowers gets another crack at the champ", or words to that effect.

Then it came out Walker was matched with the venerable Mike McTigue and the boys felt certain their good dope would hold up. "Surely the crafty ancient would kick the 'Toy Bulldog' all over the enclosure," was the feeling of the mob.

But the little man surprised and sent Auld Mike out in less than a round and Mr. Pandemonium has been with us ever since. He followed this up with a decisive win over Paul Berlenbach. Thus inside of a month Walker has defeated two former light heavyweight champions.

Also the gang on the corner is now not so sure of Walker's early demise and some even venture to say maybe Mickey is another Bob Fitzsimmons or something, one who can cope with the bigger fellows as well as those of his own division.

Be that as it may, it certainly is not reasonable that a man can win himself two titles and make designs at still another on the mere strength of a rabbit's foot in his rear pocket.

With the defeat of McTigue and Berlenbach Mickey proved he is so far from through, pugilistically, his defeat by Latzo and his disputed win over the late "Tiger" Flowers to the contrary notwithstanding.

Back in 1922 after Walker won his first championship from Jack Britton, the critics wept big tears of joy over the youngster, going so far as to call him a "White Walcott" and a "Miniature Jack Dempsey." All agreed he was a most capable champion and with the experience he has gained since, there is no reason to believe Mickey is not as good as ever.

Another thing to consider is the part his manager, Jack Kearns, is playing in the flare-up. Kearns was soundly scored by many for letting the welterweight title get away from Walker in the Scranton go with Latzo. It was poor judgment, they said, for a champion to risk his title for so little consideration, and right in the challenger's stronghold.

But the "musk fancier" got his boy another crown within a few months and has been steering him into triumphs ever since. Surely he has been vindicated for the nasty things said about his managerial ability.

But Mr. Kearns and Walker have announced they are out for bigger game. Maybe by the end of winter we will know if Mickey Walker can play Fitzsimmons' roles or whether he is just getting by on the good graces of Lady Luck.

DEAN STARS IN EVERTON GAME

ENGLISH SOCCER.

LONDON, England, Dec. 12 (Canadian Press Cable).—The most prominent mention gained by a player in the games in the First Division of the English Soccer League Saturday went to Dean, who won the match for Everton against Aston Villa, by a remarkable display. Everton won by three goals to two and Dean scored all of his team's counters. He got the first eight minutes from the kick-off, the second shortly afterwards and the last and winner five minutes from time. The Villa scored through Cock in the first half and equalized through Chester. Just when a draw was being conceded by the huge Birmingham throng who witnessed the match, Dean headed the ball into the net.

Derby County gave a fine display to beat Backburn Rovers. Stephenson did the hat-trick, Bedford scored twice and Whitehouse once for the winner.

Middlesbrough had Leicester three down at the interval through goals by Camsell, twice, and Peace. The Leicester team ran riot after the turn-around, Chandler netting twice and Lochead getting the equalizer which tied up the match.

Fifty thousand people jammed themselves into the Highbury grandstand and saw the Arsenal lower the colors of Newcastle United. Hoar started the scoring for Londoners by netting with a brilliant shot. Hulme made it two for the Arsenal and Seymour got one just before half time for Newcastle. The Arsenal's other two tallies were secured by Brain and Parker, the latter beating Wilson with a volley after Newcastle goalie had saved from a penalty kick.

There never was any doubt about the superiority of Birmingham over Liverpool for most of their match. Birmingham were three up at the interval. Liverpool played savagely after that and were successful in reducing the saze of their beating. Briggs scored twice and Davies once for Birmingham, while Hodgson got both of Liverpool's goals.

West Hame United easily accounted for Bolton Wanderers. The match was all over before half time as far as competition was concerned. Watson got both of the Hammers' points.

Cardiff City, at full strength with Irving back, had no trouble beating Sunderland. Irving and Len Davies scored for the cup holders.

Despite the fact that they were without Gillespie Sheffield United beat Manchester United. Goals were got by Partridge and Tunstall for Sheffield and Spence for Manchester.

The one goal which gave Huddersfield Town victory over Burnley was secured by Brown.

The Tottenham Hotspurs and Bury melee was an even affair. Osborne put Tottenham ahead and then Ball equalized. The winner was netted for the Spurs by O'Callaghan.

The downfall of Chelsea, which was brought about by Leeds United, was witnessed by 25,000 people, who filled the Leeds stands to capacity. Chelsea's defence cracked wide open after half time and the Leeds forwards seemed to be able to score at will. White did the hat-trick for Leeds, while Jennings added a brace quite easily. It was the worst display of the Second Division leaders this season.

Thirty thousand were attracted to the Manchester City grounds for the match with West Bromwich Albion. Manchester City had a picnic, Johnson, Austin and Broadhurst scoring easy goals, Glidden broke through and netted for the Albion.

Canadian Wins On Technical Knockout

SHERBROOKE, Dec. 12 (Canadian Press).—Leo "Kid" Roy, featherweight champion of Canada, won a technical knockout over Kid Henry, of Cleveland, Ohio, in the second round of their scheduled ten-round encounter here Saturday night, when the Cleveland man's seconds threw the towel into the ring to save him from Roy's heavy right and lefts to the head.

S. AND W. TRUDE WIN TOURNEY

Defeat W. H. Stabler and T. Nicholls in Horseshoe Finals.

LAKEFIELD CONTEST.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 12.—The Horse Shoe Tourney held in the rink on Thursday night was very successful and brought out more than sixty entries and aroused great enthusiasm in the men of the village. Entries included teen age boys and men well over three score years and ten, and an evening of good clean sport at a small cost was provided.

Thursday evening was given over to the double and on Friday evening the singles were held.

Sam Trude and William Trude won the doubles from W. H. Stabler and Theodore Nicholls by a score of 31 to 25.

The game of horse shoes or quoits is coming back into popularity again and provides real amusement and clean sport. A Toronto paper mentioned recently that the Lieutenant Governor and the Provincial Premier were enjoying a friendly game of horse shoes so that with an example from the leaders of the province one can expect a return of an old favorite game.

The special process is a secret heat-treating operation which hardens this fine steel to a flint-like hardness, yet guards against brittleness by allowing it to retain an inner "core" of exceedingly tough steel—practically unbreakable. Result: a flint-hard, keen-edged blade, fortified by inner strength.

USE MORE TOMATOES

The tomato is a very valuable fruit, and its use is very rapidly increasing. It is one of the fruits "bearing seed after its kind" and was first cultivated in Peru and Central America. It was, for a time, considered unfit for food, and even within recent years the ridiculous statement has been made that tomatoes might be the cause of cancer.

There is not the slightest bit of evidence to show that the use of tomatoes could be harmful in any way, and on the other hand, abundant evidence to prove that tomatoes stand at the very top of the list of healthful foods, containing, as they do, so many of the vitamins together with the organic minerals and valuable fruit acids.

The use of tomatoes has a distinctly beneficial effect in increasing the function of the liver, and a tomato fast often produces marvelous results in the treatment of hepatic disorders.

Of course, the tomato, like all fruits, contains a large percentage of water, but there is also a small amount of protein, fat and carbohydrates, as well as a goodly proportion of mineral matter which is strongly alkaline, being composed of the salts of potash, lime, magnesia, and iron. Owing to the presence of citric and malic acids the tomato is not alkaline when eaten, but after being burned in the body leaves an alkaline salt.

For those who are suffering from any kind of acidosis, there is no better fruit to use, as the action of the acids of the tomato assist in removing such wastes as uric acid from the system.

The tomato is rich in the fat soluble vitamin "A," which is known as the anti-rachitic vitamin. Its use should therefore assist in preventing rickets. The vitamins "B" and "D," which are called the anti-neuritic vitamins, are found in the tomato, so the tomato should be good in any form of nervous disorder. Vitamin "C" or the anti-scorbutic vitamin prevents the development of skin disorders. This is found in large quantities in the fresh tomatoes.

Fresh tomatoes should be used whenever they are available. The hothouse crop has increased more than 300% during the last few years, so tomatoes can be secured the whole year round.

The tomato is called the "love apple" in France and England, and the Italians call it the "golden apple."

Those who will use tomatoes liberally will find they are practically worth their weight in gold.

Begin spending more money for tomatoes and other fruits, and less for denatured food products.

Questions and Answers.

Question: H. C. asks: "Can cholecystitis and chronic appendicitis be cured without an operation? Have been ailing for three years."

Answer: Most cases of cholecystitis and appendicitis can be cured without an operation. The first thing for you to do is to improve the functioning of your intestines. The colitis which precedes appendicitis must be eliminated. When this has been accomplished, any inflammation which may exist in the gall bladder or liver usually disappears as these biliary organs become irritated mostly because of intestinal poisons, which are reabsorbed, from conditions of colitis and intestinal inflammation.

Question: Mrs. J. R. asks: "Of what fruits does the fruit diet consist, and how taken? Am troubled with sour stomach after eating. Would this diet relieve it?"

Answer: An exclusive fruit diet would be helpful in overcoming your sour stomach. Only one kind of fruit should be taken on any one day, but you may use as much as you desire. I have found the following fruits to be most useful for this purpose: Apples, apricots, peaches, pears, grapes, oranges, grapefruit, plums, berries, tomatoes, pineapple and melons.

Question: A Reader asks: "What exercises and diet can a girl 18 years old take to gain in weight and development? Height is five feet, three and a half inches, weight ninety-six pounds. The chest bones are prominent due to the beginning of spinal curvature. Also have round shoulders."

Answer: It is not necessary for you to take any special diet except to follow the well balanced menus which I give every week in this column. Consult a physical culture expert and have him give you special exercises to correct the spinal curvature and round shoulders. I could give you some special exercises for this purpose, but I believe it would be better for you to have some private lessons given by a physical culturist who is able to study out your particular needs.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

GREAT SCHOOLS

We need great buildings for great schools,
Walls that will stand till time is old,
Made of such stone, laid with such tools,
That every sill and beam will hold.
And science here must bring her best,
Her newest knowledge, latest lore;
But still they may not stand the test—
Great schools must have one great thing more.

We need great souls to make great schools,
Or all our walls were laid in vain.
Youth asks for reasons, not for rules;
There's more than latin to make plain.
The road of life lies just ahead;
And here is youth, just at the dawn;
The road of life is here to tread—
We need great souls to lead youth on.

We need great hearts to make great schools,
Who speak the truth with voice and pen,
Not doubting cynics, shouting fools,
But noble women and clean men.
We must have teachers who will teach
But law and justice, right, not rules,
However high our roofs may reach,
We need great souls to make great schools.

SPORT BITS

WINS ON POINTS.

PARIS, December 12 Canadian Press. — Andre Routis, former featherweight champion of France, Saturday night defeated Al. Brown, bantamweight of Panama, in a slashing ten round fight Routis won on points

At the ringside were many women in jewels and furs and men in evening dress, who saw Brown's hopes for the bantamweight crown against Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., go aglimmering.

WANTS TOUHEY.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Dec. 12. — Canadian Press. — Manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Cougars made the Montreal Maroons an offer for the services of Bill Touhey, the suo-centre, here on Saturday night. The amount of the offer was not announced. It is understood that the local team is considering the matter.

SCORELESS TIE GAME PLAYED

Leafs and Senators Play Second Such Game in Week.

PLAY VERY OPEN.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—For the second time during the week the Ottawa Senators and Maple Leafs battled to a scoreless overtime tie and on Saturday night the two teams skated off the ice at the Arena Gardens after setting what is probably a record for the league, playing one hundred and forty minutes without a score in the period of four days. Incidentally it was the Leafs' third overtime struggle of the week and their fourth in the last five games.

The scoreless tie gives the impression that the game was one of those strictly defensive affairs that are beginning to get on the nerves of real hockey lovers but such was not the case. Both teams played a much more open brand of hockey than is usual in N.H.L. fixtures and the forwards of both teams showed a greater inclination to follow in close to their opponents' goal and there were some very narrow escapes from tallies and also a number of times the attackers were left flat-footed when the opposition secured possession and inaugurated an attack in the other direction, but all these forays were non-productive as far as goals were concerned, although they made the game the most enjoyable and exciting of the local season.

CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE FORMED

Many Teams Already Entered, With More in View.

QUALIFICATION FIXED.

Members of the Church Hockey League met in the Y.M.C.A. for organization on Thursday and from all indications the league will have another banner year. Many church teams have already signified their intention of entering teams. Those players who intend to play with other clubs this year must secure the release from their former management.

The executive also decided to insist that the qualifications of players in the Midget, Juvenile and Junior series whereby all players will be required to have a 50 per cent. attendance at Sunday school during the playing season will be adhered to.

Entries for all sections must be in the hands of the secretary or left at the Y. M. C. A. not later than Dec. 22nd.

HOCKEY NOTES.

Winnipeg Evening Tribune: The showing of the Kansas City team was surprising. After losing two games to the Millers they arrived in the city figured to drop their opener to the locals. They upset the dope and walked through the locals at a high rate of speed to finish on the long end of the 4-0 score. Manager Grant of the Kansas City boys has picked up a team of big men. Manager Grant strengthened his team a lot when he added Paddy Byrne for net duty, and, with big Jim Seaborn and McLeod, the visitors have a real heavy defence.

LEGION NOTES

"If you have not already purchased your ticket for the entertainment and special prize draw, hurry up and do so before all the tickets are sold," is the advice of the officers of the Canadian Legion. Remember the date, December 21, at the Canadian Legion Hall, which has the most attractive and up to date card and dance rooms in the city.

In making this appeal for the unqualified support of all we do so because if it were not for the efforts being made by this committee, who are and have worked so assiduously in the past, the work of relief could not be carried on to the extent that it is, and your purchase of a ticket not only gives a splendid night's entertainment but the possibility of taking home a Christmas present in the nature of one of the many prizes to be drawn for

Each year this work is becoming more strenuous. Men who served over there (thousands of them) are suffering from hidden wounds which shattered their nerves, or broke down their mental control. These were were called shell shock, men shaking with a kind of ague, pitable to observe, caused by the tremendous concussion of gun fire. Many of these men are breaking down to-day.

Not all of them have recovered. Many of them will never be completely cured. Many of them were not conscious of this mental illness until after the war. They received little sympathy. They showed no wounds. It was only in their minds they suffered. Some of them committed suicide; others were sent to the asylums; thousands of others are beginning to feel the effects of this neurasthenic condition. They are beginning to break down—unable to earn enough to keep the home fires burning. Few understand their misery or give them a helping hand, and they have nowhere to go. The Canadian Legion, composed of old comrades, understands them. Many of its members are suffering from the same disabilities. Many of the early cases are drawing pensions but those breaking down to-day are unable even to get treatment. It was the war in which they served which is causing their breakdown, and as a result of their suffering they should be taken care of by the government of the country for which they sacrificed their health, when called upon to serve it. Shall their service and sacrifice be forgotten. All ex-service men who are not members of the Legion should join up now and help those who are not able to help themselves.

The officers and members of the local branch extend their congratulations to the past president, Colonel C. Ackerman, on the occasion of the birth of a daughter, and express their best wishes towards him and Mrs. Ackerman.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR BEATS PREMIER

Even with his coat off, which he doffed to the delight of the spectators, Premier Ferguson of Ontario was "whitewashed" 2-0 by Lieutenant-Governor W. D. Ross in their horseshoe tilt at the opening of the Canadian horseshoe pitching championship matches at the Royal Winter Fair. The premier's first shot was bettered by three feet on his honor's effort and Mr. Ferguson was short of the fore line on his second attempt. Changing ends three pitches were made, Mr. Ferguson's last shot being wide, and the game was over with Chorley Park on top of Queen's Park. Here the distinguished opponents are shown in their stance.

SPRUCE FALLS PAPER MILL NEARLY READY

Newsprint Mill in Operation Next July—Involves Many Contracts.

MONTREAL, December 12. — Construction in connection with the development of the Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company, Limited, is now well forward. The project which involves a 600-ton paper mill, 75 horse power development, a 50-mile transmission line and a standard guage railway 50 miles long is expected to be in operation during the early part of the year 1928. It is anticipated that power will be delivered by April 1 next and that the newsprint mill will go into operation in July, 1928.

Some idea of how such an undertaking as this helps other industries in the country is given by the following:

Four high speed paper machines, manufacured by the Dominion engineering Works, Ltd., and electrically operated by the Harland Engineering Company drive, will turn out a sheet 234 inches wide and have a combined daily production of over 500 tons.

Present steam plant will be increased by the installation of four Kidwell boilers supplied by Canadian Vickers, Limited. These are being equipped with Equipment Power Specialty Co., mechanical stokers.

Groundwood mill will be equipped with 16 magazine grinders installed by Continous Grinder Co., Montreal.

Morrow and Beatty, Limited, of Peterboro, Ont., have the general contract for the entire development.

All the work is being carried on under the supervision of George F. Hardy, consulting engineer of New York; Mr. W. B. Crombio is his representative on the work.

Some idea of the magnitude of the development is given in the following synopsis which shows the volume of materials involved for construction of the pulp mill, paper mill, hydro-electric plant, railway and transmission lines: concrete, 185,000 cubic yards; rock excavation, 130,000 cubic yards; earth excavation, 1,000,000 cubic yards; structural steel, 16,000,000 pounds; reinforcing steel 3,500,000 pounds; timber, 10,000,000 f.b.m.; lumber, 10,000,000 f.b.m.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

ROBERT Z. LEONARD LEARNS INDIVIDUAL TRAITS OF HIS COMPANY.

A thorough knowledge of the artists with whom he is working is more important to the success of the motion picture director than the knowledge of dramatic values or camera angles, according to Robert Z. Leonard.

"Actors are strange people," says Leonard, whose latest production, "A Little Journey," is now playing at the Regent Theatre. "If a director cannot bring out the best work they have to give, he is not a good director.

"Claire Windsor responds to praise. I do not mean, by that, flattery, but if Claire thinks that she is being appreciated and that her work is the kind I want she responds to every mood.

"William Haines love a fight. If he feels that there is someone on the set who is not in sympathy with him, who has to 'be shown,' like the man from Missouri, he warms right up to a scene. He plays that scene for the skeptical person and does his best work.

"Norma Shearer is always perfectly at ease when I let her work out her own scenes. It takes away some of the spontaneity of her work when I act it out first.

"Each star and player has a different attitude and it is up to the director to discover these."

When a Man Loves

By ALLIE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, who is coveted by hideous Count Ravoir. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoir. She rejoins Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The King plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating, gives Manon to Ravoir, who carries her to a secret room which Fabien tries to find, while fiercely fighting.

Fabien would not have been able to get into the room if the great metal bolt had been in place. Fortunately for him the precaution had not been taken, but he lost no time in shooting it into the secure wall socket. The men outside had begun pounding on the bolted door when Fabien turned his back to it and surveyed the room. It was empty! Three closed doors mocked him from the other walls. Was he too late? What had become of Manon?

When Manon found herself forced into the small room at the head of the stairs, she locked the bolt, just as Fabien did later. The room was empty and while she was debating which of the three other doors to try, one of them opened and King Louis approached her with amusement and pleasant anticipation.

"The Chevalier was not a graceful loser, Mademoiselle," he said suavely. "But you—you are honest enough to deliver yourself in person!"

"Oh!" It was a startled cry of apprehension as she drew back in fear.

"Come here!" Commanded the King, moistening his small full lips.

Manon looked him squarely in the eyes—but did not move.

"I said, 'come here!'" Annoyed at not being obeyed, Louis spoke harshly.

"Your Majesty!" It was a cry for pity, but Louis mistook it for embarrassment.

Behind the King the door opened again and Manon saw the Comte quietly enter the room and stand with his back to the door. A feeling of utter helplessness surged over her as the King advanced and attempted to caress her. Her eyes blazed with anger as she struck down his arms and ran to the other side of the room. Pounding on the bolted door she called wildly for Fabien.

The King was infuriated. Never before in his licentious career had his amorous advances met with such indifference and repulsion.

"Monsieur Le Comte," he said with an angry gesture, "It seems this wench still prefers her card cheating lover to, shall we say, a friendship with her King."

"Your Majesty's pardon," replied de Ravoir, "But Sire, what can you expect? The woman had become so notorious that even I was forced to discard her!"

At this the King turned to look at Manon with a scowl on his face that indicated a mixture of rage and disappointment.

"Your dignity will suffer as it is," continued the Comte. "For she will doubtless make of this a joke to be repeated at the gaming tables of Paris."

The King continued to scowl. Already he had made himself ridiculous, and ridicule of all things he could neither stand nor afford. After all, why was one woman any better, or any worse than another? With a shrug he turned and left the room, saying as he approached the door, "She is my property—I give her to you. Perhaps from past experience you can find a way to make her more agreeable to your wishes."

As the door closed behind the King, Comte de Ravoir walked slowly toward the corner of the room where Manon was crouched in a vain attempt to make herself as inconspicuous as possible. He stood looking at her for a moment with a leering smile on his face.

"And so my pretty one, you think it is an easy thing to do, to flaunt His Majesty? Rash child! I have succeeded in saving you from grave trouble. Now you are mine again. A gift from our King!"

He bent closer as if to take Manon in his arms. She gazed at him with a contemptuous smile which broke into sneering laughter as she said:

"Monsieur le Comte is pleased to make himself even more ridiculous than the King."

"As a lover you may brush me aside," said de Ravoir menacingly as he seized her wrist angrily. "But as an enemy I am not to be disposed of so easily—that I promise you!"

Manon continued to look upon him as something unclean, abhorrent, something to be utterly despised.

With a half suppressed oath and veiled threat the Comte hurried through the same doorway that the King had used a moment before.

Manon was alone. Outside in the corridors she could still hear the shouts and sounds of conflict. With trembling limbs, terror stricken and fearful for Fabien she forced herself toward the door through which she had entered. The shuffling of feet, muttered oaths, half smothered by gasping breath, just the other side of the door caused her to pause for a moment. Was it Fabien? Or Andre? Her shaking fingers fumbled with the bolt and unfastened it, but over her shoulder appeared a hairy hand that grasped her wrist. She shook it off with almost superhuman strength and with a final wrench opened the door. A terrifying shriek for help escaped her as she saw her brother Andre, in a furious struggle with several guards.

Lescaut had a fleeting glimpse of Manon before many hands reached out and drew her back into the room. With a final desperate lunge he broke away from his captors and burst through the door after her. The power of several men seemed to be his as he hurled himself upon the guards that were half carrying, half leading his sister away. Gone forever was the craven, dispicable despoiler of women. The inhuman scavenger who sought to live from the forced immorality of his own sister. In its place was an avenging madman, whose uncanny strength grasped a victim in each hand, cracked their skulls together and tossed them aside. The very suddenness of his attack, the maniacal fury of his hands was demoralizing.

From the doorway the Comte watched the struggle, then as Lescaut crashed another guard to the floor De Ravoir drew his sword and true to his cowardly nature, plunged the keen blade deep into Andre Lescaut's back.

When the King's soldiers carried Manon through the doorway she knew that Andre was fighting to save her, but she did not know that he had ceased that struggle. She was dimly aware of the Comte hovering in the background, giving directions to the men, and her mind wandered back to Fabien. With sobs that racked her to her very soul she ceased her struggles and with a whispered prayer for the safety of her lover let herself be borne away.

Manon had no idea where she was being taken.

Fate had again separated her from Fabien and put her in the Comte's power. She was crazed with anxiety to know what had happened to her lover and if they would ever see each other again.

When Fabien won the seclusion of the little room at the head of the stairs, and locked out the angry crowd, he was frantic to find Manon. The fact that she was not there spurred him into action without further delay. Of the three doors that stared blindly from the surrounding walls he chose the one to the left. He hoped it would lead into the same room he had seen Lescaut enter from the corridor a short while before.

Fortunately the door was unlocked. Bursting into the room, Fabien saw Lescaut leaning over a chair, but his thoughts were so concerned with Manon that he did not notice the deadly stream of blood that slowly trickled down the back of Lescaut's satin coat.

"Where is Manon!" demanded Fabien.

"In there—a—m o m e n t—ago," gasped Lescaut with difficulty, waving toward a door opposite the one Fabien had entered.

"My God, man you are wounded—in the back!" Fabien was all compassion and put his arms about Lescaut's drooping shoulders.

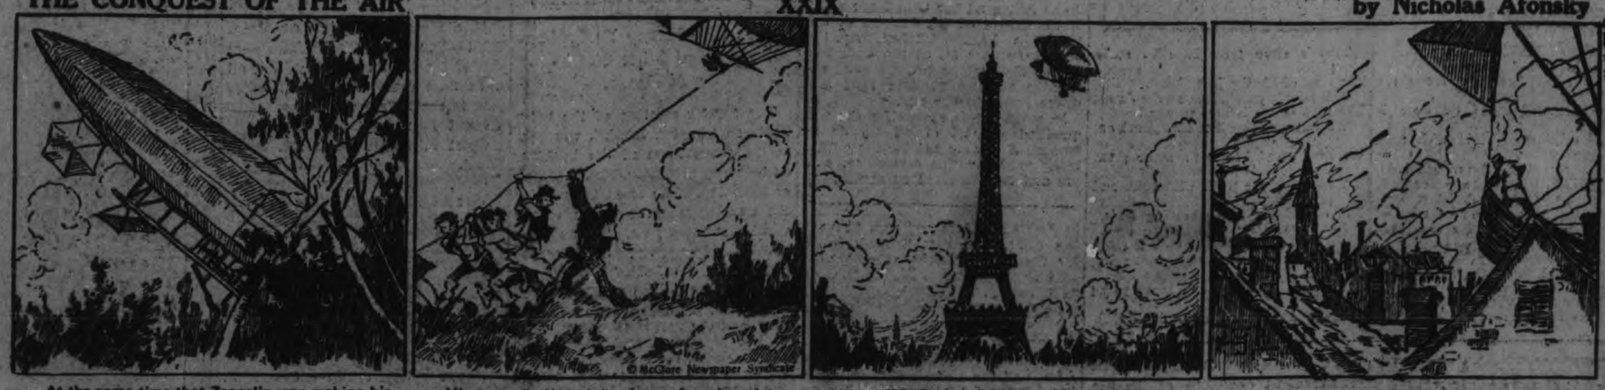
THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — XXIX — by Nicholas Afonsky



At the same time that Zeppelin was making his big dirigibles in Germany, a Brazilian, Alberto Santos-Dumont, was working on navigable balloons in France. He made his first ascent, with a non-rigid dirigible, in September, 1898. But when just off the ground his balloon was blown into the trees.

His second attempt to rise, a few days later, was successful. He flew satisfactorily for some time, but when descending realized that he was falling too rapidly. He called to some boys flying a kite to grasp his guide rope and run with it against the wind, and this brought him down safely.

In 1901 Santos-Dumont successfully steered one of his dirigibles around the Eiffel Tower at Paris, but on his return his motor stopped in mid-air and his airship was blown into some chestnut trees. There spectators found him unhurt, standing in the basket of the airship up in the trees.

Another trip of this daring man nearly came to grief. His balloon lost gas over Paris and began to sag. He stopped the motor and descended finally to catch on the roof of a hotel. There firemen rescued him by ropes let down from above from his precarious perch in his wicker basket.

BAZAAR PROCEEDS TOTALLED $6218.55

Large Sum Realized For Reduction of Debt On Hospital.

The net total of funds derived from the bazaar held recently in the market hall in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital was announced in St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday, by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, as being $6,218.55, an amount which has been applied toward the reduction of the debt on that institution. A gross total of $6,510.71 was received, with expenses of $292.16, leaving the above-mentioned amount as the balance. Over $2,000 was realized from the drawings for prizes, St. Peter's High School, by their efforts, contributed over $500, and St. Mary's School about $125.

His Lordship thanked heartily everyone who had helped in any way towards the success of the bazaar, which he considered had been extremely satisfactory, considering the very inclement weather of the week in which it was held.

CHILDREN SAVED FROM WRECK

There were heart-rending scenes when the wreck train brought to hospitals the victims of the train wreck at Dockrill, near Napanee, Ont. A pitiful aspect was the bewilderment of immigrant survivors, it being a strange situation for them on their first visit to Canada. Here tender arms are carrying to safety two unidentified babies—puzzled but both unhurt.

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES ARE LIFE-SAVERS IN MODERN HOME

Work Made Easy When Kitchen Has Power To Do Work.

LAUNDRY, TOO.

Washing and Cooking and Cleaning Need Be Bugbears No Longer.

The volume of business in the Canadian electrical equipment industry compares favorably with last year, in the opinion of D. C. Durland, Toronto, president of the Canadian General Electric Company, in an interview in The Montreal Financial Times. "Probably orders placed have been the largest in the history of the industry to date," declared Mr. Durland.

Fundamental factors that create uses of electrical equipment are very favorable, such as new power developments for the pulp and paper industry and new or enlarged paper mills. Outstanding examples are the developments of International Paper Company at the Gatineau, Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company's large undertaking in northern Ontario, and the Lake St. John developments. Such new plants require large amounts of electrical machinery and electrical devices of many kinds," stated Mr. Durland.

"Expanding operations of the mines of the country have brought about a demand for additional electrical equipment and supplies.

"There has also been a steady growth in the public utility field. Generating plants have been enlarged at many points to keep pace with the ever-increasing general use of electric light and power. Several large contracts for big generating apparatus have been placed.

"Improved conditions in the agricultural sections of Canada have augmented the purchasing power for electrical devices for farms and homes, including lamps, motors and electric ranges, electric refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, radio sets, etc. The sale throughout the entire dominion of electrical devices and appliances, including electric lamps, is in greater volume this year.

"The number of new buildings being erected is another decidedly helpful factor. All modern buildings use electric materials for light and power in considerable quantities.

"The broad outlook for the electrical industry is bright. Canada is a great electrical country, due to the vast water power resources capable of conversion into electric power and sales at low cost. With steady progress being made in manufacturing, agriculture, mining, building construction and resultant individual prosperity, there is bound to be reflected an increase in the uses of electrical machinery and appliances of all kinds."

That the business of the Canadian General Electric Company had been larger in volume this year than last was stated by the president. This referred to shipments and sales billed to customers, as well as new business. "The improvement is practically in all departments," declared Mr. Durland. "The company's financial condition is liquid and satisfactory, with large cash balances and no indebtedness of any kind, except for current expenditures."

Speaking on the C. G. E. subsidiaries, it was stated that Canadian Allis-Chalmers Limited has also secured a larger business this year in the sales of hydraulic turbines for water-power development and crushing machinery, pumps and other mechanical equipment used largely in mining operations and in pulp and paper plants.

Another subsidiary, the Ornamental Bronze and Iron Works, is doing well as a result of the increasing uses of its products in the large number of new buildings being erected.

The various manufacturing plants of the Canadian General Electric Company, while not at full capacity, are operating at a higher load factor than in many years.

BUYING AT HOME SUPPORTS CITY

Local Merchants Pay Taxes and Wages in Peterborough.

EVERYBODY BENEFITS.

If your money is sent out of town you are helping to develop some other community in place of your own. Keep the money circulating among the merchants locally and greater prosperity will come to the town as a whole. The increased amount of business enjoyed by the retailers helps them to cut down their overhead, and enables them better to meet the competition offered by out-of-town houses. Every dollar sent out of town for merchandise is just another dollar out of the local merchant's cash register, and he cannot bring his prices down. Consequently everyone suffers.

Should this tendency develop, it would ultimately mean the closing up of most of the small town stores, and what would that mean to the town? If wages are earned in the local mills and factories and then passed on to another city for merchandise, what will become of Peterborough? Development will stop and the town will die a natural death. Manufacturers will fight shy of a town where the retail trade is dead. All municipal expenses will be increased, and a greater burden thrown on the shoulders of the citizens. The retail business is a very important part of every community and any effort to curb the volume of trade passing through this channel will ultimately reflect back on those who passed up their local store for the city houses.

The lower initial cost may seem to be a saving at the time, but as a result the volume of turnover lost through out-of-town buying makes it impossible for the local dealer to give lower prices on any of his lines. When goods are bought from Peterborough merchants everybody will benefit indirectly through the general prosperity thus given to the whole community.

CREW OF SHIP BEING SOUGHT

Rescue Parties Think Men Made Way Ashore From Grounded Vessel.

CREW STILL ON MARTIAN.

SAULT STE. MARIE, December 12.—Canadian Press. — Anxiety exists in marine circles regarding the safety of the crew of the steamer Lambton, a Matthews Steamship Line freighter, which grounded on Parisienne Island, Lake Superior.

Crews this morning set out on a second attempt to discover the whereabout of twenty one sailors composing the crew of the vessel who are believed to have found their way safely ashore and to have taken shelter at some point.

Three large freighters to-day lay abandoned at widely separated points after their crews had been rescued in thrilling attempts over the week end. The Agawa, on Manitoulin Island, may possibly be salvaked next spring. The Altadoc is badly damaged on Point Keewanaw, and the Oglebay was gutted by fire at Shot Point, Michigan. The crews of all three vessels were rescued. The Martian is still aground near Port Arthur with the crew on board. They are in no danger.

EXPERIMENT ON OIL FROM COAL

German and British Firms Getting Plants Ready—Western Canadas' Coal Suitable.

BIG SAVING EXPECTED.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(United Press.)—Enormous developments in the British and German coal industries as regards the extraction of oil from coal are anticipated next year. The process is most important from the point of view of Western Canada, where the low grade coal deposits may in future be developed into commercial propositions.

The German Dye Stuffs Corporation is about to increase its capital by 12,000,000 pounds sterling with the object of placing the new process for the extraction of oil from low grade coal on the markets of Europe. In this connection the Corportaion has already erected a modern plant at its Luena works in Germany, where synthetic oil has been produced from lignite similar to that which exists in immense quantities in Western Canada.

Simultaneosly it is announced that the British companies have completed their experiments with low carbonization plants and are now ready to produce oils of various grades.

The ultimate saving to Great Britain is expected to be 45,000,000 pounds annually.

WANTS EAST CITY TO HAVE ALDERMAN

Ratepayer Suggests Change in Method of Electing Council.

A ratepayer of the city who takes a real interest in city affairs, has been watching the aldermanic election results for some time and it appears to him as if the other four wards of the city do not care to have Ashburnham represented in the Council. He is not finding fault so much with the system of a general vote as he is with the results. The average man generally residing west of the river knows very little of the fifth ward and pays little attention to its wants. He does not cross the bridge in the summer because he says it is too hot, and in the winter because it is too cold, and to this ratepayer, Ashburnham must appear to many just as an extra spoke in the wheel. He further states that the best residential section of Ashburnham is closer to the post office corner by a good deal than the best residential section of the balance of the city. He feels the ward should be represented in the Council.

As a solution he offered the suggestion that the ward system prevail so far as one alderman from each ward is concerned, then let the other five be elected by general vote. This would ensure each ward having at least one representative. And, as he said to The Examiner, "What do you think about it?"

M. Baird of Wiarton and Oller Ivan C. Moore of Owen Sound. Seventeen other members of the crew and Captain Livingstone landed safely. The boat is broken in two on a reef in the southeast corner of Lake Superior.

On the long distance telephone today, it was learned that the ship went on the reef last Thursday afternoon. The crew stayed on board until Saturday, when they set out for shore, eleven miles away, in their small boat. The ship had plenty of food on board but the crew were uncertain about the weather and the ship was in a dangerous position.

OLD CATHEDRAL VERY BEAUTIFUL

Mrs. Blackwell Gives Interesting Paper On St. Mark's, Venice.

TO ART STUDY CLUB.

The paper on St. Mark's Cathedral, given by Mrs. Wm. Blackwell at the meeting of the Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association, last week, was interestingly descriptive of the glories of the ancient cathedral of Venice, "Queen of the Adriatic," as this romantic city has been named.

The Venetians, having in the ninth century possessed themselves of the body of St. Mark, chose him as their patron saint, and, after the first chapel erected to his memory had been destroyed, built, during the slow progress of a century of labor, the present beautiful church, which was consecrated in 1085 and later completed under a succession of Doges, who embellished it according to their particular fancy, thus leaving the fabric of no particular epoch. However, two periods of influence are notable, that of the Gothic era, when its influence had superseded the Byzantine school, and that of the Renaissance period, which followed the Gothic, and during which pupils of Titian and Tintoretto substituted compositions of their own for the beautiful Greek mosaics which originally embellished the structure.

Mrs. Blackwell described in detail the various portions of the church and the wonderful square which fronts it, going on to say:

"St. Mark's has from early morn to sunset many devotees, in worship deep and reverent and profoundly sorrowful. The largest number enter by the Arabian porch on the south side, remarkable for its Arabic architecture. By this transept is the chapel of the Madonna, loved by the Venetians, although the old builders kept all subordinate to the Christ."

The first broad characteristic of this wonderful church, said the speaker, is its incrusation, and it is the purest example in Italy of the great ideal of architecture in which the first principle is incrustation of brick with more precious materials. It has 4,000 metres of gold-covered walls in mosaic and 806 columns of marble.

In the construction of the church, it must be remembered that a nation of builders placed far from quarries and having precarious access to the mainland, was concerned. If the traffic of its merchants led to places where there are ruins of ancient buildings, they would take some of these home, to incorporate in the building of their church, to use in its shafts and capitals.

"Thus the island architect fashions as best he may the anatomy of his edifice. An architect who cared for the preservation of the work, whether his own or others, and regarded more the beauty of the building than his own fame, would have done what those old builders of St. Mark's did, and saved every relic with which he was entrusted. They had grown familiar with the art of inserting old fragments in modern buildings, they owed to that practice a great part of the splendor of their city. Marbles were brought home in triumph and St. Mark's became a shrine at which to dedicate the splendors of miscellaneous spoil rather than the organized expression of any formal type of architecture or even of religious feeling.

"In it is a curious blending of Moorish, Gothic and Arabic art. In it are massed in serried ranks scores of variously colored marble columns, each one a monolith, some brought from Ephesus, some from Smyrna, others from Constantinople and from Jerusalem. "On one the hand of Cleopatra may have rested, another may have cast its shadows on St. Paul and still a third may have been gazed upon by Christ Himself."

"St. Mark's is the treasure home of Venice; a place of pride and prayer. For five hundred years the work of beautifying this church went on, and each generation tried to outdo the generation that had preceded it. "What new and splendid offering bring you for San Marco?" was the query made the returning Venetian. And the square of St. Mark's has also been for centuries the Forum of the city, the favorite place for the holding of festivals which wake it to the life and color almost of a ball room. At other times, Venice is called the City of Silence, a place where there is no sound of wheels, no strident gongs, no tramp of horses. "Here the nerves relax in the restful stillness."

WRECK INQUEST BEGINS TO-DAY

ENTERPRISE Ont., Dec. 12 (Canadian Press). — Everything is ready for the opening this afternoon of the adjourned inquest into the fatalities resulting from the collision on November 27 of the C.P.R. Montreal-Toronto flier, and a freight train at Dockrill Siding. Coroner G. H. Cowan and Crown Attorney U. M. Wilson are due from Napanee, while railway officials are on their way from Toronto, Montreal, and Smith's Falls. Among the witnesses are the train crews, but Engineer Bradford, of the freight, the most important witness, is still in hospital at Smith's Falls. In the circumstances a further adjournment some time this evening is probable.

Most Mine Shares Lose Ground To-day

TORONTO, Dec. 12.— (Canadian Press.) — Practically all the issues traded in on the standard block exchange this morning lost ground when a ceiling movement became general, but the declines were slight in most instances.

Amulet was the worst performer, dropping 35 cents at 5.00, a low mark of 4.95 being registered during the morning. Coniagas lost 25 cents at 4.50 and Lake Shore was 20 points lower at 26.30.

Demand developed for Dome Mines, which at 13.39 showed a gain of 50 cents. Other gains were insignificant.

Wheat Prices Follow Liverpool Downward

CHICAGO, December 12 (Canadian Press). — Wheat prices here underwent an early setback to-day, influenced a good deal by the weakness of the market at Liverpool. Larger arrivals of wheat and flour in Great Britain were reported. Opening at ⅝c to ¾c decline, Chicago wheat soon showed a slight further sag. Corn displayed power to rally, starting ¾c to ⅞c down and receding a little more, but then recovering well. Oats were firmer. Provisions tended to decline.

Advance Is Resumed In Wall Street To-day

NEW YORK, December 12 (Canadian Press). — Speculative sentiment was distinctly bullish in to-day's stock market. Wright Aeronautical, manufacturer of the famous "Whirlwind Motor," soared more than 10 points to a new high record at 87.

U. S. Steel Common, up three points to 144¾, Abraham & Straus up more than six points, and a number of others, including Houston Atlantic Refining, American Steel Foundries ,International Telephone, and Greene Cananea Copper sold three to five points higher.

More than a score of issues broke into new high ground. The rails, which were heavily sold on Saturday, showed splendid resistance to pressure to-day, and a few moved forward.

Listed Stocks Weak On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, December 12. Canadian Press. — There was a slight slackening of trading in listed stocks during this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. Gains and losses were evenly distributed.

Brazilian Traction lost three points at 221 on sales of 230 shares, while fractional losses were also sustained by a number of issues.

Around the City

Four calls answered since Saturday morning were listed at the fire department this morning. None of them had been of a particularly serious nature. It was on Saturday morning at 11.26 that the first of the four trips was made, a chimney at 273 Thomas Street being the cause. There were no others until 5.14 p.m. on Sunday, when 100 London Street reported a chimney fire. Within a minute of this call there came the third call of the day, fire in a sawdust bin at the Canadian Aladdin Company, Monaghan Road, making it necessary for the brigade to run out a line of hose from a nearby hydrant. Though the fire was not of a spectacular nature, it required the attention of two firemen, armed with the hose, for five hours lest it grow worse.

Overheated pipes at 173 Park Street necessitated a run at 7.49 last evening.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Speaking at the Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien referred to the attitude of the Church in her preparation for the great feast of Christmas, "a feast upon which all others are founded and upon which they depend." The approach to this magnificent festival should be made in the same spirit of reverence which animated the angels who gathered around the crib on the first Christmas Day.

"Christmas is being commercialized on all sides and this upsets altogether the very idea of the magnificent feast. At this time, we should make first of all an effort to be at peace with God and our own souls and our neighbors, to strive to cleanse ourselves from every trace of mortal sin, in honor of the celebration of Christmas. We should not only do this, but we should be animated by an intense and burning love of God, so that we be filled with not only that negligent type of virtue that merely refrains from sin, but also the intense feeling that yearns to do something for Almighty God and one's fellow man, in return for the great love that Christ has shown for us."

His Lordship concluded with an adjuration to be active in charitable giving at this season of the year.

LEAGUE COUNCIL SESSION IS ENDED

Four Vexing Problems Now On Way To Being Settled.

GENEVA. Dec. 12 (Canadian Press). — With four international problems, including the Polish-Lithuanian controversy, in the way to settlement as a result of its deliberations, the 48th session of the Council of the League of Nations adjourned today, to meet in March. Officials said no arrangements have been made to convene the March meeting in Rome, although Rome has been suggested as offering a way of bringing about a meeting of Foreign Minister Briand of France and Premier Mussolini. The French representatives seem desirous of having the March session in Rome.

Representatives of Poland and Lithuania today agreed to enter into direct negotiations and it is likely that a conference will be held soon at Riga Latvia.

Two other vexing problems were disposed of. The request of Greece to be freed from the obligation to make full payment for the battle Salamas, contracted for in a German shipyard before war, was referred to a mixed arbitral body. The request of the free city of Dantzig to have a Polish munitions depot in that city removed or else put under Danzig's control, was left to a local conference at Danzig.

MINISTER SAYS HARVEY BY-LAW WAS NOT FILED

Township Failed To Comply With Regulations Governing Road Grants.

APPROVAL NOT GIVEN.

Township and Department in Position of Partners, Mr. Finlayson Points Out.

TORONTO, Dec. 13.— Failure on the part of the township of Harvey to comply with regulations of the Department over which he presides accounts for the withholding of the fifty-fifty grant on road construction, stated the Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests in the Provincial Government of Ontario, when interviewed by The Examiner seeking further light on the question raised by Reeve Parker of Harvey in Peterborough County Council last week.

Mr. Finlayson emphatically contradicted the statement attributed to Mr. Parker to the effect that the township had been authorized by the Ministry to go ahead with the work, with an appointee of the local municipality as supervisor, the Government undertaking to pay half the cost. "I remember being called on by the deputation from Harvey," said Mr. Finlayson, "and I promised assistance of half the cost under the usual conditions." "These conditions which the Minister asserts were not carried out in their entirety were the same as are imposed on all other municipalities receiving assistance in the province. The local council passes the necessary by-law, which is then submitted to the Department of Lands and Forests for approval. This approval is given only on the recommendation of the inspectors of the Department, who carefully go over all the suggested work and report to the Ministry in Toronto. After authorization is given, the municipality proceeds with the construction and it is at the conclusion of the work that the financial aid is handed over the township concerned. This procedure [illegible] all the other municipalities who seek Provincial aid. There were hundreds of municipalities in Ontario, he averred, but Harvey seemed to be the only one that desired to run not only its own work but that of the Ministry as well. Although the council passed the by-law, it was never filed with the Department and consequently did not receive official approval.

Like Partners.

He had no quarrel with Mr. Parker, said the Minister. Being elected Reeve, he was at liberty to proceed with the projects he had in mind, so long as he spent only the money of the township that had chosen him, but Government assistance could only

LELAND SUES MOTOR KING

Claims $6,000,000 in Damage Suit From Henry Ford.

BREACH OF FAITH.

PONTIAC, Mich., Dec. 13.— (United Press.)— A passing pageant of men and money opened yesterday in the Oakland circuit court when counsel for Henry Ford and Henry M. Leland engaged in the opening skirmish of the $6,000,000 lawsuit brought against Ford by Leland.

Charging a breach of faith, the 85-year-old Leland seeks to compel Ford to reimburse the stockholders of the old Lincoln Motor company, which Leland headed and Ford bought from a federal receiver in 1921 for $8,000,000.

THE WEATHER

We all were aware that November was a month of much rain, but until I received to-day a copy of the Monthly Review of Weather for Canada, I did not realize the unique position the last month had. Over much of the older portion of Ontario, that is from Toronto westward to Windsor, there were more rainy days than ever before recorded—and the records go back for a century. Many places had twenty days and over; Peterboro had twenty-one. The amount for the month was generally the heaviest since 1879. Again in parts of the province of Quebec the amount was excessive. Many places report over ten inches for the month. We have all read of the floods in Vermont and New Hampshire. In the Eastern Townships (immediately north of these states) the rainfall was over twenty inches on the level! —W. P.

P.C.I. Graduate Wins Rhodes Scholarship

Word has reached his parents in Peterborough, of the signal honor which has been conferred upon William A. Breyfogle, a former Peterborough boy, now a senior at Dartmouth College. It is to the effect that the State of New Hampshire Rhodes Scholarship has been awarded him and that as a result, he will enjoy three years' attendance at Oxford University, England.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle, the former being the general manager of the De Laval plant of this city, are receiving congratulations on their son's success.

"Bill," as he was affectionately known, is the second P.C.I. graduate to win a Rhodes Scholarship. Stanley Fife, who was later killed in action during the war, was the first to win this honor.

Robert Breyfogle, a brother of William, is at present attending Oxford University, having won a special scholarship at Dartmouth.

GRAIN STORAGE IS NOT FILLED

Much Less Grain in the Elevators at Lake Head This Year.

MUCH MOVED EAST.

WINNIPEG, Man., December 13 —With the close of navigation on the Great Lakes at hand, storage at the elevators becomes an important factor in the country's life.

The situation, in spite of the fact that bad weather and a late crop delayed harvesting, shows there is much less grain in storage at the head of the lakes than last year at this time, due to the fact that the movement during the latter part of October and November was abnormal and the shipment of grains over it lakes much greater in that period than usual.

Up to December 9, a total of 78,930 cars were unloaded by the Canadian Pacific at the head of the lakes, while the movement west to the Port of Vancouver was 7,508 cars. A comparative statement of grain in storage at the head of the lakes is approximately as follows: 1927 wheat, 14,000,000 bushels as against 22,000,000 in 1926; oats 2,000,000 bushels in 1927 as against 2,500,000 in 1926; barley, 1,250,000 bushels against 1,250,000 bushels in 1926; flax, 1,750,000 bushels as against the same last year; rye, 800,000 bushels against 1,250,000 in 1926.

Estimates Published For German Budget

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The ministry of finance yesterday published estimates for the 1928 budget.

Both the ordinary and extraordinary budgets balance, the former totalling 9,356,000 marks and the latter at 146,300,000.

The ordinary budget shows estimated expenditures amounting to 1,227,500,000 marks for reparations payments, 190,000,000 for the German police force, 326,000,000 for army appropriations and 167,000,000 for the navy, the last amount including 930,000 marks as a first installment for a new battleship.

Says Press Comment Liable to Create Wrong Interpretation of Settlement

GENEVA, December 13 (Associated Press). — Criticism in some of the newspapers of Europe that the settlement of the Polish-Lithuanian controversy was "rushed through" the Council and that pressure from Marshal Pilsudski, the Polish Premier, forced the last minute solution, has led Gustave Stresemann, German Foreign Minister, and Mr. Cheng Loh, president of the League Council, to exchange letters insisting that the solution was reached "normally."

Dr. Stresemann said that press comment is liable to creat a wrong interpretation of what he considers a conspicuous example of the League's peace efforts, and declares that the happy settlement of the Polish-Lithuanian dispute has done a great deal to enhance the prestige of the League.

On the first day of the Council session, preliminary conversations, the German Minister asserts, led in a large measure to an agreement between the members of the Council concerning the solution. Cheng Loh concurs in Dr. Stresemann's view. He emphasizes that Saturday's meeting, when the Polish-Lithuanian crisis was ended, has "justly enhanced the prestige of the League of Nations, which, by securing acceptance in this case of a peaceful and equitable settlement, has once more borne witness before the world to the spirit and atmosphere of peace with which the League is imbued."

The forty-eighth session of the Council of the League came to an end yesterday morning. It will meet again next March.

FEAR OF FLOOD PASSES WITH MILD WEATHER

Otonabee River Falls When the Ice Downstream Melts.

WAS VERY HIGH.

Riverside Park and Sections in South End Were Flooded For a Time.

Ice conditions which during the week-end caused the waters of the Otonabee River to rise several feet have disappeared. On Sunday morning Engineer Parsons and A. L. Killaly, Superintendent of the Trent Valley Canal, feared that the southern part of the city would be flooded.

Anchor ice had formed at Rice Lake and at Wallace Point and this held back the water which, for this time of the year, has been high. The waters commenced to rise and overflow the banks of the Otonabee. James Stevenson Park was flooded, the water was within a few inches of the top of George Street wharf, sections surrounding the river in the southern part of the city were inundated, and the men in charge feared that conditions would grow worse if the weather turned colder.

Sunday, at noon, the change came. The temperature rose and some of the ice melted to allow the water to get away. Very little decrease was registered by ten o'clock Sunday night but the water is much lower now and all fears of the flood are past for the present.

An Achievement

The Examiner will to-morrow issue what it believes to be the most advanced Christmas shopping guide ever given to its readers by a newspaper, and the best local Christmas edition ever run off the press.

There will be more than forty columns of local Christmas features, written by The Examiner staff reporters.

The advertising columns will carry Christmas suggestions from all the progressive merchants.

But the big feature of the special edition will be the index, something that The Examiner staff has never seen attempted before. Every article offered by advertisers will be indexed alphabetically, with a reference to the name of the advertiser and to the page where the description of the article will be found, after this style:

Hand-painted Handkerchiefs (Lavoie's), Page 7.
Brunswick Panatrope (J. M. Greene Co.), Page 10.
Tea Sets (Routley's), Page 6.
Suede Gloves (Canadian Department Store), Page 23.

Every one of the hundreds of articles offered by these progressive advertisers will be alphabetically listed, so that readers may run down the list until they reach an attractive item, and turn to the page where it is described. The Examiner wishes to make shopping easy this Christmas, and this will be done with the hearty co-operation of the advertisers.

There will be a separate index of toys for the children; a children's page of Christmas items; the third annual page of Messages from Peterborough's Clergymen; complete programs of music to be given in the churches during the Christmas season; suggested Christmas menus; new ideas about decorating; games to play at Christmas parties; and dozens of other features.

Save Wednesday's Examiner for reference.

AGITATION TO DISESTABLISH CHURCH IS REVIVED BY BILL

Critics Point Out Absurdity of Parliament Deciding on Doctrine.

CONTROVERSY BITTER.

Expected That Lords Will Pass Bill and Commons Follow Lead.

LONDON, Dec. 13. (United Press.) The prayer book controversy involving around the permission given in the revised book to what are called Anglo-Catholic practices, has revived the Non-comformist agitation for the disestablishment of the Anglican Church.

The critics point out the absurdity of the Mohammedan peer, the Marquis of Headfort, in the House of Lords, and of Roman Catholics, in both Houses, and of the Parsee member of Parliament, Saklatvala, virtually adjudicating in doctrinal questions peculiar to Anglicans.

The plea of the Archbishop of Canterbury that the doctrinal position of Anglicans will be unaltered by parliament granting permission to use the new book is not accepted by a large body of church opinion.

Bishop Barnes of Birmingham, whose scientific views were recently the subject of protest in St. Paul's Cathedral, says that if the revised book is accepted, chaos will follow in the church, whereas if it is rejected the church can remodel its views in the next twenty years, and bring them into accord with modern science.

"No individual bishop can know under the new prayer book where he stands," Dr. Barnes declares.

An element of bitterness entered into the controversy when the Bishop of Durham in an article described the evangelical party in the church as "an army of illiterates generaled by octogenarians." It is generally anticipated that the Lords will agree to recommend that the king accept the revised book, and if so the Commons will pass it.

BISHOPS VISIT COMMONS.

LONDON, December 13. — Canadian Press. — Members of the House of Commons were privately addressed to-day by the Archbishop of York, who in the House of Lords yesterday introduced a resolution urging the approval of the revised prayer book of the Church of England. The Bishop of Manchester addressed the Labor members urging support of the measure

The discussion in the Lords yesterday occupied a prominent place in to-day's newspapers. The Daily News expresses doubt that the rejection of the bill is desirable from a purely political standpoint, because if it was rejected there could be no debate in the Commons.

The Yorkshire Post says the lobby prophets anticipate a majority of one hundred for the bill in the Lords and one hundred and fifty in the Commons.

INJURIES FATAL.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., December 13 (Canadian Press). — Alex. Mearns, Chippewa, died to-day from injuries sustained last night when fumes from a special paint exploded as an electric light bulb broke. Mearns was painting the inside of a big fuel tank. His wife and two children survive.

Local Bus Drivers Wear New Uniforms

Operators of the local busses appeared in new gray uniforms this morning that gave them a real liveried appearance. The issue was made last night by the order Transit Company and the men lost no time in getting into their new outfits. The suits, which are of army grey serge; caps, and leather leggings were supplied by the Regent Tailors of this city. The men in their new outfits and the buses with the new coat of paint give Peterborough's transporation service a tidy and well-kept appearance. The caps bear the inscription, "Peterborough Bus Lines."

LONG SERVICE BADGES GIVEN MAIL CARRIERS

Nineteen Local Men Qualify For One or More of Them.

EACH MEANS FIVE YEARS.

C. A. Stenton Gets Four and Seven Others Three Each—Five Get Two Each.

The Post Office Department has recently issued a special service badge to be worn by the uniformed mail carriers who have been in the service for a number of years. The badge in the shape of a maple leaf, represents five completed years of service, and it is of local interest that many of the Peterborough mail carriers are in line for such recognition.

Four badges to Senior Letter Carrier C. A. Stenton, in service for twenty years; three to J. Grisdale, for nineteen years of service; three to J. Harrison, a mail carrier for some seventeen years; and three to J. L. Bath, S. T. Darragh, E. E. Lee, G. W. Downer and C E. Wiley, all of whom have completed at least fifteen years as mail carriers.

Other members of the local staff awarded badges were: G. W. Davis, two, for thirteen years, J.S. Jackson, two for twelve years; W. T. Jeffery, two for eleven years; J. J. Cook, two, for ten years; W. P. Doughty, two for ten years; A. Moscrop and L. G. Dunstan, one for nine years each; J. Kellbrick and M. Tucker, one for eight years each; F. C. Riddell, one for seven years, and T. Moore, one for six years.

Five other mail carriers have not yet reached the five years completed service mark. They are: F. Smith, H. Miles P. Whitnall, E. Nicholls and N. McLaughlin.

HYDRO PAYS $33,000 FOR RURAL LINES

Utilities Commission Receives a Cheque For $33,305.80 For Township Lines.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION.

Members Demand That a New Breaker Be Installed at Auburn Power House.

A Christmas box in the form of a cheque for $33,305.80 was received by the local Utilities Commission at its regular monthly meeting yesterday. The cheque was from the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario for the sale of the rural power lines surrounding the city. The sum paid for the lines was $31,267.71 and $2,044.37 was for interest charges since January 1st.

Mr. Bradburn received a letter of appreciation for the street lighting of this Christmas season from W. D. Campbell. The letter read: Heartiest congratulations are due to the Utilities Commission from the citizens in general and the merchants in the city in particular, for the fine appearance which George street presents at night in its splendid new dress of colored lights. This is certainly most appropriate for the Christmas season.

Particularly are congratulations due to yourself personally in this matter, as we understand that this idea originated with the chairman of the Commission.

May we venture to suggest that Hunter street merchants would appreciate it very much indeed if this scheme might be extended to include Hunter Streets as well.—The commissioners decided to erect further lights on Hunter street as far as their bulbs and wiring will allow them.

A letter was received from the Hydro Electric Power Commission in which it said it was sorry for the cut-off in power recently. The commission instructed the secretary to write the Ontario body and point out there were further shut down last week and demand that the Hydro install a new 44,000 circuit breaker at the Auburn. This breaker, which is outside of the local circuit, has been responsible for the majority of the shut-downs in the last two years.

The manager reported that there had been considerable trouble at the pumping station recently with anchor ice. He also reported that there would be a change in the East City lighting circuit as at present there was not being sufficient current supplied. He suggested putting the Westclox on a new circuit that would be strung from the Vermont Marble Company plant.

NO POLITICS IN BUDGET DEBATE

Premier Poincare Gets Contentious Matter Put Through Quickly.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press) —Premier Poincare has achieved the unprecedented feat of keeping politics out of discussions of the budget in the Chamber of Deputies on the eve of an election. The final vote endorsing the budget by 405 to 125 was taken early yesterday after a night session. The budget was put through in record time.

U. S. FORCES GUARD WHITES

Bring Seventeen People Into Shelter of Canton Foreign Concession.

COMMUNISTS ACTIVE.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Foreigners are being concentrated in the Shameen, or foreign settlement, of Canton for fear of disorders breaking out between them and natives, according to reports reaching here today. Armed United States launches have conveyed fifteen Americans and two Britishers to the shelter of the foreign concession while field guns have been landed to protect the United States Consulate. Trouble is threatened due to the Communist capture of the city. Canton government troops are massing outside Canton, presumbaly preparing for an attack on the Communists.

At Hankow also, the Communists are very active and the outlying districts of that city are declared to be entirely Communistic. A Peasants' army has been organized and it is believed that wealthy landlords have been murdered. Anti-red troops who regained possession of a building at Canton were driven out by Communists shortly after. The Communists are looting Canton wholesale.

Refugees Arrive

HONG KONG, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Chinese refugees and about thirty - five missionaries, mostly Americans and Germans, arrived here today aboard the British steamer Fatshan from Canton. The missionaries originally had fled from up country posts to Canton.

Revolt Widespread.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13. —(Canadian Press.)—Southern China to-day appears in the throes of a red revolt. Canton is completely in control of the Communists, while Nanking, Hankow and other cities are threatened by the Reds. Outbreaks along the Yangtze river, including Wuchang and Changsa, were quelled by the Nationalist government which failed, however, to capture Canton. In Shanghai itself agitators are trying to foment a general strike. The United States' gunboat Sacramento landed men and field guns at Canton to protect foreigners while Communists indulged in an orgy of looting and pillaging and set up a Soviet government."

Capt. Lalor Freed.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Capt. Lalor, who had been held for ransom by Chinese pirates for two weeks, has been released and is aboard the British gunboat Bee. The details of his release are not given.

Some 50 or more passengers and trainmen were more or less severely injured in the collision on the Dockrill siding north of here.

U. M. Wilson crown attorney, is conducting the enquiry for the crown. He intimated that twelve witnesses would be called. These comprise train employees and eye witnesses. J. L. Bradford, regarded as an important witness, is still confined to the hospital at Smith's Fals. He was represented by Counsel A. W. Roebuck of Toronto.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is represented by J. D. Spence, K.C. An investigation to consider the rights of freight trains running on their own time may be the outcome of the inquest.

The first witness called was G. H. Wiggins, land surveyor, who produced plans and measurements of the Dockrill siding.

Witness said the point of collision was 1200 and 2700 feet respectively from the nearest east and west switchboards Wiggins declared there was a cut out and quite a grade near the point of the collision which would to some extent obstruct the view of trains approaching on the main line

Michael Hinch, a farmer, through whose property the railway right of way runs, was on the scene five minutes after the collision. The crash attracted his attention He did not actually see the impact. The [illegible] was coming rapidly but witness had no view of the freight train from his house.

"Did you see any other persons around?"

"When I got there there were no other perosn on hand."

John Hinch son of the previous witness, heard the trains, but did not actually see the crash. Looking quickly the young lad saw the passenger car occupied by immigrants "sort of climbing up over the other coach," he said.

Cross-examined by Mr. Roebuck, Hinch declared he looked in time to see four passenger coaches stuil in motion. He did not see the freight locomotive.

The three rear coaches were intact, but the rest were all broken. Some of the coaches were of steel construction.

"What was the immigrant coach made of?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"Wood," replied Hinch.

"What condition was it in?"

"Smashed to pieces."

W. Houghton of Toronto., fireman on C. P. R. engine No. 951, testified his engineer, J. L. Bradford, on the freight train, had received a "number 19" order in regard to the westbound passenger train. Information was that the flier was running fifteen minutes late at Smith's Falls.

"A third class train must clear a first class train five minutes," said Houghton. Witness thought there was plenty of time.

"Had you any order to go beyond Lens?" asked the crown. "No."

Mr. Roebuck asked for the protection of the court. Mr. Wilson observed that he was protected by the Canada Evidence Act.

"Why did you not take the Lens siding?" asked the crown. "Because we had sufficient time to go to Dockrill," said Houghton.

Witness said the freight approached Dockrill about twenty miles an hour.

"Did you increase your speed coming down grade to the switch line?" "Naturally we would increase a little."

Delayed at Switch.

Who Will Be Peterborough's Next Mayor? Legal Requirements Complicate Things This Year

Who will be Peterborough's next Mayor? If the present incumbent carries out his recently announced intention of contesting the vacant seat on the Utilities Commission, a sure guess is that it will be neither Aldermen Phelan nor Denne, although both these men have signified that they are in the Mayoralty contest.

According to statute, Mayor Holloway must resign before he qaulifies for the position of candidate for the Utilities Commission. This would leave the city without a Chief Magistrate until the new Council is inaugurated on January 9th.

It will therefore be necessary for the Council to appoint a Mayor who will hold the office with all its authority for about three weeks.

The seven aldermen who will be eligible for the appointment are Green, McIntyre, Macdonald, Hancock, Cotton, Ackerman, and Stocker. Only once before in the history of Peterborough has the same situation arisen when the late Mayor T. H. G. Denne resigned to contest the vacancy on the Water Commission, and John Corkery was appointed Mayor of the town.

REDS GAIN CONTROL OF CANTON CITY

Ancient City in Power of Communists Following Serious Fighting.

TROOPS ABSENT.

Situation Further Complicated by Seamen's and Railwaymen's Strikes.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Canton City has been the scene of another revolution, which, as reported in despatches from Hong Kong and other points, has placed it in the power of Communists after serious fighting, looting and incendiarism.

Apparently the attempt of the latest Canton dictator, Chang Fak-Wei, to disarm and disband bodies of troops suspected of treachery, led heavy fighting in the city. The bulk of the Cantonese troops were absent at the time on the West River, preparing to meet a threatened invasion from Kwang-Si. Advantage was taken of the confusion and 20,000 Communists engaged in an uprising, disarmed the police and seized control of the city.

The situation was further complicated by the seamen's and railwaymen's strikes, which, cutting off communication with points outside the city, has added to the difficulty of learning the exact facts. One report has it that Chang fled aboard a warship. This report, however, seems doubtful, as persons who arrived here late yesterday from Canton reported that Chang Fak-Wei's troops led an attack across the river from Honan, opposite Canton City Sunday and apparently obtained a foothold and that they bombarded Canton yesterday morning.

The Chinese gunboats, it is said, remain loyal, but anxiety is felt for foreigners living in Canton City. Owing to the nervous tension arising from the Communist outbreak in Canton, together with evidence that the Communists are actively inciting the masses at Shanghai, British, United States and Japanese military contingents are assisting the police in maintaining peace in the settlement and by patrolling the streets last night.

Judgment Reserved C.N.R. Applications

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—The Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada sat here yesterday and reserved judgment in two applications by the Canadian National Railway to change the East Norwich Station from an agency station to a non-agency station, appointing a caretaker and maintaining a siding for loading and unloading carload freight and to close as an agency the station at Harley. W. S. Brewster represented North Norwich, Burford and Harley Townships, which submitted a petition and the evidence of some fifteen witnesses to show that the service should be maintained as at present.

BIG DOCUMENT SENT COOLIDGE

Signed By 4,032 Citizens of U. S. Urges Negotiations For Court Entry.

SIGNERS DISSATISFIED.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 12 (United Press).—President Coolidge is to receive an impressive document urging the continuation of negotiations looking toward the United States participation in the world court.

Signed by 4,032 persons of prominence representing all of the 48 states, the communication conveys to the President the belief of the signers that a large number of people are far from satisfied at the present status of the question of adherence of the United States to the permanent court of international justice.

OLD MASTERS

Remember me when I am gone away,
Gone far away into the silent land;
When you can no more hold me by the hand,
Nor I half turn to go, yet turning stay,
Remember me when no more, day by day,
You tell me of our future that you planned:
Only remember me; you understand
It will be late to counsel then or pray.
Yet if you should forget me for a while
And afterwards remember, do not grieve
For if the darkness and corruption leave
A vestige of the thoughts that once I had,
Better by far you should forget and smile
Than that you should remember and be sad.

Proves the effectiveness of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine

Mrs. W. Scott, Queensville, Ont., writes:—"I had bronchitis so badly that I was told by a Toronto doctor to go right home and go to bed, as I had bronchial pneumonia. But first I went to a druggist and got a large bottle of Dr. Chase's Linseed & Turpentine. Two bottles of this Syrup entirely freed me from the bronchial trouble. I highly recommend it for any throat or lung trouble."

GAIN CONTROL PAPER COMPANY

Royal Securities Corporation Take Over American Interests in Firm.

LARGE PRODUCER.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 13 (Canadian Press.)—The Montreal Gazette in its financial columns yesterday says:

'It is understood that Royal Securities Corporation has acquired control from American interests of the Donnacona Paper Company, which is one of the largest independent producers of newsprint in Canada.

"The company's mills are situated at Donnacona, on the Jacques Cartier river, about thirty miles west of Quebec. The company has a productive capacity of 230 tons of newsprint paper per day, and has extensive water power holdings on the Jacques Cartier river, and controls approximately 6,000,000 cords of pulpwood mostly located on the Jacques Cartier and Sault au Mouton watersheds.

"Following as it does the acquisition by Canadian interests of other American owned properties in Canada, the return to Canadian ownership of the Donnacona Paper Company has been received with satisfaction in Canadian financial circles.

"Approximately $14,000,000 is understood to be involved in the transaction."

$100 Per Share.

UTICA, N.Y., Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—Owners of two-thirds of all stock of the Donnacona Paper Company, Limited, have sent notice to the other stockholders that they have agreed to sell their holding to Royal Securities Corporation, Ltd., of Montreal, for $100 per share for common and $110 per share plus dividend for preferred, payable January 10, on condition that the buyers shall also buy the remaining stock or be willing to sell at the same price and on the same terms.

The buyer has deposited $250,000 as guarantee to carry out his agreement on January 10. Certificates of shares are to be deposited with the First Bank and Trust Company at Utica, or the Bank of Montreal at Montreal, on or before Jan. 7. The total stock of $1,500,000 common and $2,000,000 preferred.

BANDITS BALKED IN BANK ROBBERY

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— Failure of the acetylene supply in a cutting torch early yesterday morning frustrated an attempt to force open and loot the safe of the Standard bank branch in Monkton, police believe. Approximately $10,000 in cash was left untouched when the would-be robbers were balked in their efforts after having cut open the inch and a half steel outer door of the vault.

The daring bank robbery attempt was discovered yesterday morning when W. W. Love, the manager, entered the office and saw the vault door open and a general state of disorder existing. Closer investigation revealed that the robbers had broken a rear window through which one of them apparently gained entrance and then opened the rear door, allowing the small oxy-acetylene outfit to be carried in.

The outer fireproof door of the vault was then worked on with the torch and after burning out the lock the door was forced open and the robbers were successful in entering the vault. Working on the small safe inside, in which the bank cash was kept, they had succeeded in making an impression on the door when the gas supply evidently gave out and they were forced to abandon the attempt.

Between the hours of one and 2 o'clock a large touring car was reported to have been seen in the vicinity of the bank and it is the belief of the police that it was this car the robbers later used to make good their escape.

The police believe that the attempted robbery was the work of an experienced gang of safe crackers. Only the failure of the acetylene torch, it is thought, saved the bank from a heavy loss.

The Least Excitement Made Her Heart Palpitate and Flutter

Mrs. Ambrose Orser, Elginburg, Ont., writes:—"I suffered for some time with a bad heart which seemed to be controlled by my nerves. The least little excitement would cause it to flutter and palpitate, and at times I would have real bad spells. I suffered in this way for some time when, one day, I saw advertised, so decided to try them. I had only taken a few boxes when I noticed that I felt better, so I continued taking them and in a short time my heart felt entirely different.'

CHANGES IN PRAYER BOOK UNDER DEBATE

Immense Crowds Hear Historic Discussion in Upper House.

NO DOCTRINAL CHANGES.

The Archbishop of Canterbury Moves Resolution Favoring New Version.

LONDON, December 13 (Associated Press). — A full assembly, such as is usually only seen in the Upper House on great occasions, gathered in the House of Lords yesterday at the opening of the three days' debate, which will decide whether the revised prayer book will be approved by Parliament. Not only the Peers' benches, but all the galleries, accommodating the peeresses, the members of the Commons, and prominent strangers, were filled to overflowing, and the bars at either end of the House were lined with members of the Government and the House of Commons, including Premier Baldwin.

The Archbishop of Canterbury moved a resolution inviting the Lords to declare that the measure embodying the revised prayer book be presented to the King for a royal assent. Division on this question is expected on Wednesday evening. If carried, a similar motion will be submitted in the Commons on Thursday, as the measure cannot be presented for royal assent unless adopted by both Houses.

Canterbury's great plea was that the House should take the "largest view, look at the wood, rather than the tree, and consider what might be the consequences in the country of the rejection of a united wish by a united church."

He asserted that the official voice of the church had spoken with an overwhelming majority in favor of the revised prayer book, which was not the bishops' book, but the book of the church for both clergy and laity. Its virtue was its elasticity and comprehensiveness, and he declared that nothing in it made any change in the doctrinal position of the Church of England. To reject the measure would be to invite disaster and chaos, and to leave to their successors the impossible task of trying to administer in the present condition of affairs.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, speaking from the big cluster of bishops who presented a billowy appearance, attired as is their custom when attending the Upper House in their lawn and scarlet, made an important statement concerning his own attitude towards the reservation.

"I confess in public for the first time," said the Archbishop, "that when I first sat on the committee I hoped we might not have to sanction the reservation at all. It then seemed to me, that there was danger of superstition, but I have been convinced by sheer strength of evidence that there is a real honest need for the reservation for those who are sick and who when well are accustomed to communicate two and three times each week."

The Archbishop, who was listened to with profound attention, and whose whole speech was as lucid as any he has ever uttered, reviewed practically the whole arguments for the book which have been heard so many times in the past twelve months. He also again attempted to remove what supporters of the book believe are misapprehensions concerning it. He was more especially insistent that no change of doctrine would be involved. "I am absolutely unconscious of any departure from the principles of the reformed Church of England to which I declared by allegiance at my ordination fifty-three years ago and which I have striven to maintain ever since. If the book is passed the bishops can prevent transgression from loyalty as never before. They have already said they can do it, and they will," concluded the Archbishop.

Lord Hanworth, who followed the Archbishop of Canterbury, is a member of the noted Pollock family which has supplied many ornaments both to the Church and to the Law.

If every bishop, he said, was like the Archbishop of Canterbury, he would be prepared to have any number of books and trust in the judgment of the bishops for guidance.

Lord Beauchamp supported the book, believing that there were no doctrinal changes involved, and he was content to leave the matter to those who were best qualified to judge it. He mentioned Lord Asquith, who, he said, desired to be paired in favor of the book.

A vigorous speech against the book was made by the eighty-five-year-old Marquis of Lincolnshire, who was prepared to include himself in that army of opponents to the book who have been described as senile, incompetent, and illiterate.

Lord Denbigh intimated that none but Catholic peers would participate or vote. He could imagine no body more unsuitable to express an opinion than the present Parliament, consisting of various religions, agnostics, etc. Many of them had never gone near a place of worship except to see friends married or buried or perhaps to get buried themselves.

Lord Phillimore, another octogenarian, who is as well known in Anglo-Catholic quarters as legal circles, supported the book because it would lead to liberty instead of the anarchy of the last forty years.

The debate was adjourned.

CONTINUE PROBE MEXICO CHARGES

Ambassador Claims Senate Powerless to Summon Mexican Officers Before Committee.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Disregarding the view of the Mexican Ambassador that the Senate was powerless to summon officers of his government before its committee, the special committee named to inquire into charges published in Hearst papers that a fun of $1,200,000 was created by Mexico to influence four United States Senators, went ahead yesterday with plans for a thorough investigation.

Already a subpoena has been issued by the committee for Arturo M. Elias, Mexican Consul General at New York. The committee expects him to testify, although the Mexican Embassy has announced that no right exists to call Elias.

The State Department again declined yesterday to discuss the international complications that might be involved in the attempt of the Senate to subpoena Elias.

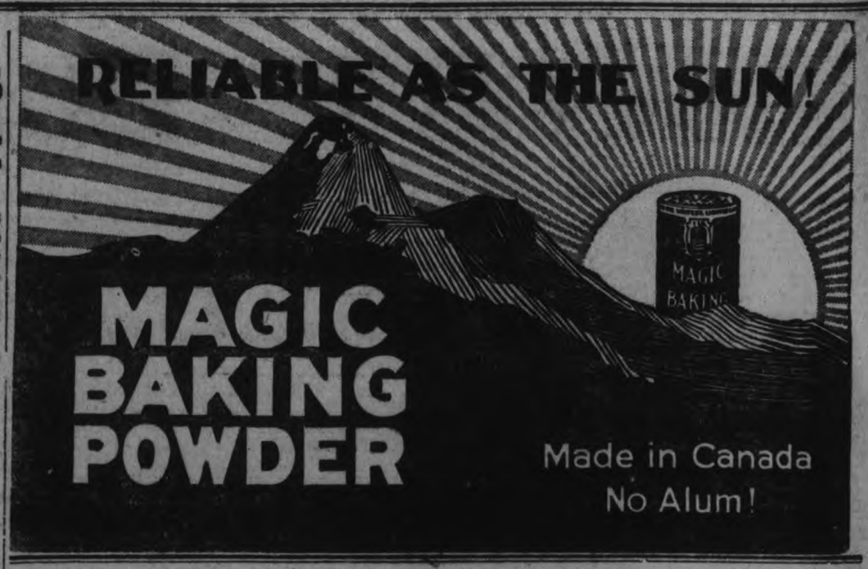
Examination of international law precedents appears to make it clear, however, that a consular officer cannot be required to produce in the courts of the country to which he is assigned any of the books or records of his office or to answer any question involving the affairs of his own government.

Cracksmen Loot Calgary Store Safe

CALGARY, Alta., Dec. 13 (Canadian Press). — Smashing into a two-ton safe in the office of the Imperial Dry Goods Store, Eighth Avenue and First Street West, by chiseling off the combination and working the inside lock loose with a punch, expert cracksmen managed to escape with more than $1,500 in cash sometime over the week-end.

The thieves also attacked the vault in the office of the Toole, Peet and Company, Second Street West, but although the combination was badly damaged it is believed that the burglars were disturbed and they left without completing the job.

What Your Want In the WANT ADS



Bank Cannot Take Shares Off Exchange

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Officials of the Stock Exchange yesterday declared that the stock of the National City Bank could not be withdrawn from the trading without the approval of the Exchange. C. E. Mitchell, President of the Bank, asked stockholders last week to approve the action of the directors in requesting the withdrawal of the shares, contending that sharp fluctuations in stocks of a credit institution might prove harmful in times of financial stress.

It was explained at the Exchange that, inasmuch as transactions in stocks are made between individuals on the floor of the Exchange, and not by the Exchange itself, a concern whose shares had been listed could have no control over the list. Removal of stocks from the list would be required to go through the regular channel and would depend upon the action of the committee in listing.

Dear Lewis and Mae,

We, the members of the Young People's Bible Class, bring you greetings. Particularly do we desire to express to you, Lewis, our appreciation of the spirit of good fellowship you have manifested in the class. Your interest and faithfulness have been an inspiration to us all. The stand you have taken to follow the Master in full church membership is a challenge to every one who has not taken that stand, and an encouragement to those who are walking in this way.

We congratulate you on the one you have chosen as your life-partner. We welcome you both to our Sunday School, and would be pleased to have your continued assistance and interest.

As a mark of good feeling toward you, and of our good wishes for your future, we ask you to accept this carving set, trusting that life may have many rich blessings in store for you, and that your love for each other may never grow cold.

"FRAUD AND FANATICISM"

"The voice of preacher making of God a friend,
It tells us endless torments from God descend,
Inspired with frantic, false, fanatic zeal,
See with what rage they threaten burning hell
To all who dare expose their wretched lies,
Their frauds, follies, falsehoods, and forgeries."

CURLERS READY FOR GOOD YEAR

Have Elected Officers and Made Some Ice—Skating Rink Progressing.

DAMAGE REPAIRED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13.—Thursday, December 8th was the election of officers for the coming activities of the curling rink here. Owing to the terrible weather conditions, there were not very many present, but the business of the club was transacted as usual. Marshall West, who was president last year, is president for another year. Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Tait were applonted honorary patrons of the club, and S. J. Moore was elected to the position of honorary president. Both Mr. Tait and Mr. Moore are veteran curlers and have for many years been members in good standing of the Campbellford curling club. Charles Palliser will be vice-president this season and Joseph Poulton secretary-treasurer. This is also Mr. Poulton's second year in the same office. At the present time the complete list of committees is unavailable.

Business seems to be looking up at the curling rink. Campbellford has not the advantage of an early start at the game which clubs with artificial ice enjoy, but already there is a good coating of ice on the rink, and if the weather permits, the markings will be put in almost immediately. Thomas Cole is again responsible for the ice and the curlers expect the usual excellent condition of the playing surface which he has always achieved in the past.

The new skating and hockey rink which was blown down during the gales of last week, is again looking like something. The foreman states that when the men stop work tonight the structure will be as far advanced as when the wind wrecked it. This is a serious handicap to the construction, as the time allowed was the briefest possible. However, the management is confident that the opening will take place before Christmas. The interior may not be fully equipped by that itme, but there will be accomomdations for skating at least. The hockey will begin, they say, immediately after the new year.

NOTHING HEARD OF MAN'S HURTS

Nelson Martin, Injured on Thursday, is in Kingston Hospital.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13. — So far no report has been received by the town concerning the condition of Nelson Martin, who was injured last Thursday, Dec. 8. The only word that has come back is in the form of an account for ambulance services amounting to five dollars.

On the afternoon of Thursday last Nelson Martin was picking up chunks of coal from the railroad yard. While in the neighborhod of the coal sheds which are owned by the A. J. Jenkins Coal Co., an engine which was shunting in the yard ran into him and crushed the bones of his right foot. The first indication which the train crew had of the accident was when they saw the section men rush down the side of the track to render assistance to the injured man. The accident occurred about twenty minutes to four in the afternoon and it is thought that Martin did not hear the train approach on account of the high wind. After receiving medical attention here the injured man was removed to the Kingston General Hospital.

INTEREST SHOWN BY HOCKEY FANS

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13.—That there will be keen interest in local hockey this winter was evidenced by the number of players and fans who attended the hockey meeting in the Public Library. The purpose of the meeting was to elect officers for the season and to discuss the possibilities for forming a local league with perhaps one outside team included. But this does not mean that the town is going to play with itself.

The chair was occupied for the meeting by Perry Sanders. When the election of officers began in earnest, J. H. Bell was unanimously elected as president for another year. It is of interest to note that no one else was nominated, and to recall the fact that Mr. Bell was present at every meeting and game during the full length of last season. He is an ardent follower of the sport. George Ironsides and the Rev. Charles Daniels were elected vice-presidents, Mr. Daniels having held that office last year as well. Harry Atkinson is secretary-treasurer for the second term.

The next meeting of the local association will be held on Thursday at 6.30 p.m., at Mr. Bell's residence, and not as arranged at the meeting, 7.30 at the Library. The Town Council will meet in the Library that evening. At the Thursday meeting an invitation is extended to one representative from each club desirous of entering a team in the league, to be present and express the wishes and intentions of their clubs.

W.M.S. HOLDS ANNIVERSARY

Musical Programme Given at Anniversary Celebration at Warkworth.

WARKWORTH, Dec. 13.—On Thursday afternoon about forty members and friends of the Women's Missionary Society met in the basement of the Presbyterian church to celebrate their thirty-fifth anniversary. In the absence of their president, Mrs. C. C. Armstrong had charge of the meeting. The meeting was opened by singing the hymn "Wonderful Love." After the devotional exercises the following programme was given:

Address of welcome to the visitors by Mrs. Armstrong; instrumental duet by Misses Edith and Margaret Richards; reading entitled "Our Talents", Mrs. Carlaw; solo, "Holy Night", Mrs. Grant; Bible readings, Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Neil; chorus by Miss Mowat, Mrs. Grant, and Mrs. Walker; a pleasant feature of the programme was the presenting of a life membership pin to their honorary president, Mrs. Alex. Mowat. The address was read by Mrs. Henry Carlaw.

Although Mrs. Mowat was unable to be present her daughter, Miss Allie Mowat, on behalf of her mother thanked the members for their gift.

A beautiful birthday cake with thirty-five lighted candles added to the beauty of their tables.

Lunch was served by the members and a social time spent together.

MONEY FOR SEALS IS STILL COMING IN

Some Letters Containing Remittances Come From Outside City.

The letters containing the remittances for the Christmas Seals keep coming in to the Health Association. They are coming in not only from all parts of the city, but one morning's mail contained a remittance from Florida, another from Fenelon Falls and still another from Toronto.

One from Peterborough contains a message wishing the Health Association "every success for the good work which is being done." It is certainly gratifying to know the work the Peterborough Health Association is doing is appreciated, and this letter comes from one who is in a position to know.

There are still some who have not acknowledged receipt of the seals and certainly it is only through forgetfulness, for on one in the whole of Peterborough would want the work of the Health Association curtailed for lack of funds.

The dollar sent for the Christmas seals is the best Christmas offering of all, one that does the most good and brings the most happiness into the lives of those who need it most. Let us hope that within a short time all the remittances will have been received and that throughout the whole of Peterborough those who receive the seals will have the satisfaction of knowing they have assisted in the good work.

U. S. CITIZEN IS INJURED IN STUDENT RIOTS

Appeals to Rumanian Military Guard Were Ignored, Says Witness.

PROPERTY DAMAGED.

Reparation Demands Possible From Many Powers For Attacks on Subjects.

CRADEA MARE, Rumania, Dec. 13.—(A.P.)—Appeal to Rumanian military guards by Wilfred N. Keller, of Lindenhall, Penna., to save him from a student mob last week were ignored, a witness of the scene told the Associated Press yesterday.

The story of this impartial witness, supported by other unbiased sources, has led the United States minister to Rumania to believe that the attack upon Keller during anti-Semitic riots can only be expiated by reparation and apology from the Rumanian government.

This witness declares that Keller was walking through a public square on the way to his home ten blocks away when he noticed that he was being followed by a group of students with a menacing attitude. He remonstrated with them, declaring that he was a citizen of the United States. They ignored his plea, declaring that he must go to the police station with them.

They took him by force back to the public square. Passing a Rumanian officer who knew him and was aware that he was an Americn, Keller pleaded with the officer to save him, said the witness, but the officer ignored the appeal. En route to the square, students and their captive passed three military guards who did not raise a hand to save Keller, the witness said, despite his repeated pleas that he was not a Jew and not a Rumanian.

Attempts Escape.

When Keller and his captors reached the Anglo-Rumanian Bank, they turned into a side street, the students telling Keller it was a short cut to the police station. As soon as they were out of sight of the main street Keller was attacked by at least 25 students armed with canes and stones. He received gashes in the head, a deep wound in the side of his face, and bruises all over his body. Keller attempted to escape by running away, but when he reached the main street, he was knocked unconscious by another group of students.

Upon regaining consciousness in a pool of blood, Keller noticed the military guards were in the same position as when he ran towards them imploring assistance. Unmoved by his pitiable appearance, the informant of the Associated Press said, the Rumanian soldiers ordered Keller to get up and hurry away before he was attacked again.

A sympathetic observer tried to assist him, but was ordered away by the soldiers. Keller, then weakened and dazed, stumbled ten blocks to his home. For a time he was in an extremely critical condition and last night was still in bed swathed in bandages.

Keller is in the automobile business here and has been since January 1923.

Double Crisis Feared.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 13.— A double crisis may come from last week's anti-Semitic disorders.

Not only is damage aggregating hundreds of millions of lei (nominally 62-100ths cent each) reported from Cradea Mare and Cluj, with reparation demands possible from British United States, French and Hungarian governments for attacks on their nationals, but the Cabinet may be endangered in the charges and counter-charges already resulting.

Danger is seen that Foreign Minister Titulescu may feel compelled to resign. Such a step would endanger much of the progress toward internal pacifications accomplished in the last few weeks.

Districts involved in the principal disorders are described as having the appearance of war-swept cities. At Cluj, the National Theatre recently remodelled at great expense was completely wrecked.

Juliu Maniu head of the National Peasants' party and other Opposition leaders continue to charge the full guilt of the excesses to the Rumanian government which announced yesterday its intention to punish all the guilty citizens and all negligent officers soldiers and policemen in the riots. It is stated that the prefects of Cradea Mare and Cluj districts as well as scores of military and civilian officials will be dismissed.

Nothing has so stupefied the government, it is said, since the acquittal of Mihail Manoilescu on charges of attempting to restore former Crown Prince Carol to the Rumanian throne, and the recent death of Premier Bratiana.

MINISTER SAYS

be had under the terms that had been explained—terms which he felt convinced were thoroughly known to the Reeve and officers of the township. In the matter of road construction in the townships of colonization area the Government and the township were in the position of partners in business. "If you are partner in a business," he said, "and are asked to spend $1,000, you naturally want to have a say in the manner in which the money will be spent. That is the position here."

Internal Differences.

Mr. Finlayson also stated that while he was not entirely conversant with the local situation, he was under the impression that there was some difference of opinion among the dwellers in the township itself as to the manner in which the construction money ought to be spent. He believed that this fact while not being one in which the Ministry was directly concerned, added further elements of complication within the township. If the township did not desire to have any Government interference, he added, it was quite at liberty to go ahead with plans of its own, but no grant would be forthcoming in that case. "Of course," said Mr. Finlayson, smiling broadly, "we do not force any grants on the townships. If they do not desire it under the Government's terms, they don't have to take it, and this leaves all the more for those who are prepared to comply with the requirements."

Expresses Regrets.

Passing to another topic, the Minister expressed regret that unavoidable contingencies prevented his coming to Peterborough, as had been arranged, to talk on conservation and reforestation in the Province of Ontario. He was glad to learn, he said, that his substitute, Mr. Zavitz, had had a good meeting, and he hoped that at some future date he would be able to come to Peterborough in person and discuss the subject.

TALK ON AUSTRALIA IS GIVEN SCHOLARS

Miss Powelly Addresses Madoc High School Literary Society.

MADOC, December 13 — The Literary Society of the Madoc High School held its weekly meeting, Friday afternoon. The chief item on the programme was a very entertaining address by Miss Powelly, one of the teaching staff, on Australia. As Miss Powelly has spent several years in Australia, she gave a very graphic and interesting talk. Her statement that Australia is about the size of the United States amazed most of the students, and the description of the expense of travel and its inconvenience owing to each of the different states having its own railroads, which are usually of a different gauge, gave added interest to the subect. A very hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Miss Powelly.

An event of much interest to all was the presentation to Miss Hazel Ross of a beautiful pin as the prize won by her as champion of Madoc High School in the fall tennis tournament. The presentation was made by Miss Foster of the teaching staff, after a delightful little speech of congratulation acclaiming Miss Hazel Ross as a good student, a real sport, and the tennis champion of Madoc High School for 1927

IN POLICE COURT.

Campbellford, Dec. 13. — G. M. Gibson appeared before Magistrate Payne yesterday morning to answer to a charge of breach of the traffic laws. It was alleged that Gibson proceeded across the intersection of Front and Bridge streets at a rate of speed in excess of that which the law allows and was therefore responsible for the collision which resulted between his car and that of Leigh Isaac.

N. Alec MacColl appeared for the defense and it appeared that Gibson had been coming south on Front street at a speed of about twenty miles an hour. Isaac was proceeding east on Bridge street and had just come off the bridge. Unable to avoid a collision, Isaac's car struck the side of Gibson's automobile but there was little damage done. Chief Light who saw the accident from the window of the police office, at once took the usual action. He and Isaac appeared without counsel and their case was dismissed by the magistrate

For the benefit of motorists who are not familiar with this particular letter of the law Chief Light points out that while the speed limit for the town generally is twenty miles per hour the law is very clear on the point that ten miles is the fastest which a motorist may pass across an intersection.

BRAVE MEN YET.

The story of the rescue of the crews of the stranded grain boats, the Agawa, ashore on Manitoulin Island, and the Altadoc, wrecked in Lake Superior, shows that when lives are at stake men can face desperate odds as undauntedly in these supposedly softer times as they did in the brave days of old.

The five Manitoulin Islanders who rowed a yawl out to the battered Agawa, the crews of the Detour and Strathbogie who braved the elements at their worst to succor comrades in distress, the Michigan life-boat crew who fought their way through ice and mountainous waves to reach the Altadoc, lived up to the finest traditions of sailors and seamen.

We may feel sometimes that the race is becoming flabby and soft, but when the acid test comes there are always heroes to play a heroic part.

NO LACK OF CANDIDATES.

The Utilities Commission election, which last year produced a field of five candidates, already sees three aspirants in the running, and there is every likelihood that this number will be increased before the ballots are printed.

Already definitely in the race are W. H. Bradburn, the Chairman, who has been for six years a member of the Commission, and whose second term expires with this year; John Crane, former member of the Board of Education, and Mayor Holloway, who, retiring from the chief magistrate's chair after a two-year tenure of office, now aspires to a position on the Utilities.

Were the nominations to close now the presence of three such well-known citizens would ensure a lively contest for the honour, a friendly but none the less spirited battle that would play a big part in bringing out a larger vote than usual on New Year's Day.

But the list is not closed yet, and there need be no surprise if the field is enlarged by the addition of one or two more candidates.

In any event the battle for the privilege of being a member of the Utilities Commission for the next three years will be one of the most interesting features of a civic election that promises to provide more than the normal amount of spice.

THE DEBATING LEAGUE.

The announcement that Peterborough County is to be represented in the Inter-County Debating League to be organized by the Junior Farmers of this section of Ontario is of interest.

The value of such debates is apparent, and increases according to the number of young men brought actively into participation in the various contests.

The percentage of men able to get up in public and talk with ease and an adequate command of good English is surprisingly small, even if the House of Commons has had to put a time limit upon speeches.

The average banquet is notable usually for the number of poor speeches it produces—speeches made by men who are a success in their own business and are not lacking in worth-while thoughts, but merely in the ability to get on to their feet and express them publicly.

Training in debate in their youth would have enabled the majority of such men to give a much better account of themselves.

Oral composition in the schools and opportunities such as are afforded by debating leagues should be encouraged.

We do not need more talkers in Canada, but there is a very evident lack of public speakers who can express their ideas clearly, condense them into a short and crisp speech, and stop before they have exhausted the patience of their audience.

HANDS OFF THE LABORATORY.

Peterborough's protest against the removal of the Provincial Laboratory has gained momentum rapidly, and it is now assuming proportions that cannot fail to impress the Ontario Department of Health with the district's desire to maintain a valuable service.

The Medical Association, whose members, even more than laymen, are in a position to estimate the value of the Laboratory to them and therefore to the community, is unanimously opposed to the policy of the department in closing the local Laboratory, and organizations like the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, whose membership is representative of many local interests, have passed resolutions of protest.

The city of Peterborough expended $6,000 in providing accommodation for the Provincial bacterialogist, and the understanding most assuredly was that the Laboratory was to be permanently maintained here, a condition that makes the present decision of the department still more difficult to understand.

It is the testimony of the medical profession that the usefulness of the Laboratory has been increasing, and that its facilities are of the greatest assistance to them in their practice.

In view of that fact and having regard to the optimistic financial statement just issued by the Provincial Treasurer, the people of Peterborough have the right to demand of the Ontario Government, if it considers the health of this district as of less importance than the saving of a few hundred dollars a year in administration expenses, for the Laboratory serves the surrounding district as well as the city.

W. H. Bradburn, member for Peterborough City, and W. A. Anderson, member for Peterborough County, should leave no stone unturned in their efforts to keep the Provincial Laboratory here in the interest of the health of this city and district.

If they have not already let the Provincial Department of Health and the Government itself know that this community protests most vigorously at being deprived of a service that they believe to be of great benefit, they should do so at once and in language that will admit of no misunderstanding.

Economy in the administration of public affairs is desirable when it can be effected without impairment of the efficiency of the public services—but a cheese-paring policy that hits directly at the effectiveness of a public health service cannot logically be defended.

BRITISH NAVAL POLICY.

President Coolidge's message to Congress contained some rather pointed references to the Geneva Naval Conference, in which he was at no pains to conceal his disappointment over the failure of the delegates to arrive at a definite conclusion. That disappointment is natural enough, seeing that it was at the instigation of the President that the conference was called. It is a disappointment which is fully shared by all lovers of peace, including the British Government. Responsibility for the failure of the conference must be shared; it was not the fault of Great Britain that the United States was unable to co-operate in the naval limitation program proposed; each country, in view of its special requirements, had its own idea of what should be done, but the Mother Country has given practical proof of the sincerity of her intentious to reduce the fleet to the lowest proportions consistent with safety. The United States, on the other hand, is going in for a big building program. In view of these facts, the words of the President seem rather ungracious: "We were granted much co-operation by Japan, but we were unable to come to an agreement with Great Britain. While the results of the conference were of considerable value, they were mostly of a negative character. . . . . It should be made clear to all the world that, lacking a definite agreement, the attitude of any other country is not to be permitted to alter our own policy."

According to figures given in The London Times, the strength of the British navy in battleships has been reduced from 44 in 1914 to 12 at the present time; there are only 37 cruisers now, as against 80 in 1914, and 89 destroyers, as against 183 before the war. Taking the position of the British Empire into consideration, with its absolute dependence on the safety of the sea routes, the fighting forces, it is claimed, have been reduced "to the dimensions authorized by the relevant clause in the covenant" of the League of Nations. One observer, in fact, who worked on the Preparatory Disarmament Commission, holds that "should an accepted standard of authorized defense forces for each state be drawn up, making proper allowance for the island position of this country and its world-wide responsibilities, Great Britain might by any such table be entitled to increase her armaments."—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If the Ontario Government needs to economize it should not do so at the expense of the public health service. The Peterborough Laboratory should not be closed.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, December 13 (Canadian Press). — The foreign demand for grain here yesterday continued of an indifferent character, and little business was transacted. The trade in coarse grains on spot was also slow and prices were unchanged.

The flour trade was without any new feature to note, prices being well maintained under a limited demand.

A feature of the millfeed trade was the increased inquiry from United States buyers for bran and shorts, but owing to the fact that millers in most cases are closely sold up, the offerings were small and no new business of importance was reported. The movement for local and country account continued large, and values were firm. The demand for standard grades of roller oats was steady and the undertone was firm.

There was some demand from buyers in Liverpool for Canadian baled hay, and sales on passage were made at 92s 6d per ton, and London buyers paid 100s per ton.

A fairly active business was again transacted in all grades of eggs and the undertone was firm. The receipts were 2,452 cases.

The potato trade was quiet, but values ruled steady. Car lots of Prince Edward Island whites were quoted at $1.05 per bag of 90 lbs.; Prince Edward Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs.; New Brunswick Green Mountains at 95c per lb. in bulk; and Quebec varieties at 90c per bag in bulk, ex-track.

A moderate amount of business was done in imported beans, and the tone of the market was steady. Sales of car lots on spot were made at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, ex-track, with smaller quantities on spot selling at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

The butter market continued quiet and values were inclined to be easy. The receipts were 56 packages.

Trading in cheese was slow in all directions, but the feeling was steady. The receipts were 683 boxes.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Most of the intoxication tests are the bunk. But a man may be said to be reasonably groggy when he thinks a street car has revolving doors.

Maybe things are breaking hard for you, but just think of Solomon. Whenever he went out at night he heard "Don't be late, now," six hundred times.

What this country needs is more companionate cooks.

The man who has started to sail around the earth along the equator probably will get all the credit, but it's just possible there's the hand of a janitor in it somewhere.

Chile Prohibits 'Quake Forecasts

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 12. — (United Press).—An earthquake of long duration was felt here early yesterday, alarming the populace because it confirmed the prediction of Professor Bendandi, Italian earthquake forecaster. A week ago Bendandi predicted disturbances would be felt to-day on the west coast of South America. It caused fear in Chile and the President of the Republic issued a manifesto prohibiting publication of earthquake forecasts in the future "because nothing good can come out of them, and because they are invariably wrong."

ATTEMPT IS MADE TO LOOT BANK SAFE

Robbers Forced To Quit When Gas For Acetylene Torch Gives Out.

STRATFORD, Ont., December 12 (Canadian Press). — Early today an attempt was made to rob the safe of the Standard Bank branch at Monkton, near Mitchell. The robbers, with the aid of an acetylene torch had succeeded in breaking a fireproof door leading to the safe and were thwarted in their efforts only when the gas in the torch ran out.

The discovery was made when the staff went to the bank to-day. There are no clues to work on except that a touring car was seen near the bank early to-day.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flue. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DIABETES INSIPIDUS

True Diabetes Mellitus is a serious disorder of Metabolism while Diabetes Insipidus, although resembling it in many ways, is a transitory trouble, and due to other causes. It would be better if the disorder "Diabetes Insipidus" were given another name, as it is really not the first stages of Diabetes, as one might think from the name, but it is so named because the symptoms so closely resemble those of Diabetes Mellitus.

In both disorders there is copious secretion of urine, and often twenty to forty pints are eliminated each day. In some cases the amount passed is greater than that ingested in liquids and solids. The excessive thirst is no doubt caused by the passage of such enormous quantities of urine. The appetite is usually good, but more immoderate in true Diabetes. The mouth is generally dry, and the amount of saliva small.

A distinguishing feature between these two disorders is the low specific gravity and the absence of sugar in the urine in what is called Diabetes Insipidus, while with Diabetes Mellitus there is a large amount of sugar, both in the blood and urine of the patient.

One who notices the excretion of a large amount of urine and the onset of excessive thirst, and a desire for drinking large quantities of liquids, should at once have the urine examined in a laboratory or, better yet, go to a physician and have a careful diagnosis made.

Many people will put off going to the doctor because they are afraid of what he might tell them. This is, of course, a foolish point of view to take, as one may find that the trouble can be easily corrected, or if more serious, at least the proper measures can be taken to prolong life or to possibly effect a complete cure if treatment is started in time.

The symptoms of Diabetes Insipidus may unduly frighten one whose mind would be at sea when the diagnosis shows the absence of urinary or blood-sugar, as this disorder, although it may last for some time, usually passes off as it came, and without any serious injury.

It is apparent that Diabetes Insipidus often comes on after a fright or from some injury such as might be suffered in an automobile accident. Its symptoms are almost the same as those from what is called "hysterical polyuria," which is caused by hysteria or nervousness. I am satisfied that the large amount of urine thrown out is to accomplish a purpose and that is to eliminate certain waste materials which may have been formed through simple auto-intoxication from wrong habits of living, and possibly brought to a crisis by the shock of fright, the poisoning effect of worry or jealousy, or the shock of an accident. The toxic condition no doubt always exists before such an irritating cause can bring about a crisis.

When one is sure that the symptoms are those of Diabetes Insipidus, the treatment should consist of simply a short fruit fast. In a few days all symptoms will disappear. It is much better to take this treatment than to wait and worry for weeks in the fear of the more serious Diabetes Mellitus.

I will discuss Diabetes Mellitus in tomorrow's article.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. Brown writes: "Will you kindly explain in plain language the cause of shingles, the symptoms, and if there is a cure?"

Answer: The name "Shingles" is given to a disorder caused by the deposit of toxic substances along certain nerve trunks. It always occurs on one side of the body at a time, and is more frequently found on the upper back or around the ribs on one side. The nerves are inflamed by the toxins, and the skin breaks out in a rash wherever the most irritation exists. The cure is through diet, and no local treatments are very effective. A fast taken at the onset of the disorder will hasten the cure, but even under this treatment it often takes a week or ten days for the eruption to disappear.

Question: Mrs. Ed. A. writes: "I received the impression from one of your articles that milk should not be given to children having catarrhal troubles. I have given my six-year-old son, who is slender and has a nervous disposition, one quart of milk each day. There is much mucus from his head all the time. Now I wonder if I should stop giving him milk, and what should I give him if I do? Am learning much about food from your articles which is new to me."

Answer: I do not recommend the use of milk for a child who is troubled with excessive catarrh. I have prepared several special articles on the feeding of children which I will be glad to send to you if you will write me again, giving me your name and address.

Question: R. J. C. asks: "Don't you think a person can get in good health in any climate whether he is by the seashore or in the mountains, as long as he pays strict attention to diet and exercise?"

Answer: I strongly believe that one can live so that the climate does not adversely affect his health. You must understand your food requirements wherever you live, and balance your diet accordingly.

PLOWMEN PLAN FOR NEXT YEAR

Will Hold 1928 Match in Dummer To Increase Interest.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough County Plowmen's Association was held in the office of the Department of Agriculture on Saturday. Officers for the year 1928 were elected and other questions in connection with the annual plowing match were discussed.

The officers for 1928 are as follows:

President—J. J. Duffus.
1st Vice-Pres.—Harvey Webber.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Howard Quinn.
Sec.-Treasurer—J. B. Nelson.
Assistant Treasurer—J. C. O'Brien.

Directors—

Otonabee—R. R. Dixon and Sidney Bennett.
Smith—Thomas Graham, Ed. Archer.
N. Monaghan—Reeve Lillico, J. A. Robson.
Ennismore — J. J. Crough, W. D. Cavanagh.
Douro — Michael Leahy, Vernon Campbell.
Dummer—Alex Carlow.
Asphodel — William Thompson, Archie Wilson.
Peterborough—G. A. Gillespie, V. Eastwood.

It was decided to hold the 1928 match in the Township of Dummer. There has not been a match in Dummer township in recent years and it was thought by holding the match there to increase the interest in that section of the county.

The most interesting amendments to the prize lists and rules were as follows:

It was decided to make a new class one which would be an open class in stubble for plain plows only.

It was also decided to add to the general rules that jointers would be recommended in all classes except high cut.

The financial statement showed that the Association is in a healthy condition after having conducted one of the most successful plowing matches in the history of the Association.

"I suppose she will have to give up her home"

WOULD the neighbours be able to talk like that about your widow?

Stop and think! What about the mortgage you are carrying on your home? Bit of a struggle to keep up the interest alone, to say nothing of the payments on the principle, isn't it?

How would your widow manage—with the children to look after too? Men are often careless in thinking about these things because there are many ways open to a man for earning money.

But to a woman—unused to business and hampered with children—there are practically none.

A small saving invested yearly in an Imperial Endowment Policy would provide a fund that would clear your home of all mortgage indebtedness and leave something over, if you died prematurely. If you live until the policy matures you can then utilize the funds yourself.

Make sure to-day! Send the coupon now—tomorrow you may be uninsurable. 291

TALK ON EUROPE GIVEN AT SCHOOL

Prince of Wales' Association Hears Interesting Talk By F. E. Kerr.

The monthly meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held last evening with a large number in attendance. The president, Mrs. George Worboy, occupied the chair. After the routine business had been transacted, the following program was given:

Piano solo, Margaret Thompson; vocal solo, Eleanor Brown; reading, Miss Eva Outram; piano duet, Jennie Herd and Jean Cowling; piano solo, Jack Wilson.

F. E. Kerr, assistant principal of the school, gave an excellent talk on his trip abroad last summer. His descriptions of scenes in England, Ireland, and Scotland were very realistic ,and from these he went on to describe minutely the scenery of France, especially the late war zones. He spoke of visiting the burial-place of Edith Cavell. His talk was highly educative and was very much enjoyed by an appreciative audience.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

KNOW MY DADDY?

Know my Daddy? He's the man
That you can see, I know you can,
Start off each morning down the street,
For he's the man, when people meet,
Who says, "Good morning! How d'ye do?
And how is everything with you?"
And people smile so happily,
And seem as glad as glad can be
They know my Daddy.

Know my Daddy? He's the one
Who comes back home when day is done
And waves to all the children, pats
The dogs, and even pets the cats!

Yes, if you see me running past
As fast as I can run, as fast
As almost anybody can,
And just to meet a certain man,
Well, that's my Daddy.

Know my Daddy? He's the friend
Of this whole street from end to end.
The neighbors, when they're out to walk,
They almost always want to talk,
Or, when there's trouble anywhere,
Then Daddy goes right over there.
Yes, if you see some person stop
To help the blind, or fix a top,
Then that's my Daddy.

Miss Holcombe's Technique

By EDGAR T. MONFORT

"It's a lie! The wicked don't flee and they aren't punished either!"

Clarice Mackay burst into the room and dug her little fingers into the palms of her hands to keep from screaming.

"Have you lost your mind?" asked Alice Dalmain, calmly looking at her roommate. "For a bachelor girl you certainly lack the poise that is part of our creed."

Clarice merely gave her friend a withering glance, flung her hat on the table and herself into the deep chair by the window.

"But it's the third time this week!" she said after a moment.

"What's the third time this week?" asked Alice, glancing across at the slender little figure so fashionably clad in black georgette. Clarice was a lovely girl, Alice reflected, but terribly lacking in poise and so utterly dependent upon Jack Withers for her happiness, Alice amended more fairly.

"You know that little widow, Mrs. Holcombe?" Clarice went on. "Well, she was at the dance Hallowe'en night and I like an idiot introduced Jack to her, and the minute she spoke to him I knew it was all up with me. I could see him falling for her right on the spot. She has that pitiful little girl oh-I'm-too-little-and-frightened-to-cross-the-street - alone manner about everything she does. Oh, her technique is perfect. Don't fret, she's got him bound and gagged. I've seen her with him three times this week and I'll bet he's spent more money on her already than he has on me in all the two years he's known me. She's deadly. That's the dreadful part about it. If it were some little lonely girl I could almost resign myself thinking about how happy Jack was making her, but that thing goes after every man in sight. I know her! And when she sees me she's so sweet to me I could kill her; drags me into the drug store and treats me and gushes over me and simply ignores my icy manner. It's impossible to squelch her. Oh, Alice, I'm so wretched I could die! And the worst is she's so attractive and vampish she could marry anybody, and then to go and take Jack away from me, and after I'd introduced him to her. She hasn't a conscience or a heart or anything. I couldn't treat a dog that way, much less a human being." Clarice dabbed angrily at the tears swimming in her eyes.

"Never mind, honey," soothed Alice. "Don't you pay any attention to her, and when Jack comes around be just as nice to him as ever. He'll get over it. A girl of that type can't hold a man—that is, not a sensible man—long. They'll all fall for her at first, but they soon find out there's nothing to her. He'll get over it before long."

"Get over it!" sneered Clarice. "You ought to see the adoring way he looks at her. He's head over heels in love with her, and she's just pulling him along for all she's worth."

"I wouldn't be too sure," said Alice, "and I'd let him see me with other men every chance I got. I'd go to dances and movies and anywhere I could."

"What heart have I to do anything?" said Clarice with exasperation. "I only want to die!"

But all the same she did take Alice's advice and a few weeks later found herself one evening at a party, one of a dozen guests, among them Jack and Mrs. Holcombe. Jack's manner was strained and he seemed embarrassed in Clarice's presence, but the little widow was her usual gay, playful self. When she saw Jack talking to Clarice she went over to him and tugged at his arm.

"Naughty boy," she teased. "Come away. You brought little Evelyn to the party and not Miss Mackay. I won't love oo any more, ever, ever again!"

Jack flushed and looked silly. Somehow he felt that she had made a fool of him in the presence of his erstwhile sweetheart.

"Isn't he naughty, naughty, Miss Mackay?" she said, looking mischievously at Clarice.

"I don't think so," the girl answered in her most cheerful manner. "I think he's nice."

"Thanks, Clarice, you always were a trump!" said Jack warmly.

For the first time in Mrs. Holcombe's shallow little life she felt defeated. With a toss of her golden head she turned away from the two and joined another group across the room. Clarice was happier than she had been in weeks. She put a gentle hand on Jack's arm.

"You'd better go back to her, dear," she said kindly. "After all, you are her escort to-night."

"Yes, but darned if I'll ever be again. That is, if you'll take me back—for keeps this time," he said, turning away and going toward the widow.

The next day he called Clarice Mackay up for a date, and now certain that she had won him back she told Alice all about the little incident of the night before.

"It seems to me the wicked generally punish themselves," said Alice thoughtfully. "She cooked her own goose that time by making him appear ridiculous in public."

"Maybe so," sighed Clarice, "but now I've got him back I don't care about anything."

Alone

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

FEAR is one of the fundamental instincts. The reason that some little folk are more fearsome than others is simply that this instinct is more pronounced because of natural sensitiveness or because it has been artificially augmented. The treatment of fear in children differs somewhat in every case, but there is one absolute rule for all and that is, never use force in trying to overcome fear. Forcing is simply an aggravator. Only by careful training and gradual building of confidence can it be overcome.

ONCE when I was left alone at dusk, my hair
Felt prickly and standuppish just from scare,
And I couldn't move or call
Or do anything at all
Till I heard my Nanna puffing up the stair.

When her steps came business-like-ish down the hall
Then I hurried to start playing with my ball,
And the queerness left my throat,
Just like taking off a coat,
And I knew there were no scary things at all
Back of chairs or on the bed.
It was only in my head
Or the shadows from the street lamps on the wall.
Just the shadow branches moving, that was all.

I told Nanna and she said, "Here's what you do
When the scary things keep coming just say, 'Boo!'
You can't do a thing to me,
You're pretend. I'm real, you see.
And the scary things will run away from you!"

Beth's Garden

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Of course the old Mordaunt place had a garden. Beth remembered coming there years ago with her mother, before Uncle Jaffrey died. The flowers were so marvellous and the gardens so weedless that they appeared almost unnatural to the young girl and her mother, who lived in a small cottage near by.

When Uncle Jaffray died Beth and her mother found that his beautiful property had been left to them—but there was not money enough to keep it going. Every year Mrs. Mordaunt divided the tiny income so that there was just enough to live on carefully, and nothing was ever left for the garden. People whispered that there must have been more money, for Uncle Jaffray was very rich, and grew quite miserly in the last year of his life, and they declared that somewhere about the old place he had hidden either one large sum or many smaller ones.

One day a good looking man came to the door. Mrs. Mordaunt met him and greeted him pleasantly.

"Mr. Smith, who said he was your lawyer, suggested that I come and see you about clearing up your garden and lawns in return for my board," he told her frankly. "I had pneumonia in the late winter and I really need light outdoor work to keep me outside—regular farm work is too vigorous just now—I am studying medicine at Blank University, and I cannot afford to spend money for a vacation." Then his pleasant voice grew wistful as he scanned the delightful old neglected garden. "It would be a wonderful opportunity for me," he added, "but you may have other plans."

Mrs. Mordaunt did not hesitate. "If Mr. Smith sent you here, you are certainly welcome—my daughter and I were just discussing the needs of the garden." Then she introduced Bruce Wayne to Beth and went to the house to select a room for him.

"Mother," said Beth one August morning, "everything is so beautiful—do come out and witness the cleaning out of the large fountain. Bruce is going to do that next."

Bruce whipped off his old hat and grinned affectionately at the woman who had been so kind to him for several months. He had brought a deep wicker chair from the front verandah and soon Mrs. Mordaunt was comfortably settled and watching these two young people who worked together so harmoniously. She was wondering whether her daughter, Beth, cared at all for the embryo doctor, whose heart was in his fine eyes whenever he glanced at the lovely girl. There was no doubt that Bruce Wayne had lost his heart to her gentle Beth, and she sighed a little as they worked so happily together, because she was thinking about the lack of money and the years they have to wait.

Bruce had a large hammer and was prying off the fitted boards of the "tent-like" protection. "Hurrah," he shouted when the last section had been removed and the rusty, stained proportions of the fountain were revealed.

"Are you going to paint the fountain, Bruce?" asked Beth's mother.

"It should be painted, don't you think, Mrs. Mordaunt?" And then, bending over the deep basin he lifted out a dry and rusty steel box. "Why, what the dickens do you suppose this can be?" he queried. "Buried treasure?" He set it at Mrs. Mordaunt's feet.

"Oh, Bruce, smash it open," begged Beth. "Perhaps that is where poor Uncle Mordaunt hid his money!"

A few blows of the stout hammer opened the rusty box. Inside of that was a huge rubber pocket which held the missing wealth of Uncle Mordaunt. They sent Bruce for Mr. Smith, and, during his absence, Beth confessed to her mother that she and Bruce loved each other and that he had asked her to marry him. "And I want to, mother darling," sobbed the girl, "even if we are quite poor at first! You understand, don't you?"

Mrs. Mordaunt nodded happily, and then the two men appeared and Mr. Smith checked up the contents of the old box. "The missing securities," he said. "You see there was about a hundred thousand missing—and here it is!"

Bruce Wayne looked very glum. After the lawyer had left, Beth's mother said to him:

"Well, Bruce, aren't you happy over our good luck?"

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Mordaunt—of course. Only—you see—well, I'm so poor—and Beth's a rich girl now."

"But, Bruce," said Mrs. Mordaunt smiling understandingly, "the money's really part yours—you found it." And she went off to the house.

Bruce turned stammeringly to Beth. "Don't you see, dear," she said, "if you hadn't come into my garden we might never have found that money? So it is part yours—it's ours."

And so when Bruce left her garden Beth had promised to wait for him to finish his training, and he had promised to start out his professional and married career in the old Mordaunt home.

RECTOR TELLS ABOUT ENGLAND

Rev. N. C. Wallace Describes Impressions Gained on Tour.

ADDRESSES YOUNG PEOPLE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13. — The program of the meeting of the Young People's Society of St. John's United Church yesterday evening was particularly attractive. There was an excellent program as a beginning and the world tour centred in Holland for this week. Irene Davidson gave a very interesting and instructive reading on that country.

But the main item of interest on the program was the address by the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace. It is generally known that Mr. Wallace enjoyed his honeymoon in the British Isles. Last night he was the guest of St. John's Young People and was asked to speak of his trip overseas.

The Rev. Mr. Wallace was inclined to be in lighter mood. He said that in preparing his notes he had first set down the heading, Conditions in England. But his had not seemed exactly correct and he had felt sufficiently humble to alter that heading to read, Impressions on my trip to England. This he explained was only proper. "Take a minister's study," he began by way of illustration. "Were you to enter Mr. Hartson's, or perhaps I should use my own, you would see books all over the desk and along the walls. You would say that I must be a very great man to have read all these. But if the truth were known, nine-tenths of them have never been opened. So with my trip to England."

Things which would impress him one way, he said, would leave quite a different impression with another. That impressions were often misleading was illustrated by the story of the London councillor who was walking to a council meeting. He was advocating certain repairs to roads and streets in his district and had a rather exaggerated tale to bring before his fellow councillors. He claimed that he was walking along a certain street; he had noticed a man's hat in the middle of the road. Going out to it he had knocked it aside with his cane and to his amazement found that there was a man under the hat. "Must be a bit thick down there!" remarked the councillor. "Not 'arf," replied the man. "An' I'm standin' on top of a bus."

One was not able to judge hastily in England, Mr. Wallace claimed. In order to account for certain things it was necessary to go back to ancient and oftimes forgotten history. Incidents of days 1800 years ago still held a direct bearing on present day conditions in many cases. In this respect England and Canada were vastly different.

Being a clergyman, Mr. Wallace was particularly interested in the affairs of the Church of England. He explained that for centuries past the history of the church had been the history of the state, and the reverse was also true. As proof of his statement he recalled many historical facts which left no reasonable doubt in the minds of his hearers.

Heard Startling Sermon.

It had been his good fortune to arrive in London on a Saturday and he had promptly decided to attend church service in Westminster Abbey the following day. On that day the Bishop of Birmingham preached the sermon which was so much commented upon through the press of two continents. The Bishop he described as an ultra modernist. Later he was present at St. Paul's Cathedral when a canon of the church rose to his feet and hurled a protest at the clergyman in the pulpit. The incident had reminded him of the affair of ancient days when the old lady had hurled the kneeling board at the clergyman in the Edinburgh church.

From these modern incidents Mr. Wallace dropped back to the early history of the Church of England, returning gradually to the time of Queen Elizabeth. He endeavored to show that during all that time there had always been two parties in the church. At present they are known, he said, as Anglo-Catholics and Modernists. For some time he discussed the Bible and the stand which the leading scientists had taken regarding it. Later he said there was no difference in the beliefs of the Church of England and the United Church. The difference was in the administration and "that sort of thing."

Having dwelt for some time on the Church, Mr. Wallace altered his line of conversation to the affairs of the City of London, which he thought was the centre of the world. It is the only city of its kind, he said. There may be said to be two New Yorks ,for Paris is not greatly unlike the great American city, but there is no other Metropolis like London. After spending about three days there a visitor becomes a Londoner, and unconsciously finds himself welcoming friends who are later arrivals. There were many reasons for this sense of attachment, among them, the Bobbies, the busses, and the friendliness of the people generally.

In order to illustrate his point, he told of asking a bus driver if a certain bus went to a certain place. The bus driver replied that it did and asked him to "Step right on, sir." Two days later, having momentarily forgotten having asked directions before, he again asked the same question. To his amazement the driver replied, "Yes, sir! Step right on, sir! You asked me that question day before yesterday." And so he had, for it was the same conductor, and he had been remembered.

The friendliness of the "Bobbies" was another thing. Late one evening, he had attempted to purchase a stamp from an automatic machine, and found that the machine was empty. He asked a policeman where he could secure a stamp, and the policeman, being a good-hearted fellow, "loaned" him one.

Must Retain Traditions.

There were many old traditions which must not, under any consideration, be broken. But a little nerve and a silk hat often assisted one to gain a little. At least, Mr. Wallace thought that it was his silk hat which he had worn on Sunday mornings that had allowed him to pass into forbidden territory and receive the salute and a cheery "Good-morning, sir!" from a Guardsman. It had alo got him into the inner temple of the Temple Church and allowed him to sit in the barristers' section. In this Mr. Wallace, he said, contradicted him. She claims that he answered yes to a question which should have been no. But, nevertheless, they were admitted to the inner circle, and no questions asked till they chanced to meet a friend from Winnipeg who knew they should not be admitted. But that was after the service, and the deed was done.

Mr. Wallace strongly advised any person visiting London to obtain a ticket of admission to the Guards' Chapel. Its interior is described as dazzlingly beautiful and immaculate in every detail. It is a memorial to every member of the Guards Brigade who fell in any war in which the Brigade has been engaged since its institution. It was erected at a cost of approximately £250,000, and every penny of that amount was subscribed by the Guardsmen themselves. No one else was allowed to contribute a sou.

Nor did Mr. and Mrs. Wallace leave London without at least a brief glimpse of their Majesties, the King and Queen. It was their good fortune to see the Queen returning from a shopping tour, while later on they once more glimpsed both the King and Queen departing for a visit to another of their estates away from Buckingham Palace. On another occasion they saw the Prince of Wales as he left his club and walked along to His Majesty's Theatre, where a musical comedy was playing to capacity houses.

Though Mr. Wallace had spoken much longer than he had intended, his remarks were of the greatest interest, and he was given a most sincere invitation to return at any time, and the hope was expressed that it would not be long before he would be their guest again. In expressing his gratitude to Mr. Wallace, Mr. Harston remarked that he was going to ask his congregation to present him with a silk hat before he made another visit to the Old Country. The humor was not lost to either the audience or Mr. Wallace.

CARE OF FLOCK IS IMPORTANT

Breeding Season is Worthy of Special Attention in Raising Sheep.

PUTS EWES ON CLOVER.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

The quantity and quality of the product which the sheep-breeder will have to market the following year are largely determined by the care which the flock received during the fall months, September to November, and the spring months from March until June. While most breeders realize the influence which proper care at lambing time will have on the number of good lambs raised, few consider the breeding season and the period just preceding it as worthy of any especial attention; and yet the old slogan of live stock breeders, "Breed, Feed and Weed," can be applied at this time to as good or better advantage than at any other period in the year. At this time the breeder should select the sire of his next year's crop of lambs. Nothing but a good pure-bred should be used; one that has been inspected and passed as a good representative of the breed. Strict selection of the ewes should also be practised, and all those of poor mutton and wool type should be culled; also those that have shown themselves poor breeders. Any ewe which is a shy or non-breeder is a distinct loss to the owner and should not be retained in the flock.

At the Experimental Farm, Nappan, Nova Scotia, figures have been collected on the average cost of keeping a ewe for a year, also on the profits which may be expected when the flock is carefully selected and culling practised. The average yearly feed cost of a ewe, over a period of six years, is $8.72. The profit over feed cost is $8.46. A non-breeding ewe returns only her wool to pay for her keep. The average value of this is $2.40, so the loss to her owner is $14.78 per year. The ewe which is a poor milker, and rears only a small lamb, returns on the average $7.20, which is not enough to pay for her feed.

All lambs should have been weaned about the last of August. The ewes are flushed for three weeks or more in September on clover aftermath or rape supplemented with a small amount of grain, such as oats and bran. Ewes which are in good condition and gaining in flesh at breeding time, will drop and raise a larger percentage of lambs than ewes in poor condition. At the Nappan Farm twenty ewes which were not flushed dropped twenty-four lambs and raised twenty-three of them. Twenty-four ewes pastured on clover aftermath dropped forty lambs and raised thirty-three. Allow the ewes to remain on the clover or rape for only a few hours a day when first put on this feed or bloating will result. After breeding, the ewes may be wintered on good clover hay and turnips with little or no grain until shortly before lambing time.

At Cincinnati Ruth Remus, aughter by a first marriage of Mrs. Imogene Remus, faced the ordeal of describing the dramatic shooting to death on October 6 of her mother in Eden Park, Cincinnati, by her husband, George Remus, America's most spectacular bootlegger, who, it is estimated, "cleaned up" $10,000,000 in two and a half years. Remus pleads the unwritten law, naming a former department of justice agent, whom he alleges made love to his wife and persuaded her to betray him, afterwards eloping with her. Ruth's evidence practically marked the closing of the state's case in the sensational trial, and the defense has begun to unfold its story. The victim of the slaying, Mrs. Imogene Remus, is seen at the top left. In the centre is Remus himself as he was when visited by his mother in prison. At the right is Miss Aubrey Stewart, a witness of the dramatic shooting, and below is Ruth Remus. Whereabouts of the fortune amassed by Remus, estimated at $10,000,000, is a mystery. Remus himself claims that his wife appropriated at least $2,000,000, but search of safety deposit boxes she held in various parts of the country failed to yield any of it.

ENGINEER TELLS OF TRIP FOR AID

With Three Other Men of Altadoc He Walked Nine Miles Along Shore.

CONTINUALLY SOAKED.

TORONTO, Dec. 13. — (Canadian Press.)—Six members of the crew of the wrecked steamer Altadoc arrived here to-day from the Sault, en route to their homes. Roy Hartman, of Wiarton, Ontario, second engineer, told a gripping story of an attempt made by himself and three other men to secure aid for their comrades who remained on the Altadoc as it grounded on the rocks off Keewanaw Point.

Friday, about 18 hours after the boat struck, Hartman, with Roy Burke, Walter Lacroix and Jack Keith, launched a lifeboat and after a hazardous trip over a hundred yards of surf landed on the shore. Afraid of being lost in the bush they kept to the beach and were continually soaked in spray as they made their way to Copper Harbor, nine miles away. They reached the Copper Harbor lighthouse and then a team took them to Delaware. They telephoned the coastguards at Eagle Harbor who were relieved to find that aid had already been sent to the Altadoc. The men rejoined the rescued crew at Eagle Harbor after a short rest.

The Present State

(J. H. Burnham.)

The Bishop of Durham is one of the great thinking churchmen of England. He is not only a thinking man but he has the power of mind which enables him to comprehend and to draw conclusions from his comprehensive knowledge.

There are, no doubt, few to-day who do not know that within the last twenty-five years there has been a decided move towards the sacrifice of the individual and individual "rights" to "the welfare of the mass." Prohibition justified or attempted to justify itself on this principle. Individuals were told that each must work and live, and, if need be, sacrifice itself or himself for the good of all—the public good. That was the true religion. The Bishop of Durham now sounds the warning note. This is materialism, he says. This is the way of material nature, of the world of nature, of which Tennyson says: "So careless of the single life, so careful of the type she seems."

Unfortunately, many of the leading evangelical clergy have allowed themselves to be carried away with this new idea of sacrificing each for all, with the result that the relationship of each to God has been banished in favor of the relationship of each to the mass. These two positions are irreconcilable. Humanity cannot serve two masters.

The more profound of the theologians have long since seen the trend of the new move and whither it leads. It leads man away from God and from his sole responsibility to God and from the idea of God's supremacy as a Father and Guide. It is the reverse of the idea of "The Ninety and Nine." It leads ultimately to the cold, hard grave to which Nature welcomes all her own children. The old-time spirituality which led each one to build up his life with a view to the greater life hereafter must now give way before the fact that we are all children of Nature and governed by the laws of Nature. These laws lead always to the preservation of the type that is of life as it has evolved in its multitude of different species.

Now, Nature cares nothing for the "single life." She is merciless and cruel beyond description when it comes to the preservation of the type (the general mass of humanity) in comparison with the life of the individual. Nature exists by species and in species, never sacrificing the species or type to the individual but always the other way. It is this purely "natural" method that people, misled by enthusiasts and the half-educated, are foisting upon themselves, carried away as people in the mass generally are, by emotion, slogans, or some other form of catch-cry. Until the ministry now carried away itself with a smattering of science, which is something easier to handle and to preach than the spiritual life, comes to its senses and learns that in reality it is cutting the ground from under its own feet, then will continue the headlong rush towards Nature.

The Rev. George Jackson, D.D., the chief of modernists in Canada and no professor in a Manchester college, says in a letter to the writer of this little article: "Why should my opinion of the four gospels be bound up with my opinion of the Song of Songs?" His opinion indeed! Long out of date, many books of the Old Testament no longer commend themselves to his judgment.

This is modernism or the assertion by man of his right to judge for himself, at the very moment when he asserts also that no man has a right to judge for himself but must live not in terms of the individual but of the mass and of the mass alone.

These people will wake up some day, modernists and prohibitionists alike, to the real fact that it is Nature's God, not Nature, and certainly not they, who are in control of the universe and of the purpose which the universe is intended to serve.

In the meantime and at the present moment, the hullabaloo on being raised to provide occupation and entertainment for the designing and the thoughtless gives signs of giving way. The Bishop of Durham's warning is the first cry to halt and think whither all these people are drifting.

It is, of course, a great temptation, especially in an age so deeply influenced by the methods of science as this one is, to imitate science by dealing with facts and with things ready to hand and easy to understand. It is a great temptation to use the simple methods of Nature, and everyday life, practical things, rather than the intangible things of the spirit, which we cannot touch and cannot change. It is this temptation that is betraying us and that is leading humanity away from God and producing the terrible, godless reaction in morals amongst women at the present time.

The scientist is, of course, laughing up his sleeve at the breakdown in religious circles, but declines, utterly, to welcome these new recruits to science, but warns them that they cannot ride roughshod over science as they do over humanity and their religion, and that whilst they may refuse to submit to God they will find that they cannot thus defy and overrule Nature too. It is this rebuff that may send these enthusiasts spinning back to whence they came, and it would not surprise if almost at any time we should hear their drums beating the retreat. And the retreat has been very forcibly suggested by the statement of leading scientists that Nature, after all, is characterised not by the sacrifice of its individuals to the mass but by the most strenuous efforts of each bird and beast and insect to defend itself if need be to the death. A ministry which has lost its Bible and its ancient faith and its common-sense might well have been expected to lose its way.

The great Herbert Spencer hit the present-day modernists to perfection many years ago when he said: "Recognizing the mystery of things as insoluble the great religious organisations will devote themselves to ethical culture."

SEARCHERS FIND BODY IN SWAMP

George Denison, Lorne Park, Stricken Soon After Arrest of Son.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—Four hours after police officers had come to his home and arrested his son at 2 o'clock in the morning on a charge of chicken stealing, George Denison, aged 67, was found dead yesterday in a swamp close to his home at Lorne Park, near Port Credit.

According to Coroner Sutton of Port Credit, who was summoned, death was caused by hardening of the arteries, an affliction which, it was stated, was so serious that doctors had warned Mr. Denison never to go out alone. No inquest will be held.

Mrs. R. A. Luker, sister of the dead man, said Mr. Denison had gone earlier in the morning to inspect traps he had set in the swamp. At 5 o'clock he had not returned, and a search was instituted. At 6 Arthur Shaver, a neighbor, found the body.

The son was arrested by Chief Constable Kerr of Oakville and Chief Constable Smith of Burlington, who on going to the house awakened the father to inform him of their mission. Young Denison is alleged to have stolen chickens from Sheppard Brothers. He was taken to Burlington, where later in the morning he was released on $1.000 bail. He went home to find his father dead.

The late Mr. Denison had resided in the Lorne Park district nearly all his life, and beside his widow, is survived by a grown-up family of nine.

GIFT SHIPMENT MADE TO WEST

Young People of All Saints' Send Large Consignment To H. E. Ashmore.

IN MISSION FIELD.

More than 150 packages of Christmas gifts were brought to All Saints' Parish Hall last night by members of the Sunday School and A.Y.P.A. at the annual gift night. This year interest is increased by the fact that the package of gifts was to be shipped to Horace E. Ashmore, one of All Saints' boys who is engaged in home mission work at Camp Lake in Northern Saskatchewan. In writing to friends here a few weeks ago, Mr. Ashmore expressed the opinion that this would be a lean Christmas for many people in his district, and last night's generous contribution was an answer to this appeal. The box was shipped to-day, money enough being contributed at last night's service to pay the freight charges.

The service last night was the third of the Advent Monday evening services held for the Sunday School. The subject of the address was Dickens' "Christmas Carol," the story, told by the rector, Rev. J. D. Paterson, being illustrated with lantern slides. The Parish Hall was packed with children, parents, and A.Y.P.A. members.

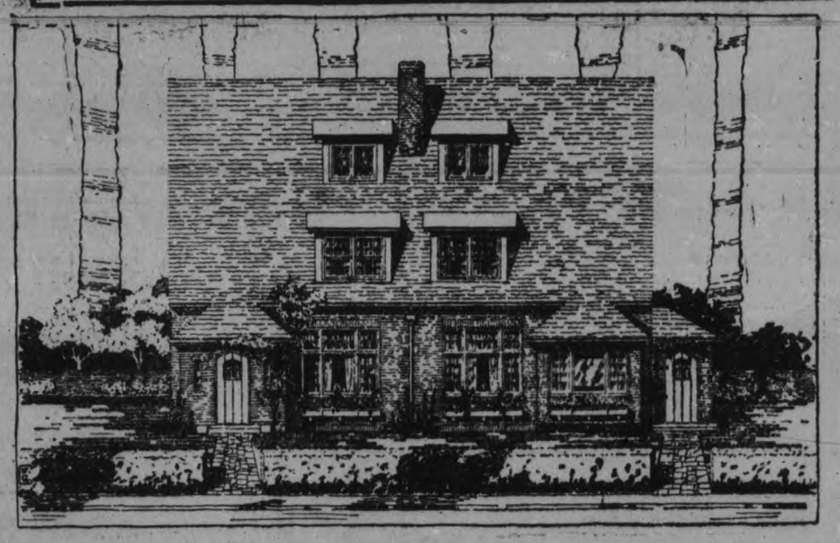
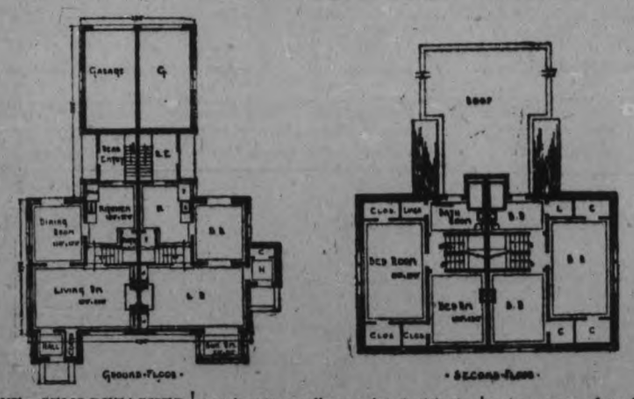
NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press)—The Detroit Tigers today announced that first baseman Lu Blue and outfielder Harry Manush have been trade to the St. Louis Browns for outfielder Harry Rice, pitcher Van Gilder, and a third player to be named later. Whether the third player is George Sisler, the Browns' famous first baseman, is not known





DISTINCTIVE SEMI-DETACHED HOUSE

(By Frank P. Martin, Architect.)

No better example of the progressive thought now being applied to semi-detached house design by Canadian architects could be asked than the structure illustrated here. The exterior design, which is of English style with Norman influence, is of a rather unusual, distinctive character but possesses a delightfully homelike atmosphere.

Absolute symmetry,which aways has a certain severe aspect, has been avoided by placing one entrance at the side and one in front, while balance is maintained by the addition of a sunroom of the same proportions as the front entrance.

What really gives the exterior its distinctive character, however, is the steeply pitched roof with its double row of dormers. This is a thoroughly practical arrangement, really being nothing more than an extension of the roof one storey lower than usual, giving it the prominence usually associated with the English styles.

Reinforced concrete has been used for the main floor which means that should one of the vast number of house fires which originate in basements occur here, it would be very unlikely to endanger life and property by spreading to the upper floors.

A feature of the plans is the absolute lack of waste space, every square inch of floor area being advantageously employed.

To fully appreciate the charm of the interior it must be remembered throughout that all walls and ceilings are tinted in suitable shades, and that the first storey has composition rubber tile floors.

Inspecting one house we find the living-room a fine, bright room of ample size having one end wall occupied by a centre fireplace with bookshelves on each side. This arrangement deserves its popularity, for what happier combination can be imagined than a cheery glow from the hearth, an easy chair, and an array of good books waiting patiently to be read.

The kitchen is of convenient size and gives access to a pantry, and to a rear entry having stairs to the basement.

Ascending the tiled stairs to the second floor we find two bedrooms and a bathroom. The bathroom, which is tiled, contains a recess bath and pedestal basin, and contains a door to the flat roof extending over the garages.

Notice how cleverly the roof space has been utilized to form four good sized closets in each house.

With hot water heating this pair of homes cost approximately $16,000, exclusive of the 60-foot lot required.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct: Address Mr. Frank P. Martin, Imperial Bank Building, Saskatoon, Sask.

WARSAW W.M.S. ELECTS OFFICERS

United Church Organizations Meet—U.F.O. Delays Election.

WARSAW, December 13. — The Warsaw United Church Woman's Missionary Society met in the basement on Thursday afternoon. It was the annual meeting. The new officers are:

President, Mrs. George Taylor; vice-president, Mrs. Thomas Cle...; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Ed...; recording secretary, Mrs. Ro... Moore; corresponding secretary, ... Thomas Cooper; Missionary ... secretary, Mrs. O.B. McIlvena; ...rintendent of systematic giving, ... Herrington; strangers' secretary, ... Wallace Anderson.

Arrangements were made for the union meeting with the Ladies' Aid on Thursday, December 22.

The year will close on December 31, which gives but eight months. The society would like to make its annual objective of $100.00 before then, if at all possible. The finances are in good condition.

The young people held their bi-weekly meeting on Tuesday evening, in the United Church basement, the president, Mr. Currie, in the chair. Ivan Drain took charge of the religious topic and Miss Florence Telford the literary. In spite of the stormy evening a good number were out.

The Warsaw Woman's Institute will hold its regular meeting at Mrs. Henry Clement's home. There is some sewing to be done. The report of the convention will be given by Mrs. Weller, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance. Mrs. Weller has attended many conventions, but never has felt so enthused as by this one.

The U.F.O. held a business meeting on Wednesday evening, November 30. So much business had to be done regarding the reports, and getting the books audited, that the election of officers was postponed until next meeting.

Chester Hamilton was appointed a delegate to the convention, and a committee was formed to arrange a dance to replenish the treasury.

SOCIAL EVENING HELD AT CAVAN

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McGill Are Entertained at Banquet.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

CAVAN, Dec. 13.—A happy gathering took place at "The Maples", the Kelly home, Eighth Line, Cavan, on Friday evening, when Mrs. Milligan and Miss Kelly entertained at dinner in honor of their cousin, Earl McGill, and his bride (nee Loreen Page). About thirty of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present.

Two long tables were spread in the spacious dining-room, with a small table on the centre on which was the wedding cake. Runners of rose, green and silver formed attractive decoration on the centre table, over which was placed a large wedding bell with streamers reaching to each corner of the table.

At six-thirty a sumptuous fowl dinner was served followed by all the good things pertaining to a wedding feast.

At the centre table were seated the bride and groom and grandparents of the groom. After the bride cut the wedding cake, Mrs. Milligan proposed the toast to the bridal pair, which was responded to by the groom.

Among the dinner guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. Lowry, grandparents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. G. Page, parents of the bride, also her two small brothers and sister, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. McGill, father and mother of the groom, Miss May and Bruce McGill, sister and brother of the groom, Mrs. H. Ryley, aunt of the groom and cousin, Bruce Ryley. Other cousins were: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pritchard, Miss Elinor and Leslie Pritchard, Mrs. Milligan and Miss Kelly, Miss Viola Grey; also a few intimate friends, Miss Munroe, Mrs. Foster, Miss Jean McKinnon, Mr. T. Cully and Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham. Mr. Graham is successor to the bridegroom as working-manager on the Kelly farm. Several guests were unable to be present.

Later in the evening a number of the people of the community arrived, when Archie Matchett read an address and Lewis Pudsy on behalf of the young people presented Mr. and Mrs. McGill with a buffalo robe. Mr. McGill made a suitable reply thanking the young people for the very useful gift presented and also for their good wishes.

Mr. McGill had been working-manager of the Kelly farm for the past three years and during that time had gained many friends and won the respect of the entire community.

Mrs. R. Matchett then uncovered a large hamper and exposed to view a shower of fruit and pickles from the ladies of the neighborhood.

As each jar was placed on the table Mrs. Matchett read the name of the donor and on some was inscribed a merry verse conveying good wishes. Mr. McGill again had occasion to make a short speech acknowledging the second shower.

Mr. James Paul acted as chairman for an impromptu programme.

The first item was the chairman's address followed by community singing, recitations, short speeches and songs.

Mrs. Milligan and Miss May McGill brought in a large prettily-decorated clothes basket containing the third shower, which was from the immediate relatives of the bridal couple.

Amid much merriment the basket was stripped of its contents which consisted of many beautiful and useful gifts and a number of cheques. This shower was suitably acknowledged by the groom.

After the three showers had been presented and the programme finished, dancing and games brought the evening to a successful close.

MADOC COUPLE WED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Richmond Receive Gifts From Friends.

DINNER IS HELD.

MADOC, December 13. — The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Richmond, on Prince Albert Street, was invaded by old friends and neighbors on Saturday evening, who gathered to celebrate with them their golden wedding day. Only relatives and old neighbors were there, and their pastor, Rev. G. W. Rivers and Mrs. Rivers. A very bountiful supper was served after which toasts were honored. That to the bride and groom was fittingly responded to by Mr. Richmond. Then one was drunk to Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Bailey, ninth anniversary it was. Mrs. Bailey was married on the anniversary of her parents' wedding day.

A beautiful silver tea service (gold-lined) was the gift of the Board of Trinity United Church, of which Mr. Richmond is one of the elders.

A very enjoyable programme of music and speeches was given after the company adjourned to the parlors, during which a duet was rendered by the bride and groom, to the delight of all assembled.

Being Saturday night, an early close for the evening was deemed advisable, and all repeated their congratulations and good wishes along with their good-nights.

GOVERNOR STOPS HOUSE SESSION

Oklahoma Representatives Barred From Capital By Armed Troops.

PLANNED IMPEACHMENT.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Barred by National Guardsmen from convening in their chamber at the State Capitol, members of the Oklahoma House of Representatives were called upon today by Speaker E. P. Hill to meet in the streets of Oklahoma City to receive impeachment charges against Governor Henry Johnston. After being held at bay by armed guardsmen who occupied the floor of legislative chambers, the legislators dispersed.

The Guardsmen today were summoned for the second time in four years to prevent the self-convened legislature from assembling in the State Capitol building for the announced purpose of instituting impeachment proceedings against state officials. Governor Harry S. Johnston without preliminary ordered the Guard to subdue any insurrection and to suppress all insurrectionary meetings. A conference of session leaders would be called as soon as possible, said Representative Kight, chairman of the lower house investigating committee which repared the charges.

STEAMER FILLING; PASSENGERS SAFE

Pacific Coast Vessel Expected To Be a Total Loss.

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C., Dec. 13. —(Canadian Press)—Driven aground in a raging snowstorm, liner Northwestern was reported rapidly filling with water, while Captain Jack Livingstone and twenty-six of the crew remained aboard after 112 passengers and forty-nine of the ship's crew had been rescued after taken to shelter in this summer resort. The belief was expressed that the three quarter of a million dollar vessel might be a total loss.

The ship was wrecked off Cape Mudge, ten miles south of here, early Sunday. The passengers anxiously paced decks but wireless calls soon brought aid, the schooner Explorer reaching ship and taking off passengers and some of ship's personnel.

SAYS PASSED SIDING WITH TIME TO SPARE

had been taken in view of the fact that the flier was shortly due.

Witness said the switch was not open at the time and the freight was delayed momentarily on that account. Witness had been instructed to guard the west switch when the freight was on the main line. The engineer and the brakeman had gone to the eastern switch.

"What was the idea of doing that?" "We wanted to get in on the siding to clear the way for number nineteen."

Mr. Wilson enquired if the engineer on the westbound train would not have had a better view of the freight had the latter remained at the west end of the siding instead of pulling up to the easterly switch. Houghton said there was a view for some distance from the rock cut.

Witness agreed that if the brakeman had raised a flag the approaching flier would have been given a warning from the time it rounded the bend at the rock cut.

"It was a bad position any way you took it." "Yes, sir."

"When you got to the switch, Mr. Houghton, if a flagman had gone out how far could he have gone before the flier arrived?"

"He could have gone quite a way."

"That would have been the best thing to do?" "Under the circumstances, yes."

Examined by the coroner Houghton said a fast express train should be cleared five minutes when the freight left Lens the crew figures it had 23 minutes, 18 minutes for the trip and five minutes to get into the siding. "If we had not overrun the switch we would have cleared all right," said witness.

"Do you think now you did all you could have done?" "I know now what we should have done."

"Do you think the company would think that you would clear the other train in time?" "Oh, yes."

"Do you have any written specification?" "The rules cover that."

Crown counsel then read the rules concerning clearance of the main line by inferior trains.

Coroner: "It is all important that you get on that siding? Did you take the necessary care?" Houghton: "I have nothing to do with it."

"I mean the crew?" "When the brakeman applied the brakes going down grade it increased the speed. The train as a result over-ran the siding." "That seems to be the important factor," observed Dr. Cowan.

To Mr. Roebuck the witness said all members of the crew had received copies of instructions regarding the flier. All members kept close tab on the time, too, he said. "That order told you that the flier would be ten minutes late?" "Yes, sir."

Houghton verified a copy of the order issued to the freight crew at Robindale about the flier. The latter was reported "15 minutes late Smiths Falls to Crow Lake, ten minutes Crow Lake to Currie." Witness Brademan and engineer of the freight had all examined their watches at Lens. Band.

OMEMEE W. M. S. PLANS FOR CLOSING

Reports Must Be Sent To Presbyterial Before End of Year.

OMEMEE, Dec. 13.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society, of Trinity United Church, was held at the home of Mrs. T. C. Ivory on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of over thirty ladies, with the president in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," followed by prayer by Mrs. Rowland. A responsive Christmas service was then used, with Mrs. Rowland as leader.

The treasurer, Mrs. J. Shield, then gave a summary of the finances as did also the treasurer of the cent-a-day band, and supply treasurer in order than an estimate might be made of the monies raised during the year, and also to see if the allocation might be met at the close of the year which this year closes with December, instead of March as in former years.

Mrs. Rowland then extended an invitation to the members of the W.M.S. to join with the Mission Band on Monday evening, December 12th, when the losing side of a recent membership contest will provide the program.

Upon motion, the sum of $10.00 was granted the Rest Fund.

Several acknowledgments of appreciation for kindness shown at the time of bereavement were read by the corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Widdiss.

Letters were received from Miss E. Dunoon of Lindsay, regarding the officers for the Lindsay Presbytery for the ensuing year and also from Mrs. Morrison, the corresponding secretary of the Lindsay Presbyterial regarding the yearly reports and announcing the biennial convention, to be held in Peterborough on January 17 and 18.

As all reports have to be in to headquarters by the 1st of January, it was decided to hold the January meeting a week earlier, when reports will be heard from the different branches of the society and the election of officers will take place.

The devotional part of the program followed. The Scripture lesson found in Luke 2, was read by Mrs. D. Weir, followed by a paper by Miss Lila Parsons, "Courage for the Task." Another Christmas hymn "Joy to the World," was heartily sung, after which Mrs. R. Bradley gave a splendid synopsis of the third chapter of the Study Book, entitled "Christian Missions and Modern Industry." Misses Eva and Lillian Race rendered a piano duet in their usual capable manner. A short story entitled "The First Christmas" was read by Mrs. L. Mahood. Mrs. Rowland extended a welcome to the visitors and members who had been absent for certain reasons.

Mrs. W. Brandon closed the meeting with prayer, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her sister, Miss Barris and Mrs. C. R. Cornell.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended by the Society to Mrs. Ivory and her assistants.

KHAKI LEADING LEAGUE CONTEST

Competition is Nearing End—L.O.B.A. Holds Concert at Petherick's.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Dec. 13. — The regular league service on Thursday evening last was in charge of the devotional convenor, Thomas Fry, with Gerald Barnum as leader. Over forty were in attendance, with the Reds leading. As the contest season is almost over, the Khaki group appears to be a sure winner, with a lead of over fifty points. The usual devotional period was conducted by the president and leader, with Mr. Fry taking the devotional address. A hymn by the White group and a trio, Misses Evelyn Barnum and Evelyn Totton and Fred Barnum, were among the programme numbers. The president led an interesting discussion period on the topic, "What makes a person a success?"

The League will not meet during the next two weeks owing to the leadership training classes in Campbellford and the Christmas entertainment practices. On Monday evening, December 19, the local League commences the "banner" visiting campaign by carrying its banner to Meyersburg, where a new League will be organized and a social evening spent.

L.O.B.A. Holds Concert.

The local branch of the L.O.B.A. held avery enjoyable concert on Friday evening in the Sentinel Hall, when Miss Floyd, of Belleville, elocutionist, was the chief entertainer. While the crowd was not up to expectations, considering the splendid entertainment offered, the ladies are well pleased with the success of the event. Jones Brothers' Orchestra was assisted at various times by Ed. Anderson and Roger Lain and Miss Ruth Lawrence, who also sang several numbers. The orchestra music throughout was exceptionally good. Vocal solos were rendered by Messrs. Albert Gifford, John Storie, and Fred Barnum. Miss Floyd, who is well known for her skill in the art of dramatic elocution, made a decided hit with the audience. She is a former pupil of Miss Jessie Tuite, of Belleville, and one number which she gave was composed by Miss Tuite, and proved interesting to those who have appreciated her performances here.

CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR'S TRAVEL.

Throughout the year there is no period so like a magnet for drawing people together as Christmas time.

No matter where you may be, there is an intensive longing for Christmas at home. Long ago, when travelling facilities were limited, people journeyed many miles and endured great hardships in order that they might be with their friends and loved ones on Christmas Day, but this has all been changed by the application of modern railway methods, whereby even the continent may be crossed in safety and with every comfort, in a comparatively short journey.

This year Christmas and New Year's travel promise to be heavy, and with a view to placing every facility at the disposal of their patrons, Canadian National Railways have made their advance preparations and plans for extra trains and additional equipment on regular trains. Full particulars will appear in newspapers, and special timetables will be shortly obtainable from any Agent of the Company.

Those who wish to prepay the fare of relatives or friends from any outside point can deposit the money at any Canadian National Agency and the transportation will be delivered immediately and economically.

WOMAN REACHED LINE STOCKINGLESS

Doris McDonald, Charged With Murder, Identified By Border Official.

VALLEYFIELD, Dec. 12 Canadian Press. — Doris McDonald, standing trial here with her husband, George, charged with the murder of Adelard Boucherd, a Lachine taxi operator, arrived at the border stockingless, shortly after the murder, a United States customs officer said to-day.

Wearing apparel found near the scene of the crime has already been identified as closely resembling that worn by the woman at the Mount Royal Hotel on the afternoon of the murder. The McDonalds, with another man, left the hotel in the victim's taxi-limousine late in the afternoon of July 17 last.

BOYS WIN CONTEST FOR BEST PROGRAM

Provide Longer and More Varied Entertainment Than Girls.

OMEMEE, December 13.—Monday was boys' night at the Young People's Union, and a programme of special interest, put on by the boys, delighted the unusually large gathering. A week ago the girls staged the programme, and the boys were not to be outdone by the fair sex. Promptly at 8 o'clock, Mr. H. Lamb took a chair on the platform, and was soon joined by the entire group of boys, who came in to spend the evening.

How to be entertained was the next question, but that was soon settled with so many talented young men in the gathering; and the following splendid programme was run off, interspersed with many witticisms from the leader:

National Anthem.
Instrumental—Floyd Parsons.
Monologue—Arthur Williamson.
Community singing.
Mouth organ solo—Morgan Rowland.
Vocal duet—Frank McConnell and Arthur Stinson.
Violin solo—Bill Earle.
Vocal solo—Lloyd Rowland.
Piano solo—T. McCammon.
Story—Edward Lowes.
Dialogue—Russel Williamson and Howard Wilson.
Recitation—Rev. E. W. Rowland.
Vocal duet—Fred and Will Weir.
Community singing.
Story—Morgan Rowland.
Solo and chorus—Led by Gordon Bradley—"Good-night, Ladies."

Mr. McCammon was the pianist of the evening.

At the conclusion of the programme Mr. Stalter gave the decision, which resulted in a win for the boys, who not only had a longer programme, but more variety in their numbers.

They, therefore, have a treat in store for the future, which will be provided by the girls.

A social atmosphere prevailed at Queen Mary school last evening when the Home and School Association held a social meeting and a parcel post sale. The President, Mrs. C. R. Banks, presided. The Secretary and Treasurer read their reports, which were very gratifying, showing a substantial balance in the bank. After the business meeting a very enjoyable program was rendered, which was greatly appreciated by the large crowd present. Miss Mildred Hetherington was heard in a delightful piano selection, followed by a vocal solo by Miss Margaret Wolstenholm, accompanied by Miss Alma Blanchard. Mr. J. John, who is always a favorite, gave a reading, and Miss Margaret Flowers a piano selection, which was also very much enjoyed. During intermission of ten minutes, the parcel post sale was carried on, and the parcels soon disappeared, many customers being on the waiting list. The roll call was answered, and it was found that Mr. M. Clarke's room and Mr. Wagar's were tied for the banner this month. Miss Isabell Black delighted the gathering with a very pleasing vocal solo, and Miss Hetherington was again heard in two piano selections. Mrs. C. C. Willison was in charge of the program. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. S. Worsencroft, convenor, assisted by Mesdames Dobson, Smith, Trussler and Carr. The parcel post sale was in charge of Mrs. T. Skinner, Mrs. B. Miller and Mrs. S. Huffman.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

By ANNE AUSTIN

For a long moment blue eyes held golden ones, until a flush stained the creamy ivory of Cherry's bare throat and intensified the apricot tint on her cheeks. Then Nils, smiling as if he had won some subtle, wordless victory, turned toward Faith.

"Mrs. Hathaway, I have a confession to make," he said, a note of appeal in his deep, cello-like voice that invariably made Faith's nerves tingle with pleasure. "I detest all opera in general and 'Carmen' in particular. I planned this little party purely for Rhoda's pleasure, and for Miss Lane's. I should be bored to death, and it would be a real relief to me if you and Mr. Hathaway would accept the tickets and accompany Rhoda—that is, if grand opera doesn't bore you as much as it does me."

"Oh, Nils!" Rhoda cried tragically. "I don't see why you have to let her—" with an angry jerk of her head toward Cherry—"spoil our evening. When you're all dressed up and everything—"

"I'm afraid I can't go, Mr. Jonson," Faith said with genuine regret. "My sister is going out and there would be no one at home with the baby. But I'm sure my husband would be glad to take Rhoda, if you really don't want to go. I'll ask him. Perhaps you'd like to go with them? Bob loves good music and has so little opportunity of hearing it."

"If you must stay at home, I'd like nothing better than to keep you company," Nils said with a boyish eagerness that was charming.

Faith glanced swiftly at Cherry and saw that her golden eyes had widened with incredulity and resentment. Her sister's amazement that a young man could want to spend an evening with her decided Faith. She hurried out to the sun parlor, where Bob was working over some blue prints spread out upon his desk.

"All right. Do I have to dress? Oh, I suppose I don't mind," he conceded when Faith assured him that he would have to wear his Tuxedo.

"I hope," Faith smiled at him with a coquetry that seemed to amuse him extraordinarily, "that you will enjoy your date as much as I shall mine."

"And I hope the baby cries all evening," Bob teased her.

Twenty minutes later Bob and Rhoda left in Bob's car, which almost collided with a taxicab, drawing up to the curb. Faith, standing on the front porch to wave good-byes to her husband and her "maid," saw Bruce Patton, slim, immaculate, dapper, step from the cab—give an order to the driver, and then start with leisurely nonchalance up the flagstone path, swinging his slender cane, a symbol of swank which no one but a Bruce Patton would dare exhibit in a small mid-Western city, and then only when dressed in evening clothes.

She watched Nils Jonson narrowly as Cherry fluttered excitedly to the door to greet her guest, but there was no sign of worry or tenseness on his strong, blonde face.

"Hello, sweetheart! Ready? The taxi's waiting," Bruce greeted Cherry with his caressing, intimate voice.

"Oh, we're not going out!" Cherry shook her head at him, her voice child-like and guileless. "I'd much rather spend just a quiet evening at home for a change."

DRESS By MARY MARSHALL

The raincoat lined with plaid velvet has made its appearance. This model is of rosewood colored leather, which is now chosen for rainy-day wear by many well-dressed women.

What has become of the so-much-longer skirt that we were all predicting a few months ago?

Where is the bouffant skirt, or even the moderately full skirt that seemed already to be in fashion?

These are questions hard to answer. Who can tell whether these new fashions have simply been deliberate in coming—whether they are still persistently on their way or whether they have blown over entirely.

It is a fact, however, that in Paris day clothes are every bit as short and as scant as they have been. We would rather not admit it—because for a while we were led to hope that a real variety of costume would come by way of longer skirts. Evening gowns and here and there an afternoon gown of the more picturesque sort have longer skirts—but for every-day outdoors, skirts really are short—short and scant.

Don't imagine, then, when your young friends here in this country persist in wearing their short skirts, that they are simply showing their indifference to, and ignorance of, French fashions. Don't they know—haven't they heard—that skirts are going to be longer? But are they longer? is the question which they might ask by way of a rejoinder.

Sad but true—short hair is growing shorter—ever so much shorter, and hairdressers in Paris seem to have conspired to see which one can best succeed in making women's ears conspicuous. Behind the ears there is a patch so short as to seem almost bare and across the back of the head the hair is cut quite close—this despite the fact that a few months ago hair seemed to be worn longer at the back of the head.

It is no longer necessary to line raincoats with the usual rainproof fabrics. For now there is rainproofed velvet. And some of the smartest of the new rainy-day coats are gorgeously, softly, brilliantly velvet lined.

BEWITCHINGLY feminine indeed is this dainty May Belle Bandeau Brassiere and Bobette set. The competent, wee bandeau of firmly-knit, lockstitch rayon lined with net—is snug-fitting and comfortable.

Equally alluring is the matching May Belle Bobette Bloomer—cleverly planned to meet the requirements of the mode for short frocks. Truly a lovely gift set—made in soft, lustrous rayon in all the popular pastel shades—beautifully tailored and daintily finished.

All May Belle Lingerie is made from our own superb lockstitch rayon—guaranteed to give the utmost in service and to retain its beautiful sheen and color. Look for the May Belle label in every piece of rayon lingerie. Let it be your guide when shopping. 18

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 14th, 1927.

Rather an uncertain day, according to astrology, which finds that adverse planetary aspects dominate.

Under this rule of the stars there may be a sense of restlessness and nervousness, which should be overcome by engaging in the interesting activity.

Irritability and fractiousness may be evident in young and old, while this configuration prevails and severe self control should be exercised.

There is a threatening aspect for domestic peace and for business harmony, for egotism is likely to be marked under this sway.

Women are well directed today, which should be used by them for furthering all their dearest plans.

There is a good sign for lovers and for all who engage in romantic friendships.

It is an auspicious wedding day on which the stars smile, but happiness must be expected outside of wealth or fame.

Persons entering into new contracts for the coming year should delay the signing of papers until a luckier day.

Speculation is likely to tempt many under this rule, but even an auction sale may prove disappointing.

The Sun today is in a sign making for more or less wavering of opinion and therefore threatening to loyalty.

Stormy days may interfere with holiday plans in many states and it is well to prepare for delayed journeys.

Germany is now subject to stimulating planetary influences which will enable it to develop trade and improve educational methods.

Persons whose birthday it is have the augury of new friendships and probable romance in the coming year.

Children born on this day probably will be well endowed with brains. Many subjects of this sign become writers, editors or publishers.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CANDY CANE.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy was busy in the kitchen of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. The muskrat lady housekeeper was sandpapering the blue paint off a chair so she could paint it red. The rabbit gentleman had brought her the sandpaper the day before, when his iceboat upset him and he had to wrap the rough paper on his feet so he wouldn't slip when running over the ice to get away from the Bushy Bear.

"Do you want me to splatter the red paint on that chair after you have scratched off the blue paint?" asked the rabbit gentleman, as he finished combing out his whiskers and parting the hair on his ears.

"Oh no; thank you just the same," squeaked Nurse Jane. "I love to paint."

"And I love to go out and look for adventures, so I'll hop along and find one now," said Mr. Longears.

"I hope no more Bears chase you," spoke his wife, coming into the kitchen to see how the carrot shortcake was baking in the oven. And it was baking nicely brown, I can tell you.

"I hope the same!" chuckled the rabbit, "and I also hope that Nurse Jane doesn't put red paint on the carrot shortcake instead of on the chair she is un-blueing."

"Oh, I'll watch out for that," Mrs. Longears promised, and away hopped her husband to see what might happen to him. He was thinking about red chairs and red sugar on top of cakes when, all of a sudden, as he passed a candy shop and same something red in the window, Uncle Wiggily thought, for a moment, that Nurse Jane was there, splashing red paint.

"No, I'm wrong!" chuckled the rabbit as he hopped closer to the store window. "That's a red candy cane hanging there." And so it was, a big cane, made of red and white striped candy, with a crook on one end like an umbrella handle. And as he saw the candy cane, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily had an idea.

"I'll get me one of those candy canes," said the rabbit to himself. "I forgot to bring my red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, and my rheumatism begins to hurt a little. I can limp along on the candy cane, and when I get home I can put it away for Christmas. There never is enough candy at my bungalow when Christmas comes, and there's a lot of sweetness in this cane. So it will serve me in two ways—it will help my rheumatism and be good for my little bunnies to eat."

"There goes Uncle Wiggily!" growled the Bushy Bear.

So saying, Uncle Wiggily hopped in and bought the largest candy cane in the store window. Then, leaning on it as he would have leaned on his crutch, the rabbit gentleman strolled along, over the ice and snow, over through the woods, wondering what sort of an adventure he would have pretty soon.

It was not long before the Bushy Bear, who had chased Uncle Wiggily the day before, saw the rabbit limping along on his candy cane. Only the Bushy Bear didn't know the cane was made of candy.

"There goes Uncle Wiggily!" growled the Bushy Bear, shaking his shaggy head. "He has his rheumatism crutch that I have heard so much about. That means he must be limping and it will be easy for me to catch him. He can't get away now by putting sandpaper on his feet."

So saying, the Bushy Bear jumped out from behind a sassafras bush and made a grab for the rabbit gentleman. But Uncle Wiggily heard the noise behind him and turned in time to see the Bear coming.

"What are you going to do?" asked the rabbit.

"I'm going to bite you!" growled the Bear.

Right at the rabbit he jumped, the Bear did, but Uncle Wiggily stuck the big, strong candy cane out in front of him and, as the Bear had his mouth wide open, the cane went right into it. Down the Bear's red throat Uncle Wiggily jammed the end of the candy cane, and it tickled the Bear's tongue, so he snapped his jaws and teeth together.

"Crack!" went the candy cane, a large piece being broken off. The piece stayed in the Bear's mouth and, being very fond of sweet things, the Bear began to chew the candy. "Chunkie-chonk!" he chewed the end of the cane in his mouth. "Oh, yum yum! That's good!" gurgled the Bear, and he closed his eyes with delight.

"Ha! This is my chance!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "While the bear has his eyes closed I'll hide and wait until he goes away. Then I'll hop home."

So while the Bear had his eyes closed in delight at the candy he was chewing, Uncle Wiggily crawled in a hollow log and hid himself, waiting for the bad chap to go away. But whether he did or not, I'll tell you to-morrow, if you please.

Hints on Etiquette

Question: Do you consider it proper to send your cousin, a boy in the early twenties, a Christmas present from a girl, his cousin. What would be most suitable?

Answer: It would be quite proper to send a cousin a present. Anything that might suit his particular tastes would be acceptable. If he is musical, or literary, or fond of sports, you can govern yourself accordingly. Such standard gifts as handkerchiefs or a tie or tobacco are always pleasing. It might be better to have a masculine helper when you choose either of the latter, however.

How Virol builds Children for LIFE

Mrs. Baker and her new baby To-day

Two Generations of PROOF

TO-DAY Mrs. Baker is a splendid healthy woman, with a splendid healthy baby. Yet 15 years ago she was at death's door. Read how Virol saved her life when she was a child and laid the foundations of her own permanent good health and that of her child.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO Mrs. Baker's Mother wrote:—

"She was reduced to a mere skeleton (Photo 1). The doctor said the only thing that would pull her up was Virol. In five months she more than doubled her weight. Her illness left her so weak that she could not keep a particle of food down but the Virol—that seemed to feed her and strengthen her chest. She is now a picture of health" (Photo 2).

The top photo shows how Virol has enabled her to grow up into a healthy woman whose baby is also a picture of health—how, in fact, the beneficial effect of Virol continues even to the next generation.

Virol is the only food which can exhibit such a remarkable case of racial improvement. Give your child Virol in the dangerous winter months.

Groupings Are Discussed at Meeting of Curling Club

NEW MEMBERS ARE ACCEPTED AT ORGANIZATION MEETING OF PETERBOROUGH CURLING CLUB

J. H. Sedgwick Elected To Vice-Presidency—T. O. Donaldson on Executive.

BUSINESS SESSION.

Thirty-nine Rinks To Be Placed This Season in Three Groups.

Meetings of other sporting organizations may or may not be held with success, but the curlers, it seems, are always right on the mark, when the starting gun is heard in the form of the pre-season or organization meeting. Such has been the case in previous years, and the 1927 meeting, held last evening in the club rooms proved no exception. Nearly seventy members were on hand when President G. Copping called the gathering to order shortly before eight o'clock, and from start to finish the spirit of the meeting was one of optimism.

The President.

Gray Copping is just the kind of man to have in the chair at such a meeting as this, and, aided by Secretary J. W. Mayneord, his efficient helper, he soon had things in full swing. He addressed the members in the briefest of terms, welcoming all, and referring not only to the season which is ahead but to the achievements of the club in the past. Routine business, minutes and other matter of form proceedings, he quickly dispensed with, and called for the election of a vice-president and appointment of one new member to the executive.

Owing to the death of the late George H. Duncan the vacant chair of the vice-president was filled by the electin of J. H. Sedgwick, while T. O. Donaldson was named as the new member of the executive. Both men made short speeches in which they expressed appreciation of, and confidence in, the future of the club.

New Members Accepted.

Though the veteran members and the members of the past season may stick to the ship, it is of vital interest to any sporting organization that new blood be constantly brought in The new members, lacking in skill, usualy bring with them a wealth of pep and enthusiasm, and ere long they are making their shots along with the best With regard to new members, the Peterborough Club shows no sign of falling into decay for last evening the secretary presented a list of eighteen candidates, while many others, contemplating entry, will make their decisions within the next week or so, and the membership roll will be extended by considerably more than eighteen. The new members were balloted upon and duly accepted.

Groupings Discussed.

Each year there has been considerable discussion among the members of the advisability of having the schedule divided into four groupings, rather than the customary three There are those who believe that with four groups, though there would be fewer actually scheduled games, the schedule would be run off earlier in the season, and consequently there would be more occasions on which there would be a disengaged ice for pick-up games. Thus, many of the members who had lost out in the regular competition would still be able to get in the odd game "on the side," so to speak.

Those in favor of the three-group schedule are more numerous than the others, as was proven last evening, when a ballot was taken as to which groupings would be accepted. The majority felt that the three groups would mean as many games per member, completion of the scheduled games in ample time to declare a winner and general satisfaction. Hence the decision of the club to adhere to the same number of groupings as in former years. Accordingly, it was announced that the thirty-nine-rinks would be placed, thirteen to a group.

Suggestion Re Starting Times.

George Hill and D. Carlisle were two members who expressed themselves strongly in favor of making the time of starting of evening games, seven-thirty rather than eight o'clock, as has been the case in past seasons. They pointed out that it was quite as easy for the players to be on hand a little earlier, that the games would be run off in better time, and that if two extra ends were necessary, they would terminate as early as the usual twelve-end game finished at the old hours.

Though, as Alex. Kay pointed out, this is a matter that rests with the Schedule Committee, the president stated that the committee would welcome an opinion of the club on this matter, and practically every member stood in favor of the suggestion of Mr. Hill.

Honor Late Vice-President.

Though George H. Duncan will curl no more, his brothers of the curling fraternity showed his memory marked respect when they adopted the suggestion of Messrs. Howden and Sedgewick, put in the form of a motion to obtain and place his picture in the club-rooms.

Rinks Chosen.

The regular business session having concluded, the next half hour or so was taken up with the choosing of rinks by the thirty-nine skips. Though there were not enough "leads" to go round, the majority of the rinks were completed while the others have left this position open until new members can be obtained. The results are as follows:

Open, C. H. Williamson, A. C. Gray, L. A. Turner (skip).

CANADIAN RUNNERS HAVE SUCCESSFUL YEAR

From a competitive standpoint, 1926 and 1927 have been great years for Canuck marathoners. Full distance marathon races have been promoted in this country, and a greater number of Canadians have attained success in Yankee marathon classics than ever before. Last year Johnny Miles won the Boston marathon in the best time ever made over the famous course. Cliff Bricker won the Buffalo marathon and Percy Wyer raced through a blinding snowstorm to win the Detroit marathon. Three big Yankee marathon races for Canadians to win in a little over a year, certainly made the experts sit up and take notice. Canada is to have four runners in the Olympic marathon next year, and in addition to Bricker and Webster, the other two will be picked from Percy Wyer, Johnny Miles, Billy Reynolds, Orville Garbutt and Sweet potatoes, 6 lb. 25c; carrots, 30c

SMITH CITIZEN WINS TOURNEY

ANNUAL EVENT.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 13.—The horseshoe tourney closed on Friday night, after a highly exciting contest in which William Elliott of Smith defeated William Hamblin of Lakefield for the honor of being the champion single horse-shoe thrower of the district. The final game was watched by the spectators with keenest interest and the game was an exceedingly close one. Hamblin led most of the way, then Elliott pulled up and defeated him, 21—20.

The committee who arranged this tournament are worthy of a hearty vote of thanks, for it gave a great deal of pleasure to a large number and its revival of puplarity is welcomed.

This is the initial effort in this line and has been very successful, and if the weather had been milder the entry list would have been a great deal larger, but it was a good start and will be an annual event. Sixty entered in the doubles and twenty-nine in the singles. Owing to the heavy expense entailed in starting this, the prizes were not expensive, but the men had their money's worth in the sport.

The prizes for the doubles went to Sam and William Trude, and to the runners-up, W. H. Stabler and Theodore Nicholls; and for the singles, William Elliott was the recipient of the first prize and William Hamblin of the second prize.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Dench for his services as the secretary was moved by W. H. Stabler and W. Elliott and three hearty cheers were given for the popular gentleman who had foregone the pleasure of entering the contest to attend to the records.

Hearty cheers for the committee were given by all present at the behest of W. Elliott and a pleasant sporting event was brought to a close.

Wednesday night was for practice; Thursday for the doubles, and Friday for the singles, and a sporting spirit, which is the mose noticeable and remarkable in this age of comercialized sport, prevailed. Men lost and won like gentlemen all, and the memories are all pleasant.

Three pairs of brothers entered the doubles, and all three pairs got into the semi-finals and the prize was won by the Trude brothers.

PITTSBURGH TO STAY IN LEAGUE

Would Remain in National Hockey League Under Present Management.

STRENGTHEN CLUB.

MONTREAL, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Pittsburgh has announced its intentions of continuing in the National Hockey League under present management. The present owners of the Pirates stated at the meeting of the National Hockey League board of governors here yesterday that they had no intention of selling the team, but were determined to strengthen it.

The Pittsburgh representatives immediately made good on the latter assertion and a three-cornered hockey deal was concluded. Bert McCaffrey, of the Toronto Leafs, goes to Pittsburgh; Eddie Rodden of Chicago goes to Toronto, and Chicago secures Ty Arbour of Pittsburgh. The trade was engineered when Toronto traded McCaffrey for Rodden and Chicago immediately switched him to Pittsburgh for Arbour.

There was also talk of a trade in which Langlois of Pittsburgh. Canadiens were mentioned in connection with a deal involving Langlois.

Questions concerning the rules were discussed at the meeting, which was a monthly gathering of the board. Some objection was raised to the forward pass in the defending area by defending teams. Ottawa, Toronto and the Maroons were against this type of play, but the other clubs would not hear of a change. Conny Smythe, manager of the Toronto Leafs wanted ragging stopped and the puck centred every time a team attempted to kill time. There was no seconder for his motion and it died a natural death.

On the question of rules, the directors made it known that they were gratified with the work of the referees this season, under the direction of the referee-in-chief, Cooper Smeaton. There has been a more uniform interpretation of the code by officials and generally an apparent desire on the part of owners, managers and players to play by the book. The result has been an appreciable falling off in the number of penalties this season.

The case of Duke Keats, suspended by President Frank Calder following his attack on an usher in Chicago recently, was referred back to the league head for final action. In the meantime, Keats stands suspended.

The muddled state of affairs in pro. hockey in California was brought to the attention of the meeting. The matter, which involves C. C. Pyle and the California League, was left in the hands of President Calder.

There has been some question over Yip Foster, famed half-back of the Balmy Beach Dominion champion rugby squad, signing with the New York Rangers. Toronto Leafs felt they had a claim to Foster. The matter was not brought officially before the meeting, but it is understood the Rangers and Leafs came to an understanding over Foster and that the young player will remain with Springfield, the farm club of the Rangers in the Canadian-American League.

It was stated yesterday that Yip Foster is to join the coaching staff of the Dartmouth football squad next fall.

GRAD'S STAR GOALER

The Varsity Grads hockey team, which will represent Canada at the Olympic games at St. Moritz, Switzerland, next February, has one of the smartest goal-keepers in the game in the person of Dr. Joe Sullivan. He has always worn the blue and white in hockey. As a youngster he played goal for U.T.S. and he was so small the gateman would not let him in the rink as a player until he had been identified by a friendly newspaper man. Joe was a star performer then, and he is now, and the sensation of the Prep school O.H.A. group. When he went to Varsity he sat on the bench for a season and watched Jack Langtry play regular goal, but when he got his chance he stepped in and proved every bit as good as the great Langtry. Since then he has been the regular Varsity goaler until his graduation last year, when he continued with the Grads. Dr. Joe is nonchalance personified in the nets, with a quick eye and a cool head, and also helps to direct the defense during the game. Dr. Joe is also a golfer of ability.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

"LITTLE JOURNEY"
ONE OF SEASON'S BEST PHOTOPLAYS.

With the entire picture depicting only a five days' transcontinental railroad trip, "A Little Journey," adapted from the story by Rachel Crothers and directed by Robert Z. Leonard, is proving to patrons of the Regent Theatre to be one of the most delightful pieces of entertainment of the year.

The train, consisting of engine, diner, baggage and express car, several Pullman cars and an observation coach, was brought to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio on a spur track especially built for the occasion. In these practically the entire action of the picture takes place.

To make the film as novel as possible, real train and Pullman crews were used, and replicas of actual scenes en route across the continent were built as huge sets at the M-G-M studio.

The time covered in the story consists of only five days — from the moment the train pulls out of New York until its arrival in San Francisco. This is the first time a picture has ever been filmed in its entirety aboard a train, with all the action taking place during a continuous trip.

Claire Windsor has the leading feminine role, that of Julie Rutherford, while William Haines, hero of "Brown of Harvard," has the part of George Manning, the smart youth who buys Julie a ticket to replace the one she lost in her exciting departure from the Eastern metropolis.

Harry Carey, famous Western film star, plays the character role of Alexander Smith, and Claire McDowell, who was Ramon Novarro's mother in "Ben-Hur," is seen in the role of Aunt Louise.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE CAT AND THE CANARY."

Anyone who likes a really good mystery picture will enjoy "The Cat and the Canary," the feature production now showing at the Capitol Theatre. It has thrills galore and a genuinely spooky atmosphere in an old house with dark hangings and ancient furniture peopled on a stormy night by a group of men and women who come at midnight to hear the reading of the will of the eccentric Cyrus West, and who are excellently chosen to fill their respective roles. A murder, a number of mysterious hidden panels that open suddenly to disclose a shadowy hand that grips its victims from behind, a succession of grisly happenings and the rumour of an escaped lunatic at large in the grounds, all add to the prevailing thrilly setting, and a touch of relieving comedy is afforded by the actions of Aunt Susan, who finally escapes from the haunted house and flings herself on the mercy of a passing milkman.

Surrounded by those who figure in the tale as the "cats" the grasping relatives who seek for benefits from his money Cyrus West, the "Canary" of the title, makes a will, that is not to be opened for twenty years. Promptly on the stroke of midnight this is opened by his lawyer, in the presence of hopeful relations and the money goes to Annabelle West, with a provision involving the finding of hidden diamonds. The girl finds these and puts on the priceless necklace which is later snatched by a spidery hand in the dead watches of the night. Other complications ensue and the final struggle between the two men in the subterranean passages of the old house leads to the unveiling of the master mind. It wouldn't be fair to disclose the mystery which makes the story absorbing and held its watchers in excited expectation during its unfolding yesterday It is interesting in the extreme and follows out quite faithfully the action of the stage play from which it derives its title and plot.

An excellent cast includes Laura LaPlante, Flora Finch, Creigton Hale and Tully Marshall, who takes the odd presentation of the lawyer, Roger Crosby.

There is a "spooky" comedy also in "Scared Pink," and a great deal of interest in the episode in Lyman Howe's "Hodge Podge," illustrating the various meanings of the word "train," in the peculiar manner in which this intriguing small feature outlines its offerings.

When a Man Loves

By ALICE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, who is coveted by hideous Count Ravoir. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoir. She rejoins Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The King plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating, gives Manon to Ravoir. After a terrible fight, Manon is carried away; Fabien finds her brother wounded.

Fabien turned livid with rage. Cursing insanely he rushed to the door that Lescaut had indicated and pulled it open. The room was deserted. Manon had been taken away!

The sound of hostile voices put Fabien on his guard. With all possible speed he bolted the door and dashed across the room to fasten the one through which he had come. It was no sooner done than Richelieu and the Comte, backed by numerous guards, demanded admittance.

Fabien ignored them with a feeling of contemptuous hatred. He knelt at Lescaut's side and began unfastening the wounded man's coat.

"Don't—waste time — with me! Find Manon. It is — impossible — to cheat —death!" For a moment their hands met in a firm grasp that wiped away all past grievances. Then Lescaut's head slumped forward and he spoke no more.

Fabien clutched the lifeless shoulders hopelessly. It was a tender, regretful farewell to the man who had once done him so great a wrong.

The door began to bulge from the combined efforts of the guards. They knew that Fabien must have locked himself in the room and in as much as the King had ordered his capture they were determined to effect it without further delay. The Comte and Richelieu were standing by to see that Fabien was brought to justice. Both of them enjoyed the evening's scandal and were reviewing it somewhat in detail while waiting for the door to be broken down.

Fabien heard the Comte explain, "I persuaded His Majesty that it would be wise to let the girl go—she is such a notorious creature that she would have made sport of his name in public."

"What did he do with her?" Richelieu was intrigued.

"He presented her to me, but I have had her before and am tired of her inconstancy. I have consigned her to the Magdalen Prison—she is being driven there even now." The Comte was decidedly pleased with himself.

"Foolish girl," supplied Richelieu "She will not find prison cots as comfortable as the soft bed the King would have given her!" Both men laughed uproariously.

Fabien did not wait to hear more. He had learned of Manon's terrible plight and knew that death awaited him—if he were caught. Escape through any one of the doors was a vain hope. Fabien rushed to the window and sized up his chances of getting out that way. It was a long drop to the courtyard below, yet it was his only chance—and he took it!

Thick vines, ages old, that covered the walls were a help, and grasping them with frenzied hands Fabien clawed, and swung and fought his way to the ground with a final jump that nearly broke his legs. His hands were bleeding, his clothes were dusty and torn, his head throbbed feverishly and sharp pains tortured the joints in his hips, knees and ankles; but after a moment he picked himself up and ran with all possible speed toward the open highway and momentary freedom.

Manon in the Prison of the Magdalen! It was unthinkable! What could he do to rescue her? Would he even have time to see her again before the sharp knife of the guillotine fell on his neck and cut her from his memory forever?

CHAPTER XIX.

In the midst of this profound dejection and anxiety, Fabien appreciated the fact that a formal satin costume and jewels were too conspicuous and inappropriate for a fugitive to wear along the public highways in the dark morning hours.

The risk of going to his own apartments for a change was too great. Again in his extremity he thought of Tiberge and hastening to his lodging found the faithful friend asleep.

While Fabien exchanged his soiled finery for a very plain jacket and breeches of black he reluctantly related the harrowing events of the night.

It afforded a good opening for a moral lecture and Tiberge tried to make Fabien realize what an irreparable injury he was inflicting upon his conscience, his honor, his family and his career.

"You have such a mild tractable disposition," Tiberge said, "That neither your family, your tutors nor I can understand the excess into which you have fallen."

"I have changed since my student days." It was a simple statement of fact, too self evident to have required utterance.

"Yes," agreed Tiberge, "It is astonishing that with your inherent good qualities and training you could have abandoned yourself to vice."

"You don't understand," Fabien resented the word 'vice,' "I love Manon. My affection, esteem, passion—what you will—is the greatest and purest thing that has ever come into my life. It is not sinful! It is not wrong! It is just deplorable that circumstances have been against us."

"Then cease trying to combat them and return to a regular and respectable life."

Fabien listened to the advice in a kindly manner, but without the smallest inclination to give up Manon and return to his former mode of life. Tiberge lamented his obduracy and could not agree that Manon, or any woman for that matter, was worth the sacrifices and hardships that Fabien had endured on her account.

An hour later Fabien left Tiberge, for what proved to be the last time, and began plodding his weary and lonely way toward the Prison of the Magdalen.

He wanted to arrive by dawn and explain to the Provost of Police, at the first possible moment, that it was all a horrible mistake for Manon to have been sent there.

Tormenting remembrances of his fatal and unhappy love flashed across Fabien's mind like shadows of the night. One seemed just as vague and temporary as the other and he had no power to control either. Manon's absence—the dread of never beholding her again—the mystery of her fate and the heartache he had caused his family, all formed melancholy thoughts in his overwrought brain.

Manon in the most infamous prison in the world! He had heard criminal stories of the way the women were treated and it seemed impossible for his adorable mistress to be a degraded inmate of the drab place along with the lowest dregs of Parisian womanhood.

Cost what it might Fabien was so bent upon rescuing Manon that he decided to set fire to the prison if no other mode of escape presented itself.

The sun was just coming up beyond the grim forbidding walls of the prison when Fabien entered the cold barren hall and said to the guard on duty at the desk, "I wish to see the Provost of Police—the man who is in authority regarding Mademoiselle Lescaut."

"You are early," observed the guard. "However, the Provost is here. He has been superintending the deportation. Just a moment and I will see if he is through."

After what seemed to be an endless wait the Provost's secretary came out from a private office and motioned Fabien to enter.

It was a grim place. The rugged stone walls and tall, narrow iron barred windows made it feel dark and cold. The floor was bare and the only furnishings were a long desk and two stiff chairs. After his eyes became accustomed to the darkness—the room was lighted only by a few bright streaks from the rising sun that shone through the barred windows—Fabien discerned a man in the shadows. As soon as the door was closed he emerged into the light and faced Fabien with a mocking smile. He was the Comte de Ravoir!

REDS CONTROL CHINESE CITY

Issue Proclamations Announcing Opposition to Kuomintang Leaders.

HONG KONG, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Communists in Canton today took control of the city after extensive fighting and definitely announced opposition to the present leaders of the Kuomintang or Nationalist political organization, who last Saturday denounced the Communist movement. After fighting, which lasted six hours, the revolutionaries issued a proclamation stating they had taken over control of the city and had occupied all the anti-revolutionary administrative offices.

Persons arriving from Canton today staed that Chinese gunboats on yesterday. They declared that the revolutionary Communists had wrecked the police bureau, liberating the prisoners who augmented the looters and terrorists, the gates leading to the foreign settlement were closed, and the revolutionaries had control of the city. The Reds claim they will make Canton the centre of a Communist movement in China.

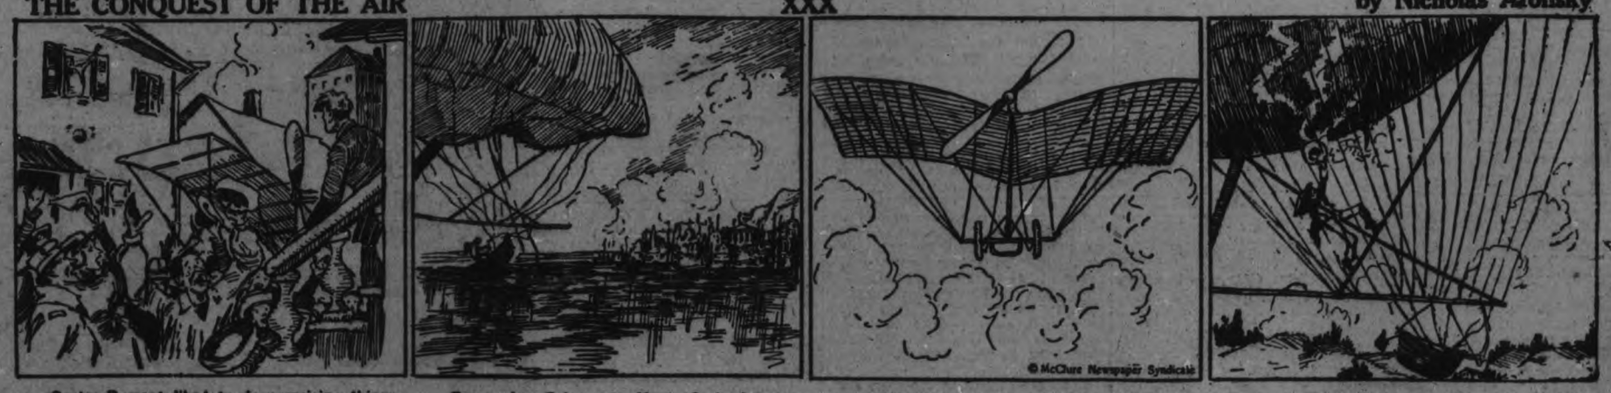
THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — XXX — by Nicholas Afonsky



Santos-Dumont liked to do surprising things with his small airships. One day he flew to his own doorstep in Paris and parked his airship in the street in front of it while he went into the house to have breakfast. It was an enthusiastic crowd that greeted him when he came out.

Once, when flying over Monte Carlo, he was blown over the Mediterranean. The sun's heat caused the gas in his partly inflated balloon to expand and he lost control of it. He stopped his motor when he saw he was being carried toward the houses of Monte Carlo and dropped into the sea.

In 1908 he showed his dragon-fly or demoiselle, a small, almost toy-like monoplane that weighed only 242 pounds. It was so light that a puff of wind would upset it while it was running along the ground. However, its famous designer was never seriously hurt.

On one occasion Santos-Dumont's dirigible caught fire, but he patted the flames out with his panama hat. He placed his last three dirigibles at the disposal of the French government. Though none of them was suitable for military purposes, his work did much to stimulate French military flying.

NEWMARKET WINS JUNIOR S.P.A. CUP

Scores Two Goals in Final Period To Come From Behind.

TORONTO, December 13. — Two lightning-like shots from the stick of Dodge Collings, Newmarket's attenuated right-winger, in the third period, crashed the S.A. junior cup from the very lips of the Marlboro team and sent the Toronto team toppling into a 3 to 1 defeat in the replay of the final game last night at the Arena. After playing ninety minutes to a two to two tie on Friday night the Dukes carried the battle to the North Yonge street team for two periods last night and skated on the ice on the favorable end of a two to one count to open the third. The issue appeared settled in view of the locals' decided margin on the early play but when Collins drilled the puck past Goaler Baxter twice in the final twenty minutes the local supporters sat stunned in their seats, and the Newmarket sections rose in an ecstacy of excitement that only reached its climax when the final bell sounded the end of a hectic though hopeless, Marlboro bombardment for the brilliant Ames.

It was a rude shock for the 'Dukes,' but they have only themselves to blame. Sluggish back checking in that last period when defensive play meant so much to them was responsible in no small measure for the Newmarket's team come back. Both goals were scored in the same manner. Midway in the session Collings filling in on the defence hooked the puck away from Mercer and broke clear as the Marlboro front line circled and left him to continue on his way. He ran straight down centre. Goaler Baxter played the right hand corner of the net, traditional territory for a right hand shot to try for Collings saw the move and snapped the disc between the defence players, hard and high into the left upper corner, and Baxter did not see it until it trickled out betwen his legs after hitting the twine.

LOUGHRAN WINS DISPUTED TITLE

Beats Slattery, Rival Claimant of Light Heavyweight Crown.

WINS EIGHT ROUNDS.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, Dec. 13.— The light heavyweight championship of the world diadem, disputed for months between the representatives of the New York State Athletic Commission and the National Boxing Association, rests on the curly-headed thatch of Tommy Loughran, sturdy heavy-fisted youngster from Philadelphia.

Loughran, recognized in New York as the king of the 175 pounders, won the crown beyond all dispute by whipping Jimmy Slattery, rival standard-bearer, in a thrilling 15-round match that kept 15,000 spectators in the spacious arena in a constant uproar. At the close the crowd roared their disapproval of the decision, and cheers for the Buffalo boy and his game stand volleyed to the rafters as the fighters left the ring.

Despite masterly boxing ability that at times made the speedy Loughran appear slow by comparison, and a willingness to swap punches, the lithe New York youngster appeared to have been bested in eight of the 15 rounds after winning five and holding Loughran even for two.

Tommy came with a rush toward the close, when Slattery's dancing legs tired under the torrid pace, and arms, wearied by constant blocking, grew trembly and weak. Then it was that Loughran, bleeding slightly from a cut Jimmy had opened under his left eye, stormed in close, flailed both hands in an unceasing stream to the body, and pounded out his margin of victory.

MOGULS GATHER FOR CONFERENCE

Draft Question With Minors, Problem at Major League Gathering.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—While managers of the major league clubs started casting about in the player market yesterday, club officials gathered here for the annual meeting of the American and National Leagues focused a good share of their attention on the tangled draft situation.

The draft, which the majors depend on for a good share of their new material, was a salient topic yesterday afternoon when the "steering" committee, representing both major circuits, met with Commissioner Landis.

What decision on policies, if any, was reported by this steering group was not disclosed. It is indicated, however, that the majors will insist on a draft arrangement with the big minor league circuits, accompanying such insistence with a threat to leave the circuits "out in the cold" on player transactions unless draft relations continue.

This struggle between the majors and "A.A." minors, including the International, American Association and Pacific Coast leagues, has been going for some time. It was brought to the fore recently at Dallas, Texas, when the minor league convention demanded that these big circuits, along with the Western and "Three Eye" circuits abandon these "modified draft" relations now effective with the majors under the modified draft.

The only players subject to recall by the majors are those who have served previously under the "big top." The full draft entitled the major to a choice of all the material. The modified draft enables the minors to hold their new stars and sell them for high prices, such as in the recent case of Cissell, infielder, sold by Portland, Ore., to the Chicago White Sox for a reputed $123,000.

The big minor circuits consistently have balked at restoration of the full draft. They are expected to maintain this stand even though it leads to another baseball conflict. What tactics this conflict may involve largely depend now on the action of the joint minor league business session on Thursday.

BOXING WORLD ON TORONTO BOUT

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—The New York Morning Telegraph discussing the flyweight championship situation under the heading of "Canada Likes Midgets", says:

"Canadian fight fans are crazy about watching flyweights perform. A few years back, Pancho Villa, Frankie Genaro and a flock of others were tearing things wide open, the midgets were quite the thing hereabouts, but the division deteriorated greatly since the death of the colorful Filipino, and the don't-give-a-whoop way that Fidel LaBarba, his successor, attended to his chores. When La Barba threw up the sponge, to return to college, the division went blooey.

"Several months ago the state athletic commission sanctioned the staging of a flyweight tournament by E. McMahon at the St. Nicholas arena. A number of shows were held, but, sad to relate, the biggest handicap was the lack of attendance. It was pathetic the way the boys turned out to see the dynamic little gladiators, who put up fine exhibitions, strut their stuff. Only a couple of weeks ago Izzy Schwartz faced Willie Davies, of Charlerol, at the Pioneer S.C., and the bout, which looked great on paper and was a corker, drew only a corporal's guard.

"Jump from Gotham to Toronto, where Prenchy Belanger, a local product, first met Newsboy Brown and then exchanged compliments with Frankie Genaro, former American flyweight champion. Both quarrels, which were won by Belanger, drew tremendous gates. As a matter of fact, the reports of the Belanger-Genera set-to, held a week ago, under the auspices of the Shamrock A.C., at the Coliseum, is said to have drawn a gate of $17,000. Pretty spiffy, you'll admit.

"To further elucidate on the flyweight situation around here, when the state athletic commission, functioning under the Walker boxing law, decreed that it would permit Corporal Shwartz and Newsboy Brown to meet over the 15-round distance, the winner to be recognized as Fidel LaBarba's successor to the championship, the bout had to be added as an extra attraction to the Tod Morgan-Joe Glick junior lightweight title go, scheduled for the New Garden on the 16th of the month.

"Up in Toronto the N.B.A. has sanctioned a world's flyweight championship between Belanger, the local pride, and Ernie Jarvis, the hard-battling and colorful English shrimp."

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 13.—(By the Canadian Press).—Commenting on the "Newsby" Brown - Izzy Schwartz flyweight championship bout to take place here Friday night at Madison Square Garden, the New York Evening Post prints the following:

"Albert Belanger, Toronto flyweight who trounced Brown and Genaro in recent starts, is a lad that will bear watching. If he can make the weight it would not be a bad idea if some enterprising promoter imported him for an international titular duel."

The winner of Friday's bout will be recognized as the world's champion by the New York State Athletic Commission and affiliated organizations. Belanger is to box Ernie Jarvis of England in Toronto on December 19 in a bout recognized by the National Boxing Association as for the world title.

DULUTH WINS.

Scores Goal Seven Seconds After Overtime Start at Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Dec. 13. — After seven seconds of overtime play, Duluth ended a hard fought American Hockey Association battle here last night ,and took a 4 to 3 victory from the Winnipeg Maroons. Fighting an uphill battle, Duluth fought at a fast pace, and to Loucks, the defence star, went the credit for the winning tally. An easy shot from centre ice beat Timmins, the Winnipeg goalie.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

"The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God.": Psalms 9-17.

In this passage from Holy Writ, there is a slight incorrect translation of one Hebrew word. The word turned should read "turned back" or "returned." The preachers of "hell fire" seem to gloat over, and then roll as a sweet morsel under their tongue, the above passage misconstrued and misinterpreted; and as they heartlessly give forth their false rendering of the above words, you can hear their deluded followers, voicing their agreement with the false utterances by shouting with smiling faces 'Amen."

Ignorance and superstition, with hypocricy instilled by Satan into the hearts and minds of those who preach such erroneous doctrines, seem to be the main reasons why such misleading doctrines are preached. Learned and unlearned continue to give to hell the false meaning, namely "endless torments." It is quite plain to the honest seeker after truth, that the wicked go into hell (the grave) when they die, and remain there ,not knowing anything, until the resurrection."—John 5: 28-29. Ecc. 9-5.

At the resurrection they enter upon the thousand year judgment day of trial. If they fail to yield obedience to Jesus and wilfully refuse to walk in the way of righteousness, they will be returned or turned back into hell (the grave) where they will remain forever. There will be no second resurrection, with a second chance. Their punishment will be everlasting. How can any one, who knows of the conglomeration of error propagated by the various systems support the same by his means and influence is a question.

NO SIGN YET OF KAMLOOPS

Many Vessels On Lookout For Missing Freighter on Lake Superior.

WRECK FEARED.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—At noon no sign had been reported of the steamer Kamloops ,carrying valuable package freight, which is missing on Lake Superior. The government tug Murray Stewart left yesterday to join in the search and the Midland Prince has returned after a search of a hundred miles without trace of the vessel. The Islet Prince is still on the hunt. Eight grain carriers which have just gone downbound promised to keep continuous lookout. Fine and clear weather favored this fleet and there is no wind.

May Be On Rocks.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— The possibility that the Kamloops is shipwrecked at Isle Royale, near Port Arthur, is expressed by the captain and crew of the Quedoc, which docked at the Michigan Soo after a trip from Fort William to-day. They said that when upbound in company with the Kamloops last week the Quedoc narrowly escaped the rocks near Ise Royale while the Kamloops, a quarter of a mile from them, appeared to be heading on to the rocks. The Canada Steamship Lines, the owners, will press airplanes into service in a search for the ship.

KIWANIS WORKERS ENLARGE PROGRAM

Decide To Extend Work To Underprivileged Girls as Well.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(A.P.)— An enlarged program of work in 1928 to provide for a broader application of Kiwanis co-operation in the building of communities throughout Canada and the United States was formally started Saturday as the annual International Council session ended.

Governors-elect from 29 districts will be the chief leaders in the new program, which will be carried by them to all Kiwanians in the Governors' districts.

The three-day conference was closed with a statement from International President H. C. Heintz, Atlanta, Ga., outlining the new year's work.

"The results of the discussion during the three-day session of the International Council meeting," he said, "have brought to the 29 newly elected Governors who take office on Jan. 1 the realization of work to be done in the United States and Canada during 1928."

One of the most important steps taken was that of spreading the work among underprivileged boys to include the young girls of Ameri-

SKATING SEASON ROYALLY OPENED

Large Crowd Enjoys Healthful Evening at Sacred Heart.

Skating for the season started in earnest last night on the Sacred Heart rink, when about 400 young people enjoyed themselves on a splendid sheet of ice for several hours. The new rink, which was erected by the Canuck Club of the Sacred Heart Parish, is without doubt the best open-air rink in the city. It compares favorably in size to that of the Toronto Arena, and the boys of that club are being congratulated for their efforts in providing such a splendid rink for skating and playing hockey. With so many hockey games scheduled to be played at the Brock street rink this season, the out door rinks will be in greater demand than ever for skating and city league hockey.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our little darling, Marguerite Doreen Simpson, who passed away December 13th, 1922.
We never will forget her,
We love her as much to-day,

Not now but in the coming year
It may be in the better land,
We'll read the meaning of our tears
And then some time we'll understand.

HERRIN, Ill., December 13 (Canadian Press). — A year of peace in Herrin, the storm centre of the Illinois coal fields, was broken last night when Elmer McCormick, brother of the Mayor, and John Stamm, Chief of Police, were wounded by gunmen who circled the City Hall in a motor car firing volleys of bullets. McCormick is in a critical condition.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Three years in the penitentiary was the sentence meted out to Wilfred Tessier, who said he came from Three Rivers, Que., on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. He was sentenced by Magistrate Hopewell in the police court today. On his arrest in Trenton, Ont., Tessier stabbed himself with a knife, but the injury was not serious. On the way back he jumped through a car window but was recaptured.

Fleet of Boats Commences To Move After Hectic Storm.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 13. — (Canadian Press).—The situation on the Upper Lakes is clearing to-day after one of the most hectic weeks ever experienced. The centre of attention as the weather turned fine and the wind died down, was the missing steamer Kamloops and the threatening ice blocade in the Sault canals. The upbound steamers Canadoc and Queen were believed to be slowly breaking through strong ice in Neebish Cut to-day. The fleet of up and down-bound boats are waiting for these two steamers to clear.

E. Scott was re-elected president of the Peterborough U.F.O. Club at the annual meeting, held last night in the Foresters' Hall. Practically the entire slate of old officers was re-elected, and most favorable reports were given by the secretary and the shipper.

The new officers are Vice-President C. Moore, Secretary H. Lewis will carry on until another is appointed by the executive; Directors A. Armstrong, W. R. Shields, W. Dawson, J. Tully, C. Handbridge, and W. Garbutt.

During the year 5,134 cattle, sheep and hogs were shipped by the club to Toronto, and for this number $114,000 was received and after all expenses were paid $107,000 was returned to the farmer. Last year 4,061 animals were shipped.

Wins First Prize

W. Scott, the shipper, offered three prizes at the first of the year to the farmer making the best record in the number of hogs shipped. W. Finnie, Otonabee won first money for a shipment of 16 hogs of which 15 were selects. R. Northey, Lakefield, was second with a shipment of 19 hogs, 14 of which were selects, and W. Rosborough was third in which 15 hogs graded selects out of a shipment of 21.

After the transaction of business had been concluded, Earl Petrie sang a rollicking sea-song, "Three for Jack," accompanied by Miss P. Petrie.

A number of films including comics, the Pulpwood industry, and the world-tour of the Prince of Wales were shown by J. B. Nelson, District Representative for the Department of Agriculture.

These moving picture, both interesting and educational, were enjoyed by those present, and a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Nelson for his entertainment.

Replying to this expression of appreciation, Mr. Nelson referred to the Winter Short Course, which is to be held in Bridgenorth, during the month of February, and expressed a hope that there would be at least fifty girls and fifty boys in attendance.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close, refreshments being served later by the ladies.

TO CONTEST SEAT.

HARRY C. HUFFMAN,

Who to-day announced his intention to offer his name as a contestant in the Aldermanic race. Mr. Huffman has become well known through his work in Kiwanis Club, where he has served as chairman of the Public Affairs committee for the past year. This is one of the most important committees, originating such work as the decorating of the streets.

Mr. Huffman's worth to the club was recognized last week, when he was elected District Trustee, an office which delegates him to represent the Peterborough Club in all District conferences and in business between clubs.

NO NEWS YET FROM VESSEL

Kamloops Has Been Missing Now For More Than a Week.

COASTGUARDS SEARCHING.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press).—This port to-day was still without any information as to the fate of the package freighter Kamloops of the Canada Steamship Lines which with a crew of twenty and two women cooks has been missing on Lake Superior for a week. The vessel was last sighted near Isle Royale, near the head of the lakes, by the captain of the steamer Quedoc, who expresses fears that the Kamloops may have been wrecked on the rocks of Isle Royale in the gale.

To-day downbound boats which had been ice-bound in the St Mary's River for some days because of an ice jam at Neebish Channel, resumed their journey east. Two upbound vessels, the Vandoc and Saskadoc, which had been caught in the ice, have reached the Sault.

Coastguards Searching

HOUGHTON, Mich., Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Members of the Eagle Harbor coastguard crew, under command of Captain Glaza, today prepared to leave for a search of the Keewanaw Peninsula shores for a trace of the Canadian package freighter Kamloops, lost during the recent storm on Lake Superior. The Kamloops has been missing for seven days, with no trace of it reported from any point, and fears have grown that it was sunk, carrying with it twenty-two persons.

It was a disheartening task that faced the Eagle Harbor guards. The men are tired and worn and many are suffering from exposure as a result of days of battling the lake gales in rescue work. The north-west wind has blown ice into the harbor, necessitating the cutting of a channel through the heavy floes before their boat can gain open water. The surf boat was used when the crew of the Altadoc was rescued had two holes stove in its bottom and is unfit for duty. This latter craft was transported more than a mile overland before being launched, but it was explained at the coastguard station that it would be impossible to transport the only remaining lifeboat in that manner because of its great weight.

THE WEATHER

At noon to-day the thermometer was at 45 degrees. The sky was blue and the sun shone brilliantly, in fact there was a feeling of spring in the air. The lowest the temperature got last night was 34 degrees. How is that for the middle of December? It is possible we may hear of some more golf matches yet. Rainfall last night one-third of an inch (.33.) The ground in most places is said to be more fully saturated with water than it has been for years.—W. P.

REDS ESTABLISH SOVIET COUNCIL IN CANTON CITY

Communists Still Holding City Against Attack of Regular Troops.

MUCH LOOTING.

Believed Russian Officers on Red Army Staff Within Canton.

SHANGHAI, Dec 14. Canadian Press. — Communists who seized Canton in the absence of regular troops were still holding the city last night, and were reported to have established a Soviet people's council on the Russian plan.

Chinese newspapers here, intimating influence from Moscow, say that Russian officers are on the Red army staff operating in Canton. A leader of the Seaman's Union and the former secretary of Michael Borodin, once Soviet adviser to the former Canton government, are said to have been the prime movers in formation of the council, two acting as commisar of war.

Looting and incendiarism persisted yesterday and there was some local fighting, but nothing of a serious character has occurred as far as is known, and there were no indications last night of danger to foreigners.

Foreign representatives, however, are taking all needful precautions. Warships and other foreign vessels have been busy bringing their respective nationals to safety and most of the foreigners, including a fairly large number of the missionaries, have been brought out. Further, in view of a possible attempt to recapture Canton, the United States gunboat Sacramento has landed field guns and placed them in position before the United States consulate, in the foreign section, to protect the lives and property of foreigners. That this is advisable is shown in a statement from Nanking sources that Nanking forces are organizing a military expedition to suppress the

Storms Over Atlantic Breaks Up Schedules

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Storms at sea and heavy fog along the Atlantic seaboard to the Virginia Capes demoralized shipping schedules yesterday. Incoming liners slowed up approaching quarantine for the fog to lift.

Ships at sea reported a gale which reduced speed by half in many cases, and in some instances vessels bound in both directions were slowed to a mere three or four knots. The storms showed no signs of abating.

The Cedric, Scythia and Berengaria were held up off Ambrose Lightship, awaiting a rift in the fog bank. The President Roosevelt, due to-day, was battling her way through the storm, two days overdue.

Changes in sailing dates were made necessary by delayed arrivals. The President Roosevelt, bound to sail from New York today, will not leave until Thursday, it was announced. The Berengaria, due to leave at midnight to-day, probably will delay her sailing also.

THREE ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE

Brothers Set Free By Jury Because of Absence of Motive.

SYDNEY, NEW SOCTH WALES, Dec. 14 (United Press).—The sensational trial of three brothers, Hubert, William and Bruce Higgs, aged 30, 26 and 21 respectively, for the murder of Roland Leslie in an automobile on a road in the Blue Mountains on October 12 last was concluded here today, when the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

During the eight days of the trial there were many dramatic moments and public interest ran high, principally owing to the apparent absence of any motive for the crime. As the evidence was wholly circumstantial, the Crown's case was exceedingly weak.

"Bootleg King" Had Threatened His Wife Victim's Sister Testifies at Remus Trial

CINCINNATI, O., December 14 (Canadian Press). — Sister of the slain Imogene Holmes Remus, Mrs. Grace Campbell, of Miami, Fla., yesterday testified in the murder trial of her brother-in-law, George Remus ,former "king of bootleggers," how she had spent nearly two months in a vain effort to bring them to an agreement. She fought bravely to hold back her tears, but they came, along with great sobs, when she told that Remus, in demanding the return of whisky certificates held by Mrs. Remus, had threatened to divest here of every cent of her fortune and every shred of reputation.

Remus threatened that he would "crack a skull" unless he got back the certificates, which representedso much liquor in warehouses, he said.

Once, Mrs. Campbell testified, upon one of her ten visits to Remus while he was a prisoner in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, she had asked him "why her sister cried and was so unhappy and could not sleep at night after seeing him." "He replied that she did not understand him," testified Mrs. Campbell.

Mystery Surrounds Arrival of Flier

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Mystery yesterday surrounded the arrival in the United States of a man who said he was Captain Walter G. Hinchcliffe, British flier, reported to be negotiating to fly Charles A. Levine's trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia in an endurance flight to establish a new record.

Although a man who said he was Captain Hinchcliffe arrived in Boston Monday and would leave immediately for New York, despatches from London said the British flier was in Amsterdam suffering from influenza and quinsy.

Samuel Hartman, Levine's attroney, said last night he knew nothing as to Hinchcliffe's whereabouts or the reports that he was to pilot the Columbia in a projected endurance flight. Levine was not at his office yesterday and could not be reached for a statement.

COUNCILS AND OTHER BODIES REPRESENTED IN TORONTO

Suggest Appointment Minister to Paris

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—Once more the suggestion is being made that Canada appoint a Minister to Paris. At present Canada is represented in Paris by a Commissioner-General, the position being held by Hon. Philippe Roy. There have been suggestions that, as Canada is now represented in Washington by a Minister, it would be logical to make a similar appointment to Paris. The name of Mr. Roy has been mentioned as a possible selection for the new post if and when it is created. As far as can be ascertained here, however, there is no likelihood of any action along this line for some time.

DOCTORS WRITE TO DEPARTMENT

Protest Closing of Local Laboratory—Give Many Reasons.

DISTRICT BENEFITTED.

That the medical men of Peterborough and district have no intention of losing the services of the Provincial Branch Laboratory without a protest was proven at a recent meeting held in the Library building, at which Dr. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health was present. During this meeting it was decided to send the following letter to the Minister of Health, the Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, and since that time this decision has been acted upon. The letter:

The medical men of the district have learned with much regret and concern that the local branch laboratory is soon to be closed. This came as a great shock to the whole community and a special meeting of the Peterborough County Medical Society was at once convened, which was attended by practically all the profession of the district who could be reached by telephone. After hearing Dr. Bell's remarks of explanation, a free discussion ensued which showed the grave concern of all present, in this retrograde step.

It was the unanimous opinion that everything possible should be done to prevail upon the Department of Health to continue the local branch of the Laboratory.

Some of the reasons advanced were as follows:

1.—The loss to the public health of the district far outshadows the monetary outlay of the Government.

2.—The presence of the laboratory facilities is a constant source of encouragement to the medical men and gives them a feeling of confidence and a stimulation to do better work.

3.—The presence of an independent specialist in laboratory work has been of great value to the sick of the district.

4.—Due to the presence of a laboratory director, it has been possible to concentrate all the clinical laboratory work in the hands of one man, thus obtaining a high grade of efficiency in standardization of technique.

5.—The value of the laboratory in this district in the fortunately few cases of meningococcus meningitis, we feel has amply justified its existence.

6.—The absence of the laboratory makes it impossible to have a dark field examination made.

7. — Communications from the North Country, comprising Lakefield, Young's Point, Apsley, Haliburton, etc., is infinitely better to Peterborough than Toronto.

As there are many other arguments which might be brought forward, both medical and civic, we purpose asking for an interview at an early date and we would ask that definite action might be deferred until that date."

Says Many German Secrets During the War Made Known Through 'Room 40' at Admiralty

EDINBURGH, Scotland, December 14 (Associated Press). — Sir Alfred Ewing, of Edinburgh University, who in 1914 was in charge of "Room 40" at the Admiralty, disclosed in a public address last night many interesting secrets of the war. He told of how, through "Room 40," whose existence was known to very few persons, even in the British services, German wireless reports were deciphered and knowledge gained of the Germans' plans and every movement of the German Navy in advance.

Information thus obtained enabled the British Navy to go out and meet the Germans in the Battles of Dogger Bank and Jutland. "Room 40," with its large secret staff, deciphered a wireless message from the U-boat which sank the Lusitania, and also revealed the German intrigue with Mexico that is believed to have hastened the entry of the United States into war.

The notorious Zimmerman Telegram, revealing the alliance offered to Mexico, was deciphered and communicated confidentially by Balfour to Walter H. Page, the United States Ambassador at London, and through the Ambassador to President Wilson, who at that time appeared to be hesitating about entering the war.

Deputation Calls On Minister of Health This Morning.

STRONG PROTEST.

City and District United in Opposition To Proposed Move.

A deputation headed by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., left for Toronto this morning to interview the Minister of Health, the Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, with reference to the possible retention by the Department of the Provincial Branch Laboratory in Peterborough . The following organizations were represented on the deputation b ydelegates: Chamber of Commerce, the City and County Councils, and various other interested individuals.

While it is part of the policy of the Department of Health to close such branch laboratories as are in districts which could be efficiently served by Toronto, it is felt by the deputation that special circumstances hereabouts warrant the retention of the branch laboratory in Peterborough. Train connections through and from this city are not sufficiently good for the class of work handled by the laboratories .

The Peterborough Branch serves a wide-flung district outside the city, and it would amount to a drastic hardship to these districts to close this avenue of co-operation and safety measures, in the opinion of the deputation.

BOARD TO PROBE SEWER RUMORS

New Confederation School Reported To Be Connected To City Outfall.

AGREEMENT READY.

A special meeting of the Board of Works has been called for tonight to investigate rumors concerning the connection of the new Confederation school with the city sewer. On Monday night men were seen working on Park street where the sewer connection would be made, and yesterday morning revealed that holes had been dug over the sewer and in the ditch in line with the sewer from the school.

For the past several weeks there has been considerable discussion about allowing this new school to be connected to the sewer. At the last council meeting an agreement was ordered to be prepared whereby, if the township would pay $100 annually for the connection, the school would be connected with the city sewer line. The agreement is ready to be signed.

River of Gasoline Frightens Liverpool

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press). — Anxiety prevailed along the seven miles of docks here to-day as thousands of gallons of gasoline floated several inches deep on the turbid surface of the Mersey. Police, dock workers and firemen were on the alert lest by any chance this inflammable fluid be ignited and set Liverpool ablaze.

A strong odor of gasoline pervaded the dock area and streets half a mile inland from the Mersey, when the tank steamer Seminole broke in two, pouring its inflammable cargo on the surface of the stream. The fear remained to-day but apparently the disaster had been averted.

WIRELESS MESSAGE RECEIVED GREAT LAKES STEAMER SIGHTED

Missing Freighter Said To Have Piled Up Near Where Altadoc Struck.

NO WORD OF CREW.

May Solve Whereabouts of Grain Vessel—Coastguard To Investigate.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Dec. 14.—(A.P.)—Word was received here late yesterday afternoon by Brock Batten, general agent of the Canada Steamship Lines that the steamer Kamloops, unaccounted for since last Tuesday, was aground on the rocks off Keeweenaw Point. Communications have been established between Port Arthur and Eagle Harbor by wireless and a coastguard crew has left to investigate the report.

The message sent to Mr. Batten came from the head offices of the steamship company in Montreal.

Kamloops at Keeweenaw.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 14.— The Canada Steamships Company received word from the United States coast guard station at Chicago yesterday afternoon that possibly the missing steamer Kamloops was ashore off Keeweenaw Point. It is understood this news was wirelessed to Chicago from Sault Ste. Marie. Beyond this rumor the Canada Steamships Company has heard nothing about the Kamloops.

Requested To Make Search.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press.) — Fear that the Canadian package freighter Kamloops, which has been missing since last Tuesday, has gone down in Lake Superior with all on board, was expressed yesterday by marine officials here. All attempts to trace the vessel have proved futile.

The Eagle Harbor coast guard was requested yesterday by marine insurance underwriters of Chicago to search Kekeenaw Point for the missing steamer and its crew of 22 men. However ,the North Shore of the peninsula has been searched for three days for missing boats, according to information from Port Arthur, Ont., and no trace of the Kamloops has been found.

Marine men declare the only hope for the Kamloops' safety during the recent storm, which wrecked five vessels, would be based on the possibility that the ship made a run for the Canadian north shore or Bete Grise on the Keweenaw Peninsula. But it was believed the ship was caught in the same sweep of the storm that drove the Altadoc on the rocks off the peninsula.

The steamer F. E. Squires, which stood by the wreck of the Altadoc Sunday night, and the coast guard cutter Crawford, which has been up and down the Keweenaw coast, have seen no wreckage. Visibility has been good for many miles at Copper Harbor and Bete Grise.

The Eagle Harbor coast guard crew could make the requested search only under the greatest of difficulties, as it is virtually frozen in at the station. Captain G. Laza, however, has requested the return of the cutter Crawford, and it is expected that this boat will make a thorough search. The Kamloops is owned by the Canada Steamship Line.

TO ERECT STATION.

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 14.—Canadian Press. — The construction of the new Canadian National Railway station in this city will begin Jan. 1, if the council approves the plans for the structure, it was announced yesterday.

Former Movie Extra Sues Harry K. Thaw

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 13. —United Press.) — A $1000,000 damage suit charging that Harry K. Thaw proposed marriage to her and then left her was filed here by Miss Forest Hope Wall, former motion picture extra.

Miss Wall, in her complaint, charged that the Pittsburgh millionaire, who shot and killed Stanford White, wooed and won and left here at Laguna Beach in 1923. She then was 17 years old.

The complaint further charged that Thaw placed an engagement ring on her finger, wrote to her often and sent her money.

RURAL SCHOOL FAIR DISCUSSED

Many Suggestions Made For Improvements of Bridgenorth Meeting.

CLASSES ANNOUNCED.

The Smith Township Rural School Fair Association held a meeting in the Bridgenorth school house on Wednesday evening to discuss matters in connection with the Bridgenorth school fair. J. B. Nelson, of the Department of Agriculture, acted as chairman and explained the school fair situation.

Many suggestions were received and discussed. The most important resolution was one which embodied the increasing of the prizes and the new system of financing by which each school board pays the amount of prizes won by its school.

An important announcement was made by the Department of Agriculture at the school fair meeting on Wednesday night. The regular winter short courses in agriculture and domestic science are to be held in Bridgenorth in February. These courses usually draw an attendance of from twenty-five to one hundred in each class and it is hoped that every young man and woman within driving distance of Bridgenorth will take advantage of the courses.

The boys' classes will consist of instruction in livestock work, veterinary science, farm bookkeeping, etc. The girls' classes will receive instructions in domestic science, household management, sewing and home nursing.

LINER REACHES PORT.

Brings Five Men of Sunk Tug's Crew of Seven.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press.)— The sound liner Robert E. Lee arrived from Boston yesterday showing no damage from having rammed and sunk tug Neponset in Buzzard's Bay Monday. Two members of the tug's crew were lost, boats from the liner being unable to pick up more than five survivors. The drowned were Thomas Sampson, assistant engineer, and Rolbert Doncetti. Few details of the collision were given out.

TWO GIRLS HURT BY COLLISION

Car Hits Buggy at Curve in the Road Near Bethany.

GARAGE MAN OVERCOME.

BETHANY, Dec. 14. — The two young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Beer of the 8th line Manvers met with a serious accident on Friday night when they were driving home from school.

The two girls, Edna and Wilma, attend the Collegiate in Lindsay, going and returning each day by train. They drive their own horse and buggy the three miles from their home to the station.

On Friday evening the train was an hour late and so it was rather late when they started on their three mile drive. Just as they reached the curve in the road, which is rather a dangerous one between Simpson's and Challice's, as one must go down a hill, then around a curve and up another hill, a car driven by Mr. Wess Dainard and son Ed. of Ebenezer, on their way home from Pontypool, swept around the hill. The two vehicles collided, and the girls were thrown from their buggy and picked up unconscious. They were carried into Mr. John Challice's home and Dr. Hamilton was called. After they had been given the necessary treatment they were taken to their home. One girl needed 16 stitches in her head and the other was badly shaken and bruised, and it is not known exactly the extent of her injuries. Both are suffering from the shock of the accident and it is hard to determine just how badly they are hurt, but they are doing as well as can be expected.

Mr. Dainard could give no clear account of the accident as he did not see the buggy until he was almost upon it, as it did not have a light. His car was pretty badly damaged in trying to avoid the collision, but both he and his son escaped uninjured other than a bad shaking up. They were able to assist in getting medical attention for the young ladies.

A second and almost a fatal accident happened on Saturday at Harry Johnston's garage. Mr. Johnston was engaged in fixing a car. Several men were also in the garage at the time talking, none of them taking particular notice of the fumes of the gasoline which were beginning to fill the place. One of the men happened to remark that he was feeling rather sick. Another made the same remark and upon looking around they discovered that Mr. Johnston had become unconscious. He was carried out quickly and up to Dr. Hamilton's office, where they worked with him almost an hour before they could bring back his natural breathing. It was rather an anxious time for his parents and friends, but outside of being a little shaky he seems to be none the worse of the trying experience.

Competing in this event were three ex-champions of the international plowing match, and the plowman who won the championship at Langstaff this year.

The treasurer's report, presented by the retiring secretary-treasurer, L. C. McNeil, showed all obligations met, and a fair balance in the bank.

EARL STANHOPE IS OPPOSED TO NEW MEASURE

Debate On Revision of Prayer Book Continues in Upper House.

URGES POSTPONEMENT.

Until Bishops' Power Increased Sufficiently To Enforce Discipline.

LONDON, Dec. 14. Canadian Press. —The debate on the bill providing for the new book of prayer of the Church of England was continued in the House of Lords yesterday with Earl Stanhope opposing the measure. He urged a postponement of the bill until the powers of the bishops have been increased sufficiently to enable them to enforce discipline.

Lord Haldane's "respect for the Archbishop of Canterbury," prevented him from voting against the new prayerbook but he would not vote for it, for he declared that two prayerbooks would simply be inviting strife, difficulty and divisions in the church which could not be met by acts of parliament.

Lord Parmoor preferred to trust to the Archbishops and the Bishops. Therefore since they were convinced that the measure would restore peace and order in the church he would support the measure.

The Bishop of Worcester was convinced that the changes in the communion service involved changes of doctrines. The Bishop of Chelmsford expressed the opinion that the new book preserved what was best and truest in the reformation.

Lord Carson stigmatised the new book as "legalising illegalities," and would bring triumph to those who in the past thirty years have refused to obey the rubrics.

LINDBERGH OFF ON MEXICO HOP

Takes Air on 2,000 Mile Flight To the Mexican Capital.

MAKES BAD START.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press.)— Charles A. Lindbergh soared into the air on his second international flight yesterday, heading from Bolling Field toward Mexico City at the invitation of President Calles.

Disaster threatened the young trans-Atlantic flier at the start, but the Spirit of St. Louis responded to his touch and succeeded in a third determined effort to take off. The rain-soaked earth twice defied Lindbergh's effort to lift the plane off the ground as it roared across the field. Finally it slowly ascended, skimmed over trees bordering the aviation grounds and winged southward into the gray mist which blanketed the Potomac river.

As though exuberant with victory, Lindbergh and his silver partner started the 2,000 mile journey at such speed that some planes of a convoy which set out to cover the first stage of the flight could not keep pace. It was estimated here that Lindbergh was travelling at 110 miles an hour, but first reports of his progress estimated the speed at 80 miles an hour over Lynchburg, Va.

Lindbergh's decision to take off yesterday on a non-stop flight from capital to capital started Washington with its suddenness, as there had been indications that weather conditions might hold him up for a week or ten days.

LAKE FROZEN TWICE.

Bailieboro Young People Hope To Have Skating Shortly.

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 14.—Rice Lake froze over on Sunday last for the first time this season, and on Sunday evening a complete smooth surface had taken the place of the rough waves which had previously been seen. Thursday night's terrible wind swept the lake almost free from ice again. On Friday night the cold night air again sealed the cold waters of the lake beneath the second coating of ice for this season.

The young folks of the community are now looking ahead to good skating within the near future.

Wednesday night's and Friday's wind did very little damage in this district. Only a few limbs were blown across the telephone lines which caused a break in the wire. These breaks were soon mended and no other serious damage was reported, other than the occasional frozen radiator whose driver had not as yet filled his radiator with anti-freeze.

The small boys of the village have been endeavoring to locate a sheet of ice upon which they can take the rust off the blades of their skates. The ice on the ponds is very rough and difficult to navigate on.

So much more vigor

—when the system is cleansed of poisons we all have

Do you know that poisons form all the time in your system? They get into the blood stream and so rob you of the vigor, life, youth and energy you should have. Hardly anyone escapes them. Food wastes accumulate and fermentation takes place. As many as 36 of these ever-forming poisons are already known to science.

But nature has provided a natural sort of antidote. In a scientifically pure state this antidote is available to everybody under the trade name of Nujol. Nujol is a unique substance unlike anything else known to man. It cannot be absorbed by the body or any of the organs of the body. At the same time, it has an affinity for body poisons. It takes hold of them, absorbs them, and carries them out of the system safely and harmlessly. It also softens waste matter and brings about normal evacuation of the intestines. Gets rid of poisons, gets rid of food wastes, tends to heal and soothe irritated membranes. Contains no drugs or medicines. Absolutely harmless.

Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. It's in a class by itself. You can take it with perfect safety under any conditions. It won't cause gas or griping pains, or affect the stomach or kidneys.

Every corner druggist has Nujol. Make sure you get the genuine. Look for the Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay, get Nujol today.

CHEESE FACTORY CLOSES SEASON

Annual Meeting Held For Brae Cheese and Butter Company.

BURNBRAE, Dec. 14.—The Brae Cheese and Butter Co. closed its financial year on Saturday, December 10, when the annual meeting was held in the factory with a fair representation of patrons. The year's work, while on a slightly smaller scale than in 1926, was quite satisfactory with a yield of 94,952 pounds of cheese from 1,115,735 pounds of milk, average 11.75 pounds. The average price for a pound of cheese was 18.66 cents and for a pound of butterfat 45.06 cents.

The whey cream end of the business returned $666.59 to the account as prices were good and the separating plant operated all the time. Total receipts from all source amounted to $18,470.50 with a balance of about $250.00 divided to the patrons in addition to that paid each month.

Leslie Shillinglaw, the popular and very successful young maker of the Brae Co. competed his third year at the plant with a perfect average scoring 100 per cent. for grade. He is to be congratulated on this standing as only two other men in Northumberland county can show equal results. However, he failed to get into the money class for the prizes offered in the Central Ontario district as there are given on the average score so that he was beaten by makers who, during the year, produced second and even third grade cheese. Many feel this system to be unfair as not giving just recognition to the 100 per cent man.

Mr. Nicol, manager of Campbellford branch of the Bank of Montreal addressed the meeting and gave some interesting and very useful information on the market outlook for cheese and dairy products. He recalled the fact that cheese from Campbellford had gone to Wisconsin, the premier dairy state of the Union, during the past year.

A good deal of discussion arose over various matters of business but the utmost harmony prevailed and the patrons look forward to another successful season with the same maker at the helm.

Officers re-elected for 1928 are:
President—Malcolm Totton.
Secretary—E. L. Anderson.
Directors—Messrs. Percy Oddie, George Anderson, Bogart Linn, Ed. Wilson, Berty Hay.

REDS ESTABLISH SOVIET COUNCIL

Communist revolutionaries in Canton, and restore order.

Generals Pei Ching-Hsi foremost Nanking military leader, and Li Chai-Sum, who were ousted from Canton last month in a military coup, have been named as chiefs of the counter expedition.

Accuse Kuomintang

The Nanking forces, through their mouthpiece, the Kuomin News Agency at Nanking, Monday accused the Canton Kuomintang delegation now in Shanghai, for a party conference, of plotting and provoking the Canton revolt. The Kuo Min branded Wang Ching Wai, former chairman of the Central Executive committee of the Kuomintang party, as a ringleader under Bolshevist direction. The Nanking group demanded the arrest of the whole delegation.

Apparently a similar official demand for their arrest was made to the French police in the French concession, but it was ignored after the French had consulted Chiang Kai-Shek, the newly appointed head of the Kuomintang Nationalists, who declined to interfere unless he had further evidence in support of the accusations.

Chinese observers here refuse to believe the Canton members of the Kuomintang have any connection with the revolution there. According to one story here, the revolution was precipitated prematurely through an order last week of the Nanking group to the Canton authorities to surround the Russian consulate and to observe suspicious Chinese visitors.

The Nanking official news agency asserts that Chinese gunboats which had been loyal and were bombarding Canton yesterday, have gone over to the Communists. The agency also says the Communist forces are commanded by the Communist generals, Yeh Ting, who recently seized Swatow, and Tang Yen Ta, formerly a member of the Hankow government.

Attack City.

LONDON, December 14 Canadian Press — The Communists at Canton are being expelled by the Nationalist government forces under General Li Chai Sum says a Hong Kong despatch to the Westminster Gazette. General Li is reported to have resumed control of the greater part of the town.

As they retired the Communists left in their wake looted and burning buildings.

Would Close Consulate.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 14. — Canadian Press. — In an interview with foreign newspapermen yesterday Chiang Kai-Shek, the head of the Kuomintang party, stated that at a party conference last week he instructed Foreign Minister G. C. Wu and General Pei Ching-Hai to "take the necesary steps to close the Soviet consulates in Nationalist territory in China."

Chiang said these instructions had hitherto been kept secret pending their execution but that the outbreak in Canton made it necessary for the Nanking government to declare its attitude.

Rumored May Form New Shipping Line

PRETORIA, South Africa, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's).—Recent rumors of the contemplated formation of a new shipping line to compete with the so-called Conference Steamship Lines, gave interest to a conference yesterday which was summoned by the Union Government to discuss the ocean mail and freight question.

Attended by representatives of industry, commerce and agriculture, the conference yielded a frank discussion and dealt with the proposals from various shipping interests. The view of the business interests inclined towards coming to terms if possible with the present contractors. The industrial section pressed for the appointment of a shipping board.

WARSAW WOMEN HOLD MEETINGS

Anglican Ladies' Guild and Women's Institute Transact Business.

WARSAW, December 14. — The Anglican Ladies' Guild held their regular meeting at Mrs. H. G. E. Choate's home on Wednesday. A large number of the ladies were present. Business in connection with the recent play was done.

There was a little discussion about having some room to hold the meetings, but it was finally decided that as Mrs. H. G. E. Choats was willing to have the gatherings at her home, they would hold them there.

The hostess served a delicious lunch, and a pleasant social half-hour.

The Warsaw Woman's Institute was postponed until Saturday evening, on account of the storm. Mesdames Henry Clements and William Dunford gave their report on the necessity of aiding some little ones, and aid was sent.

It is expected there will be a class in cooking some time soon.

FIRE VICTIMS BACK ON JOB

Miss Hampton, Barker and Chittick, and Earl Edwards Have New Quarters.

'PHONES OUT OF ORDER.

LAKEFIELD December 14. — The work of reconstruction after the fire has gone on briskly; Chittick and Barker, who saved their cars, found immediate quarters in Dr. Kennedy's barn just two doors north of their former quarters. Miss Hampton is staying with Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Charlton and both she and the livery garage are carrying on 'business as usual."

Earl Edwards, who lost the entire contents of his barber shop, is opening up again in the little White Shop north of D. B. Millar's shop.

It is understood that Roland Bullock will not rebuild his garage at present. Mr. Bullock suffered a heavy loss with no insurance to cover it. Some of his tools have been salvaged.

The fire on Saturday morning paralyzed the telephone service putting 176 phones out of commission, rural lines to the north and east, including the line to Young's Point, Burleigh, Apsley, Warsaw and Hall's Glen, and all the village lines north and north east of the burned building. Linesmen are working and are gradually bringing things to a normal state.

L. H. WINSLOW IS RE-ELECTED

vice-president, H. A. Fallis, insisted he could not assume the responsibility for the coming twelve months, and Mr. Winslow consented to the will of the meeting, and remains as president for another term.

The appointment of J. Y. Kellough, the Agricultural representative for Durham County, to the office of secretary-treasurer, following the resignation of L. C. McNeil, was in accordance with the precedent set by several other plowmen's associations in the province, this being the customary procedure with a number of these organizations. The duties of the office are quite in line with the district representative's work, and it was felt that he could help to build up the membership coming in touch, as he constantly does, with so many of the farmers of the countryside and give helpful advice and assistance in a number of other ways.

It was decided to hold the annual plowing match again next fall, the date and place, with other arrangements, to be settled at a later meeting. About $300.00 was given in prizes, either in cash or goods, at the match this fall, and it was felt that, while the number of entries was exceedingly good, the number of spectators would have been increased and interest and enthusiasm would reach a still higher point had there been a more general understanding of the status of the competitors, particularly those from outside the community, and the excellence of the work that was done.

Reference to the substantial assistance given in arranging the prizes by the businessmen of Peterborough, as well as the local merchants, was gratefully made, since without this generosity, renewed from year to year, the Association could not stage a plowing match on the scale that is successfully done every fall. Worthwhile prizes must be offered if outside plowmen are to be induced to compete.

CANDIDATE GIVES FRIENDS BANQUET

Archie Deyell, Defeated For Boys' Parliament Seat, Holds Reception.

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 14.—Archie Deyell, who was the candidate for the Boys' Parliament from this district, gave a reception to the Tuxis Boys of the village and also to three of the young men of Port Hope who so ably assisted him in the recent election, at his home on Friday evening.

Although Archie was defeated by a small majority by Laurence Dunbar of Garden Hill, he still is greatly interested in the work and is doing all he can to promote the boys' movement in this district.

About thirty of the young men were present. After the usual Tuxis opening ceremony the evening was most enjoyably spent in playing games, joining in sing-songs, etc.

At the conclusion of the program a bountiful luncheon was catered by Mrs. Deyell and the boys did full justice to the sumptuous repast. At the conclusion of the luncheon a hearty vote of thanks was moved by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Foley. A. Dawson seconded the motion, after which everyone declared it had been a most enjoyable evening.

Among the Tuxis Boys of Port Hope who were present were Messrs. Fred Ough, F. Grenaway, R. Davidson.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 14.—Cortland Linton, of Calgary, is spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Linton, Front street.

Ernest Bayes, Oshawa, is in town for a few days visit to his home.

Mr. W. I. Stillman, who has been spending the past few months in Rochester, N.Y., returned to town recently. Mr. Stillman expects to remain in town during the winter.

At the December meeting of St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid Society, the officers for 1928 were elected. Honorary President, Mrs. James Alexander; President, Mrs. J. A. Anderson; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. Allan Watson, Mrs. James Walkinshaw, Mrs. J. R. Batisby and Mrs. Patrick, in the order named; Secretary, Mrs. Robert Greenly; Treasurer, Mrs. Charles McKelvie; Pianist, Mrs. William Hume.

The Reverend James Grier occupied the chair for the election proceedings, and as the routine business and election of officers took up more than the usual time, there was no program other than the customary devotional exercises. The January meeting will be the second Thursday in the month.

The soft weather and the heavy rain yesterday, have ruined the ice in the curling rink and the members are beginning to despair of starting the season for the roarin' game before Christmas.

The Regent Theatre is offering a very good program for the first part of the week. The picture is Marriage License and has the initial scenes taken in Canada. It is the tale of a very charming and well-bred Canadian girl who married into one of the oldest families in England. Her mother-in-law was very much opposed to the marriage and made life very hard for the girl, all because she was not one of "the blood." Eventually came separation and divorce proceedings, instigated because a friend of her Canadian home appeared in England and called upon her. She used the friendship to try to make life more bearable. Many interesting scenes follow depicting the passing of eighteen years. Then the question of just how much worry a woman can stand and what sacrifices she will make for her children arises. It is one of the few pictures which do not end in the usual movie fashion, but in a way which one would be more likely to expect in every day life.

The comedy and serial pictures are also very entertaining. For the week end program, a musical comedy is to take the place of the usual movies.

OMEMEE, Dec. 14.—The Lindsay man, who was remanded on December 2nd, on the charge of stealing a sum of money from the Omemee C.N.R. station, came up for sentence on Friday last in Lindsay. Magistrate Jordan, in reviewing the evidence, stated that every action of the accused pointed to his guilt and he had also been proven to be intoxicated. Although he denied many statements made by witnesses and swore he was innocent, Magistrate Jordan felt he was guilty and sentenced him to the Reformatory for a period of seven months determinate and eight months indeterminate.

Advertising Rates on application.

R. M. GLOVER, Managing Director.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 14, 1927.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER.

In presenting its annual Christmas edition for the benefit of its readers today, The Examiner is satisfied that it will be found not only of absorbing interest because of the wealth of Christmas stories and articles it contains, but also of unusual value by reason of the fact that it is a complete Christmas shopping guide that should be of the greatest assistance to holiday shoppers.

This last-named feature makes The Examiner's Christmas edition of unique importance, inasmuch as every article offered by advertisers will be found indexed alphabetically with the name of the advertiser mentioned and the number of the page.

Peterborough merchants have rarely advertised so extensively or to such good purpose as they have done in this edition, and with an index to help readers quickly locate advertisements in which they are particularly interested the most discriminating shopper should be able to satisfy his or her needs.

Readers will appreciate the desirability of saving today's Examiner for reference purposes; it will be of daily value until the Christmas season is over.

THE LETTER CARRIERS.

The fact that nineteen members of the local letter carriers staff have qualified for the special badges issued by the Post Office Department signifying at least five completed years of service is of interest.

The "posties" are awarded one of these badges for every five years' service, and one local carrier has received four, showing twenty years' service, while seven others have been carrying mail here for at least fifteen years.

It would be interesting to know just how many miles have been walked by these veterans, and how many pounds of mail they have carried by them.

In all kinds of weather, through winter's storms, the rains of spring and autumn and the heat of summer, these faithful servants of the public have been on the job, and just at this season of the year when the enormous Christmas increase in the mails adds greatly to their work they should not be forgotten.

Anything that can be done by timely mailing of Christmas parcels or in any way to help lighten the burden would be appreciated by the "posties."

SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED.

If there were any doubts as to the necessity of such an organization as the Canadian Legion to fight for the rights of returned men in this country the story from Kingston yesterday in regard to nine war veterans in the Rockwood Hospital there should convince the public generally that much work remains for the Legion to do.

It is alleged from Kingston that in the case of these unfortunate men, still in hospital over nine years after the end of the war, the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and the Board of Pension Commissioners have refused to recognize any responsibility towards the veterans or their families.

This in spite of a statement from Dr. Edward Ryan, Superintendent of the hospital, and administering all other similar hospitals in the Province to the following effect:

"It is clear to us that the disability of these men is due to service, and there is no doubt about this in the minds of the medical staff of this institution."

If a man of Dr. Edward Ryan's standing so emphatically declares that these nine ex-service men are where they are because of their war experiences the Canadian Legion is entirely justified in instituting a vigorous demand for a thorough investigation, and they will have public opinion thoroughly behind them.

GROUPS IN POLITICS.

The Oshawa branch of the Canadian Legion is preparing to enter the field of municipal politics by placing a member of the Legion as a candidate for the City Council in each of the five wards.

The organization is perfectly within its rights in adopting such a policy, but at the same time there will be many who will doubt the wisdom of the Legion's programme.

Certainly an attempt to elect five of its own members convicts the Oshawa branch of a desire to establish something that savors of group government, and no administration, municipal, Provincial or Federal, that tries to operate on the group principle is capable of fully efficient service.

There are few municipal problems that affect ex-service men as such; that is, the matters that City Councils have to deal with are of interest to all citizens whether they have a military record or not.

Don't let us be misunderstood on this point; The Examiner is always glad to see ex-service men ready to serve in municipal positions and carry on for Canada at home as they carried on over there.

There would be not the slightest objection to a whole Council of war veterans—in fact, such a Council would probably prove a splendid success.

What we find fault with in the Oshawa move is, that it is an attempt on the part of an organization to elect its members as such to municipal positions, and that is a condition that The Examiner opposes on principle whether the organization be a Trades and Labour Council, a federation of returned soldiers, a fraternal society, a political party, or the United Farmers of Ontario.

We maintain that our municipal bodies should be composed of men who appeal to the electorate on their own qualifications for office and the policies they stand for, rather than as the representatives of any particular organization or element in the community.

THE CHRISTMAS CAROL.

The Christmas carol, we are told, had its birthplace in Italy, and St. Francis of Assisi, that strange blending of mirthfulness and asceticism, of prophetic fervor and childish simplicity, was its originator. It had quite a few years of development in the land of its birth before it spread over into other parts of the continent, and especially into England, where it became quite a national institution.

There was a definite idea and purpose back of the Christmas carol as first instituted. In a day when religion was at a low ebb and all the services of the church were conducted in a language that the people did not understand, these bright yet homely songs, written in the vernacular always, that embodied some of the great facts of the gospel in very simple terms, made a strong appeal to the people and could scarcely fail of having a very helpful religious effect and influence. Those who listened to them and helped to sing them got a new idea of religion as of something every-day and friendly that had to do with the common life of the common people.

For instance, it has meant something to the English people that for so many years at the Christmas time they were singing such songs as that very early and surely most charming of the English carols that begins:

God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
Remember, Christ our Saviour
Was born on Christmas day.

This and many others written in a similar strain, suggests a very simple and homely kind of religion, but after all that is the kind of religion that the whole Christmas story suggests, and perhaps it is the kind of religion and of religious feeling that we do not have quite enough of in this our day.—The New Outlook.

THE C.N.R. AND THE MARITIMES.

Although Premier Baxter of New Brunswick may complain that the management of the Canadian National Railways is endeavoring to upset the will of Parliament as expressed in the legislation governing reduced freight rates in the Maritime Provinces, the fact remains that the same management is at this moment doing a very great deal for the benefit and development of the Maritime Provinces and that the people residing in them will profit accordingly.

From every part of the Maritime Provinces the word comes that business is visibly improving and that employment is better than for years past. To that improvement the National Railways, which serve the bulk of the transportation needs of that section of the Dominion, are contributing materially. Not only have the National lines done something for the tourist traffic in the Maritimes through the opening of a summer resort in Nova Scotia, but the hotel which they are now building in Halifax will without doubt result in a marked impetus to the tourist movement through that city. Another report has it that the National Railways have agreed to bear part of the cost of a new hotel in Sydney, and the manufacturers of the Maritime industrial areas are benefitting from orders for material which have been placed by the railways.

It is, however, in the routing of traffic via the winter ports of the Maritimes that the National Railways are rendering that part of the country perhaps the most important service. In other years the complaint has been that although these ports possessed facilities for the handling of a large number of passengers and a large quantity of freight, not enough advantage was being taken of them by Canadian shippers, who were routing their export goods via Portland and other United States ports. That situation is in process of being reversed, due in part to the lower freight rates which now prevail and in part to the energy which is being displayed by the management of the railways in endeavoring to divert such shipments to the Canadian winter ports.

Halifax, essentially a Canadian National terminal, is looking forward to perhaps the busiest winter season that it has ever experienced as a result of the adoption of such a policy. Several of the ocean steamship lines which have working arrangements with the National lines are making greater use of the port of Halifax than for several years; increased sailings are to be made therefrom by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, which makes Halifax the base for its growing West Indian trade, and, almost entirely due to the efforts of Canadian National representatives, several million bushels of grain which formerly moved abroad through other channels are already on the way to Halifax and will furnish additional employment at that harbor. As well, large cargoes of paper which formerly proceeded to Australia via New York are this year to pass through Halifax, where they will be loaded upon Canadian Government Merchant Marine vessels for their distant destination. This one item of new business alone means that each of the three boats which leave Halifax every month for Australia and New Zealand will carry 1,000 tons of paper that formerly went through New York. Nor is this great improvement in both the import and export trade through Halifax merely a flash in the pan. One Canadian National official states that the increase promises to be permanent, "for both the import and export business of the country is rapidly on the increase and, besides, we are handling ever-increasing cargoes of products from the Far East which are now being diverted to Halifax."

Having these facts and other facts which might be mentioned in mind, the independent observer will arrive at the conclusion that complaint from the Maritime Provinces regarding the management of the Canadian National lines comes with very poor grace. That management is doing its utmost to promote prosperity in the Maritimes and is obtaining results.—The Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A Toronto expert says the standard of music is improving in Canada. He must have heard the Curve Lake Band.

The Examiner Christmas number makes it easy for you to finish your Christmas shopping. Don't fail to take advantage of the index.

At least today's deputation will satisfy the Ontario Department of Health that Peterborough is developing a health consciousness.

The British public next week is to see a comet with a woolly tail. Just what the people of Ontario will see may depend to some extent upon how extensively they patronize Mr. Hanna's refreshment booths.

Canada's climate seems to be developing unusual kinks. While Peterborough has been experiencing a warm rain and spring-like conditions, Vancouver has had the heaviest snow-fall in recent years.

A motorist who travelled 50 miles an hour on Queen street, Toronto, was fined $100 in the Police Court. That's making the punishment fit the crime.

The early rush of candidates indicates that deputy-returning officers and poll clerks at Peterborough's civic election will earn their money.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, December 14 (Canadian Press). — The foreign demand for wheat here yesterday was again of a limited character, and only a few loads were worked by local exporters on the decline in prices at Winnipeg. The local market for oats was weaker and prices were reduced one cent per bushel with little trade passing.

In sympathy with the weakness in the Winnipeg cash wheat market, a weaker feeling developed in spring wheat flour here, and prices declined ten cents per barrel. The demand continued dull.

Prices for winter wheat flour were about steady, with a small trade passing.

Owing to the continued good inquiry from the United States for all lines of millfeed and the fact that available supplies here are somewhat limited, a very strong feeling prevailed and prospects are that prices will be advanced again in the near future. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was steady under a fair demand.

The demand for fresh and storage eggs continued good, and the undertone was firm. fiThe receipts were 1,368 cases.

The market for potatoes was without any new feature to note owing to the continued limited demand. Prices were about steady. Car lots of Prince Edward Island whites were quoted at $1.05 per bag of 90 pounds; Prince Edward Island Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at 95c per bag in bulk, and Quebec varieties at 90 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

The tone of the market for imported beans remained steady, with a moderate amount of business passing. Sales of choice white hand-picked were made at $2.50 per bushel on spot, and to arrive at $2.50 per bushel ex-track, while broken lots sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

The trade in butter showed no improvement, but prices showed no change. The receipts were 29 packages.

There was nothing new in the cheese situation to note, business being slow, but as supplies on spot for sale are claimed to be small, the undertone to the market remained steady. The receipts were 371 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, December 14 (Canadian Press). — General selling out on the part of holders of future delivery grain contracts led to an all-round smash in prices yesterday. Corn in particular showed weakness largely as a result of an unexpectedly good-sized amount of corn being delivered yesterday to settle Chicago December contracts.

Other sources of weakness was an announcement of 4,102,000 bushels increase of the world available supply of wheat.

Closing quotations on corn were heavy, 3 to 3½ cents net lower; wheat, 2c to 2¾c down; oats, 1¼c to 1⅝c off; and provisions unchanged to 20c decline.

Increasing arrivals of corn in the south-west and west of late had apparently much to do with the bottom dropping out of the corn market yesterday. The free movement of corn in the sections named was responsible for making total primary domestic receipts big compared to a year ago, and with a sharp break reported yesterday in Argentine and Liverpool corn prices, the majority of Chicago traders turned to the selling side. In this connection it was current gossip that corn recently bought for a leading speculator here had come back into the pit.

New Argentine corn was reported yesterday as being offered for April shipment, and word was also received that Liverpool corn prices were depressed on account of very large arrivals of corn expected at Liverpool this week. Under such circumstances little or no notice was taken of the fact that corn belt weather conditions were unfavorable, that country offerings to Chicago were light, and that eastern shipping demand here had improved.

Total primary receipts here yesterday were 1,123,000 bushels, against 846,000 bushels a year ago. Deliveries of corn in Chicago yesterday on December contracts were 750,000 bushels.

In the wheat market, an outstanding feature was that the world's available supply totalled 291,024,000 bushels, compared with 237,895,000 bushels a year back. There were also advices of larger offerings of wheat from Argentina and Australia at a sharp discount under wheat from North America. Meanwhile, a leading authority here pointed out that with 89,000,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply, 53,000,000 bushels in the Canadian visible supply, and 37,000,000 bushels of bonded wheat in store in the United States, the situation did not suggest any scarcity for some time.

Oats were easier owing to sympathy with other grain.

Provisions declined, responsible to the action of hog values and corn.

FOR WAYFARING MEN

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir.—It is a queer state of mind which prompts a man to speak for God and explain the Bible without even pretending to have any special authority for doing so. How can people explain for sure the revelation and plans of Almighty God unless He inspires them? Explanations of Scripture that appear in the press from time to time assume that when God addressed His message to mankind He did not know how to do so without its being supplemented by critics, commentators, self-appointed explainers, exhorters, etc. If the Bible needs any of these human helps it cannot be of God, who is all sufficient unto Himself and to us. Read the Bible for yourself, dear reader, each one for himself and there will be found the statement that it is a state of mind and of will not of knowledge, which enables a reader, be he ever so humble, to interpret for himself God's message to him. The Bible is to be read as no human book is to be read. It alone is the Work of a perfect Author. It is not only the work of a perfect Author, but of one who when He gets a willing (not a learned—) reader knows how to tell him exactly what He wants to tell him without human intervention. Put the Bible to one side and away from other books. It is a holy Book. God says in the Bible that those to whom He spake are to go abroad and tell the glad tidings, to teach or tell all people, but nowhere in the Bible does He say that any body is to explain or interpret what He says. He does that. That would mean that His Word is dependent upon others to tell it and by the time it got to the people it might be anything but what He intended. No, no. "Those who will to do well shall know o f the doctrine." That is all that is necessary. God will, if you are willing, do all that is necessary to put Himself and His message in touch with you and with each of the humblest of mankind.

But what is far worse even than setting oneself up as a teacher and instructor or guesser is the idea that such a thing is necessary. It shows a lack of faith in God's knowledge of how best to do things and brings Him down to the level of any other writer of books. Read and you will learn, and if you cannot read then ask others to read the Bible to you, but beware of explainers. It is God's Bible, not their's and they do not at all know that what they say is right. Unless God is to the willing, though humble and ignorant man at all times ready and willing to give knowledge of His meaning, then the Bible is a failure. It cannot be explained if God cannot explain it or will not do so. It is a matter of the heart, not of the head. Men, of themselves, can never understand the things of God. It is absurd for people to rise up to "explain" them. They cannot do so. It is beyond them. If a proclamation were sent out in the name of King George by all sorts of people along the roads and in the streets, who would pay any attention to it? Naturally, they would expect it to be published and put out properly, and in language that his loyal subjects can understand, and so it is with the Bible. "A wayfaring man, though a fool, cannot err therein."

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Whatever else may be said of Chicago, give credit where credit is due. The aims there are pretty good.

Did you know that Shylock was only making a play for human interest?

Maybe all this talk about Russia cutting her army in half is only intended to be disarming.

After all, the bickerings about evolution seem to be only gorilla warfare after all.

PETROLEUM ROYALTIES.

The progress of the Petroleum Royalties Company through successful operations and conservative management has placed this company in the very forefront of the royalty companies of America.

During the past year the earnings of the company have steadily increased. On December 1 1926, the earnings were $10,500 per month; in May, 1927, the earnings had crept up to $22,000 per month, and by the time the annual statement was issued on September 30, 1927, the earnings were shown to be approximately 25,00 per month, and by Dec. 1, the monthly earnings had jumped to over $31,000 per month.

The royalties owned by the company in December, 1926, have—during the past year—increased from 36 to over 70 royalties as on December 1st.

In December, 1926 the company was receiving royalty oil from nearly 393 producing wells, and on December, 1927, the company was receiving royalty oil from nearly 700 wells with a daily production of more than 110,000 barrels.

Since the first dividend was paid in February, 1926, the company will have distributed to shareholders 34½ per cent. by Jan. 1, 1928.

The company's income which now amounts to over $31,000 per month—is received from its royalty interests entirely free of cost, bringing the company's annual earnings to nearly 50 per cent. of the 750,000 outstanding shares. It is therefore quite easy to understand how it is possible for the Petroleum Royalties Company to pay such large dividends to its shareholders, and after dividends—amounting to 19 per cent. for the current year—have been paid, the whole of the balance is reinvested in new producing royalties to build up the reserves of the company.

The Petroleum Royalties Company is in a unique position as its charter restricts it from investing any money whatever in drilling wells or other phases of the oil industry. It is restricted to the one purpose of investing in oil royalties and confines its purchases to producing royalties in the well known oil fields of the Mid-Continent which are being operated by the major oil companies

The royalties owned by the company are actually the first mortgage on the oil produced by the great oil companies of America and its preferred shares are backed by such excellent security that they can rightly be regarded as an absolutely safe investment.

The above results have been accomplished during a time when oil has been at its lowest price for some years. When the price of oil comes back to normal—as it will due in due course—the earnings of the Petroleum Royalties Company will be greatly enhanced, and should considerably exceed the present high income. 1d-140-3909

Toronto Market Active; Changes Fractional

TORONTO, Dec. 14. Canadian Press. — The trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange was fairly active during the morning's session to-day. Brazilian Traction selling at 220, recorded a gain of 6 points; International Nickel, after scoring a new high at 75⅝ dropped to 74 7-8 for a loss of 1-8. Canadian Oil suffered a loss of 3 points at 45 and Cockshutt preferred made a gain of 3 points at 108. Fractional gains and losses were numerous. British American Oil, Carlings and Massey-Harris were each up ⅛ while Imperial Oil, Toronto Brewing and Malting and Industrial Alcohol each recorded a loss of ½ point.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press). — Corn developed fresh strength today, owing largely to the pronounced bullish stand taken by leading speculators. Offerings of corn from the country today in Chicago were light and notices of consignments were also meagre. Opening at ⅛ to ⅝c advance, corn reacted somewhat but soon rose higher than before. Wheat averaged lower early, starting at ⅛c off to ⅛c up and later showing losses all around. Oats were easy.

Opening prices were:

Wheat, December 126⅞, March 129½. Corn, December 85⅝, March 89½." Oats, December 52¼, March 54.

DETROIT TRADES BALL PLAYERS WITH ST. LOUIS

Lu Blue and Harry Manush Given in Exchange for Three Men.

BOTH LEAGUES MEET

Shotten Gives Mokan, Cooney and Jonnard for Pair.

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (A.P.).—Two of the biggest baseball deals of the Winter were completed yesterday in as busy a trade market as has ever marked the opening of the Winter major league gathering.

While magnates went into a "huddle" behind closed doors, brisk negotiations in the hotel corridors developed these two outstanding transactions:

1.—Exchange of Lu Blue, first baseman, and Harry Manush, outfielder, of the Detroit Tigers, for Harry Rice, outfielder, and Elam Van Gilder, pitcher, of the St. Louis Browns, along with a third player to be tossed into the bargain later by the Browns.

2.—Another five-player transfer by which the St. Louis Cardinals obtained Shortstop Cooney, Outfielder Johnny Mokan and Catcher Clarence Jonnard from the Phillies in exchange for Catcher Schulte and Pitcher Jimmy Ring.

Both deals were declared to be devoid of cash consideration.

Speculation focused on the identity of the third player the Browns are to send to Detroit, but it seemed fairly certain, despite reports to the contrary, that it would not be George Sisler, famous first sacker.

Sisler is still one of the principal prize packages on the market and his departure from St. Louis is regarded as a certainty in view of the acquistion of Blue, unless the latter is to be involved in another trade. Detroit, however, has Johnny Neun available for duty at the initial bag.

Washington, the Athletics and White Sox all were reported angling for Sisler, with the Senators most likely to obtain him. Bucky Harris, Washington's young pilot, was noncommittal on the subject, except to say that he was interested in any advantageous proposal.

Record Business

The National League not only did a record-breaking business in 1927, eclipsing all previous attendance figures, but smashed two other marks for good measure by using more baseballs and postponing more games than ever before.

Handling an assortment of figures with the skill of a veteran statistician, President John Heydler advised the club owners, at the first session of their annual meeting, that the year's attendance had exceeded 5,300,000, that 86 big games had been postponed, and that 51,996 baseballs were tossed out by the umpires.

The attendance, barometer of prosperity, passed the 5,000,000 mark for the first time. Chicago, for the second straight year, led in home game attendance, exceeding 1,000,000, but the New York Giants played before the greatest total attendance, nearly 2,000,000, for games at home and away. The Giants played to bigger crowds on enemy fields than they did at home, drawing well over a million spectators, while on the road.

Increased Home Attendance

The club showing increased home attendance, in the order of their gains, were: Chicago, New York, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. Attendance dropped off slightly in Boston and Brooklyn, but to a marked degree in Cincinnati.

The club owners approved continuance of the three umpire system at all games for 1928; voted an honorary life membership in the league to August Herrmann, former Cincinnati president, in recognition of his long services in the game, and decided to dedicate baseball's memorial to Christy Matheson at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa., next June 3 or 4. This memorial will take the form of a gateway to the athletic stadium.

NO BEATING THE GU N UNDER THIS SYSTEM

There'll be no unnecessary delay nor injuring of horses on American race tracks if all tracks use this system of starting races. Mars. Cassidy, famous starter, has invented a scheme to get the horses away from the barrier that will eliminate jumping and false starts and also make injury less possible. His scheme provides separate stall for each horse to line up before the barrier is sprung. This photograph shows the new scheme being tried out at Tia Juana.

Most Pitchers of To-D ay Let Down In Tight Place, Chief Bender Thinks

PHILADELPHIA, December 14 — Chief Bender, who achieved fame as a pitcher when Connie Mack was winning pennants with the Athletics will again coach the baseball candidates for the varsity team at Annapolis.

During the reign of Eddie Collins as manager of the Chicago White Sox, he had Bender join his team as coach upon the conclusion of his work with the Navy team late in June.

Collins feels that Bender did much to help Ted Lyons and Ted Blankenship develop a change of pace and thereby aided them to increase their effectiveness greatly. Lyons is now rated one of the best pitchers in either league.

"Th greatest difference between pitchers of 15 or 20 years ago and those of to-day is the difference in the stuff that it put on the 'pay' ball," says Bender.

"You know in baseball, the 'pay' ball is the all-important one. With the count three balls and two strikes and a couple of runners on the bases, will the next pitch be the 'cripple,' a fast ball, or will it be the sharp-breaking curve or change of pace?

"I have noticed that in the pinch many of the present-day pitchers go to the fast ball, the very thing the batter is hoping for.

"The pinch calls for something different. Insted of using the 'fat' one, the fast ball, the really great pitcher slips up his best curve or goes to the change of pace ball.

"The curve or the change of pace calls for 'guts,' control and poise. Too few of the modern pitchers have all three.

"A tendency to let down in the pinch is the prevailing fault of present-day pitchers. A change of pace would help to overcome that."

MODIFIED DRAFT SUITS MAPLE LEAFS

Other Club Owners Also Satisfied With Major-Minor Agreement.

TORONTO, December 14. — All is not exactly lovely in the International League.

Some of the club owners are disposed to make trouble over President J. Conway Toole over the attitude that he took in connection with the draft at the National Association meeting. Toole, who is a salaried employee, voted for the abrogation of the modified draft against the wishes of several of the magnates, notably President Solman, of the Leafs, and it is planned to tell him a thing or two at the meetin scheduled for New York to-day.

The Toronto club is tangled up with the New York Giants and the Detroit Tigers in a business way and has no desire to estrange these relations. Mr. McGraw of the former club, owes the Leafs some players in the deal for Jess Doyle, and Mr. Navan of the Bengals is expected to ship a catcher and a pitcher to Toronto in exchange for Hargrave. If another draft war is declared the Toronto club may have to worry along without the athletes in question and with the player market in the precarious condition that it is, this would help.

None of the class AA leagues favored a break with the majors but they were outvoted by the smaller organizations at the Dallas convention. Naturally the men who have millions invested in parks and players were greatly incensed over the action of the smaller fry and there was some talk of cutting loose from their connection and going it on their own, but this idea was abandoned after mature deliberation.

Mr. Solman and his associates have left for New York and while away it is more than likely that they will put through several transactions —Satterfield, Spencer, Lamotte, Fisher, Styles and High are on the market, and they will be used in trades if the opportunity presents itself. In any event it is extremely improbable that anyone of the lot mentioned will return here next spring.

LOUGHAN ASKS FOR WEEK'S REST

Will Defend Light Heavyweight Title Against Leo Lomiski.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—The promise of Tommy Loughran, that he would fight "twelve times in twelve months if possible" when he came into undisputed possession of the world light heavyweight title, seemed on the way to partial fulfillment yesterday.

The husky young Philadelphian, recognized for months as the 175-poupd king by the New York State Athletic Commission, whipped Jimmy Slattery, crowned titleholder by the National Boxing Association, only Monday night, but yesterday afternoon he was ready to make good his promise.

"Just one week's rest," he added, "and I shall start training for my first real title defence against Leo Lomski in Madison Square Garden and then I want another match with Slattery as quickly as it can be arranged. Anyone else who aspires to the title has only to come forward and ask for a chance to fight, and I'll accommodate them."

Loughran will debate the question of who won Monday night's thrilling 15-round tussle in the Garden with his fists alone. While a round-up of expert pugilistic opinion granted Tommy a clear margin of victory at the close of the struggle, Loughran was uninterested in the controversy, preferring to state his side of the argument again under the calcium lights in the Garden at 175 pounds at three o'clock of the day chosen.

GOES TO PORT ARTHUR

Another star has been discoverd. Mr. "Norb." McClory who gained fame in Lindsay for his goal minding has startled another audience. "Norb." was well known for his lightning saves. Now he has gone to Port Arthur and is trying out for his favorite position of "Guardian of the Nets." Port Arthur people are hard to satisfy, but this is what they thought of him:

"McClory, a new prospect for the goal tending position with the senior hockey team looked good in practice last night in spite of the fact that it was his first time in the nets this year. He handles himself well and is lightning-like in making clearances. —Lindsay Daily Post.

O.H.A. Referees In Toronto Session

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—The Ontario Hockey Association held a get-together of their referees in the Prince George Hotel yesterday afternoon. Secretary Bill Hewitt read over each and every rule to the thirty-five odd members present. That the meeting cleared up many details was very evident by the questions asked.

A strong tendency to do away with all kinds of stalling was the feeling of everyone. The delegates led by Mike Rodden's suggestion went on record of even prohibiting teams from shooting the puck up the ice until they had carried the rubber up to their 60-foot blue line. That would do away with the usual practise near the end of the game when teams shot right from behind their own goal to the other end.

President George McKay was in the chair and asked the referees to encourage clean sport at all times. He further added that teams must at all times play hockey and not rag the puck.

Risko, Through Recent Fight Victories Must Get Recognition From Tex Rickard

NEW YORK, December 14. — Following his victories over Paulino and Phil Scott, the British heavyweight champion, Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, has practically forced himself into the elimination tournament by which Tex Rickard hopes to find the logical challenger for Gene Tunney in the next heavyweight championship fight.

Although Jimmy Johnston, Scott's manager, claims his man was made the victim of a raw decision in Cleveland when Patsy Haley gave the fight to Risko, Scott has failed to make a serious impression upon the Garden matchmakers. He is admitted to be a polished boxer, but he hasn't the color that Rickard wants.

Risko probably will be offered a match against the winner of the coming contest between Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney, and if he should be able to win he would be in line for a crack at Jack Dempsey.

While Risko is looked upon as a sort of clown fighter here, there are some smart critics who think he would give Dempsey plenty of trouble. He is of the Willie Meehan and Harry Greb style of boxer, and it is a matter of record that Dempsey couldn't do much with either one of them when he was at his best.

Rickard probably would prefer to have Risko out of the way but as long as he continues to mess up the New York promoters' pets, he cannot be ignored.

SHOWS WELL IN TRAINING

English Flyweight Makes Hit in His First Work.

BATTLE ON MONDAY

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—That Mr. Belanger's son is in a tight spot when he mingles with Ernie Jarvis of England next Monday night at the Coliseum was the general opinion of the few who saw the Britisher go through his paces. This chunky veteran from over 'ome is a flashy workman, a real two-fisted campaigner, who keeps coming in all the time, asking no favors. His manager, Johnny Keyes, thinks that he is a moral to beat his Canadian rival and is prepared to wager that in the toe-to-toe milling that Jarvis will not be the first to retreat. The Englishman likes that style of going, judging from his actions, and in that respect he differs from the majority of Old Country boxers who have been seen here.

Jarvis himself has no misgivings regarding the outcome of his 12-round tilt with Belanger. He saw Frenchy perform against Genaro and is optimistic that he can whip Dave Garrity's entry. He is so sure of himself that he predicts that the bout will not go the limit.

Jarvis took on some weight during his train trip, but he doesn't anticipate any trouble in getting rid of the surplus tissue before Monday night.

Belanger is coming along nicely and his followers claim that the Toronto youth is showing better form in his training than at any time in his career. He will be ready to answer the question satisfactorily when the time comes according to his admirers. That the bout is exciting enormous interest is shown by the fact that a Pittsburg promoter wired Dave Garrity yesterday asking him to defer taking any action regarding future bouts until he had heard from him. It is assumed that the Smoky City man plans sending Belanger against Willie Davies who made his debut as a pro. in Toronto and who is a foremost contender.

The advance sale for Monday night has exceeded all expectations, and it is beginning to look as if Playfair Brown had the right dope when he predicted a sell-out.

TUXIS BOYS HOLD SHOW IN THEATRE

Lakefield Group's Moving Picture Venture Proves Successful.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 14.—On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings the Katchewanoonka Square of the Tuxis Boys of Regent street church gave a movie as a means of raising funds for the boys' work in the village. The feature picture was "A Cheerful Fraud" starring Reginald Denny, an exceedingly good comedy with a clever plot revolving around a case of mistaken identity, social climbers and clever crooks and had many amusing situations. The story was snappy and kept the interest throughout. The comic feature, "Batter Up" was a scream and kept the audience in roars of laughter. Between the pictures a really first class program was given.

Mrs. H. E. Moore presided at the piano for the evening.

Several orchestra selections were given by Mrs. Moore, pianist, Ivan Madill, violinist and Kenneth and Ronald Kemp, cornetists. These were excellent and were given during and between pictures.

E. de C. Fletcher, a violinist of rare ability, played a selection which was an outstanding feature of the programme, Mrs. Fletcher playing the piano accompaniment.

Mrs. McMillen and Miss Frances Fairbairn sang a pleasing duet and Kenneth and Ronald Kemp played a cornet duet which was much appreciated. A comic duet, "Ma'll Get Charlie" was sung by Emerson and Ronald Kemp and was a real hit, the audience joining in the chorus with vim.

Mr. Burrows, leader of the Tuxis Boys thanked all who had assisted and co-operated to make the entertainment so successful, for the attendance was large on both nights and the program most enjoyable.

Owing to several counter attractions and principally the quoits tournament the crowd was not as large as usual at the A.Y.P.A. euchre. Nine table were played. Prizes were won by Miss Amy Watson and Mr. W. S. Remnant and the consolation prizes by Mrs. Alley and Mr. Bob Furze.

The annual Christmas concert of S.S. No. 6, Smith, will be held on the evening of December 21 in the school house. This is always a popular concert and attracts a large contingent from the village as well as the section.

BAZAAR AT WARSAW COMPLETE SUCCESS

Basement of United Church the Scene of Interesting Event.

WARSAW, December 13. — The United Church charges, Warsaw, Bethel, Zion, and Carmel, held their annual bazaar in the Warsaw Church basement on Tuesday afternoon. It was a decided success. About one hundred and forty-five dollars was taken in.

There was a booth for home-made baking, and there was certainly a fine showing of delicious looking cakes and cookies. The fancy work booth carried towels, dollies, serviette holders, and many other lovely articles of fancy work, all beautifully done, and all such as could be used in any home.

For a time the hall was very hot, and the ice-cream booth was popular. It was trimmed with white crepe paper and a representation of a large iceberg made the background.

At the booth for knitted goods were well knitted mitts, sox, baby garments, as well as other articles and a very pretty crocheted rag rug.

The apron booth, in the centre, had a fine supply of well made, usable aprons of gingham, print, and grey cotton, also a few rubber ones. There were very few fancy aprons.

There was a Christmas tree, utilized for a parcel post, also a fish pond. All articles were marked as low as possible, in many cases at the bare cost of the material.

Bethel Ladies' Aid had made a diamond jubilee quilt with the names of the fathers of Confederation, arranged in the form of a St. Andrew's Cross, in blue lettering on white.

Supper was served after four o'clock at one long table. The table was pretty with colored runners over the white cloth, plants, and candles. The decorations were new, mostly crepe paper, and the effect was very pleasing.

TRUE DIABETES MELLITUS

In yesterday's article I gave a short explanation of the difference between Diabetes Mellitus and Diabetes Insipidus. I explained that many of the symptoms are the same.

The presence of sugar in the blood or urine is the distinguishing characteristic of Diabetes Mellitus over other disorders where there is an excessive thirst, and elimination of large quantities of urine.

This true Diabetes is a disease of metabolism, and comes on because the body cannot normally utilize the carbohydrates. The result is that there is an increase in the blood sugar, and sugar is also eliminated in the urine.

The excessive thirst is created be cause of the large amount of urine thrown out, and even though the patient drinks quart after quart of water, he often urinates away more water than he can consume during the day.

As soon as the disease is well advanced the patient loses weight rapidly. This is mostly due to the fact that so much liquid is thrown out through the kidneys.

Aretaeus was the first one to use the term "Diabetes" and said it appeared to be "a melting down of the flesh and limbs into urine." He suggested that the name of the disease came from the Greek word which signifies a syphon.

The first cause of Diabetes which must be considered is the use of an excessive amount of carbohydrates, both in the form of sugar and starch. It is thought by many that obesity is a primary cause of Diabetes, as it usually occurs only with those overweight, while the true facts are, those who are overweight are excessive users of carbohydrates, which burden the body with weight, and overwork the pancreas which must supply the pancreatic fluid for their digestion.

When excessive amounts of sugar are found in the blood of urine, it is a sure sign that the pancreas is unable to take care of the large amount of carbohydrates which the patient is using. Of course, the simplest thing to do is to cut out the carbohydrates entirely if necessary, and give the pancreas a chance to regain its normal functioning power.

The discovery of insulin has entirely changed the treatment of diabetes so far as most physicians are concerned, but the disappointing results of such treatment are now apparent, and many clear-thinking physicians have abandoned its use altogether as I predicted they would do when the first announcements were made about insulin's discovery.

The only object in using insulin is to allow the patient to use carbohydrates, but, a carbohydrates are unnecessary in the first place, it is nothing short of ridiculous to use insulin or any other remedy to permit the use of foods which can be just as easily dispensed with.

If carbohydrates are not used, the body uses protein in their place, and the diabetic can use certain limited amounts of the different proteins and provide a satisfactory diet by the addition of large amounts of the non-starchy vegetables.

In tomorrow's artiele I will explain the simple method to use in the treatment of Diabetes.

Questions and Answers.

Question: B. C. writes: "At one time my pulse will register 60, at another time 80, for no apparent reason. Has this change in pulse any significance for a well man of sixty?"

Answer: Your pulse will be much lower when you are resting, and much faster after exercising. This is perfectly normal, but such a variation as you note should not occur while you are quiet. If so, it is because of a varying amount of gas pressure against your heart. This is due to improper food, eating too hastily, overeating and greasy food combinations.

Question: Reader asks: "Does buttermilk tend to produce acidosis on account of the lactic acid it contains?"

Answer: A buttermilk diet, or the use of buttermilk in place of a meal has a tendency to cure acidosis rather than to cause it. The lactic acid of the buttermilk has a beneficial effect upon the intestinal flora, or vegetable growths in the intestines.

Question: L. D. P. asks: "Will you kindly give me some information about yellow jaundice, its cause and cure, and how long it lasts if taken care of immediately?"

Answer: Jaundice may be caused by a serious disease of the liver, such as cancer or cirrhosis, but when it first appears it usually is caused by catarrhal inflammation of the bile ducts or by the bile being stopped through the obstruction caused by gall stones. The treatment which I would suggest would of course depend upon the cause found through an examination; but on general principles, a fruit fast would be effective in stimulating the flow of bile and removing the jaundice, at least, temporarily.

TO SANTA CLAUS

Poor Old "Santy"—

They have modernized you; and it ill-becomes you. Your wealth of dear, old white beard will go next. You'll be a sheik with a Charlie Chaplin, or a Flapper with a boyish bob; and that, too, before the daisies grow over me if I am spared to the Biblical span. I hardly knew you the other day, and I strongly disapprove of your conduct. When I was a boy you were such a mysterious beneficent, silent, sacred person that you were revered by young and old alike. In those days you slipped in and out of our homes so silently and left so many blessings, both spiritual and temporal, in such an unobtrusive way that we all understood and loved you. If you had a bad year we seemed to understand it beforehand, and your reduced givings did not lessen our happiness.

To-day, your head seems to be turned. The shop-early shibboleth, of the money changers, has commercialized you. You have become a universal sales' agent with not too much conscience. You are full of exaggeration and "blah." You love the limelight and the plaudits of the mob. And the amount of secret pain you cause seems to neutralize any good you may do.

Why, for weeks now I have been distressed by the pictures of sad, pensive, wistful swains distracted by the tremendous question, "What shall I give her?" More tragic still is the sad, perplexed, far-away stare of the maiden pondering over the other gender of the question, "What shall I give him?" And you, poor Santy, are the goat; the cause of all these weary sighs. I am not sure that it would not be a good thing to snub you, dispense with you for a time until you could come to your senses again.

In the meantime I should greatly like to caution our good fathers and mothers, of large families, to pay mighty little attention to your new antics. There is not a society or club, political, social, fraternal or religious, that you have not joined, and, I fear, often with the personal motive of self-aggrandisment. You have reached the pinnacle of notoriety beyond which you cannot proceed, except your splendid hirsute adornment be shorn, and your vesture be modernized. You are in imminent danger of becoming an evil genie. I write you in sorrow, not in anger. If there be any extenuating circumstances for your present conduct I shall be glad to hear from you.

Sincerely yours,
SILAS.

STUDENTS RIOT AFTER BIG GAME

London Theatres Have To Be Closed Because of "Ragging."

DELIBERATE OUTBREAK.

LONDON, December 14 (Canadian Press).—Indignation was evident in London to-day against the Oxford and Cambridge University students who ran riot in the west-end theatrical section after the annual football match between the two universities.

The "rag" was obviously not spontaneous but deliberately prepared. Numbers of seats had been bought up in several theatres by under-graduates and their friends. Soon after the performances in several theatres got under way, trouble commenced.

The Hippodrome was one of the worst sufferers. The victorious Cambridge football team was there, but a large part of the audience was comprised of Oxonians. The uproar became so great that the manager went before the curtain and appealed for order. This had little effect and the performers were drowned out by shouts and songs of collegians.

The "Hallelujas" song in "Hit the Deck" was the climax of the disturbance. With howling worthy of mad baboons, the students drowned out everything and the theatre had to be closed. The Palace Theatre was also closed when an American dancer appearing there was pelted with paper balls.

"ANNIE LAURIE" A STIRRING LEGEND.

As Filmed With Lillian Gish in the Title Role It Has a Tremendous Appeal

When drama touches on a historical subject, should drama be changed and weakened to conform to fact—or should the facts be juggled slightly to make better drama?

This is the question that has irritated dramatists, novelists and critics for centuries, and recently the production of several historical pictures has roused a tumult of excitement on the same subject.

John S. Robertson, director of Lillian Gish's latest starring vehicle, "Annie Laurie", coming tomorrow to the Capitol Theatre, gives an affirmative answer to the question, although in the present case there has been but little deviation from history.

"As long as we treat facts with reverence", he says, "and do not deviate too radically from the truth, I thoroughly believe in changing the facts to fit the drama, for while there are dramatic incidents in history, there are others that with a little help, can be made good drama and good drama is the greatest teacher of history. In fact, the historical drama is visual education as well as the finest entertainment, when properly done."

Lillian Gish Has Title Role

Miss Gish plays the title role in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spectacle, a vivid romance of the Scottish highlands, laid about the Massacre at Glencoe. She plays the historic daughter of Sir Robert Laurie, whose marriage into an enemy clan brought the peace that unified Scotland. Norman Kerry plays the leading male character, and the cast includes Hobart Bosworth, Russel Simpson, Brandon Hurst, David Torrence, Creighton Hale, Patricia Avery, Joseph Striker, and other notable players.

The scenario is by Josephine Lovett, who celebrated with Robertson on "Sentimental Tommy", "The Enchanted Cottage" and others of his directorial triumphs. Weeks of research were necessary to construct the replicas of famous old Scottish castle, including Maxwelton, for the production. An entire woolen mill was leased to weave the twenty-six authentic tribal plaids that clothe the armies of Scottish warriors who battle with claymore and broadsword in the huge production.

U. S. ECONOMIC DOMINATION GROWS, CONFERENCE SHOWS

Economists Meet in London To Discuss Plans For Recovery.

PRODUCTION TOO HIGH.

Many Nations Must Seek Export Markets—Free Trade Advocated.

LONDON, Dec. 14 (United Press).—Fresh evidence of the United States' growing economic domination of Europe was revealed at a gathering of statesmen, economists, industrialists, and Laborites in London, where the League of Nations Union considered the best means of furthering the recovery of post-war Europe.

M. Theunis, the former Premier of Belgium, urged that the modern industrial production of most countries today had reached the point where the home market was unable to absorb, hence it was of the most vital importance that the surplus be exported.

Philip Snowden, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, pointed out that this was especially true of the United States, where the domestic markets had reached the saturation point, and he declared that the whole economic equilibrium of the States was changing.

Thus export markets were most essential and in a few years' time the tariffs of every country were certain to feel American influence.

Dr. Richard Schuyler, leading Austrian reformist, said that the economic condition of Europe was now a matter of life and death and that it was on Great Britain that the economic future now depended.

Sir George Paish, eminent British economist, stated that the way to cure poverty was to remove tariff barriers and so enable goods to circulate freely among all countries. By this means, he calculated, an increase of three per cent in the total wealth of the world could be brought about.

Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, president of the Chamber of Shippings, admitted that it was impracticable to create British Empire free trade, but insisted that the next best thing was a system of free trade in Europe.

Meanwhile, an important group of Parliamentarians is seeking to secure an import tariff on steel into the United Kingdom with a view to securing the British market for British steel, which is in itself an indication of the difficulties of creating any European organization to cope with American economic penetration of the continent.

When a Man Loves

By ALLIE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, who is coveted by hideous Count Ravoir. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoir. She rejoins Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The King plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating. Manon is spirited to prison, Fabien goes there to rescue her, and is faced by Ravoir.

CHAPTER XIX—Continued.

"You!" exclaimed Fabien in amazement; then continued, "There must be some mistake, I wish to see the Provost of Police."

"I am he!" the Comte replied with a satisfied smile that turned into a sneer. "What do you want?"

"I heard that you had Manon put in here and came to get her out—I did not know that you were the Provost." Fabien tried to control the hopeless feeling that surged over him.

"No one can get her out, she is to be deported!" The Comte was enjoying his revenge.

"Deported!" exclaimed Fabien in horor. "Why? She has broken no laws."

"No?—Well, perhaps you and I have broken them for her, at least we have helped her break them; and the fact remains that she is to be deported this very morning. Come here!" he beckoned Fabien toward the window, "Do you see your fair mistress among the chain carriers?"

Trembling with apprehension and anger, Fabien went to the window and looked down into the courtyard below. Three covered vans were backed up to the prison doors. The horses were strapped to the shafts waiting for the familiar whip lash that would start them on their long journey to the water front.

Eighteen women, some of them horrible creatures, dressed in the ugly prison garb, walked across the courtyard in a long line. They were herded together, one behind the other, with heavy chains that circled their waists and wrists, leaving only a few feet of slack between each one.

Presently Fabien distinguished Manon. Not even the wretchedness of her prison attire could hide her beauty, but her shoulders dropped and she attempted to hide her face in shame. Fabien knew that she did not belong to that order of the frail sisterhood where the Comte had cast her as punishment for spurning his advances.

"In the name of God, stop them!" Fabien cried in anguish. His voice sounded unnatural and his face was livid.

"Why should I resort to so much trouble for you? If you want her—get her!" The Comte indulged in a taunting laugh He knew better than anyone else how impossible it would be for Fabien to ever enjoy Manon's society again. His revenge had been more complete than he anticipated. It was an unlooked for climax to have the favored lover witness his mistress's degradation.

"By God—I will get her! Fabien had again become a fighting demon.

The Comte laughed at his boast and pointed out how impossible such a capture would be. He also dwelt at length upon the fact that no man or woman could ignore and insult him without suffering the consequences.

Fabien saw the wagons with the chained prisoners passing out of the grounds, and all the blood seemed to leave his heart as Manon disappeared.

Looking after them, through the light of the early morning sun, the Comte remarked something about what a beautiful picture the caravan made. It was more than Fabien could endure. It had the effect of changing him into a mad man. He sprang at the Comte's throat and held it in a grip that was deadly. His face was convulsed with hatred and rage.

"You killed Manon's brother like the coward that you are! You have ruined her life! Isn't there any manhood in you? Come on—stand on your feet and fight for your life—if you want it!"

He released the Comte's throat and stood back long enough for him to recover. Then they locked in a fierce struggle and rolled over and over on the floor. The Comte's hand came in contact with a heavy iron bar and he was bringing it down with a smashing blow when Fabien worked himself free just in time to escape having his head crushed. Again Fabien attacked his victim, and this time he had no mercy. His hands went about the Comte's throat and he shook him like a ferret does a rat. When he felt the body go limp in his grasp he straightened up in surprise. It seemed incredible that his slight hands had been strong enough to crush the life out of a man—for there was no doubt about the Comte being dead. Nor was there any reason Fabien should lose valuable time regretting a thing that had been himself appointed duty.

The Comte had killed Lescaut in a cowardly attack, he had insulted Manon beyond repair and sent her to a living death in the Colonies. Yes, he deserved his inglorious death and it was justice that Fabien should have been the one to avenge his friends.

Cautiously approaching the door he assured himself that the struggle had not been heard by the secretary or guard. All trace of the murder must be cleared away so that he could leave without being stopped and reach Manon before the tragedy had been discovered. With great effort he dragged the Comte's body to the desk and lifted it to a sitting position in the high backed chair. In one outstretched hand he placed a tall quill pen.

If anyone entered the door it would appear that the Comte was busily engaged with his work. Satisfied with the arrangement Fabien devoted a few moments to making himself presentable then, opening the door—so that the Secretary could see in—he turned back and said, as though speaking to the Comte, "I shall see that you are not disturbed, Monsieur."

Fabien went out and closed the door. He longed to run through the corridor and follow Manon in her miserable caravan; but discretion cautioned him to linger and avert suspicion that might otherwise make him prisoner on the spot with no hope of ever seeing her again.

"Monsieur is not in the best of moods," said Fabien as he paused at the secretary's desk with a friendly little warning. "You are fortunate that he prefers to be left alone." Then with an assumption of unconcern he sauntered out of the prison and began walking rapidly along the road to Havre. Every few steps he would look back, fearful that the murder had been discovered and a guard sent after him.

As the minutes passed and no one appeared, Fabien's walk quickened into a run and he pushed on in search of his loved one.

Since meeting Manon that Spring morning at the White Horse Inn, Fabien's path had been strewn with many obstacles; but the assurance of her love—in return for his own—made it easy and delightful.

He had gone through sorrow and suffering. He had stolen, or cheated at cards; it amounts to the same thing. He had given up his family, renounced his inheritance, insulted the King and even committed murder. And now, Manon; his love, his very life, the one for whom he had done everything; was being taken away from him forever!

Heartsick, tired, lonely, frightened and even hungry, he stumbled along the dusty road with the hope that he could overtake Manon's caravan and hold her in his arms once more.

CHAPTER XX.

"Who will care for my little Jean—my baby—my baby!" moaned the miserable young girl who was chained next to Manon in the cart.

"Stop your bellowing," snarled a hard faced woman from her place on the dirty straw that covered the bottom of the wagon. "Why didn't you think of the baby before you got it? Now shut up so I can enjoy the scenery."

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — XXXI — by Nicholas Afonsky

The Wright Brothers, of Dayton, Ohio, who owned a bicycle shop there, are called the inventors of the modern aeroplane. From boyhood they were interested in flying, and read everything about it. They were especially interested in Lilienthal's glider, and determined to make one of their own.

For two years they studied everything about flying, and then made a glider on the order of Chanute's biplane. To work this glider, the operator lay face downward on the center of the lower plane. It was necessary, of course, to start from a height to get impetus to make the glider work.

For several years the Wrights practiced quietly at Kill Devil Dunes, on the coast of North Carolina, where the winds were favorable. They developed an elevating plane on their wings to make their glider go up and down, a wing-warping device for stability, and a rudder to turn it.

They realized that to go farther they must have a motor. In 1903 they flew the first real aeroplane with a four-cylinder gasolene engine. Their first flight lasted twelve seconds. They offered their ideas to France, but France failed to realize their importance, and they retired again

Famous Kings

HISTORY knows no more heroic figure than Robert Bruce, who by his dauntless courage and military skill ended forever the pretentions of the English kings to the over-lordship of the Kingdom of Scotland.

The Battle of Bannockburn fought on June 24th, 1314, witnessed the most overwhelming defeat ever inflicted on an English army and placed Robert the Good securely on the throne of the country he loved so well and for which he suffered so greatly.

A Letter From Santa Claus

North Pole, November 15, 1927.
Did you ever, ever, ever:
Dear Boys and Girls—hear anything like Mr. Polar Bear?
No toys for Christmas!
What a terrible idea!

However, he's all right now. We sent all our little gnomes to make him a huge snow bed two miles and more away, and Mrs. Santa Claus made him some snowball mitts for his feet. He was pleased as could be when we took him over there, and showed him what we had. He burrowed down into the snow and turned round and round and round until he made a nice, smooth, hollowed out cave. Then he lay down, put his head on his paws, and went fast off to sleep. We covered him up with more snow, and then came away, and left him. I guess he's fixed now till next spring.

So all's well that ends well, is it not? And here's to the jolliest, merriest, toyfullest Christmas that's ever been known!

Yours,
SANTA CLAUS.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS IS STARTED HERE

Day is Made One of Joint Effort in Other Cities.

THIS YEAR'S EFFORT

Beautiful Symbolism of Season Marks Celebrations Elsewhere.

Peterborough, a city of community efforts, has not yet had a Community Christmas. Although efforts are made every year by benevolent individuals and organizations to ensure the provision of Christmas cheer, for those who would have to go without it apart from the philanthropic endeavors of others, we are in this respect behind many cities, especially those south of the line, which have a community Christmas centering around what has become known as the Tree of Light.

The Tree of Light.

The Tree of Light was the result of an inspiration in the year 1911, on the part of individuals who had resolved that, as far as possible, every child in the community should have something whereby the occasion of Christmas of that year should be a glad memory on which to look back with pleasure in future years. The idea extended itself to bring within its orbit all ages and classes, and city-wide efforts were made to hold festivities in which all could join.

The first tree of light was sent from the Adirondacks to one of the suburbs of New York. Its height was seventy-five feet. On it blazed 8000 lights. So impersonally was the planning done that even now, few persons—except newspapermen, who from the first, favored and fostered and spread abroad the story of the Tree of Light—know the names of the founders of this rarely spiritual interpretation of the Christmas thought.

On the first night of the illumination of the tree, the park was crowded long before the lights flashed on. Then with a great fan-fare of trumpets, the vested procession came from a nearby church, singing "Holy Night."

Numbers Increase.

Far and wide the press circulated the stirring story of this first adventure. As a result, in the following year came reports of more than one hundred Trees of Light, in all parts of the country. In the ensuing year, there were more than 300 trees, so far did the little candle throw its beams.

American citizens in foreign countries introduced the idea. Trees of Light were sent to soldiers serving in Mexico, and during the Great War, this typically American institution found its way in France and England.

As is usually the case, the establishment of the affair depended on the initiative and determination of a few individuals, who gave the lead, followed readily enough by the rest of the inhabitants.

What a Woman Did.

In an Indiana town a committee had been appointed to plan for a community Christmas tree, but as the time drew near it was evident that nothing was being done to arouse and fuse the get-together spirit of the people. A certain young lady in the town decided to "start something" and having started it "to see it to a finish." Beginning the day at 6.30, by 8 o'clock she had been promised a tree. At nine o'clock she had secured permission from the County Commissioners to place the tree in the courthouse square. By twelve, the local electric company had promised to wire the tree without charge, and keep it lighted from six o'clock until Twelfth night. By two o'clock she had seen the city editors of three papers, all of whom had promised to give front page notices of the coming event each day until the time of the celebration in order to keep it before the minds of the townspeople.

There was a new item to add each day. One day a printer promised to print copies of the old English carols for free distribution; another day, it was a maker of motion picture slides who presented to each of the moving picture houses announcements of the Tree of Light. Then, there was mention of a special programme of Christmas music by one of the leading choirs with a solo by the town's favorite singer. Next came the offer of the Oratorio Society to sing the "Hallelujah Chorus," followed by the loan of a piano by a music dealer. It is not to be wondered at that the celebration which had at first threatened to fizzle out into nothing proved a wonderful and inspiring success.

Newspaper Leads.

In Baltimore one of the newspapers initiated that city's Community Christmas. On the day before the celebration the paper published Christmas carols with music. One day of the Christmas season was set aside as "Tiny Tim's Day," when all the crippled children of the city were taken in automobiles to the Plaza where stood the Tree of Light.

There were wonderful illuminations and music; the band played patriotic airs and thousands of children had one of the best days of their lives.

Christmas in earlier times was largely a community affair. Family parties usually included very distant relatives, with a host of servants and tenants. Today the family dinner is more restricted. It is an intimate function and has a great deal to commend it.

But there is also room for the Community Christmas which need not interfere with the more private gathering earlier or later in the day.

This Year's Effort.

The decorating of the streets originated this year by Kiwanis Club gives a good start in Peterborough to what may well become a community-wide Christmas effort. The co-operation of the Utilities Commission and the Friday Night Club has resulted in a splendid festive appearance on George street and other parts of the up-town shopping district. It might be possible next year to have citizens purchase their trees early and set them on verandahs or lawns, thus spreading the Christmas spirit throughout the city.

Another mark of progress this year is the community Carol Singing organized by Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., organist of St. Paul's Church. The giving of Christmas messages by clergymen, started by The Examiner three years ago, sets a good example, and, with all these agencies working in the interests of a community Christmas, it only requires the whole-hearted support of citizens to put Peterborough in the lead of cities in the united celebration of Christmas.

POST OFFICE IS READY FOR BIG YULETIDE RUSH

Eighteen Extra Men Are Being Employed To Handle the Work.

MORE DELIVERIES.

People Are Mailing Letters and Parcels Earlier This Year.

No Christmas box would be as much appreciated by the postman than to allow him that day of all days with his family and a little co-operation on the part of the public in general will make this possible at the Peterborough post office this year.

Why should the postman and the post-office worker be asked to work all Christmas Eve and Christmas Day when every one is celebrating the occasion at home with friends and family?

This year the Peterborough post office is making bigger plans than ever to handle the hundreds of bags of mail that are to come into this city and are sent out during the Christmas season. Eighteen extra men are being taken on, fifteen of whom will aid the letter carriers and the other three will work in the office. During the Christmas season the ordinary letter carrier starts work long before most people are out of their beds, for he has to report at five o'clock in the morning and he is still on his rounds many nights after the city is shrouded in darkness.

Last year 146,200 letters and cards were mailed from the Peterborough office and 250,000 received. The parcel mail, which is always a very large item, consisced of about 3,000 parcels going out and a like number coming in.

Postmaster Charles Lacheur says that people are becoming better educated to the way of doing up parcels and addressing them, but at this season he has many suggestions to offer to the public that will aid everyone concerned. Every parcel letter and card should have the return address distinctly written on it; for without this, if the person to whom the article is sent cannot be located, it can easily be returned to the home post office, while if the sender's name and address are not on, the article goes to the dead letter office and is destroyed if not valuable.

People this year are mailing earlier than formerly and to aid them the postoffice will hold letters and other articles until the date the sender wishes them to go out. The senders in this city must remember that there are many places in the Dominion where there is no carrier system and the delivery of the article is greatly delayed at these offices.

By posting parcels early people will do their shopping earlier, and thus do away with the rush in the stores and aid considerably the business man and everyone concerned.

The postoffice department advises that all articles should be insured so that indemnity can be made for those that go astray. Money should not be sent in letters without being registered, and a better way is to send Postoffice Money Orders or Postal Notes.

This season, mail for local delivery should be posted not later than December 22nd and from now until Christmas there will be two deliveries every Saturday and one on Christmas Day. In the postoffice there will be four wickets where stamps may be purchased and from all appearance the postoffice will do a bigger business than last year.

W. A. HOLDS MEETING.

Good Program Given at Meeting of All Saints' Evening Branch.

The regular monthly meeting of the evening branch of All Saints' W.A. was held on Tuesday evening, and was opened by the singing of the hymn "Hark! a Thrilling Voice is Sounding." The Scripture lesson for the evening, the 121st Psalm, was read by Miss Doris Hutchinson.

The treasurer, Miss M. Worboy, gave her report, which showed the Auxiliary to be in a very flourishing condition.

After a lengthy business discussion, Mrs. J. A. Howard read a paper entitled, "Her Eighteenth Birthday," from which every young girl could take a very beneficial lesson.

The program for the rest of the evening was in charge of Miss Gwylda Pakenham, who gave two very good stories, entitled "A Christmas Story," and "The Spirit of Christmas." The former dealt with a traveller's visit to a Mission School in Northern Canada, and told of how surprised he was when he learned of the happy Christmas the children had had the year before. The latter told that people should not only think of giving gifts and making merry, but that it is the birthday of the Lord, and should always keep in mind the text, "Unto us was born this day a Saviour, Who is Christ the Lord."

Two violin selections by Mr. Kenneth Gadd, accompanied by his sister, Miss Marjorie, entitled "Impromptu" and "The Cavalier" were very cleverly rendered.

The next number was a vocal duet, "In the Garden," by Miss E. Jackson and Miss G. Pakenham.

The evening was brought to a close by the serving of dainty refreshments by Miss Gwen Dobbin and her committee.

Prince Now Included In Thompson's War

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Prince of Wales has been included in Mayor Thompson's war against the King of England. In addressing the air conference here last night, the British monarch was brought into discussion.

"As for King George," said the Mayor, "I used to be a cowpuncher and made my living by riding bucking horses. When the King's son can ride a bucking horse, I will be willing to take even the King seriously."

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ICICLE BRIDGE

Every one was sure Skipper was lost in the snow. Skipper was the jolly little black cricket who lived under the warm fireplace in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. The rabbit gentleman had made a cute little sled out of half a peanut shell for Skipper and had lined it with warm cotton from the milkweed plant.

Then Uncle Wiggily and some of his bunny boys and girls had taken the cricket for a ride out over the snow. From time to time Mr. Longears turned to ask Skipper how he enjoyed his ride, but the cricket did not answer.

"He must be asleep!" Jingle had said. But they had a big surprise when they lifted the cotton covers and saw no Skipper inside the peanut-shell sled.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Uncle Wiggily. "He must have walked in his sleep and jumped out into the snow. Quick, children, we must find him before he freezes to death!"

So they all looked for Skipper, peering into holes on top of the snow, thinking he might be at the bottom of one. But no Skipper could be found, nor could his cheerful voice be heard, calling: "Tweet! Tweet!"

Uncle Wiggily started off on his new snow shoes.

"Well, he's gone, I guess," said Uncle Wiggily sadly. "How surprised I was when I lifted the cotton cover and found him gone! Such a surprise!" After a long search the bunny gentleman and his children returned to the bungalow with the peanut sled. But no sooner had they opened the door than they heard, coming from the fireplace, a jolly sound of "Tweet Tweet! Tweet."

"Why, Skipper! Where have you been?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as he saw the black cricket peering out of his crack home. "Where were you?"

"Oh, I have been here all the while!" laughed Skipper. After you put me in the peanut sled, here on the kitchen floor, and covered me with the cotton, I got to thinking I might, after all, catch cold if you took me for a ride over the snow. So, when you went to get a drink of water I crawled out of the sled and went back to sleep here in between the warm bricks. I've been here ever since!"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "And we thought you were asleep in the peanut sled all the while. But, when we lifted the cover and didn't see you, why, we thought you were lost. I'm glad you weren't."

"So am I!" said Skipper, and he chirped louder than ever. "I guess I had better not go riding in the snow until it's summer again and nice and warm," he added as he went to sleep, and all the rabbit children laughed to think of going sled riding in summer.

"And that reminds me," said Uncle Wiggily. "Tomorrow I am going out and walk on my new snowshoes. I may have an adventure."

"Oh, Daddicums! May we come and watch you walk on your snowshoes?" asked all the bunny children.

"I'll see," was all their father would promise.

But when the next day came, thinking so many eyes watching would bother him, Uncle Wiggily got up very early and started off on his new snowshoes. They were rather large for him and the bunny had not gone far before one of the snowshoes broke.

"Oh, well," he said, "I can hop along on one, I guess." So he hopped along on one until, all of a sudden, as he looked behind him he saw the Fox and Bob Cat chasing him. The bad chaps had risen early, hoping for a rabbit breakfast. "Now I must hop very fast on my one snow shoe!" thought Uncle Wiggily.

So he hopped and ran and ran and hopped over the drifts and he was almost home when, all at once, he lost the remaining snowshoe.

"Ha. Now we have him!" howled the Bob Cat.

"Come on!" barked the Fox. They ran and ran after Uncle Wiggily, but the bunny hopped along on his paws until he came to a deep, wide hole in the ground. "If I could only get across that I would be safe," thought Mr. Longears. "But it is too wide for me to jump. What can I do?" Just then he saw, hanging from the edge of the roof of a barn near by, a lot of icicles. At once a clever idea came to the rabbit.

"I'll take one of these icicles and make a bridge over the wide, deep hole with it and cross on that!" said Uncle Wiggily. He broke off the longest, strongest icicle, and he smashed all the others so there would be none left for the Fox and Bob Cat who were still coming on after him. Placing the icicle across the hole, like a bridge, Uncle Wiggily ran over and across on it, reaching the other side safely.

"We can cross on that icicle bridge, too!" howled the Fox.

But just as the Fox was going to step on it, Uncle Wiggily pulled the icicle over toward him and, breaking it in pieces he threw the chunks of ice back across the hole, hitting the bad chaps on their noses.

"Wow! Wow!" they howled and away they ran.

Then the bunny gentleman laughed and hopped on safely to his bungalow.

LIFE'S JOURNEY.

Evangelist Hynd's Series of Meeting Here Is Nearing End.

Evangelist William Hynd gave another exhibition of excellent pictures last night describing the journey of life. The pictures are real paintings. Tonight will be the last of the series, and everyone is invited. Mr. Hynd is a very earnest worker. Last night he spoke on the dangers and temptations surrounding a young life, and all present felt it was good to be brought face to face with the realities of a Saviour who could save to the utermost and never lost a trusting soul.

Tonight he will show "The Resurrection" and accompany victories.

WHAT TO CHOOSE FOR HIM

The great difficulty in selecting Christmas gifts for men would be easily overcome if you could ask them all what they desired. If those who are puzzled about what to give Dad, Brother, Sweetheart and other fortunate men friends whom they like, would pay a visit to the Peterborough stores their fears of buying the wrong thing would be dispelled.

Few things are so lastingly beautiful, so truly luxurious for a man as well-made, rightly-chosen clothing and nothing that money can buy makes a man look and feel so well, as does good men's wear.

At the store of Maher and Wesley on Charlotte street are found many things that would be appreciated by any man. They have the pure wool Orland muffler, which is the very latest in the neckwear line, and beautiful silk scarfs in square design. In neckwear there is the Paroli silk high grade ties, beautiful in quality and in dark colors; then there is the Hickok belt set that will catch the eye of every young man. This set consists of initialed buckle and belt with a nice belt-o-gram.

Something new in this city, but on the market for some time in New York is the English "Tie Set", the tie being cut from the handkerchief. In this store is also found a wide range in club bags and ladies' hat boxes in the better qualities of leather.

Brass' Men's Shop is featuring the two collar shirts in blue color and hair line stripes, the bandana scarf that is very popular, in Paisley patterns, also pyjamas in Forsyth and Tooke broadcloths and Sundown flannels and many beautiful sweaters in the Jumbo and College stitch.

The Grafton store has a splendid assortment of gifts that would cheer a man's heart. For the convenience of Christmas shoppers a specially equipped gift department has been arranged. Here you can see at a glance just what a man needs and wants. The furnishing departments for men and boys are packed with suggestions.

Motor rugs, dressing gowns, bathrobes and everything that man would desire to wear or use can be found in this store.

The Le Brun store, as usual, has a splendid line of neck scarfs in silk and wool, fancy silk gowns, bright colored mufflers, fancy belts, specially boxed neckwear, genuine English broadcloth pyjamas in fancy colors and all-wool knitted pull overs for the little chaps.

In all the tobacco stores in the city are found many articles that the smoker would like. There are all kinds of pipes in cases and without, the best of English tobaccos, beautiful ash trays and many other things that go to the enjoyment of the man who smokes.

The jewelry stores have a wide range of articles that would make most suitable presents for men. Chains, lockets, signet-rings, tie pins, cuff links and watches.

CHRISTMAS and THE CHILDREN

As the Reindeer Told It

by Marjorie Pierce Dixon

The Reindeer threw up his fine head and shook all the bells on his harness. There was the old music in his good old bells even if times had changed since the days when Santa slid easily down wide ch mneys.

"I've only this half hour," said he, "before day break, to finish the story and then,—after that of course I cou'd go on talking, but you wouldn't understand.

The child patted his head.

"It seems to me they said you could only talk with us folks, people, you know, for an hour, Christmas Eve, at midnight," said the child.

The Strange Hum.

"An hour, my, that would never do. We'd never get through the questions we had saved up to ask Santa. Perhaps they let us reindeer have till daybreak because we belong to Santa. At any rate, let's go on with the story."

The child nodded, and settled himself more comfortably to listen. The Reindeer continued:

"M mate and I had eaten all the moss in one place and were thinking of looking further for a new spot, when we first heard it. It was a low hum like a very large insect, and far, far away. We have nothing to fear in our beautiful snow covered country, because Santa has thrown magic all around it. So we felt no fear at this sound coming slowly nearer.

The Bird With Still Wings.

"My mate said it sounded like a tornado in summer, but it couldn't be that, for already our usual winter night that lasts for months had settled down, with out only light, the Dancing Flames that Santa calls Aurora Borealis.

"We listened eagerly and soon located the direction. Then it appeared over the trees like a soaring bird, with never a motion in its wings. The humming grew to a roar as it drew nearer, and we turned to the shelter of overhanging snowsiden branches to watch this strange thing. We were just a little shy about being seen you know, though we knew Santa's magic couldn't be invaded, and nothing could ever harm us.

The Tornado Bird.

"We called it the Tornado Bird because of its tremendous roar, and watched with much interest as it circled overhead and then slowly flew to earth on the level stretch of snow in front of Santa's house.

"Then a very strange thing happened. The roar died away, and out of the center of the bird, a fur clad man stepped carrying a heavy bag. Santa came hurrying out to meet him and took the bag.

"'Oh dear me,' said my mate, 'I shall never be able to wait till Christmas Eve to find out all about that! I'm just fairly quivering with curiosity!'

"Well, let's go see it," I said.

Reindeers Have Dignity.

"We rambled over, in the snow, nibbling at moss as we went, so as not to appear too eager. Sometimes we remember our dignity. It didn't seem to be a bird at all, now that it was down on the ground. It didn't smell like a bird to start with, nor have any feathers.

"Santa laughed when he came over with the man and found us sniffing at the bird's wings.

"'Here, Thunder and Dash," he said to the man, 'and oh! the hard questions they'll be asking Christmas Eve. They each save up one question till just before we start out with the sleigh. 'One year, I could answer easily enough. Thunder was disturbed over my name Santa Claus, because claws as she knew them didn't fit me at all. It was a corruption of Saint Nickolas, I explained, though why they ever thought I bore any resemblance to a Saint I couldn't tell.

Thunder's Wonder.

"The next year the reindeer all wanted to know what made the Gasoline Pump work, and that was a hard one to answer. But I can always fall back on my magic when I am cornered; so they were quite satisfied.

"Thunder nudged me. She wrinkled her nostrils and glanced toward the shed at the back of the house, 'Yes,' I said, 'the Bird does smell just like Gasoline Pump!'

"All this while the man was busy unloading bags from the Tornado Bird. Santa asked us to help carry them to the house. They were bags of the usual Christmas letters, he said, from children all over the world. They had arrived very early on account of the flying ship.

"'I never saw a ship like that,' whisper d Thunder to me. You see, we have been everywhere in the world with Santa and we had never seen a ship like that.

The Flying Ship Rises.

"But still if Santa said it was a flying ship, that would be all right, we knew, because Santa never told us a lie, though he did take refuge in saying things were magic when he couldn't explain something.

"Later when the Bird's master had had a good dinner with Santa, he climbed in, on a sort of seat, like the kind in our big sleigh, and then he moved some sticks, and then the roar started again. We dashed off to one side to watch and after sliding along on the ground a ways, the bird rose in the air, roaring all the time.

Santa Keeps His Sleigh.

"Higher and higher it sailed till it was just a tiny spot and finally it was lost in the Dancing Flames.

"Santa called us, 'Another year,' he said, 'I'll be taking all the children's toys to them in just such a flying ship. How will you like that?'

"We shook all our bells to say no,—too many years have the children counted on Santa Claus and his reindeers, we knew."

"Did he carry out his threat?" asked the child. The reindeer shook his bells again.

"Oh, he really couldn't go in a flying ship because ours is the only sleigh that could carry all the children's toys. You see he made disappearing bags for the toys long ago, when he needed room. And when he puts one in the back of the sleigh it just disappears until he is ready for it. So there is plenty of room for the next bag.

What Makes It Go?

"Thunder said if she asked Santa what made the Tornado Bird go, he would say it was magic, and that couldn't be so, because earth people cannot use magic. But that seemed the most important question to ask and what do you think Santa said?"

"What did he say?"

"Well, he scratched his head as he does when he is trying to think up an answer and he said it was the noise that made it go! His eyes twinkled when he said it, and when Thunder asked what made Tornado Bird smell like Gasoline Pump, he said we would have to hurry and go, because it took ever so much longer when people lived in apartments, to get all the toys delivered.

One Question a Year.

"We all danced round and round making music with our bells in our joy at starting off for another Christmas."

"Did Thunder ever find out about the noise in the Tornado Bird?" asked the child persistently.

The reindeer drew himself up proudly. "We have to consider our dignity," he said. "We have only one question a year. It wouldn't be dignified to ask more.

The child stirred uneasily and awoke. "Only one question a year,"—he sighed, —',it certainly wouldn't do me."

Chimneys

Just suppose houses were built without chimneys. How in the name of time would Santa Claus make his dramatic entrance to the homes of little children? Fortunately for architects and masons and builders, Santa Claus is not a fussy mortal, and obligingly accommodates his portly self, "that shakes all over like a bowlful of jelly," to the narrowest and most crooked of chimneys; and we've never known the dear old saint to lose his temper, even if he has stubbed his toe on a loose brick en route to the fireplace. But what do you imagine Santa did in those days before chimneys were fashioneable, for history tells us that chimneys were first introduced into England in 1200, and in the beginning found only in the kitchen or large hall?

Yuletide in the Toy Shop

By W. J. E.

The Toylands surely are bigger and better than ever, aren't they, boys and girls? Why, there's everything imaginable and heaps of things one never would think of unless he or she paid a visit to Santa's supply houses.

Every evening after four, when there seems to be about an hour or so to spare, hundreds of boys and girls, and mothers and dads too, start on a tour, not only of inspection, but very often, subtraction from the family balance, but everyone is happy. "Christmas comes but once a year," they say—"Let's make the most of it."

Down George street and Charlotte jostled in a happy throng, the family goes, enters some store, and then—Ho! for Toyaland. The trip is brief and they enter a glorious scene into which is crowded everything dear to the heart of a child. Soon mother and dad are at their wits' end to keep their little family circle unbroken.

Toyland.

Gee, fellows, did you see that peachy electrical railroad set! Just like the real thing! Switches, tunnels, bridges, semaphores and gosh knows what all. Maybe that wouldn't look mighty nifty set down in the living room on Christmas morning!

And while brother is so busy raving about his silly old train engines, isn't it great, little sister, to go over to the counter where the lady with the pleasant smile shows you the dolls, and even lets you hold that particularly large one, all dressed in blue, with eyes that close, a voice that calls quite plainly and real dresses, booties and all the rest! I just wonder if, if one were an extra good little lady, Santa might see his way clear to leave it at a certain little person's home? I wonder—

But there's heaps more to see than just trains and dolls. Let's go over here. Why, there are miniature ironing boards, clothes lines pressing irons, washing boards, tables, dishes, dolls' beds and everything necessary to furnish a playhouse in the most pleasing manner, and surely, Santa Claus rewards good behavior Suppose we try him this Christmas, for sure.

Sister has had her share of this story by now hasn't she fellows? Now we shall look into this toboggan and sleighing problem and if all goes well, that set of skates hanging on the post over near the window may also pass careful inspection. But say, we nearly forgot baby brother. Funny how one may only see the answers to his own desires. That was just a slip though, and it's not too late to take him back to that reserved space where the toy auto is parked carefully beside its more humble brother, the red wheelbarrow and its rival, the express waggon. My! but he could have a lot of fun with any one of the three. And there is another toy that should catch his fancy. It is in the form of a rocking horse, only it has a new spring idea that makes it work better and at the same time, makes it much safer. Now there would be a present! Meanwhile, mother and dad are busily making mental note of what each child fancies most, later they will help them with their letters to Santa Claus and here's hoping the boys and girls do not forget that parents, too, enjoy receiving a gift or two.

But we seem to have wandered from our main subject. We shall awake to the present and observe that the time for visiting is almost over. Departure from this land of toys to the world of reality is necessary, that is proven by a hurried glance at the big clock on the wall over yonder. And yet maybe some other evening another visit may be made. Cetrainly the boys and girls never grow tired in Toyland.

MOTHERS HONORED ON CHRISTMAS NIGHT

"Moddra Niht," or Mother's Night, is the oldest English name for Christmas, though the old customs of Mother's Night have gradually died out. It was the custom for the early Saxons to dedicate the night of Christmas to the special honor of mothers. They occupied the seats of honor and every one brought them gifts. The custom remains to some extent in the North of England in Mothering Sunday. On that day every one who can do so still makes a pilgrimage homewards, and the mother receives the homage of her family.

A YULETIDE BASKET

A gift in which loveliness and thought are expressed is represented in a Yuletide basket, that may also present artistic handiwork. Basketry of varied and pretty designs may be obtained from the shops and filled with tiny branches of fir or spruce and sprays of scarlet holly. Red candles, or white candles, gay with mounted redbreasted robins or artificial holly, thrust into the green, give a festive touch to the basket, while a bow of scarlet ribbon, and perhaps a tiny robin tied to the handle of the brown wicker basket, completes the Christmasy gift.

What To Choose For Her

"'Tis not the weight of jewel or plate, nor the fondle of silk and fur, but the spirit in which the gift is sent, as the gifts of the Wise Ones were. And we are not told whose gifts were gold, nor whose the gift of myrrh."

A gift for Miladi! What will she like?

Well, anything from a fur coat or scarf to a box of handkerchiefs may be purchased in Peterborough's shops, and, speaking of handkerchiefs, the manufacturers have thought up the most enticing ways of presenting their product this year. Lovely square and oval boxes with glorified covers in gay colors hold handkerchiefs whose lace edges are used to make a central design, or small dolls are clothed entirely with pink and blue and white kerchiefs.

Then there are bonbons in hand-painted boxes, or lovely things in the drugstores, like cartons of assorted toilet accessories, or small red and crimson temples opening out to show an enshrined Buddha in amber glass, his rotund body filled with choice perfume. There are dainty metallic hats and lovely evening gowns and exquisite silk hose for the dancing feet of sweet sixteen.

For the housekeeping lady, there are linens and china and brass, in the loveliest of weaves and designs and patterns. What about a new brass toasting fork or a lovely Wedgewood bowl, a Dresden figurine or a Moorecroft pottery vase, such as may be encountered in the upper Gift Bazaar of the Hall store? Here, too, is a novelty for the mantelpiece in an Elizabethan ship model, in wood, a galleon complete with sails and anchor chains. On a raffia market basket with her and green flowers, or one of the new felt flowers for the coat.

For the lover of dainty table linens, and what home-loving woman is not, the Dickson Store offers a beautiful stock, with something really out of the ordinary in the new Rayon weaves, developed in the daintiest of patterns in breakfast sets in glistening yellows, sky blues and ruby purples.

In the Gift rooms of the Canadian Department Stores, there are the new sets which meet the eye also in other places, the little box containing a pair of resplendent garters, a compact and handkerchief, or perhaps a pair of shoetrees and some perfume. Here one sees a brass gong for the table, a tiny work table in walnut, of adorable design in the dark wood or a little musical dog for the junior miss, who can manipulate his soft sides sufficiently to make the wide-eyed little thing play a soft tune. Or, for the convivial-minded, there is a charming bit of Chzecho-Slovakian glass in the lighthouse-cocktail-shaker done in black and white and yellow, with half a dozen glasses attached to its base. And what about the nice clock that will go for a year with one winding and lives under a glass case, like the Victorian models, with a mahogany base? Or a gorgeous rose velvet buffet scarf, with an overdrape of metallic net? Or a silver-mounted casserole, or a pair of cosy gloves with fur-trimmed wristlets?

Could anything be nicer for the party-going lady than a dress length of cut velvet from the many lovely bolts in the Fair store, or a pair of fussy pyjamas in peach crepe, with Oriental design and black borders.

The McNabb Store has party frocks on view, with a lovely model for the dainty damozel in a pale yellow, tiny frills on the skirt alternating with net bands that show the silver underskirt beneath. Imagine this frock with a pair of the charming silver Cinderella slippers one sees in the shoe stores.

From the jewellers' windows wink the thousand enticements of delicate things in gold and silver and platinum, wrist watches and bracelets, pendants and pins and rings, with enamelled colored flowers on dainty vanity cases and compacts, and frosted silverware and gold-lined tea sets.

In the Turnbull Store, there are beautiful sets for Miladi's dresser, in the delicate mother of pearl hues of ivory that is tinted in pearl and rose, in pink and amber and pure white, and there are bridge-table accessories in the same exquisite ware. There are fancy wrist bags in the new Louis Sixteenth tapestry, self-perfuming coat flowers in violets and lily-of-the-valley, a black antelope envelope bag for the luxurious one, with a glittering brilliant clasp, a new parasol with a crook handle and blunt ending, in colored silk, pieces in embossed Dutch silver for the dresser and the table and the buffet, and silver cigarette cases and candlesticks and vases.

For the devoted mother, what is nicer than a down-filled comforter from the upstair section of the same store, or a dainty carriage robe for the small darling of the household.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

NIGHT AND DAY

I do not mind the day. The day
Appears to stretch so far away
Its rays might reach to where you are,
However hid, however far.
Surely that lovely arch of blue
That smiles on me must smile on you;
Surely beneath a sun so kind
The heart that seeks the heart will find;
Even when clouds have made it gray,
I do not seem to mind the day.

But, oh, I mind the night. The night
Appears to dim the day's delight,
Throw darkness over every dream.
Whatever little lights may gleam,
They seem so futile. In this sky
What are poor stars, if suns must die?
Something has shut me all around,
Curtains of night, from sky to ground.
You seem so far, from touch, from sight,
And, Oh, I mind so much the night.

Yet, more than suns, this makes the day,
The night: you here, or you away.
You here, it is the night I love
With all its glittering gems above,
You gone, it is the day alone
That I can bear, its shadows know.
Perhaps it is not moon nor sun
That makes it day or night for one.
Someone beside us, or away,
Can make it night or make it day.

TO GREET YOU

I have no gold to give away,
No jewels rare to send to you;
But 'tis my wish this Christmas Day
That golden joys attend on you.

And since I have no priceless things,
May Life her treasures lend to you;
A hope that shines, a heart that sings,
True greetings from a friend to you.
1920 —Theodocia Pearce.

A treasured Christmas card, which conveyed in verse the Yuletide greeting of Theodocia Pearce, known as "The Canadian Helen Keller," whose death was lamented by a host of folk who loved her stories and poems.

OLD MASTERS

Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom,
Lead Thou me on!
The night is dark, and I am far from home—
Lead Thou me on!
Keep Thou my feet; I do not ask to see
The distant scene—one step enough for me.
So long Thy power hath blessed me, sure it still,
Will lead me on,
O'er moor and fen, o'er crag and torrent, till
The night is gone;
And with the morn those angel faces smile
Which I have loved long since, and lost awhile.
—John Henry Newman: The Pillar of the Cloud.

CRANBERRY SAUCE TASTY AND CHEERY

Blossom Said to Resemble Crane and Right Name is Craneberry.

Without cranberry sauce no Christmas dinner is complete. To the feast it lends a cheery note of color as well as a distinctive flavor. Its ruddy hue, reflected in shining glass, contrasts agreeably with the golden brown of the roasted turkey, the snowy white of the napery and the green of celery tips. In its source in the murk of marshes and bogs the cranberry as mysteriously extracts its color from the elements as does the ruby from the earth at its home in far-famed Mandalay.

The berry, the correct name of which is craneberry, so called becauseof fancied resemblance at the time of blossoming of its stercalyx and petal to the neck and head of a crane, forms on a creeping, vine-like plant which requires much moisture. Although it grows wild in many parts of the temperate as well as the colder regions of North America, improved varieties of the cranberry are extensively cultivated for commercial purposes.

In cultivation the marshes where it thrives are drained in such a manner that they can be flooded at will. The land often is overlaid with a coating of sand, which keeps down the weeds and helps to retain the moisture.

There are three principal types of cranberries, determined by the shape, the bell-shaped, the bugle-shaped and the cherry-shaped berry. Fine keeping qualities make the cranberry a most desirable winter fruit.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)
FOR THURSDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1927

Although this is an uncertain day in planetary directions, according to astrology, benefic aspects dominate.

Women now come under a sway making for great activity in public affairs and they will render important service in politics.

The seers warn that in politics women will be prominent during 1928, but they will bow to the leadership of men.

A brilliant campaign for one woman who will aspire to Congress is forecast, but party organizations will keep the great army of newer voters in the ranks, it is foretold.

This is read as a fortunate wedding day since it presages a harmonious partnership with enduring love.

Social ambition is likely to possess great numbers of men as well as women, if the stars are wisely interpreted.

Much extravagance in entertaining is indicated for the winter season when there will be distinguished foreign visitors in America.

Scandals concerning trusts and banks may be uncovered with the settling of the old year's business, it is prophesied.

Honors for an American financier are foreshadowed and great legacies are to be bestowed by men of wealth, who will outdo all whose generosity has preceded theirs, astrologers declare.

Schools and universities continue to enjoy the most favorable planetary direction, although they will be criticised severely.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of hard work that will be profitable.

Children born on this day may be inclined to be self-contained and independent. The subjects of this sign usually develop slowly.

TELLING LINES

The lines that point, dip, round or trace zig-zag yokes, flounces and hems on new fall clothes are quite the smartest touches this season.

CHRISTMAS PUDDING IS STILL POPULAR

Recipe Given for Famous English Plum Pudding.

The traditional English plum pudding, which finds a place in the Christmas celebrations of the humblest farmer and the most palatial home of England, is "stirred up" several weeks before Christmas Day, and in many instances accompanied by a certain ceremonial. Francois Latry, chef of the Savoy Restaurant, gives the following recipe for a seven-pound English Christmas pudding.

"Ingredient: Twelve ounces Malaga raisins, 12 ounces currants, 12 ounces suet, 9 ounces flour, 4 ounces chopped apple, one ounce orange peel, 8 ounces brown sugar, half pint milk, 12 ounces Smyrna raisins, 12 ounces crystallized peel, 10 ounces bread crumbs, one ounce ginger, one ounce citron peel, one teaspoonful salt, six eggs.

"How to make it: All the dry ingredients should be well mixed together. A little extra mixing well repays the trouble. Beat the eggs and add them to the milk, then pour over the dry ingredients and again mix thoroughly. Pack into greased moulds and boil for six hours at the time of making. The puddings should be boiled for a further six hours when wanted for use. The best sauces are white or custard."

MISSION CIRCLE ELECTS OFFICERS

St. James' Church Young Ladies Re-elect Miss Marion Wagar.

The annual meeting of the Y. L. Mission Circle of St. James' United Church was held on Monday at the home of Miss Aileen Rose, Morrow street, with the President, Miss Marion Wagar, presiding.

After the routine of business, a short but interesting Christmas program was given. The solo, sung by Aileen Rose, accompanied by Jean Rose, was very appropriate and much enjoyed.

Mrs. E. L. Woodley, President of St. James' Auxiliary, then presided while the election of officers took place. The new officers are: Hon. President or Superintendent, Mrs. E. J. Wagar; President, Marion Wagar; First Vice-President, Nina Andrus; Second Vice-Pres., Edith Wright; Recording Secretary, Jessie Martin; Corresponding Secretary, Mabel Dulmage; Treasurer, May Ritchie; Superintendent of Christian Stewardship and Systematic Giving, Ethel Dudgeon; Superintendent of Literature, Zetta Wood; Strangers' Secretary, Greta Welbourn; Pianist, Aileen Rose; Assistant Pianist, Marjorie Dudgeon; Supply Committee, Mrs. D. Foster, Jessie McGregor, Mrs. E. Kitney; Delegates to Peterborough Presbyterial, Aileen Rose and Marjorie Dudgeon; Press Secretary, Connie Wagar.

Reports of the year's work were called for and showed that in all respects it had been most successful, the treasurer's report showing that the society had not only reached its allocation, but had gone well over the top.

A large amount of the funds were raised through a "map" contest. In this contest Miss Nina Andrus was successful in winning the prize offered by the Superintendent to the member selling the most shares in the map. The prize, "Emily's Quest," by Montgomery, was presented by the donor.

Following this was a pleasing feature of the meeting, and a complete surprise to those most interested, when the Circle made three of its members, Jessie Martin, Zetta Wood and Aileen Rose, Life Members of the Society. A short address to each of the three recipients was read by Mrs. H. A. Bonney, and the certificates were presented by Mrs. Wagar.

At the conclusion of this very successful meeting, dainty refreshments were served, and terminated the work of the Circle for the year 1927.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith's first emotion when Cherry announced to Bruce Patton her desire to have "a quiet evening at home for a change" was anger. It was simply beastly of Cherry to cheat her out of an evening at the opera with Bob and Rhoda.

Faith knew well that her sister's impulsive decision had but one explanation: jealousy. Cherry could not tolerate the mental picture of Faith and Nils Jonson spending an evening alone together. Was it possible that all of Cherry's absurd conduct and inexplicable moods of the last hectic twenty-four hours since she had first set eyes on the young Viking-farmer could be attributed to the fact that she had fallen in love with Nils?

Within a few minutes after meeting her, Nils had asked her to go to the opera with him and his sister: early the next morning he had sent her an almost ridiculously expensive box of roses, which she had pretended to scorn; a few hours later he had appeared at her office and literally carried her away to lunch with him against her will. But rather than go to the opera with him that night she had imperiously summoned Bruce Patton to her rescue. And now the three of them—Cherry, Nils and Bruce, a strange triangle—were confronting each other, the two men greeting each other with cold politeness which did not at all conceal instantaneous dislike, while Cherry, almost blindingly beautiful in her golden costume, was fluttering between them.

Faith, after her perfunctory greeting of Bruce Patton, watched her sister with narrowed brown eyes clouded with resentment and disgust. Had Cherry ever in her life played fair with any man? Like a Coxey's army, the procession of men whom Cherry had given bits of her heart to, and of whom she had grown tired as soon as they were wholly in love with her, marched across the motion picture screen of Faith's memory. Probably she remembered them far better than Cherry did! Having married one of Cherry's discarded suitors, Faith told herself bitterly that she had had small chance of forgetting. How she preened herself, fluttering between these two men, egging them on to hate each other and to desire her!

Faith, absorbed in her own thoughts and in her fascinated study of Cherry's technique as a consummate flirt, had heard none of the conversation which had bridged over the first awkwardness of this meeting between Cherry's two latest admirers. But she aroused herself to her duties as a hostess when Cherry suddenly flew to the radio and tuned in on a jazz orchestra. Faith was rather glad there was to be dancing. Of course both of the men would want to dance with Cherry. It would not even occur to them to make a decent pretense of preferring Cherry's sister, an unexciting married woman. However, it would be good to dance again—

Bud oddly enough here was Nils, dropping to the couch beside her, without even a glance of invitation toward Cherry. Faith saw her sister toss her head with angry defiance, then stretch out her arms to Bruce Patton, who was smiling with smug content.

"I'm sorry we aren't to be alone," Nils was saying, amazingly. "I very much want to have a talk with you."

If I Were Santa Claus

Peterborough Men and Women Tell What They Would Do If They Had the Powers of Saint Nicholas

SO MUCH is heard nowadays of commercialism in connection with Christmas and especially about the commercializing of Santa-Claus, that The Examiner decided to find out the truth for presentation in this Christmas Edition.

Men and women of all classes were asked by Examiner reporters, "If you were Santa Claus, what would you do?" Their replies are on this page.

It was heartening to find so many who believed the patron saint of Christmastide has been doing his work very well indeed—so well that they could not add ideas to his pack. There were, however, many who had suggestions to offer of ways in which the good work of Santa might be extended to cover the newer needs of this advanced age. Mrs. Neal, for instance, recognizes the need of something more than toys and presents for the older boys and girls who have been denied the opportunity to advance in life. Mrs. Connolly believes Christmas could be made more happy for many families of Santa could produce from his seemingly inexhaustible store of good things sufficient employment for all men who are out of work.

Perhaps the men of the community do not give so much thought to the needs of others as do the women. In any event, they do not give expression to the same varied ideas. Mr. Boulton would pay particular attention to the underprivileged children, if he were Santa Claus, and he would then take care that all needy families were supplied with food, clothing and fuel.

When We Were Children.

We remember, when we were children, standing outside a store and "choosing." The game was to "choose" an article on display in the window, taking turns, and the one to whose lot the last article fell won the game.

And we remember, too, talking of what we would do if we had a million dollars. Perhaps it was so long ago that automobiles and airplanes and radios did not figure, because they may not have been thought of, but there were horses and ponies and buggies and boats that would be purchased for ourselves. These personal desires took up only a small part of the million, however, and our plans—if you recall—always included many presents for our friends and a gift of some kind for everyone in the world, almost. Perhaps we are not yet too old to dream of what we would do if we had a million dollars.

Most certainly we can imagine what would do if we were Santa Claus. Probably our plans now would include more of help and pleasure for others than did our childish dreams—as is indicated by the following interviews. And if we cannot be the real Santa Claus this Christmas, we can at least emulate him in our smaller way.

And this will be the Merriest Christmas!

Mrs. J. Mills, 451 Hunter street west—"I would give to the ones that need it most, in my opinion; the children and the old people and the needy and sick veterans."

Mrs. J. H. Seels, 525 Homewood avenue—"If I had plenty of money and the power to give where I wished at Christmas time, I would give a radio to every old folks' home in the country, to bring a little of the pleasure that so many of us get from it, into their lives."

Mrs. E. B. Clegg, 273 Charlotte street—"Christmas seems to be the time for children. All little ones should have a happy Christmas, no matter where they may be, in their own homes or in institutions. I would try to give every child a joyful Christmas, if I were Santa Claus."

"If I were Santa Claus? Well now, that's rather a large order to throw at a fellow," said J. D. Moore when asked point blank what he would do under such circumstances. "If I were Santa Claus" he repeated, at the time pondering deeply. Then, with a smile—"If I were Santa Claus I would just do as he has been doing for hundreds of years. I don't think he could be improved upon, do you?"

W. Boulton, B.A., territorial manager of the Confederation Life Insurance Company had a few ideas which he felt old Saint Nick might make good use of. Said he, "If I were Santa Claus I would first look after all the underprivileged children in the district and after that I would take cognizance of all the needy people in town. I would see that all have the three main essentials to tide them through the winter months, food, fuel and clothing to keep them comfortable within and without. And last of all," he added, brightening up with true light of business in his eye, "I would endeavor to persuade every father to purchase an insurance policy that would bring the joys of Christmas to his family, though he has passed along the road. That's the spirit."

H. B. Mathews, of the London Life Insurance Company, when asked of his ideas regarding Santa Claus, replied in more or less poetic form. Said he—

I'd go down the line and pick the toys
Most apt to please the girls and boys.

Past President Tobin, of the Peterborough Underwriters' Association—thought that the Santa Claus of the past and present has filled the bill to perfection, though he too, thought along the way of Mr. Boulton—that the three main essentials, food, fuel and clothing should be distributed generously by the popular annual visitor.

Mrs. John I. Allen, 529 Weller street—"I would give every person I knew a whole lot of presents, myself included."

Miss A. M. Lancaster, Superintendent Protestant Home—"I would buy shoes and stockings for all children who didn't have them. I would buy roses for invalids and I would send long, newsy letters to people who were lonely."

Mrs. John Bacon, 202 Edinburgh street—"I would gather together all the poor children in the city of Peterborough and give them the very best Christmas they ever had. Each one should have what he or she most wanted. The children come first at this time."

Jack Primeau.—If I were Santa Claus I would try as best I could, to bring Christmas cheer to all the boys and girls, old and young. There is no time like Christmas and, as Santa Claus, I would do my best to promote the "make - others - happy" spirit.

W. Comstock.—Christmas is the time of year when boys and girls are happiest. If I were Santa Claus I would see that they be given as many toys, fruit and candies as possible.

• • •

W. K. Sloan of Regent Tailors.—If I were Santa Claus I would look after all those who are unable to provide for themselves.

• • •

Charles Lacheur, Post Master.—If I were Santa Claus I would like to see every child provided with some gift so that none would be disappointed on going to their stockings on Christmas morning.

F. G. Stinson, Secretary of the chamber of Commerce.—If I were to be Santa Claus, in the City of Peterborough, for instance, I should, first of all, like to be assured by some local authority—the City Council, Chamber of Commerce, etc., that my Christmas cheer would reach the greatest number, particularly those most likely, by reason of special circumstances to derive the greatest benefit from the contact. As a regular honest-to-goodness Santa Claus, I'd feel that I should have the field to myself, that having distributed Christmas cheer in one home, there would be no duplication on the part of a rival so-called Santa Claus. In this way, every little boy and girl in all circumstances of life, would be cared for and none neglected. They would receive better presents and more of them.

Santa, this year, cannot but be favorable impressed by the city and its profusion of holiday illumination, indicating a proper holiday and progressive spirit on the part of all the citizens. Let us hope that, on noting the decorations, his reaction will tend to increase the quality and quantity of gifts to Peterborough children. Perhaps by these and similar demonstations of goodwill toward his cheery self, Santa Claus may be induced, sometime in the future, to put on a bang-up municipal Christmas party, with a Christmas tree large enough to carry a suitable gift for each boy and girl.

Dr. N. H. Sutton, District M.O.H.—If I had a chance of instilling the Christmas spirit into the lives of others, I would give, with it, the ability to stay young at heart which includes the retention of real sportsmanship, a practical abhorence of crookedness, and an admiration of straightness which so tends to wear thin in the struggles of life.

• • •

J. F. H. Wallace, Manager of the Sun Life Insurance branch.—If I were Santa Claus I would try to instil into the heart of every member of the world's large family of little folk: "It is more Blessed to Give than to Receive." Then I would know that as my little friends grew older and away from my immediate care they would carry this same thought out into the world with them. Then not only would Christmas be a season of good cheer, but the Christmas Spirit of Giving would be carried over to every day of the year.

If this could be done, how happy everybody would be.

J. M. Greene.—Mr. Green's conception of Christmas has in it, first, last and always, the idea that it is better to give than to receive. Said he, "There is nothing which gives more genuine satisfaction and pleasure as in spreading Christmas cheer where it is most needed and only the person who has taken a hand in such work, knows the true substance of Christmas."

• • •

W. E. Foley, of the J. M. Greene Music Company.—If I were Santa Claus, I would make a special effort to bring happiness, first of all, to those who, by reason of circumstance, are not apt to get it otherwise. The underprivileged children, as well as children in many institutions, should be the first on my list, after which I would endeavor to make everyone in general just as happy as possible Surely that is what Christmas is for—to make others happy.

• • •

Mrs. G. T. Melton, 943 Water St.—"I would like to make a lot of children happy, but I don't think I would go to the places where they are looked after, in shelters and orphanages, but rather to the homes where parents are trying to bring up a number of them, struggling to make both ends meet and show a clean, decent, honest face to the world, with the bread-winner getting a wage of perhaps only fourteen or fifteen dollars a week Most people think that the only families really needing help are those that are down and out altogether, and they never think of the homes where the children have only the bare necessities of life and never know from one year's end to the other what a little luxury is like."

• • •

Mrs. T. McArthur, 27 Frank Street.—"I would give just as good a Christmas as I possibly could manage, to all the poor and needy people I could find."

• • •

Mrs. Wm. Blackwell, 40 Benson Avenue.—"I would try, for one thing to keep out of the public eye until Christmas time. Santa Claus is a great deal in evidence in many places these days. And I would certainly try to help the children and the needy ones. I would like especially to assist those who are trying to help themselves and not just the ones who try to get all they can from other people."

• • •

Mrs. J. John, 366 Simcoe Street.—"I would like to help the children who have little to make them happy, and the sick and friendless people of the world. And I would like to remember all my friend in a special manner."

• • •

Mrs. J. A. McNabb, 207 Brock St.—"I would get all the societies together and have them co-operate in putting on a huge Christmas tree like I saw once in Detroit, where invitations were sent out to everyone who was needy and they all came and had a glorious, happy time in a public square."

• • •

Mrs. E. E. Harvey, 212 Brock St.—"I would find all the poor children I could gather together and see that they had a happy Christmas."

• • •

Mrs. R. Bugg, 60 Wolsley Street.—"I would like to give a jolly Christmas to all those who are in want and the people who haven't much money to get along with."

• • •

Mrs. D. Jordan, 815 George Street.—"I would see that every family in Peterborough had the happiest kind of a Christmas. I would like to remember every one."

• • •

Mrs J. E. Middleton, Monaghan Road.—"I would seek out those who hadn't any Santa Claus in their own homes — mainly the poor and the shut-ins, who can't get out to see all the pretty things at Christmas time. I think it would be lovely, too, to give a lot of poor children a chance to see a real Santa Claus' parade, like they have in Toronto. And for another thing, I would like to send to the South for a change, people who can't afford such a trip and need it."

Mrs. W. H. Andrews, 24 McGill Street.—"I would not miss one kiddie in the world, if I were Santa Claus. And, besides the toys that they play with, I would give them practical things, warm clothing. And I would see that all fathers of poor children had a job, so that the little things wouldn't be needing boots, like so many of them are doing now."

• • •

Mrs. Wm. Watt, 89 Aylmer Street.—"I would do just about the same as Santa is doing now. I don't think he could be improved upon."

• • •

Dr. Jessie Birnie, 502 Water street—"I would try, first of all, to look after the uncared-for children and the uncared-for mothers. There are more of these than people know about. I would send milk to every baby that couldn't have enough of it, because its parents weren't able to buy it. I would see that men had work to do, that parents weren't obliged to go half starved themselves in order that their children might have enough to eat, and I would see that all the babies were well clad."

• • •

Mrs. J. J. Pollock, 165 Perry street—"That is a hard question to answer, but I think I would try to look after the wants of the poor."

Mrs. M. Bredin, 429 Downie street—"I would like to look after the poor children and I would give everyone a lot of presents."

• • •

Mrs. J. R. Marshall, 580 Weller street—"I think the children in poor homes should be hunted out and given a happy Christmas. Each individual child that hasn't a chance of a real Christmas should be helped, not just the children who are looked after so well in our institutions."

• • •

Mrs. W. J. Grady, Lock street—"I would like to give something to everyone who needed it, especially to the poor and the neglected children, to do all I could to make them happpy."

• • •

Mrs. Bruce Law, 25 McGill street—"I would like to give some luxury to those people who have nothing but the bare necessities of life at Christmas time. And I would think specially of the mothers. There are so many women who never consider themselves and then their families forget them. I would give them something they have longed for and have never been able to get."

• • •

Mrs. A. J. Reynolds, 607 Stewart street—"That's a very sudden question to ask a person when they've just come in from doing a lot of Christmas shopping. The only thing I can think of is to say that if I were Santa Claus, I'd take a rest for a couple of years."

• • •

Mrs. Gerald McFadden, 391 Smith street—"I don't know exactly, but I think I would try to visit the homes of the poor and shelters and orphanages where children were being cared for. I would see that those who got a lot divided up with those who didn't get anything, so as to even up matters a little."

• • •

Police Matron Amy Wood believes if she were Santa Claus she would just act as he does looking after all the little girls and boys.

• • •

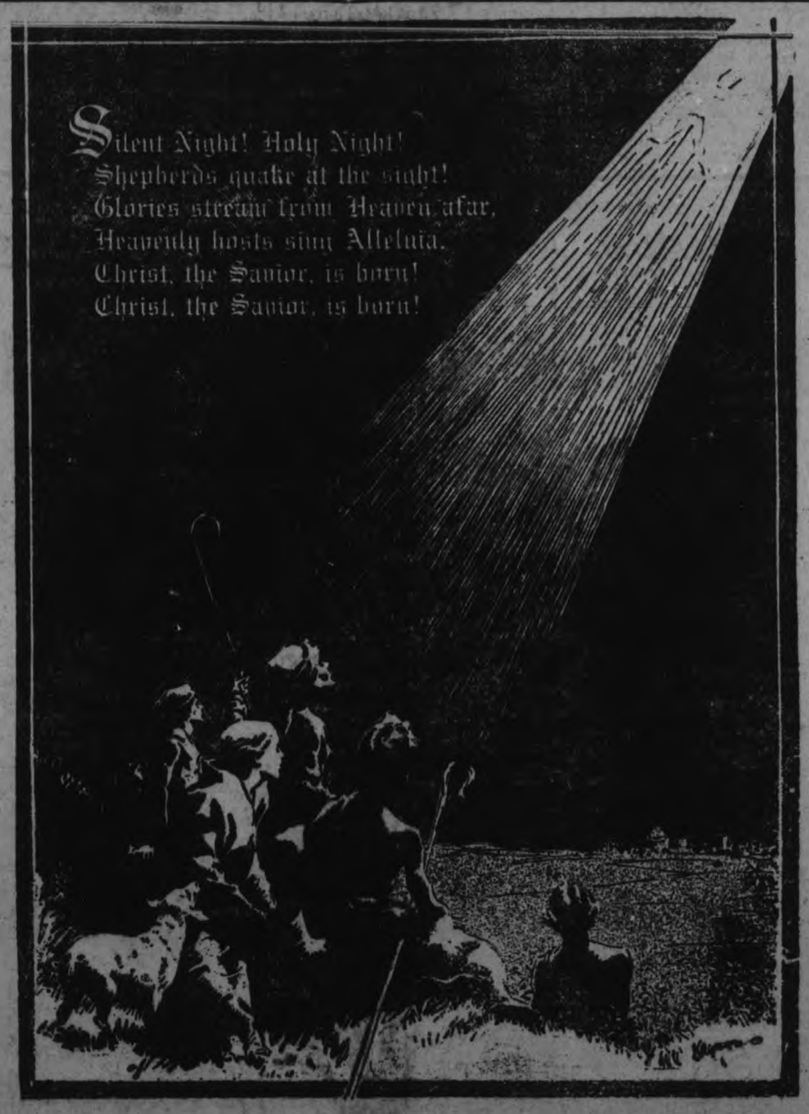
James Abraham, School Attendance Officer, thinks he is a real Santa Claus in himself—for the next two weeks he will be acting his part looking after the poor and needy.

• • •

His Worship Mayor Holloway—Nobody would go hungry or toyless or cheerless on Christmas Day if I were Santa Claus. There would be gifts for the children, toys and warm clothing, and something for mother and dad as well. Those who were poor and out of work would be provided with Christmas cheer, but it wouldn't stop there if I had the genial saint's unlimited opportunities.

• • •

Ald. W. J. Hancock—I would remember the littlest ones first of all. Christmas is the great day in the children's lives and it should be made bright and cheerful for them at least.



How Other People Spend Christmas

ROYAL FAMILY OBSERVES DAY QUIETLY NOW

Huge Feasts of Ancient Days Not Copied by Present Monarch.

CONTRAST IS GREAT

King George and Family Stay at Home — Medieval Celebrations Were Boisterous.

A royal Christmas to-day is in striking contrast to those of the Plantagenet and Stuart ancestors of the king and queen, when ostentation and waste was the order of the day.

A study of the Christmas pleasures of our sovereigns during recent years seems to point to the fact that York Cottage, Sandringham, the well-beloved residence of the late Queen Alexandra, is the favorite Christmas home of the royal family.

For many years it was the practice among a certain class of writers for the popular press to depict the Christmas season spent by the Royal family in their Norfolk retreat, as being something like a glorified gathering at Dingley Dell. This amiable, if ridiculous, fiction has died down largely now, for the simple reason that the real homelife of their present Majesties is now better appreciated. On Christmas Day, all the members of the royal family attend Sandringham Church, where they are respectfully, but unostentatiously, saluted by the tenantry, hardly any visitors from a distance being present.

On the other days of the holiday season the King devotes much of his time to shooting. The Prince of Wales, however, some years ago broke from the usual family tradition and has frequently spent the day in hunting with the West Norfolk Hounds. Queen Mary takes long walks, frequently joining the king's shooting party for lunch. Princess Mary and the Duke of York, now with households of their own, spend the holiday within their domestic circles.

Quiet Christmas.

Christmas is usually rather a quiet day at York Cottage. No guests outside of the family circle are invited, the few days of the Christmas holiday being perhaps the only time of the year when the King is entirely free from State responsibilities.

It is the practice in the King's household at Sandringham to have only cold meals furnished on the day following Christmas in order that servants may have time to entertain among themselves and visit their friends in the neighborhood.

For many years the Duke of Connaught has spent his Christmas at his villa in Beaulieu, in Southern France.

Historic Christmases.

In striking contrast to this uneventful season feasting and wassailing marked the Christmas of royalty from the days of Alfred the Great to Charles I. Although on the return of the Stuarts, Christmas celebrations were reintroduced after their prohibition by the Puritans, the season was never again celebrated with the royal disregard to expense which had marked those of monarchs who were well versed in rifling the pockets of their wealthy subjects, when the royal treasury was depleted.

Occasionally, in these boisterous times, other things besides eating, drinking and general enjoyment marked the festival. Thus, William the Conqueror celebrated his first Christmas in England by a coronation in Westminster Abbey, then newly completed, and his exuberant soldiers amused themselves by firing the surrounding buildings.

In 1127, when Henry I. celebrated Christmas at Windsor, with the King of Scots as his guest, the festivities were marred by a most unseemly quarrel of precedence between the Archbishops of York and Canterbury, winding up with the forcible expulsion of the northern prelate's followers by the partisans of the Archbishop of Canterbury, an act of violence that created a long standing feud, which eventually led to the departure of both principals for Rome to state their grievances to the Pope.

Henry II. marked his first Christmas by pledging himself to expel all foreigners from his dominions.

When King John celebrated the season of goodwill in 1201, he was chagrined to find that after spending his subjects' money like water in the endeavor to make a great splash, his entertainment was completely eclipsed by that of the Archbishop of Canterbury. John dissembled his wrath and bided his time for some months when he took his revenge by celebrating Easter at Canterbury at the archbishop's expense, with cynical disregard to His Grace's purse.

Six Hundred Oxen Eaten.

Henry III., in 1252, celebrated Christmas and solemnized the marriage of his daughter to his friend, Alexander III. of Scotland, by a great feast at which 600 fat oxen were consumed. While enjoying himself, Henry did not forget the poor of his realm, for he ordered his treasurer to fill Westminster Hall with poor people and feast them there for a week.

Hanged Mayor.

Edward I. kept Christmas at various provincial towns. While holding Christmas at one of these in 1286 he added a little spice to the entertainment by hanging the mayor who had given offence.

Mary Tudor kept Christmas in quieter fashion, and her reign marked the trend towards less extravagance at Court during Christmas.

Queen Elizabeth and the Stuarts were fond of masques and amateur theatricals as part of the Christmas festivities, and the sovereigns of the House of Hanover kept the festal week to an even less pretentious manner, until, by the time of Victoria, the Royal Christmas assumed its present modest aspect.

Widespread Philanthropy.

As in earlier days, among the poorer subjects of their Majesties, few, if any, face a cheerless fireside or an empty cupboard on Christmas Day. Not only are the bounties of the king and queen particularly widespread at Christmas, but the giving spirit passes through all sections of the nation, for voluntary philanthropy, in keeping with centuries old Christmas tradition in Great Britain, exerts itself strenuously, even in these days of adversity. The unemployment insurance affords at least barest necessities for many thousands.

"Christmas in Foreign Canada"

By W. E.

Christmas among the descendants of the earliest white settlers in this country—the French-Canadians—is celebrated in somewhat different fashion from that of those of British descent. In Lower Canada, Christmas as a day of festivity is distinctly subordinate to New Year's Day. Christmas among the French is primarily a day of religious observance. Nothing but necessary work is done on Christmas Day; there is little exchange of gifts, most presents being sent to recipients on the first day of the New Year. The midnight Mass on Christmas Eve sets the tone to the proceedings, and at this service are generally found even those whose attendances are only intermittent in other seasons. In the country districts, informal dances are held among the young people, and in accordance with a pleasing custom, troups of young rural dwellers travel from house to house, singing Christmas airs, and putting on improvised entertainments, which are generally rewarded by draughts of light wine, and gifts of money to be devoted to relieving the necessities of the very poor.

Many Customs.

Among the immigrants from Continental Europe is found a variety of customs which flourish among the more conservative of these nationalities. Changes in condition and climate, of course, militate considerably against the perpetuation of all the Christmas customs of these old lands. Obviously, observances common in the open country and in lands where the Christmas winds and snows are less repellant, cannot be reproduced in big cities or even in rural sections, where below zero temperatures are prevailing.

Jewish Practice.

In the celebration of the birth of the Jewish Babe, the Jews have neither part nor lot. To the theological associations of the festival, the Jew feels that he must take exception. He denies that Christ is the Messiah so eagerly watched for by his nation from the days of the prophets until now. For him, bitter memories gather round the name, Christmas. It reminds him of centuries of oppression at the hands of Christians, it reminds him that even in our time, five million Jews in Russia dreaded the advent of the day which was too often marked by the slaughter of her race by men who had come from the sanctuary, celebrating the birth of the Prince of Peace. Especially during the darkness of the Middle Ages, religious zeal, kindled by Christmas celebrations often found an outlet in the senseless persecution of the Jewish race.

But while holding aloof from Christmas, the Jews have around the Christmas season a festival which, in many of its features, bears a close resemblance to the great anniversary of the Christian Church. This is the Hanukah, or Feast of Lights which this year is celebrated during the universal season of rejoicing. It begins at sundown on Sunday, December 18, and closes on Monday, December 26 at sundown.

The Feast of Lights.

The Feast of Lights commemorates a great event on Jewish history, the expulsion by the Syrians after they had desecrated the temple and massacred the population of Jerusalem two hundred years before Christ. The deliverance of the country from the oppressor by the family of the Maccabbees, is one of the most inspiring pages in Jewish history.

The Maccabees had freed their nation from the Syrian but they were not able to free it from the pagan influences that surrounded it, and in the heathen accretions to the Jewish festival, we have an analogy to the similar process that took place with regard to the Christmas celebrations. Both events owe many of their distinctive features to practices originally heathen. In another respect, the two festivals have travelled along parallel lines. Both are now in great measure dedicated to childhood.

Among the Poles.

Those of the Poles among us who still cherish the customs of their old land do not sit down to supper or late dinner on Christmas Eve until the evening star is in the sky. From under the table cloth, hang tiny bits of straw reminiscent of that birth in the Bethlehem stable, and a vacant chair is left for the little baby that was born on Christmas day, nineteen hundred and twenty-seven years ago.

Preparations for Christmas are far-reaching in the Bohemian-Canadian home.

The children and the very old people combine in the construction of a "Bethlehem" a realistic presentation of the Nativity. These "Bethlehems" often pass from generation to generation, and keep them in constant repair and presenting an attractive appearance.

On Different Date.

In general, the Greeks of our population observe Christmas on December 25, and in our way. Some of them, however, still follow the Greek Christmas customs, which, according to their calendar comes thirteen days later than ours. The houses are specially cleaned and whitewashed for the occasion. Every member of the family has new clothes and supplies of fruit that had been stored some time ahead to remain untouched till Christmas are brought out and consumed. To a Greek, the Christ Child's birthday is holy, and an Orthodox Greek makes no presents on that day. Gifts are reserved for New Year's Day.

Italian Christmas.

Many Italian citizens here do all they can to preserve the Christmas customs of their native land. Although changed conditions often make it difficult to do so. For the Italian, Christmas has a special religious significance and attendance at church is an indispensable prt of the procedure.

Swedish Custom.

Any one who enters the home of a Swedish-Canadian between six o'clock on December 25 and January 7 is fairly well assured of getting lots to eat, for bad luck is believed to attend the house during the ensuing year if a person between these dates is allowed to enter and depart without eating and drinking. All but the very poorest families have their Eisengeod, their goose, and their aebleskiver (dessert). In the first of these dishes, which is made of rice, almonds are hidden and the child who finds one receives a prize and the certainty of good luck. Gifts are very often distributed by Santa Claus in person, trading under his Swedish name of Julenisse.

Russian Christmas.

A nice fat little roast pig is a delicacy very often found on the tables of Russian-Canadians on Christmas morning. On Christmas Eve, the children are brought into the room where is the Christmas tree, with the candles lighted. As the candles are burned down the children blow them out. Then there is a rough house for a few minutes; the tree is pulled down and torn to pieces and the children receive their presents. Dinner follows with cold meats and cakes all rich with nuts and wine.

Our Armenian-Canadians have adopted our Christmas in their families, but in their churches they continue their own religious customs. Armenians follow the Greek calendar.

With all these points of difference between the various customs, one feature of resemblance stands out very clearly. That is the feeling of kindliness and thoughtfulness for others which is an undercurrent running through them all—a common ground on which those of different race and language may meet without distrust or embarrassment.

Consider to whom the gift is to be given; let the recipient's likes and needs dictate the article.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGES OF PETERBOROUGH CLERGYMEN

"He Has Come."
REV. JAMES H. DUDGEON
St. James United Church

Mr. Editor.—You have asked me for a Christmas message. Well, at this time of the year who could not say a word of cheer, for Christmas is truly the Glad Season of the whole year. It will be my first Christmas in Peterborough, but I am going to be happy and glad.

This day is the most welcome time to many in all the year. It is welcome to parents. Already many of you are planning for the homecoming of sons and daughters for the family reunion. It is welcome to sons and daughters; to get them fect under mother's table for one day at least away from the restaurant or boarding house. It is welcome to the little ones. Visit Toyland and hear the chatter or catch the gleam of those sparkling eyes as they anticipate the coming of Santa. It is welcome to hard-pressed man, bringing to him an exchange from grinding toil for family and social joys. O, yes, it is welcome to poor and friendless. We have, since coming here, been told you have many in your city who fortune has favored, and they do not forget those who are less fortunate, and a well-filled basket and a note of cheer brings a ray of sunshine to some lonely and discouraged one. We think of the thousands of dollars raised in our province for the Santa Claus Fund. O, yes, we must repeat Christmas is the gladdest, the brightest, and the merriest season of the whole year.

But, stop a moment, Reader. Have you though of a short clause in verse 22, of John 15? These are the words, "If I had not come." What would it have meant It would be a world without a Christmas. Have you ever thought of what that would mean? our stores, no unusual decorations; the change would be in our city. In our stores, no unsual decorations; no happy greetings of the season; no Christmas bells; no home comings; no signs of rejoicing; no Christmas tree; no little stockings hanging up awaiting Santa; no extra mail from postman; no gifts; no holly; no Christmas card. Oh, how sad a world without a Christmas. But we are again reminded; No special music in our churches; no church; no hospitals; no orphanges; no aged homes; we would have old prison house. But all places for relief of suffering all gone, "If He had not come." More, the story of the Shepherd is gone. Yes, more sad, my New Testament is gone, with all its glad messages; no Cross, no pardon, no release from, sin.

We draw our chair close up to the bed of that poor sufferer. Shortly before, the doctor has left, and he shook his head to the nurse. We all know what he means. We begin to tell them of a land where there is no suffering, no sickness; but alas: "If He had not come." Our message is gone. What could we say? How dark a world without a Christmas. A world where Jesus had not come.

Reader, let us rejoice as never before. Let us join with the angel and tell it to all: "Behold, I bring you glad tidings of great joy which shall be to all people. Unto you is born a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." Let the peoples of the earth join the heavenly host and sing "Glory to God in the Highest, On Earth, Peace, Goodwill to men."

Hear is a real Peace Conference; here is the place that gives us Hope for all earth's woe:

"He has come."

Reader, perhaps you have neglected something; you may have forgotten to pray. Surely every heart will rejoice at this season of the year and will you not on Christmas morn, with your first waking thoughts, just offer a little prayer of praise? "Thank Thee, Father God, for Jesus, the world's first Christmas gift, and today I receive Him with joy into my heart as My Saviour and Friend."

What a Glad day. Rejoicing on earth and rejoicing in heaven.

CAROL AND ANTHEM IN THE CHURCHES

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH.

Miss Mabel Clarry has been organist and director of music in Trinity Church for two years, coming directly from New York where an intensive study of music in its different forms was made for two and one-half years.

Miss Clarry attended the music schools under direction of both Columbia and New York Universities, and had as teachers George Auson Wedge of Curtis Institute, Philadelphia, and Institute of Musical Art, New York, Dr. Louis Mueller, John Warren Erb, and others prominent in musical circles.

Before going to New York, Miss Clarry was organist and director of music in Zion Methodist Church, Moose Jaw, Sask., and took part in music festivals under the adjudications of Dr. Henry Coward, Sheffield, England; Dr. H. Fricker, Dr. Ham, and the late Dr. Vogt.

Trinity choir has a membership of forty-one members, and has for its officers for 1928: Hon. Presidents, Rev. Mr. Wren, Mr. S. J. Ridyard; President, Mr. R. F. Downey; Vice-President, Mr. Aubrey Adams; Secretary, Miss E. Jackson; Treasurer, Miss M. Wolstenholme; Librarian, Mr. J. Kennett.

Trinity Church choir is giving two Sundays of Christmas music, on December 18 and 25. Next Sunday morning (December 18) there will be anthems and carols, and in the evening the service will be fully choral, when the music from Handel's "Messiah" will be sung. The program will be continued on the following Sunday.

The organ music will consist of "Pastoral Symphony"—Handel; "Gesu Bambino"—Yon; "Jubilate Deo" — Silver; "March of the Magi Kings"—Du Bois; "Trumpet Tune and Air"—Purcell; "Part of First Movement from Fifth Symphony"—Widor.

The choir will sing the following music:

Carols—"Gloria in Excelsis Deo" (Old English), arranged by Knight; "Good King Wenceslas"; "Bring a Torch, Jeanette, Isabella"—Old French; "The First Nowell"—Traditional.

Chorus—"And the Glory of the Lord."

Recit.—"Behold a Virgin Shall Conceive."

Aria and Chorus—"O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion."

Recit. — "There Were Shepherds Abiding"; "And Lo! the Angel of the Lord Came Upon Them"; "And the Angel Said Unto Them"; "And Suddenly There Was With the Angel."

Aria—"Rejoice, Greatly, O Daughter of Zion."

Aria—"He Shall Feed His Flock."

Soprano—"Come Unto Him, All Ye That Labor."

Chorus—"Hallelujah!"

Soloists: Mrs. Hohner, Mrs. Barton, Miss Blanchard, Miss Stenton, Mr. Park, Mr. Staples, and Mr. Adams.

ST. ANDREW'S UNITED CHURCH

A program of Christmas music will be given by the choir of St. Andrew's on Sunday, December 18th, morning and evening. Fletcher's fine setting of "Ring Out, Wild Bells" will be sung by the choir, also Stainer's arrangement of "Adeste Fideles" for four solo voices and chorus; Petrei Yon's, "Jesu Redemptor" and Vanderwater's "Night of Nights" will also be offered by the choir. A mixed quartette, "The First Nowell." Nevin's "Hark! Hark! My Soul" will be given, as a duet, by Messrs. Humpage and Smith, and Mrs. Ford Turner will sing a 16th Century carol, "All My Heart This Night Rejoices," solos by Mrs. Doig will include "The Gift" by Behrend, and "A Babe Divine" by Hamblen. The hymns and organ numbers will be appropriate to the occasion.

John Crane, organist and choirmaster at St. Andrew's Church, is probably the dean of organists in Peterborough. He started at St. Paul's Church in 1895 and was in charge of music there until 1914. Trinity Church was the scene of his labors for the next five years, from 1914 to 1919, and since that time he has played the organ and directed the choir of St. Andrew's Church. The choir of this church has a reputation for the general excellence of its work, particularly in unaccompanied numbers, and contains a number of well known singers.

SACRED HEART CHURCH

Ever since the Church of the Sacred Heart has been opened John Armstrong has been organist and choirmaster. Prior to taking the position at the south end church nineteen years ago he played at several other churches in this city, where he received his musical education.

Harold Armstrong, son of the organist, is in charge of the music at the Midnight Mass. He is a senior pupil in organ, piano and theory and will complete his studies along these lines this year.

The Junior Gregorian choir of 70 members, trained by the sisters of the Sacred Heart school, will sing the following carols.—

"Angels, We Have Heard."

"At The Manger."

"Holy Night" (solo by Master Collins, with violin obligato by his brother, Mr. Jerry Collins.)

"O Little Babe."

"Come To The Manger."

The Adult Choir will sing the Mass of St. Cecilia in B. Flat, composed by Rev. J. E. Turner, O.S.B.

Quartette—"Adeste Fideles," "Silent Night," "Holy Night."

Organ numbers—Alexandre Guilmant's "Pastorale in A" and "March in E," E. D. Evry's "Meditation in F."

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST

Murray Street Baptist Church is this year planning for Christmas Day a program of exceptional type in the form of a Pageant called "The Star." It is being presented by the scholars of the Sunday school under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Pettit, and the organist, Mr. Collison. Miss Elizabeth Webber is acting as accompanist.

Arthur Collison, the organist, received his early musical education in Petrograd, Russia. At that time he was a pupil of the faculty of the University of Petrograd. Mr. Collison's father was engaged as a specialist in one of the large woollen mills, and also sang as principal tenor in one of the Russian churches of that city.

Mr. Collison's parents had to leave Russia on account of the revolution, after spending eight years in that country. On his return to England he was a pupil of Edred Booth, Mus.B., F.R.C.O., well-known organist and choral conductor, of Huddersfield.

Since coming to Canada, nearly five years ago, Mr. Collison has furthered his musical education with the McGill University of Montreal, being the holder of several diplomas from that college. Coming from Campbellford, Mr. Collison was appointed organist at Murray street May last. An organ recital is held every Sunday evening at 6.45 p.m., and for the recital on Christmas Day, special organ music is being arranged. One of the outstanding numbers to be played on that day is Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," taken from "The Messiah."

PARK STREET BAPTIST

The organist of Park Street Baptist Church is Cecil Lapp, a Peterborough boy, whose first regular charge it is. Mr. Lapp is a young man and takes a great deal of interest in the younger musicians. He has built up a children's choir at Park Street, which has gained a reputation for good singing under his expert leadership.

Christmas music arranged by Mr. Lapp includes "And the Glory of the Lord," by Handel, "And There Were Shepherds," with violin and soprano obligato; a solo, "Sleep, Babe Jesus, Sleep;" "The March of the Magi Kings;" and "O, Thou That Tellest," by Handel.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.

E. W. Davies has recently taken over the position of choirmaster and organist of St. George's Church. The choir, under his direction, will sing carols on Christmas night and will lead the singing of the Communion Service on Christmas morning, which will be fully choral.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION.

Christmas music will be sung at the Church of the Immaculate Conception at the Midnight Mass as follows:

Before Mass—Silent Night.

Then Mass of The Guardian Angels, by Arthur T. McEvoy.

At the Offertory—Alma Redemptoris.

At Communion—Adeste Fideles.

Proven Merit since 1889

Miss Leone Hummel, organist and choir-leader, received her musical training in Peterborough. Under her direction, the choir, though small in numbers, has made great progress, many of the members being singers of much ability.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

A long program of Christmas music has been arranged by Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Mr. Chenhall has been in the city for six years. He was for some time organist and teacher of theory in Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., but came to Peterborough during the early part of the war. His early training was received at Newcastle Cathedral, England, under the tuition of Dr. Rea, and while there he completed the requirements of the Royal College of Organists.

A large new organ has been installed in St. Paul's Church and the Christmas music to be given, particularly the Christmas morning prelude, takes advantage of the wide scope provided in the new instrument.

The program follows:

Christmas Music—Morning.

Prelude, Phantasie on "Adeste Fideles," T. Lea Southgate; John Reading, 1677-1764.

This piece is intended to suggest the entrance of a choir and commencement of a service on Christmas morning. A church festival on which the hymn, "O Come, All Ye Faithful," is universally sung.

The organist gives forth as the musical text, the opening phrase of the old tune, a viol is heard far-off, echoing this. Harmony of the Psaltery players steals along—the bells of the church chime a simple descending scale, and the organ enters for the Voluntary. Violin Obligato by A. McKeown.

Anthem, "There Were Shepherds" (Dr. Vincent); solo—Mrs. Walter Byers.

Solo, "The Birthday of The King" (Neidlinger)—Miss Greta LeBarr.

Anthem, "Star of the Orient" (Harry Rowe Shelley).

Postlude, "Tollite Hostias" (Eugene Gigout) from the Oratorio "Noel" by Saint-Saens.

Christmas Music—Sunday Evening.

Organ Recital—6.45 p.m.

"Choeur Ecclestiastique" (Dr. Ch. Vincent).

The word Choeur means chorus, and though a chorus is generally understood to be a vocal composition for a number of voices, it is a favourite title for an organ piece with a strongly marked rhythm of the grandioso type.

"A Christmas Fantasy" on old English carols, (W. T. Best). Introducing: "God Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen."

"A Virgin Most Pure."

"The Babe of Bethlehem."

"A Rare Song of Christmas, A.D. 1660."

With Finale—"Ye Chimes" and "The Boar's Head Carol."

Chorus, "The Three Ships" (Colin Taylor).

"A Christmas Song."

As I went up the mountain side,
The sea below me glittered wide,
And eastward, far away I spied
The three great ships that take the tide
On Christmas day in the morning.

The sun and the wind they told me there
How goodly a load the three ships bear, there
bear,
For the first is Gold, and the second is Myrrh.
And the third is Frankincense most rare:
On Christmas day in the morning.

(The words written by Alfred Noyes, Poet Laur.)

Old Carol, "The Prince of Life" (J. Coad) Octette for mixed voices; Instrumental Bass. Cello—Martin B. Chenhall, Jr.

Before the general introduction of harmoniums and organs—when the church orchestras were in vogue and music was characteristic—the Instrumental Bass was a special feature of carols, particularly in the West of England. Every player of a bass instrument—if "worth his salt"— could supply his own orchestral "part," and often play it with very fine effect. From some half-dozen Instrumental Basses to the extremely popular "Prince of Life," which I possess in old MS books, I have selected the one here given. In two or three places it is not quite in accordance with academic rule; but on the whole it follows the traditions of Bach and Handel. It was customary for the Instrumental Bass to be played on the bassoons and 'celli.—Dr. Ralph Dunstan, compiler and editor of Old Carols.

Duett, "The Song of the Angels" (Stults)—Misses Greta LeBarr-Bertha Hill.

Anthem, "Sleep, Holy Babe" (Chas. W. Pickells)—Obligato: Flute and 'Cello.

"Ring Out, Wild Bells," Festival Carol (Percy E. Fletcher).

Ring out, wild bells to the wild sky,
The flying cloud the frosty night.
The year is dying in the night,
Ring out, wild bells and let him die.

Ring out the old, ring in the new:
Ring, happy bells, across the snow:
The year is going, let him go:
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

(Words from Tennyson's "In Memoriam.")

Organist and Choirmaster:
Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O.

MARK STREET CHURCH

The organist and choirmaster of Mark Street Church is Victor H. L. Boorman, who has held the position for seven years. He received his early musical education in this city, studying under John Allan, R. J. Devey and J. H. Renwick, while he studied vocal music with John Ball of New York. He has arranged a program of special Christmas music for both services on Christmas Day.

At the morning service the anthems will be, "Christians Awake," by E. K. Heyser, with solo by Mrs. Wand, and "The Glory of His Name" by Parks.

In the evening there will be a solo by Mrs. H. Hunter, and the anthems "Glory to God in the Highest," with solo by Mr. Binks, and "Thou Holy Babe of Bethlehem."

The choir includes fifteen sopranos, five altos, five tenors and five basses.

Window Shopping Makes Christmas Interest

UP-TOWN STORES REWARD PASSERS-BY WITH IDEAS

By W. J. Ellis.

The greatest problem of all the year, and one whose solution seems more and more impossible as the days go by, is "what to give at Christmas time." Sometimes, one may even find oneself almost in a state of desperation as the short time left grows less and less, and many names on that list of friends to be remembered are still lacking a checking off mark.

But come. The day is not lost. Let us go window shopping. It's a happy pastime, and what with the very finest and most varied suggestions in the windows of every store in the City, surely one may easily make final choice of gifts for mother, dad, baby brother or sister, grandmother and in fact, the entire family, to say nothing of someone whose gift must be given especial attention.

With such a happy prospect, the journey to the business section of the city seems a brief one and the window shopper soon finds himself, or herself, drifting with the hundreds of other window shoppers, up or down George street, or perhaps branching off to view the truly splendid displays prepared by other firms located on such streets as Hunter, Simcoe, Charlotte and the rest.

Suddenly one finds oneself in an entirely new dilemma, for the old trouble of scarcity of ideas has given way to the problem of deciding on possibly a dozen presents from the thousands to be seen in the windows. The only way out seems to be to search first for mother's gift, then dad's and so on, down the line.

For Mother.

"Yes, I'm almost certain that father has bought her that coat, and somehow, I guess such a costly gift is beyond my allowance, anyway," you remark to yourself. Then, standing before the window of some book store, there suddenly comes the thought, "she will be going to church on that very Sunday." How she would appreciate that Testament, all bound in pure leather. That's it for sure and you hurry inside where a courteous clerk assists you in the purchase.

As for Dad—

Surely he is worthy of more than the proverbial neck tie. Why not vary a bit. Now wouldn't he be pleased to find, among his other gifts, that nifty looking belt buckle together with the watch chain and clasp; you know, it fastens on his belt when his watch is placed in the watch pocket of his trousers. Thus he would carry with him the token of your kindest wishes through the entire year.

TRICKS WITH MAGNETS

Many perplexing tricks may be performed by the aid of magnetism. There are two kinds of magnets, the ordinary permanent variety and electro-magnets. Of the first type the horse shoe variety will be found most serviceable.

A steel pen-knife may be magnetized by rubbing a magnet with slight pressure to and fro along the blade first on one side and then on the other. About 30 rubs along each side will be needed. Take care to use the same pole of the magnet the whole time. Do not lift the magnet between strokes. The secretly magnetized knife will readily lift needles, small screws, pen nibs, etc., and the uninitiated will be puzzled if asked to do it with their own knives.

CHRISTMAS MARKED BY HISTORIC EVENTS

It was Charlemagne who was crowned Emperor of the West on Christmas Day in the year 800, who inspired the idea of dating all events from the birth of Christ. This coronation is one of the most brilliant spectacles associated with the day. The year previously Leo III. had fled from Rome under the protection of Charlemagne, and was so well treated and so deeply impressed that when he returned to the Vatican he gave his benefactor the title of Emperor of the West. Charlemagne was crowned with extraordinary pomp and ceremony. He cuts a romantic figure in history. He loved war and learning and splendor, and when he died the greater part of Europe had been brought within his power.

Nor must we forget another gift we owe to a Christmas Day and for which our generation has deep cause to be grateful. Florence Nightingale roused the nation to their duty to the sick and wounded in wartime, but it was the inspiration and devotion of Clara Barton, born on Christmas Day in 1821, which gave the breath of life to the Red Cross Society. She helped to lay the noble foundations of the organization which has spread its human and practical gospel throughout the warring world.

NAME OF CHRISTMAS IS BORNE BY ISLAND

The explorers have given us pleasanter reasons for thinking of other events associated with the day os days. There are three places in the world which bear the name of Christmas, and thereby give the date to their discovery. Christmas Island in the East Indies, which was found in 1868, is a freak of nature with a strange industry. It is actually the top of a mighty submerged mountain. The population is small, and their chief occupation is that of collecting the deposits of phosphate of lime formed by the birds from time immemorial. Christmas Island in the Pacific is rich in mother of pearl and guano.

But the richest of all the Yuletide discoveries was, of course, Natal, the flourishing Province of South Africa. It was discovered by the Portugese on Christmas Day, and therefore it occurred to them as fitting to call it Natal.

Modernism Attempts Trimming Festive Tree

AND HOW!—WITH HEDGE CLIPPERS, CHAUVE SOURIS SANTAS, AND GEOMETRIC WREATHS!

For the modernistic Yuletide: (1) Reminiscent of ancient Egyptian art is the 1927 Santa adorning this Christmas card; (2) a falling angel top-piece for the ultra-modern Christmas tree; (3) Lindy extends his influence to the pinnacle of the modern tree, clipped in step-backs like the up-to-date skyscraper and illuminated with incandescent denizens of the jungle; (4) wreaths? That's right — geometric and grotesque ;and (5) a modern Santa a-reindeer.

By Julia Blanshard.

Christmas this year is the crucial test of just where you stand, apparently.

Are you an old-fashioned sentimentalist or are you a modern?

Your Yuletide decorations will tell the tale.

For the old-timers, there are the legendary meaningful standard decorations for a tree, topped by a white angel and hung with pop-corn balls, cranberry strings, gaudy ornaments and candles—and wreaths of holly, sprays of mistletoe for the house.

But moderns scorn the natural Christmas tree. Theirs they shingle and cut in the manner of hedges, into fantastic shape, the most prevalent being the skyscraper design with several sheer walls and then set-backs.

Mere Candles? Oh, No!

These set-backs house the lights. But don't think mere candles or electrics will satisfy a modern! This season sends sets of small celluloid animals in weird shapes that slip over the tiny electric bulbs and march around the set-backs like an illuminated parade en route to the zoo.

Some trees will be topped, not by an angel, but by an aeroplane in the spirit of this mechanical age.

Most popular for the peak decoration of the modernistic trees is the "falling angel," a sophisticated interpretation of the conventional angel—one who does not give the impression of coming to earth with a bumb, but just wafting gently down in an earthly direction. There are modernistic Santa Claus figures too, really much more like a Chauve Souris wooden soldier dressed in Santa's togs than old St. Nick himself.

The modern trees will not be hung with gifts, but the foundation on which they stand will open to reveal treasures.

Other modern decorations include holly, laurel, mistletoe and cedar, fashioned, not into the wreath of yore, but into neat, simple triangular and other geometric designs, for hanging on the front door and windows. New electric candles lighten these and impart to the portal a spirit of Yuletide cheer before one even enters the house.

Even the Table's Turned.

The Christmas table also undergoes a change. One new set of linen is holly-red damask instead of white napery. Against this scarlet cloth and napkins, snowy decorations stand out a huge snowball centers the table and white tapers light it. Favors from inside the snow-ball may be anything from Santa Claus caps to some of the new modern primitive looking animals.

For other house decorations there are quantities of new shapes in red paper lanterns—square, oval, many of them with modernistic jumbled patterns on them that draw inspiration from old legends.

Christmas cards, including place cards for Christmas dinner, run all the way from the beautiful old-time favorite of the three Wise Men following the star to new almost shockingly crude drawings of old Santa astride a reindeer holding a simple spray of fir in his hand—a frankly modernistic card.

It's Easy to Do, But—

If the new modernistic suggestions appeal to one, it is simple to barber the tree, shape the holly differently and utilize some of the newer decorations. You may not like them, once you have achieved marvellous results. But you will know once and for all that you want to remain a sentimentalist at least in regard to Christmas. The experiment will elnd pleasant zest to an ever-pleasurable home task.

CHRISTMAS TREES DECORATE UPTOWN BUSINESS SECTION

Kiwanis Club Provides Greenery To Give Festive Appearance.

COMMUNITY WORK.

Lighted Tree Will Be Erected at George and Charlotte Streets.

Kiwanis Club, with the assistance of several members of the Friday Night Club, last night dressed the streets in festive attire for Christmas. Large trees were fastened to all the light standards on George and Charlotte streets, from McDonnel to King and west to Aylmer. With the vari-colored electric lights strung under direction of the Utilities Commission, the streets now present a very pleasing seasonable appearance, and this will be enhanced when the Club carries out its further plans.

It is proposed to erect a large tree at the intersection of George and Charlotte, to be decorated with lights.

This is the first attempt made to give Peterborough a community Christmas, and it is expected that the plan will be enlarged upon next year, possibly with arrangements to have Santa Claus pay the city an official visit.

W.M.S. PRESIDENT AGAIN ELECTED

Mrs. E. L. Woodley Given Another Term By St. James' Ladies.

The W.M.S. Auxiliary of St. James' United Church held its Christmas meeting and election of officers on Tuesday afternoon, with the President, Mrs. E. L. Woodley, in the chair.

The meeting opened with the beautiful Christmas hymn, "Angels from the realms of Glory," followed by short prayers led by Mrs. Ruth, Mrs. Dudgeon and Mrs. Buckler.

The Scripture lesson, taken rom St. Luke's Gospel, telling of the birth of Christ, was read by Mrs. Armstrong and another Christmas hymn, "There's a song of wondrous beauty," was heartily sung.

A short Christmas story, entitled, "Candles at the window," was told by Mrs. Plunkett. The closing words were a plea to make this Christmas something beside a getting and a giving among ourselves. That we light some candles of remembrance in His name for the sake of "one of the least of these, my brethren."

"The first Christmas," a story from Ben Hur, read with fine effect by Miss Davey, brought the picture of the wise men very vividly before her hearers.

The treasurer, Mrs. H. A. Bonney, gave a brief summary of the finances of the Auxiliary which was highly satisfactory, the total allocation having been reached entirely through the monthly envelope system and by free will offerings.

The chair was taken by the First Vice-President, Mrs. G. H. Rowe, while the President was being re-elected, then Mrs. Woodley resumed her seat ,and the officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. E. L. Woodley.

1st Vice-President—Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon.

2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Sollitt.

Recording Secretary — Mrs. J. G. Plunkett.

Corresponding secretary—Mrs. E. J. Wagar.

Treasurer—Mrs. H. A. Bonney.

Secretary of Christian Stewardship —Mrs. G. H. Rowe.

Strangers' Secretary and Associate Helpers' Secretary—Mrs. H. Davidson.

Superintendent Mission Band—Mrs. F. B. Elliott.

Missionary Monthly and Supply Secretary—Mrs. Ross Payne.

Secretary of Literature—Mrs. R. B. English.

Pianist—Mrs. W. H. Buckler.

Assistant Pianist—Mrs. J. O. Fife.

Press Secretary—Mrs. E. J. Wagar.

The meeting was closed with the Doxology ,and benediction.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGES

A Spiritual Christmas.

REV. J. L. HUGHES

St. George's Anglican Church

Be not afraid . . there is born to you this day....a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord....Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in whom He is well pleased." Such was the angels' message on that first Christmas Day; looking into it we shall realize that first things must come first; man in right relationship with God, then man will be in right relationship with his fellow men.

There are many who say that in this age we are faced with the danger of a gospel of social fellowship being preached as a substitute for the Gospel.

Be that as it may there are not wanting signs and evidences that the deeply spiritual, therefore true, meaning of the Christmas season is being crowded out by social customs, as truly as it was written long ago "there was no room for them in the inn."

Of such evidences we note the style in wording and illustration of our season greeting cards, year after year, until now it is almost impossible to obtain through the ordinary channel cards containing any reference by word or picture to the Birth of Jesus and the message of that wondrous event.

Also, the preparations for the social activities of the season are unduly proportionate to the meagre spiritual preparation for the Day, made by even those who profess and call themselves Christians.

It is very easy to miss the real spiritual meaning just because the season is so full of happy human associations, and the pressure of ordinary life is so great that we have no time to pause, and think, and pray.

"A choir Celestial singing hymns of glory,
A few poor shepherds wondering in their fear,
An Angel telling forth the Christmas story,
And yet—so few to hear.

A little Child, watch'd by a maiden lowly,
A gift from Heaven sent down to earth today,
The Lord of all ,the King so high and holy,
And yet—so few to pray.

Rich blessings flowing from the Incarnation,
The Sacramental gifts still given here,
A call to haste and see God's great Salvation,
And yet—so few draw near."

To turn our thoughts to the Angel's message is to turn our thoughts away from the surface to the depth, to God, to the reality of God, to His redeeming purpose, to its completion and growth in Jesus Christ. As we meditate upon God's purpose we shall be drawn to Him, and then on Christmas Day we shall bring to the cradle of the Holy Babe the gift He most of all desires, a humole, penitent heart, which He can bless.

These lines are gladly penned in the hope that they may help your readers to enter fully into the truer spirit of the season and so prepare themselves to enjoy in no small measure the joys of a very Happy Christmas.

Plans For Community Carol Singing Meet With Ready Interest In City

In line with the other Christmas community activity in Peterborough this year, the plans are rapidly maturing for a splendid evening of carol singing. The plan, originated by Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., has been enthusiastically endorsed by the Male Voice Choir, and dozens of individual singers have signified to Mr. Chenhall their intention to participate in the event.

The carol singing will be held this year in St. Paul's Church, and it is planned to make it an annual event, held in different churches every year. Old-time carols will be sung, and these will be printed in The Examiner so that those who wish to join in the event may clip them out for use on the Friday before Christmas. The singing will last from eight o'clock to 9 o'clock.

The first carol to be published is "Une 'Creche de Noel'," an old French-Canadian carol, by William McLennan, Montreal, written in 1886:

"Whence are thou, my maiden, Whence art thou?"
"I came from the stable
Where, this very night,
I, a shepherd maiden,
Saw a wondrous sight."

"What saw'st thou, my maiden,
What saw'st thou?"
"There, within a manger,
A Little Child I saw,
Lying softly sleeping
On a bed of straw."

"Nothing more, my maiden,
Nothing more?"
"There I saw the Mother
Her sweet Baby hold,
And the father, Joseph,
Trembling with the cold."

"Nothing more, my maiden,
Nothing more?"
"I saw ass and oxen,
Kneeling meek and mild,
With their gentle breathing
Warm the Holy Child."

"Nothing more, my maiden,
Nothing more?"
"There were three bright angels
Come down from the sky,
Singing forth sweet praises
To the Father high."

BAND BEGINS SERENADING

Salvation Army Musicians Start Annual Tour of City.

Christmas serenading has been commenced by the Salvation Army Temple Band and will be continued rifht up to Christmas. The Band has been divided into two groups and will be visiting each section of the city, playing the old-time Christmas carols.

Fifty-two weeks in the year the Salvation Army Band does duty in the City of Peterborough and they are justly considered an integral part of the city's life and work. The funds derived from the Christmas playing constitutes the main source of income for the maintenance of the Band ,although, in this connection it should be pointed out that the bandsmen are not paid for playing. Theirs is a voluntary service and they also pay for their uniforms out of their own pockets. Each year the band's budget calls for new instruments. The older instruments are handed down to the Young People's Band.

It may be pointed out that each collector, is supplied with a sealed box, plainly marked, "Salvation Army," and will also have a neat card of thanks to be presented to each donor, inviting the donor to a complimentary festival to take place in the S .A. Temple, on Monday, January 2nd. For this Festival, Bandmaster Frank Robinson is arranging a program of interest and merit. Gifts should only be given to those holding the above mentioned authorized box.

SUNSHINE BELT OF THE SOUTH

The longest beach in the world "Strung 'way along the Gulf of Mexico, down around Key West, up the coast of blue to somewhere east of Jacksonville" will not mean a thing to those who never see it, nor will the warm tropic suns of mid-winter or the sea bathing of January. There are oranges to be picked when the snow is barricading your door, golf and tennis down South when the weather strips alone will not debar the breath of the North. When you think things at thtir worst they are really at their best in Florida and along the Gulf Coast. Hotel rates are reasonable and long limit winter tourist fares giving you a wide choice of routes are surprisingly low, why not make a travel investment in health?

For all travel information consult J. Skinner, Canadian Pacific Agent, 343 George street, or any Canadian Pacific ticket agent.

WEDDING BELLS

BOOTH—STARR.

On Friday, Dec. 9th, 1927, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at George street United church parsonage, Peterborough, by Rev. J. E. Todd, when Ella May, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Starr, Little Britain, became the bride of Thomas Leslie Booth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Booth, of Bexley.

The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Florence Starr, and the groom was supported by his brother-in-law, Mr. H. B. Kelly. The young couple were recipients of many useful and valuable gifts. They will reside in Peterborough.

POWNDER—STAPLEY

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. George's Anglican Church at 10.30 this morning, when Miss Evelyn Stapley, daughter of Mr. Fred Stapley of Edison Avenue, became the bride of Joseph Pownder of Thorold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pownder of Thomasburg. The Rev. J. L. Hughes officiated. Attendants were Miss Florence Pownder and Mr. James Pownder, sister and brother of the groom. The bride was becomingly attired in sand colored crepe-de-chine, with corsage of pink roses and fern, and wore a gold colored hat.

Later in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Pownder left for a motor trip to Belleville and points east, the bride travelling in a wine colored duvetyn coat with fur trimmings and hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Pownder will reside in Thorold.

As well command the sun to stand still as children to stop growing up. They will be men and women before you know it—and only in photographs can you keep them as they are to-day.

Have them photographed now. Their pictures will solve many of your gift problems.

Every night we operate a FREED-EISEMANN RADIO SET in our Store. Many times we have heard the remark:

"That's Too Good For Radio"

You, too, can hear concerts, jazz, grand opera, market and weather reports, hockey matches, etc., etc. in your own home with a FREED-EISEMANN RADIO that reproduces so faithfully that one who has never heard FREED-EISEMANN RADIO before invariably says:

"That's Too Good For Radio"

You are cordially invited to come in and listen to a FREED-EISEMANN RADIO any time.

GIFTS AND EDIBLES.

It is an old saying, but has proven true in the great majority of cases that a house divided against itself, shall not stand. The word "house" is merely a figure of speech and "town" might well be put in its place. If the townspeople do not patronize their own merchants and business houses, they surely can not expect their own community to remain prosperous and pleasant to live in.

The local stores are offering a wonderful display of everything that could be purchased anywhere. The local prices are very reasonable indeed and there is the added attraction of seeing what you buy, not merely a picture or printed description of it. If your fancy turns toward things musical, A. L. Riendeau will be very much pleased to demonstrate radios, gramophones, string instruments or anything you may fancy in the world of music. Just drop in and see for yourself.

A. J. Hendricks & Co. are carrying a complete stock of Victor products. Their Orthophonic victrolas are well worth hearing and are within the limits of any pocket book. It is a real treat to spend an hour in the Hendricks' Music Store.

If it is to be the some of those daintily pretty things that you know she wears, MacIntosh Bros. are sure to be able to supply just exactly what you fancy most.

Or is it some of the famous Rogers silverware? J. C. Birmingham is carrying a heavy stock of it and also stainless steel cutlery as well as C.C.M. skates and general hardware.

At Birks the Druggist, you will find a gift suitable for every person on your list. A visit to this store will probably save you hours of worry.

For your Christmas dinner, your turkey or goose ought to come from Joel McArthur. And his meats are of the best quality.

There will be a world of Christmas music. If your radio is out of kilter you are going to miss something. Ten to one, the battery is low. Better have C. B. Williams attend to it so you will be sure to tune in if you feel like it. And how about calling to hear the Fada set which he has installed in the Empire Service Station.

Dolman's are showing an exceptionally attractive line of silk hose and underwear. There is a wide range of colors and shades awaiting your approval. Before you decide on anything, it might be a good plan to visit the store.

Blue Oaks Service is bound to please you. Now that it is cold and your engine is hard to get along with, try some gas from the Blue Oak Station. You can get it any hour of the day or night. Just call by telephone if it is too cold to go out yourself.

Wiggins, the baker, is going to gladden many weary housewives by saving them the extra work of making fruit cakes. His Christmas fruit cake is delicious. To eat it once is to become a regular customer.

The person who favours the convenience of things electrical, will find his seventh heaven among the electrical supplies which P. C. Denyes has stocked for the Christmas season. Or you will find Rogers 1847 silver to gladden the heart of anyone. Radios too, are there to be heard. To spend an hour there is to stroke many names off your list.

A cup of tea at the Clifton Tea Room will afford the lady shopper a quiet half hour in which to collect her thoughts and straighten out her, by now, almost unreadable shopping list.

Don't forget the Hydro Athletic Association's At Home, December 29. It will be, as always, the dance of the season.

For the man who smokes, there is only one thing to do. See the complete assortment of everything for the smoker at C. H. Nadoo's Tobacco Store.

After you have eaten an unusually large Christmas dinner, dig out the old skates and try a few rounds at Dawson's Arena. It will do you good and you will enjoy it as well.

A sure way to have success with your Christmas baking is to use Allan's Flour. It is made at Allan's Mills and is sold by the leading merchants. Next time you order, ask for Allan's Pastry Flour.

A. J. Hendrick's & Co. are only too pleased to demonstrate their radios if you will call at the store or telephone them. Think of all the good music and educational lectures you are missing by not owning a set.

Furniture is always in good taste and is as near to being a permanent gift as anything can be. A. D. Bennett Co. is the place to come for a wide range from which to choose.

Last, but not least, comes His Majesty, the Child. Tripps Gift Shoppe is well supplied with toys and useful articles for youngsters. Besides there are thousands of beautiful gifts for every member of the family. You will do well to visit the Gift Shoppe early in your shopping travels.

MUSIC HERALDS COMING OF KING

Campbellford Choirs Prepare Joyous Message of Song For Christmas.

PROGRAMS VARIED.

The birth of the Christ Child will be heralded in Campbellford churches with the splendid old hymns and anthems sung everywhere on Christmas Day. The organists and choir leaders of the various churches have arranged programs of solos, quartets, and full choir numbers which include selections from many ancient and modern composers. Musical observance of Christmas Day will start with the Midnight Mass of St. Mary's Church and continue until the end of the longest evening service of the day.

St. John's United Church.

A. Hazell, A.L.C.M., organist and choirmaster at St. John's United Church, has arranged splendid programs for both services on Christmas Day. The feature number at the morning service will be the anthem "Christians, Awake", by Maunder. Mrs. McCarthy of Toronto will sing a soprano solo. Mrs. H. L. Richardson will be soloist of a ladies' quartet which will sing "Sing, Oh Sing ,This Blessed Morn."

The Rev. Ernest Harton, pastor of the church, has chosen as the subject for his sermon "The Christ Child."

At the evening service the anthem will be "Behold I Bring You Good Tidings." A quartet in this number will consist of Mrs. F. J. Smith, Miss Nellie Hoover, A. W. Rollo, and H. Donald. "The Gift", a soprano solo, will be sung by Miss Emma Meiklejohn. Another quartet, consisting of Miss Cherrie Turner, Miss Irene Stevens, George Lucy, and Walter Henson, will sing "The Birth of a King", by Neidlinger. Mrs. Witthun of St. Catharines will give a soprano solo, "There's a Song in the Air."

There will be an orchestra present at this service and the sermon will be Henry Van Dyke's masterpiece, "The Lost Word."

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

Four anthems will be sung by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church choir on Christmas Day, and the evening service will be a choral service, with musical numbers taking the place of the sermon. The organist and choir leader is William Pearson, A.L.C.M., and the minister is the Rev. James Grier.

The anthems to be sung are "The Prince of Peace," by Niven, "Salute the Happy Morn", by Turner, "Let Us Go Even Unto Bethlehem", by Sullivan, and "The First Christmas Morn", by Neidlinger. The soloist of the day will be Miss Helen MacDonald, singing "Song of Peace." A number of carols and other songs have been prepared, including "See Amid the Winter's Snow", "Come, Holy Babe", "Like Silver Lamps", Gounod's "Nativity Hymn", "The Virgin's Song", "We Three Kings of Orient Are", and 'Holy Night."

CHRIST ANGLICAN CHURCH.

Music by Maunder will be sung at Christ Church at the morning service on Christmas Day. It is expected that the preacher will be Rev. Canon Vernon, General Secretary of the M.S.C.C., while the services will be in charge of Rev. N. Clarke Wallace. The music is in charge of Mrs. James Benor. The soloist at the morning service will be Major J. M. Bygott.

Simper's anthem, "Arise, Shine," will be sung at the evening service. Canon Plumer's setting of the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis will be used. A second anthem will be Gounod's "Nazareth."

The services at Christ Church will be Holy Communion at 8 a.m., Morning Prayer and Communion at 11 a.m., and an evening song service at 7 o'clock.

There will be special music at the other churches in Campbellford, but the programmes have not yet been decided on. The Salvation Army will also play suitable music.

GAMES TO PLAY IN HOME PARTY AT CHRISTMAS

Hostess Will Have No Entertainment Problem If She Reads This.

OLD—BUT NEW

Less Well-Known Games Are Presented for a New Age.

Severe climate is a great stimulus to indoor entertainment, and the fact that winter's rigors are experienced around Christmas among so many of the Christian nations of the world, has resulted in the growth of a vast accumulation of Christmas pastimes.

The hostess considering the problem of enjoyable games for her Christmas party has a wealth of material to choose from. The following are some of the lesser known games.

Singing Neighbours.

In this game the company is divided into two sections, equal in numbers. One section is blindfolded and its members are seated beside empty chairs. Then the others seat themselves quietly and at a signal from the leader of the game commence to sing. The blind neighbours are asked to pick out the others from their voices.

Antiquities.

In "Antiquities" while one player is out of the room, the others decide upon a word or phrase suggestive of Christmas such as "Good King Wenceslas," or "The Wise Men from the East" or "The Judean Shepherds." It is up to the excluded one, when he returns to find out by well-directed questions the words decided upon. The others in reply to his queries can answer nothing beyond "Yes," "No," or "I don't know."

Refreshment Games.

During the refreshments games with alphabetic sentences might be played. Someone starts with a word, each player having to add another word beginning with the same initial letter to make sentence sense. "Famous numbers" is another good refreshment game. Sides are formed in the order in which the players are sitting in the room. Someone calls out a number from one side which has to be answered by the other side with a famous fact or association connected with it. Thus, to seven, the answers might be "The Seven Wonders of the World," or "The Seven Sleepers."

French Canadian Game.

A very popular Christmas game in French Canada is "Le maitre d'ecole" or the School Teacher, which gives a large field for the exercise of one's wits and, if properly played, is very bright and entertaining. The players seat themselves in a semi-circle with the exception of the one who is the teacher. They are numbered from the top down to the bottom, and every one must be careful to remember his number. The teacher stands before them so that all may hear distinctly, and says something like the following, "This morning shortly after school opened, No. 3 reported to me that No. 5 had pinched her." On this accusation being announced No. 5 should at once jump up and say "Not I, sir." "Oh, yes, it was you" retorts the teacher, whereupon No. 5 should immediately reply "No sir, not I sir—No. 6," or any number of another player. Then No. 6 has to reply exactly as No. 5 has done, or in default thereof being compelled to change places with the teacher, who takes the lowest chair, while all who were below the one who missed, move up one chair and take a higher number.

FRIENDLY THOUGHTS

Your school friends would surely like a sachet. Fill a pink or blue envelope with thin layers of cotton sheeting, after having sprinkled a liberal amount of sachet powder between each two layers. Paste the envelope shut, tie with a flat band and bow of ribbon in a contrasting color, and on the envelope print the following verse:

The fragrance of the flowers which I wish that I could send I've sealed inside this packet with my love to you, good friend.

Another envelope gift is an eyeglass wiper made of a 4 x 6 inch piece of chamois, picoted around the edge.

FURNITURE STORES PROVIDE GOOD CHRISTMAS SELECTION

Many Families Pool Resources To Purchase Article For Home.

TO-DAY'S TREND.

Splendid Choice Given By Peterborough Merchants In All Lines.

During the next few months the thoughts of most people will centre in their homes, in the entertaining they will do, and the many enjoyable evenings they will spend at home, secure and protected from the wintry blasts. In preparing for the festival of Christmastide, the wise homemaker and hostess will concentrate upon the introduction into the home of numerous comforts and attractive new furnishings that will harmonize with the spirit of the hour. The addition of even a few bits of furniture—and a gift of this nature is one that will provide pleasure the year around—has a pleasing effect especially at the Yuletide. A custom that is growing in popularity is the family pooling of funds for the purchasing of a combination gift that would grace the house, and this will doubtless be done by many Peterborough families this year.

The tendency to-day is to furnish the rooms with plain rugs, but not so plain as in the past year or so. Plain backgrounds with delicate patterning are being featured.

Plain walls and neutral hangings require rugs of dominant color design. Only one strong pattern should be used in a room. The dominant design may be in hangings, wall paper, upholstery, or rug. Other patterns used in a room must be subservient to the strong note.

There is an increased appreciation of design and pattern in rugs, wall paper, and decorative fabrics used throughout the home. Rugs for living room should be selected for their ornamental features as much as for their utilitarian qualities. Invariably there should be harmony between the floor finish and the rugs.

Period Furniture Disappearing.

With old English furniture still popular, and copying periods of long ago, oak and walnut play a prominent role in the choice of wood. Massive and imposing dining-room furniture in exquisitely carved oak and in designs following old English reproductions is in general favor.

Happily, the present vogue in house furnishing does not follow the idea of sets, and one may with perfect liberty use a Charles II. walnut chair in a room with a Queen Anne walnut sofa. Good taste will furnish a living room with three or four upholstered chairs of different design. The tremendous popularity of bridge has created a big demand for chairs of lighter, though comfortable, type that will permit of being pulled up to a bridge table.

There is very little demand for strictly period furniture now. The desire is for something pleasing in design and more comfortable than creations along period lines. For the time being mahogany is "out;" walnut is in almost exclusive demand. The vogue for Queen Anne is fast vanishing. Turned spindles and turned legs are the smart thing now. End pedestal tables in dining room sets are quite fashionable. Rockers are practically obsolete unless one has spacious rooms.

With all these new changes and ideas it is evident that the trend will not revert back to uncomfortable furniture no matter how ornate. People are trying different fashions, but the chesterfield, embodying comfort and utility, still retains the popularity it has gained in countless thousands of homes, while the carved Georgian or Chippendale walnut sofa is largely favored for its decorative note in the living room of charm and artistic atmosphere.

An up-to-date room of to-day consists of varied pieces of furniture, especially in chesterfield suites. High backed chairs, particularly of the Coxwell type, are superseding chesterfield chairs and those after the style of wing chairs.

Upholstery and Hangings.

Plain upholstering is proving effective in chesterfield or sofa, with pillows and cushions of bright toned and figured satins and brocades contributing a gay note. Brocatelle effects are used extensively, but not so much as mohairs and friezes, the former predominating. Bright patterned curtains and hangings harmonize beautifully with the plain carpet and subdued upholstering of a chesterfield while plain colored curtains in the tone represented in the plain rug permit a chippendale walnut sofa with gay French brocade upholstery.

Lacquer Furniture Out.

In the past lacquer furniture has been winning a place for itself but that, too, is changed. The best manufacturers use a clear varnish that brings out beauty and grain of wood. Lacquer as a finish fails to fill pores in the wood properly, while high grade varnish leaves the surface smooth and velvety to the touch.

Bedroom furnishings are of walnut. While the bow end type of bed is still enjoying considerable popularity, there is a trend towards straight ends. The four poster has been a good seller lately also. Since the increase in per capita wealth since the war, better and more comfortable springs are being demanded. Within a comparatively short time, manufacturers believe that the spring-filled mattress will far outpace all other makes. Twin beds are almost a thing of the past.

Console mirrors with decorative markings and in bronze or walnut grace the home of taste.

Lamps have come to be regarded as both ornamental and useful. Following out the idea of an ornament, lamps are more brightly coloured. Shades should be selected with the same care as one would choose a hat. They should be chosen to suit the personality of the room. As an aid to deciding upon the proper one, it is necessary to keep in mind size, proportion and harmony of color and setting. Lamp shades with beaded glass fringe are proving to be an innovation that is attracting considerable attention, although not greatly endangering the sale of the usual modes. There are many splendid samples of all classes displayed in Peterborough furniture stores.

Masquerades Part Of Old Celebrations

Mummings and masqueradings were from a very early period, favorite diversions around Christmas. Kings and princes, the clergy, the gravest as well as the most lively, were equally delighted with these amusements. We find frequent entries in the inventories of the fifteenth century and even earlier, of sums paid for suits of buckram and vizors to represent animals or angels, or even devils, according to the fancy of the wearers. At Christmas time everyone who could afford such entertainment hired a troup of professional mummers to regale his friends; and when such expense could not be supported, the parties frequently blackened their faces and otherwise disguised themselves, and performed various frolicsome games or else went through the village from house to house, making themselves merry at the expense of their neighbours.

Only the words stated, viz., "Not I, sir" and "No sir, not I, sir"—can be given in reply to the accusation which should always relate in some way to school life, the slightest deviation being punishable by having to exchange with the teacher.

It is, of course, the ambition of each player to work up to No. 1 and it consequently happens that Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are the most frequently assailed, while the lower numbers are simply spectators, but there is plenty of fun for all if the game is smartly played, and it should always be the object of the teacher to make the accusation as mirth-provoking as possible.

At Children's Parties.

At children's parties an attractive way in which bonbons or favors may be distributed is to secure someone versed in sleight of hand. He may be dressed to represent "The Spirit of Christmas," "Simple Simon" or any other appropriate character. After twenty minutes or half an hour of legerdemain, he should apparently produce gifts from the air, from empty cornucopias, or from the pockets of someone called to assist—to the great delight and mystification of the children.

The Gift Wreath.

The Gift Wreath also affords a novel means of distributing either Christmas gifts or small trinkets used as favors for the Christmas party. The foundation is a wooden or wire hoop. This is covered with evergreen and holly and is suspended in a doorway or from a chandelier by means of five-inch wide scarlet ribbons. Hung from the wreath at varying heights by narrow red ribbons, are the gifts, each wrapped in white tissue and decorated with a sprig of evergreen. Each guest may be blindfolded; the package he catches is the one he keeps.

Sniggle the Sprig.

The name means in modern English "snatch the sprig." The game is an old English one resurrected for modern parties. A piece of green plant is hidden and all have to search for it. When found, it has to be carried to a fancifully trimmed pole and tied there. This is no easy matter, for the sprig must first go through the hands of every player, and it is everyone's effort to catch it before it reaches the pole. No attempt to do this however, can be made until the sprig has returned to the finder, and that player is running for the goal.

As the searching goes on, whoever finds the sprig approaches his nearest neighbour and slips it into his hand adroitly so as not to attract attention if possible. At the same time he gives him the number two, which tells this one that he is the second holder of the sprig. To him also the finder whispers his name, thus giving the clue to his own identity. Thereafter as the sprig is passed on the next higher number and the name are given to each succeeding holder. When the last one is reached he recognizes himself, for before commencing the game, a count was taken. It is the duty of this one immediately to pass the sprig secretly to the finder, who runs to the goal with it. All follow, but the last player who is not permitted to chase the finder.

In the scrimmage that ensues the sprig may be snatched a dozen times. That one is victor who succeeds in placing it on the pole. Should it be the the finder, then his achievement will have been so much the greater for he will have had the most difficulties to overcome.

All the passing is done as secretly as possible, so that it may not be generally known just when the end of the game is come. It is inevitable, therefore, that the sprig be passed to some who have held it before. These can quietly make a gesture of refusal and the passer will find someone else.

ANCIENT LUSCIOUS MINCE PIES BAKED IN FORM OF CRADLES

The mince pie, so important a part of the Christmas Day feast, originated in the days of the early Christians, and tradition tells of an immense pie of meat and sweet materials formerly made in the form of a cradle, emblematical of the manger in which the Child Jesus lay. The cradle idea was first derived from Rome, where it was the custom to present the fathers of the Vatican with paste images and sweetmeats. In the days of good Queen Bess mince pies were called "minched" or "shrid" or "shred" pies, also Christmas pies. During the time of Oliver Cromwell Christmas pies and puddings were looked upon as wiles of his Satanic Majesty and enemies of the commonwealth. A quaint rhyme appears in "Poor Robin's Almanac" for 1695, which reads:

"Now thrice welcome Christmas,
Which brings us good cheer.
Minc'd Pye and Plum Porridge,
Good ale and strong beer.

WILL MAKE HIM HAPPY!

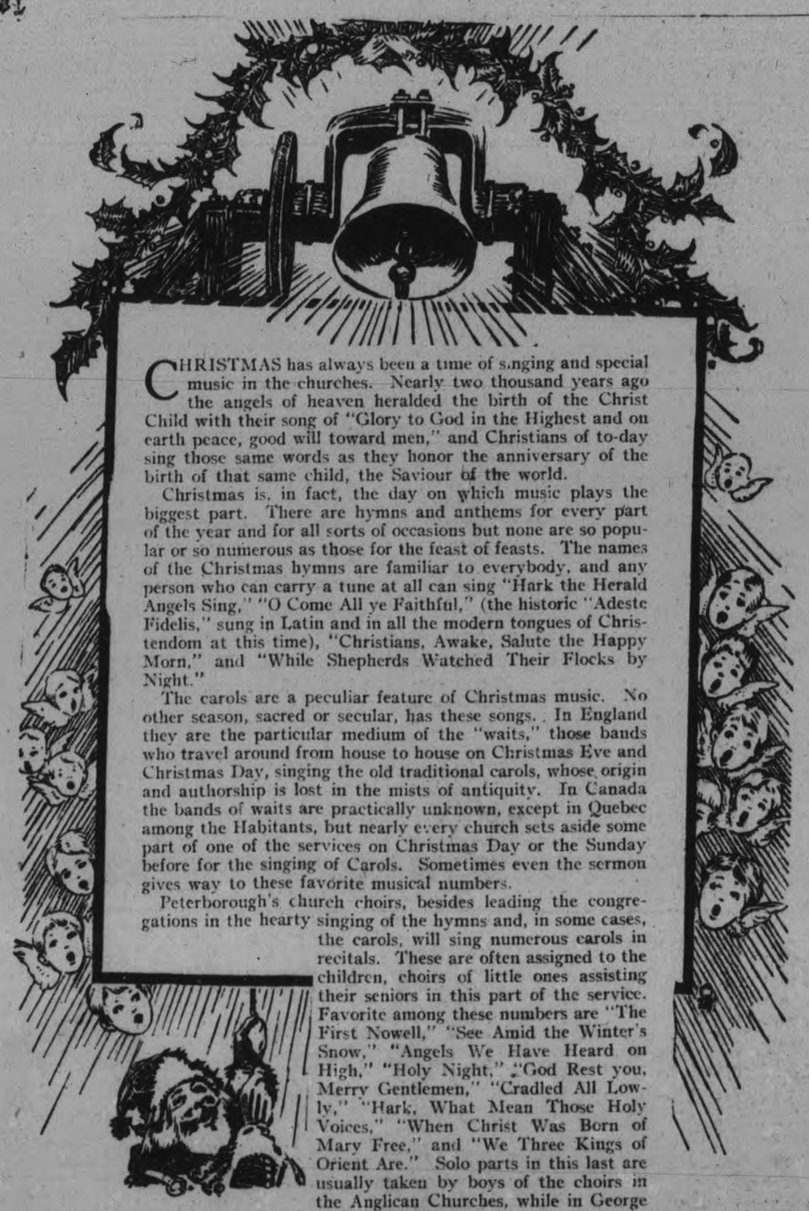
CAROL and ANTHEM--Music in the Churches



CHRISTMAS has always been a time of singing and special music in the churches. Nearly two thousand years ago the angels of heaven heralded the birth of the Christ Child with their song of "Glory to God in the Highest and on earth peace, good will toward men," and Christians of to-day sing those same words as they honor the anniversary of the birth of that same child, the Saviour of the world.

Christmas is, in fact, the day on which music plays the biggest part. There are hymns and anthems for every part of the year and for all sorts of occasions but none are so popular or so numerous as those for the feast of feasts. The names of the Christmas hymns are familiar to everybody, and any person who can carry a tune at all can sing "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "O Come All ye Faithful," (the historic "Adeste Fidelis," sung in Latin and in all the modern tongues of Christendom at this time), "Christians, Awake, Salute the Happy Morn," and "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night."

The carols are a peculiar feature of Christmas music. No other season, sacred or secular, has these songs. In England they are the particular medium of the "waits," those bands who travel around from house to house on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, singing the old traditional carols, whose origin and authorship is lost in the mists of antiquity. In Canada the bands of waits are practically unknown, except in Quebec among the Habitants, but nearly every church sets aside some part of one of the services on Christmas Day or the Sunday before for the singing of Carols. Sometimes even the sermon gives way to these favorite musical numbers.

Peterborough's church choirs, besides leading the congregations in the hearty singing of the hymns and, in some cases, the carols, will sing numerous carols in recitals. These are often assigned to the children, choirs of little ones assisting their seniors in this part of the service. Favorite among these numbers are "The First Nowell," "See Amid the Winter's Snow," "Angels We Have Heard on High," "Holy Night," "God Rest you, Merry Gentlemen," "Cradled All Lowly," "Hark, What Mean Those Holy Voices," "When Christ Was Born of Mary Free," and "We Three Kings of Orient Are." Solo parts in this last are usually taken by boys of the choirs in the Anglican Churches, while in George Street, St. Peter's and Sacred Heart Churches specially trained choirs of children will sing some of these.

In musical numbers confined to the regular choirs and soloists the Christmas season is rich. There are special festival masses by many authors, selections from the great oratorios, cantatas fitted to the season, and individual anthems and solos. Popular with choirs in Peterborough this year is Handel's "The Messiah." Selections from this are included in almost every program, while Trinity Church Choir's program for one service is practically all taken from the oratorio.

Gounod's "Nazareth" will also be sung at several churches during the Christmas season. Christmas cantatas and pageants are also included in the programs arranged by Peterborough choir leaders and organists.

The organ numbers to be played before and after the services, either as preludes and postludes or in recitals of some duration are also fitted to the season. Arrangements of familiar hymn and carol tunes will be played in some churches, while in others music from cantatas or other long compositions will form the basis of the organ music.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

Long experience in musical circles of the city churches is held by Mrs. W. A. Logan, organist, and George E. Chandler, choir leader, of All Saints' Church. Mrs. Logan has been organist at All Saints for seven years, and before that acted as supply organist at St. Paul's Church. She received her musical training from Professor Deumonthel. Mrs. Percy Hooper, violinist, and Miss Mary Agnes Logan, pianist, are daughters.

George E. Chandler has been choirmaster for sixteen years, coming from St. John's choir, where he sang under the leadership of R. J. Devey. He received his early training in England where he studied under Dr. J. W. G. Hathaway. He has sung solos in many of the great oratorios, including "The Messiah," "Elijah," "Daughter of Jairus," and "St. Paul," and has directed AllSaints choir in the singing of some of them. During the Sundays of Advent the choir, which number 50, including 15 boys, is singing the sacred cantata, "Penitence, Pardon, and Peace," and on Christmas Day the following music will be given:

Morning.

Organ Prelude, Transcription of Christmas Hymns—Selected.
Te Deum—Jackson.
Anthem, "Arise, Shine, for Thy Light is Come"—Maker.
Kyrie—Mendelssohn.
Postlude, Christmas March—Merkel.

Evening.

Organ Prelude, "Adoration"—Gaul.
Special Psalms—Chanted.
Magnificat, Nunc Dimittis—Simper.

A short carol service with solos by boy voices, interspersed with duets and choruses by full choir, followed by the chorus from Handel's "Messiah," and "The Glory of the Lord."

Postlude, "Hosanna"—Wachs.

Adeste Fideles and other traditional hymns for choir and congregation will be used at both services.

KNOX UNITED CHURCH.

R. J. Devey began his musical career as a chorister in Trinity Church, Old Wolverton, Bucks, while attending Trinity school. The age of sixteen found him in charge of choir and organ at St. James' Parish Church, Cosgrove, Northamptonshire. A year later he was appointed to St. Mary's, Wolverton, a position held for over seventeen years.

His father took great delight in taking his son while of tender years to cathedral services, to listen to the skilful organ accompaniments to chant, hymn, canticle, and anthems. The magnificent choral services in St. Paul's Cathedral (at that time in charge of Sir John Stainer) were frequently attended and tion with the choristers of that period. An extended study of oratorio led him to take part in the production of some of them in his own district, as well as light opera and cantata.

Coming to Canada, his first appointment was to St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Winchester, remaining there for nearly three years, during which period he trained the Kemptville choirs as well as St. Paul's.

An invitation from Eardley Wilmot and Harold Cluxton, the then wardens of St. John's, Peterborough, to take charge was accepted, the appointment as organist and choirmaster continuing for over seventeen years.

A fine purely voluntary choir was built up, only to be depleted of its men by the war. These choristers were largely concerned in the production of the "Messiah," and "Judas Maccabaeus," both works being performed in the Grand Opera House with orchestral accompaniments in 1913-14. On Good Friday, 1906, the first performance of Stainer's "Crucifixion" was given by St. John's choir followed in later years by "Olivet to Calvary," and "The Darkest Hour," one or other of these works being given every Good Friday evening.

The choral eucharist and evensong were prepared and regularly sung: perhaps the most ambitious production was part one of Haydn's "Creation," sung by the choir in the church with Mrs. George Perks, soprano; Mr. Walter Hutchinson, tenor (now in Toronto), and Mr. Tom Ward, bass (now in Canton, Ohio) as soloists.

Mr. Devey was responsible for the training and staging of several light operas, both here and in Toronto: The "Mikado" (twice); The "Geisha" (twice); "San Toy," and the "Greek Slave."

A special performance of the "Geisha" was requested by His Excellency Earl Grey, after witnessing act one at the "Royal Alexandra" in Toronto, which was duly given in this city.

Many enjoyable programs have been played on the chimes by Mr. Devey, assisted on many occasions by Mr. Cyril Devey (now organist of Chalmers Presbyterian Church, Toronto), and Mr. John Butcher, turning over "Big Ben."

From March 21 to November 11, 1918, the chimes were played daily at noon except on Sundays. Other of his activities while organist of S. John's included a term of office as director of No. 6 Chapter of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew, and twelve years in the Sunday school, eleven of the twelve as superintendent.

After resigning from St. John's, the next period was devoted to private teaching.

February, 1926, brought a unanimous invitation from the officials of Knox United Church, to take charge of organ and choir in that congregation, which was accepted. The choir sang a cantata last year, and is busy preparing other standard music for Christmas, as well as operatic numbers for a concert in the spring.

The music to be sung in Knox Church on Christmas Day will be selected from the Messiah "Pastoral Music"; Ralph Dunstan's Cantata, "Glory to God"; Born," and "To God on High be Glory."

ST JAMES' CHURCH.

Frank W. Stevens, organist and choirmaster at St. James, has held that position for sixteen months, coming from George Street United Church, where he had been a chorister for four years. He has acted as supply organist at several other churches. Still a young man, he has covered a wide range of ground in his musical studies, all of which he pursued in the city. His organ training was obtained from J. H. Renwick, with whom he also studied the piano and vocal music. Miss A. Doris also taught Mr. Stevens the pianoforte, while he studied theory with Miss Bessie Elcome, A.T.C.M., and G. F. Liddle. Branching out somewhat, Mr. Stevens took lessons on the chimes from John Butcher, who for many years was carilloneur at St. John's Church, and on the cello from Rupert Gliddon of the Conservatory.

The Christmas music for the evening service in St. James United Church on Christmas Sunday this year will take the form of a cantata by E. K. Heyser, entitled "Glory to God."

There are some splendid solos, choruses, etc., throughout the entire work. The following is a list of the different numbers contained in this cantata:

Prelude—Organ.
"Sing, O Heavens"—Choir, Women's Voices.
"Every Valley"—Soprano Solo.
"O Thou That Tellest"—Soprano and Alto Duet, Choir, Women's Voices.
"He Shall Come Down Like Rain"—Soprano and Alto Duet.
"He Shall Reign"—Choir.
"Night Over Judea"—Soprano Solo, Women's Voices, Choir.
"Glory to God"—Men's Voices, Women's Voices, Choir.
"We Come"—Choir.
"Sleep, Holy Babe"—Tenor Solo, Soprano and Alto Duet, Quartette with Tenor Obligato Solo.
"Mortals, Awake!"—Final Chorus by the Choir.

In the morning service an anthem by J. H. Maunder, entitled "Christians, Awake, Salute the Happy Morn," will be rendered by the choir.

The soloists for the day are as follows: Mrs. McLaren, Mrs. Frost, Mrs. Kitney, A.C.A.M., Mrs. Monks, Mrs. McKinstry, Misses M. Ritchie, E. Rose, Messrs. Turner, Monks, and Worrall.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

Some notable Christmas compositions will be sung at St. Luke's Church, of which William C. Thompson is organist, on Christmas Day. Mr. Thompson, who has been in charge for a number of years, has been organist at many Ontario points, including churches at Port Hope, Toronto, Campbellford, Norwood and Brighton. He is also an artist of considerable skill, noted for his beautiful sketches, which include views of beauty spots of the many places where his musical duties have called him. The choir consists of twenty adults and eleven boys.

At the 11 a.m. Service.

Anthem—"There Were Shepherds" by Nichol. (Mrs. Davies will sing the solo and the soprano part of this very beautiful Quartette, in which Mr. V. A. Wood will take the bass.)

Organ Postlude—"And the Glory of the Lord"—from the "Messiah" by Handel.

At the 7 p.m. Service.

Organ Prelude—"Arrangement of Traditional Christmas Music" by Herbert Batting.

Special Gloria, Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis by Alfred Davies.

Anthem—"There Were Shepherds" by Nichol.

The following Carols will be sung: "Hark What Mean Those Holy Voices" "Sleep, Holy Babe," "Cradled All Lowly," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "We Three Kings of Orient" (sung by boys of the choir) and "Holy Night."

Organ Postlude—"Postlude with Chimie Effects" by Edmondstoune Duncan.

CHRISTMAS HYMNS IMPORTANT IN OBSERVANCE OF FESTIVAL

Some Are Almost as Ancient as Keeping of Christmastide Itself.

EARLY CHURCH RULE

Gloria in Excelsis Ordered to be Sung in Year 129 A.D.

Except for a very few brief intervals in history, the singing of carols has formed no small part in the observance of Christmas, and many of the old hymns will be sung in Peterborough churches during the Christmas season. Some Christmas hymns are almost as ancient as the observance of the festival, as is shown by a record of the year 129 A.D., in which it is decreed by an ecclesiastical authority, "that in the holy night of the Nativity of our Lord and Saviour should be celebrated public church services, and in them should be solemnly sung the Angel's Hymn, because also the same night He was declared unto the shepherds by an angel, as the truth itself doth witness." This is the first mention of the singing of "Gloria in Excelsis"—the great carol of the early church.

In south-eastern Europe, from the earliest days of the adoption of Christianity as the state religion, a steady development of hymnology took place in the Greek Church. These hymns used at first in the regular services were extended to the special celebrations borrowed from the pagan customs, which were grafted on to the Christian stem, and for such seasons, as Christmas, special songs appropriate to the festival came into use and increased in favor. Songs like the Christmas carols were a combination between the popular folk music of the countryside and the more dignified airs of the Church.

Troubadour Music.

Early in the twelfth century, the troubadours of France, the minnesingers of Germany and the gleemen of England and Scotland exercised their talents in the composition of Christmas carols. These were sung with great zest and gusto, especially in the convivial celebration of Yuletide, which was more largely indulged in than the purely religious. Boars' heads, pies, and foaming tankards of ale, in an atmosphere made genial by the roaring Yule log and the holly and mischievous mistletoe, kept the "wassail carols" to the fore.

The People's Songs.

For many years the Christmas festivities, with the dancing, games and songs were almost the only celebrations in which the serfs and poorer citizens could participate unreservedly.

The Church fostered the singing of carols as an aid to the teaching of the Gospel through its mystery and Passion plays. Even the bishop joined with the clergy in singing the carols from house to house on Christmas eve, and poor, ambitious students for the priesthood often earned the price of their Christmas dinner by singing outside the houses of wealthy burghers.

Carols Repressed.

With the singing of the carols was associated much that was precious, materially and spiritually, and the people clung to them with tenacity. Even in the seventeenth century, when music was developed as never before, the carols remained practically unchanged, the simple songs of the people. The disfavor with which the Puritans regarded Christmas and its attendant celebrations culminated when Oliver Cromwell took hold of the reins of government, and although Cromwell, personally, was in favor of retaining many of the old customs, extremists forced his hand, and carol singing was repressed by an order of the Long Parliament in 1644, which decreed that December 25th was to be strictly observed as a fast. "No public act of that time," says Macaulay, "seems to have irritated the common people more."

Singing Revived.

With the Restoration of the Stuarts came the revival of carol singing and all the other joys of Christmas. For several years the custom was kept up with pristine vigour, until in the internal disturbances attendant on the expulsion of the Stuarts, the steady drift to the towns, and the increased difficulty of earning a living consequent on the Industrial Revolution, the common people seem to have lost something of the carefree spirit of former years—a loss not yet fully overtaken—and carol singing declined somewhat in popularity.

But the composition of carols by gifted writers did not cease, and a number of beautiful hymns were added to the already extensive heritage of Christmas poetry and music. All the nations now have their special choice in the matter of carols.

Favorite hymns in English are "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night" and "O, Little Town Of Bethlehem," the former enjoying greatest popularity in England, and the latter pre-eminent in the United States. Norwegians sing a carol of which the title is in the English translation, "In Christmas Praises Singing;" the French have their "Hear Ye, Good Folk Of Chartres;" the Italians, "O Come Ye and Adore Him," and the Germans their musical song, "A Thousand Tiny Candles Sparkling." Before the Revolution, "O Come, and Let Us Worship" was a favorite Christmas song among the Russians, who now at the dictation of their new tyrants sing praises to Marx and Lenin.

Longfellow's "Unbroken Song," Riley's "God Bless Us Every One," Tennyson's fine song in "In Memoriam," "Ring Out The Old Ring in The New," Sear's "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," and Wesley's "Hark The Herald Angels Sing," are Christmas songs of later origin which bring to us the true significance of this great world-wide Christian festival. No list of Christmas music would be complete without mention of Bach's Oratorio, and Handel's "Messiah," music that will never die.

Less ambitious compositions, in their simplicity and directness more akin to the Christmas songs of long ago have been produced in fairly large numbers in recent years. Five years ago a London newspaper offered a prize for the best original Christmas carol and the response was thoroughly satisfactory, not only in the number, but also in the

GEORGE STREET UNITED.

The Christmas music at George Street United Church will start on December 18, when the choir will sing the anthem, "And the Glory of the Lord," from "The Messiah," at the morning service. At night the anthem will be "Christians, Awake, Salute the Happy Morn," with solos by the soloists of the church.

On Christmas Day, in the morning, "The Hallelujah Chorus," from "The Messiah," will be the feature. "Listen to the Lambs," a full choir number, and "Nazareth," a baritone solo, will also be sung. The first of these is a setting of "He shall feed His flock." At the evening service there will be a soprano and contralto duet, "Christmas," by Shelley, a quartet, with baritone obligato, "Welcome, Welcome, Dear Redeemer," an anthem, "O Come to My Heart, Lord Jesus." A feature of Christmas carols includes King Wenceslaus, The First Nowell, God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen, and Holy Night, by Adams, to be sung by a children's and adults' choir, in responses, processionals, and recessionals, and a contralto solo, "O Thou That Tellest," from "The Messiah."

There will be a twenty-minute organ recital before evening service on both December 18, and Christmas Day.

G. P. Liddle, organist and choirleader, is a pupil of Professor Michael Hambourg, an organist pupil of Dr. H. A. Wheeldon, Mus. Bach., R.F.C.O., Metropolitan Church, Toronto. During a series of daily organ recitals, Mr. Liddle replaced Mr. Wheeldon when it was necessary for him to leave the city. Mr. Liddle studied theory with Dr. I. Humphrey Anger of Toronto Conservatory. Quite an extensive study of voice with Dr. J. H. MacHenry, Francis Fisher Powers and finally with Mr. Dalton Baker of Toronto, using as a text-book "Singing of the Future" by Francon Davies, specializing in oratorio and opera, was made by Mr. Liddle.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Miss Lillian Hurley has been organist of St. Peter's Cathedral for five years. This year she was appointed director as well. The cathedral has a splendid choir of twenty-six, who are doing excellent work. Miss Hurley hopes to increase the membership after the New Year.

Miss Hurley received the greater part of her musical education from her sister, Miss K. Hurley, whom she succeeded as organist. She also studied under Mlle. Deery, of Alsace-Lorraine.

She will play the organ for the children's and chancel choirs, as well as her own. The complete program is:

Voluntary—March of the Magi—Dubois.
Carols by the Chancel and Little Flower Girls—See Amid the Winter Snow; Angels We Have Heard on High.
Pontifical Mass, Sung by St. Peter's Choir.
Kyrie, Gloria and Credo, Pietro Yon.

Christmas Messages of Peterborough Clergy

CLERGYMEN OF ALL DENOMINATIONS WERE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE MESSAGES FOR THIS PAGE

Christmas Message.
REV. WM. McDONALD
Knox United Church.

One writes a Christmas message before the Season comes and, writing early, may miss the 'Goodwill Glow' that reaches its peak only when Christmas Day arrives. But perhaps he gains in sober thought what he loses in high emotion as he looks forward and quietly considers the true reason for the gladness of the Day.

There can be no doubt of the fact that the joyful chorus of the Angels above the hills of Bethlehem that first Holy Night is the most significant and far-reaching message ever broadcast to men. Humble shepherds on the hills listened in with great amazement, and learned to sing that glad refrain. Each year we, too, may renew our spiritual youth as we sing our "Gloria in Excelsis." It belongs to all ages. It will endure for all time.

But in these times do we give due place to the 'Coming of the Prince of Peace' whose first advent ushered in a new era of goodwill among men? A wise little lad of five summers or so was with his mother in one of our large shops during the 'Christmas Trade Rush,' and perhaps bewildered by the lavish decorations, he sought to solve the question in his childish mind by asking the mother in a shrill high-pitched voice which carried above the bustle of the busy counters, "Mother, why have they got so many Santa Clauses? Why haven't they got some pictures of Jesus? I'm sure it is His Birthday, isn't it?" "Isn't it too true that we are apt to leave the 'Christ out of Christmas?"

In ancient days men set apart this time of year to celebrate the 'Birthday of the Sun' as he turned again in his course through the heavens towards this northland. They feasted in their joy. They arrayed themselves in garlands of gladness for this promise of another good year. Are we any better than those whom we call pagans if we set the season apart for feasting and greetings and gifts, simply because it is the custom so to do? To do so may increase our selfish pleasures without deepening our desires to add anything to the happiness of others during the year. Is not this the reason why many have come to feel the customs of our time to be a "Wearness to the flesh and a surtax on our purses?" The beauty and the blessing of the Day continues only when we hold true to its origin and its first intention. Otherwise we miss the meaning of "God's first and best Gift, the Son of His Love."

The 'Birthday of the Prince of Peace' renews each year those "Good tidings of great Joy—Joy for all the people." Not for the favored and fortunate few alone. Peace, Goodwill among men, this is the fruit of that joy. These are not alone the great words of the season, they must be the great experiences of our hearts all of the long year through. And will you understand this too, that it is not by looking backward to Bethlehem that we shall find this joy? Christ must be born anew in our hearts each Christmas Day if we are to possess true peace and become people of goodwill.

How else can the 'Golden Age' be ushered in?

Listen in once again to that glad refrain, and hear the angels sing "Peace to the earth, Goodwill to men,
From Heaven's All-gracious King."

REV. W. ALLAN
St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Dear Mr. Editor:

In response to your request for a Christmas message, I am constrained to say, "Silver and gold" of literary kind, "have I none; but such as I have give I thee."

For yourself, and the paper you represent, with its entire staff, I very sincerely wish abundant and abiding success. Your best days are still ahead of you. May you reach them as fit as the proverbial fiddle!

If I had the right to address every single citizen of this city through your paper this would be my wish for one and all:

That during 1928, you may have enough burdens to keep you humble, enough blessings to make you happy.

That all your sorrows may be turned into song, your griefs into graces, and your tears and toils into triumphs.

That there shall come into your soul visions of eternal things so entrancing as to win you away from all that is not idealizing and uplifting; so that no mean, nor little, nor unworthy motive shall ever get hold of your soul and spirit for one single moment.

And above all, may you realize the full joy of unselfish service, devotion to duty, and sincere worship of the Eternal God.

Your friend,
WILLIAM ALLAN.

Christmas Message.
REV. A. E. THORNLEY, M.A.
Mark Street United Church.

Nineteen hundred anniversaries of the birthday of the Christ Child have come and gone, but Christmas never grows old. Our hearts go forth to greet the 1927th anniversary with the buoyancy of eternal youth. On that glad day we celebrate the Gift of God which is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

The children think of Christmas in terms of Santa Claus who fills their stockings with gifts and their hearts with gladness. Youth thinks of Christmas in terms of home, with all the members of the family gathered under the paternal roof giving and receiving gifts, surrounding the festal board with its atmosphere of cheer and also of exchanging gifts with "a near r one still and a dearer one." Their future, hallowed with the spirit of Christmas, looks big with promise. The middle-aged, cheerfully bearing the burdens of life, are glad that their industry and frugality have made the Christmas gathering possibl . The old folk, made happy by the presence and gifts of children, grand-children and perhaps great grandchildren, renew the happy memories of days gone by and dream through the Christ of "The land where they never grow old."

Those who have not are made happy by the ifts of those who have as all remember, through God's great ift of Christ to the world, the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God.

Remembering the grim tragedy of the wartime Christmas when "We could not see the Christ Child for the soldiers marching by "we are all highly resolved that, under the banner of the Prince of Peace whose advent we celebrate, we are going to do our bit to make for the future a warless world.

A Trust to Pass On.
REV. R. KEITH MILLS
Bethany Tabernacle.

The testimony of Simeon and Anna, in second chapter of Luke, verses twenty-one to twenty-eight, completes a series of most striking testimonies to our Lord.

The eighth day of our Saviour's life brings His circumcision, followed soon after by His presentation in the temple. How natural, yet supernatural is the whole scene. Without notice or invitation cards, Simeon and Anna both meet at the right moment by the intuition of the Holy Spirit. The whole circumstances are so touching and intensely human. The offering which Mary and Joseph bring is the offering presented only by the very poorest of the people, a pair of turtle doves, or two young pigeons. But as the little Babe is presented and the aged priest receives Him into his arms the whole scene is transfigured, and that sublime testimony which so fittingly witnesses to the birth of Christ flows from his lips.

Taking the infant Jesus in his arms, how truly he can say, "Mine eyes have seen thy salvation." What a beautiful picture of faith, not only accepting but embracing the Lord! But the salvation which He has prepared is wide as the world, "which Thou hast prepared before the face of all people." He adds, "A Light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of Thy people, Israel." Here is the Gospel for both Jew and Gentile. Here is the watchword of the missionary crusade and the promise of the Chosen People's final restoration. And as the scene closes it turns to Mary and adds a message more personal to her, and yet as true for every one of us, "This Child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel, and for a sign that shall be spoken against that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed; yea, a sword shall pierce through thine own soul also."

The shadow of the cross is not only to fall upon Him, but upon her, and yes, upon all that receive Him. They must fall before they can rise. They must die before they can live. They must get down to nothingness before they can rise to holiness and heaven.

Simeon's testimony was followed by that of Anna who, woman-like, went out to tell the joyful news to those that waited for redemption in Jerusalem.

Thus dawned the glorious light of the Sun of righteousness and the Saviour of the world. Do you catch the spirit of these opening scenes? Do you hear the blessed "Fear not" which is its very keynote, and enter into the gladness of the good tidings which it brings? Shall we accept it not merely as our heritage of blessing but our trust to pass on to all the world? And shall we fully recognize with deeper, truer love the human Christ, the Son of man, the Kinsman Redeemer, who is bone of our bone, flesh of our flesh and heart of our heart, and go forth to walk in closer fellowship with His great heart of Divine Love and heavenly sympathy.

The Star in the East.
REV. JAMES L. HARTON
Park Street Baptist Church.

There has been a great deal of curious speculation about the star the Magi saw. Some think that the star was a peculiar conjunction of planets. Be it as it may, some special shining in the heavens attracted the attention of these illustrious men and led them to the Infant, Christ. Let us not wonder at it. Christ is King also of the stars. He made them; he can rule them. "All things were made by him, and without Him was not anything made that was made."

We imagine sometimes if we could see something like that, some mighty shining in the heavens and indisputably connecing itself with Christ, we should be satisfied; all our doubts would flee; all would be clear to us. The present point is that a far better star does actually shine for us than shone for these Magi. It is the Star of the Christ Himself.

He shines for sinlessness. That infant Christ, whom the Magi worshipped and of whose sinlessness those Magi could not have been assured, because He had not yet lived His completed earthly life in this world of ours, has grown and lived. Thus has the sinless Christ set before us the standard of perfect living. John tells us of the "Light;" "It shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not"—May this not be applicable to us, but may we pray:

Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom,
Lead Thou me on.
And may all joys of this Day we celebrate be yours.

Thoughts for December 25th.
REV. DAVID McKEE
Truth Mission.

"Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people."

To all readers we wish, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, a holy, happy and helpful Christmas. May this Joyous Season being to every one a deeper conception of the meaning and message of the advent of our Lord. May He fill this time of remembrance with the overflowing cup of every needed blessing. Let us thank Him together for His great mercies of the past year, and ask Him to prepare our hearts for things in faith, love and service, by a fresh anointing of the Holy Spirit, as we enter upon another year. May we have a new vision and a clear interpretation of the strange and solemn time in these closing days of the Christian age. As the pulse of joy beats stronger in contemplating the incarnation, may the great responsibility of carrying out the last commission of the Church beat high in every heart, keeping in touch with the heart of God and His great purposes and plans for these eventful days.

The old story is ever new—the surpassing wonder of God's unfathomable love in bestowing upon this unfriendly world the richest gift of heaven. God gave up, that first Christmas night, His only Son into the hands of a cold, cruel world, that spurned the gift, and finally crucified Him. But the Father knew the end from the beginning. "The Lamb that was slain from the foundation of the world." The song of the angels was but the prelude to Calvary, and the heavenly music yet to be heard, "the song of Moses and the Lamb." As songs of praise fell from the lips of the humble shepherds on that memorable night in the fields of Bethlehem, so Christian people have always delighted to honour the birthday of His Son with hymns of love and adoration. For Jesus, who gave up all heaven, and left the Father, and the glory that He had with Father and all the holy angels, to come down to earth, and be born in a manger. It was strange that so few were looking for Him. Why was it that only three men saw the star, traveled over hill and dale, and found the Babe of Bethlehem? Where were all the others in the land? Why were there just three wise men looking for Him? Why was there only one little band of shepherds who heard the angels and came seeking the Christ-Child? Were there not other shepherds? Yes the hills were all dotted over with them who were watching their flocks. There was no room for Christ in the inn. The inn was only for a certain class. Christ was born where all who desired to see Him could do so. Any man, woman or child could walk into the stable and behold the Babe. All that was God's plan. God wanted His Son born where shepherds with their muddy boots, or the most humble without boots could come in and see Him. I rejoice because God loves all, that He is no respecter of persons, and that He makes it possible for every one who wills to come and see Him. God's grand prophetic message given through the prophet Isaiah has now been literally fulfilled, "A Child is born, a Son is given; Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." A helpless Child, yet the Almighty God. The greatest fact in the history of the world; only His crucifixion, resurrection and ascension being equal in importance and significance. Conceived by the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary. The Incarnation is the transcendent wonder with which the era of grace opened. Tremendous issues were at stake to cause the King of Glory to leave His place with the Father and make His dwelling among men, to be despised and last to be crucified between two thieves. He was God's gift. The Mighty God is a Child born; the Ancient of Days becomes an Infant; the Everlasting Father is a Son given. What condescension! What humiliation! All to redeem us and to exalt us to share His exaltation and glory. The Christmas message is one of exceeding "great joy. "It is "God with us";" God's interest in man, and God identified with man. He has not only visited us, but He has forever united Himself to us in the incarnation of His Son, who is "bone of our bone, and flesh of our flesh." The message tells us of a new creation, a new birth, a new race, a new kingdom, a new heaven and a new earth. It reaches down to fallen humanity, now redeemed, and lifts the human into the divine, and makes them partakers of His own divine nature, and, to exceed all He has written over our record a new name, even "the sons of God." Now, let us rejoice in the Christ of Christmas, rather than in the gifts of our friends. Let it be a time of feasting upon the Bread of Life, not a time of festivity; a time o gratitude and humble worship of Him and gifts for Him, as the wise men of old. Gifts o love for the perishing multitude, both Jew and Gentile. For the glad tidings are "to all people." "Let us send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared." For this same Jesus said before He went away "Give ye them to eat."

A Christmas Message.
REV. R. C. BLAGRAVE
St. John's Anglican Church.

The message of Christmas is beyond expression in human language. It can only teach us in the language of the heart which in this, as in so many other things, passes beyond what words can say. We can only feel, we cannot communicate all that Christmas means, and it can only be felt by those whose hearts are attuned to the mystical wave length of God's love as revealed in Jesus Christ. It speaks to us in symbolic terms of a great act of divine self-giving "for us men and for our salvation." It is a spirit that is as intangible as the wind "that bloweth where it listeth." This spirit is spontaneous and universal at this season of the year. It enters the habitations of prince and pauper on equal terms, and consecrates every soul that is open to its sacred influence. It rings out heaven's silver chimes to the tune of "peace on earth among men of good-will," but only he who listens can hear.

We do not need to travel back over two-thousand years to see the wonder that God wrought in Bethlehem so long ago. He is born afresh into open hearts this Christmas as He was then born into the visible world of sin. The birth of Jesus is God incarnate among men for all time; and signifies the self-emptying of God in terms of human nature that He might exalt human nature to His glorious throne. It is a portent of the heritage that is implied in the age-long promise of God and of the destiny to which, in His purpose, man is to attain.

Historically, the birth of Jesus changed the whole course of human development on this earth. Heathen and foreign peoples dimly represent what the world would have been apart from Christ, and not even they, for Christianity has exerted a definite influence upon the whole world by its contacts through the centuries. Great masses of people in India and China are asking the Western world what they mean to do with Jesus in all the departments and relations of life. It is no wonder the angels acclaimed the birth of Jesus as an event of such moral magnitude that it has taken the world all these centuries to appraise it, and the end is not yet.

Passing strange it is that such consequences should flow from and lead back to the birth of One who, in the course of His life had not where to lay His head, That hallowed birth turns the heart of the world to the innocence and beauty of childhood, and childhood in turn interprets for us the joy and satisfaction of Christmas-tide. Its adoring trust and ready forgiveness is enhanced and glorified in the chastening appeal of the Son of God, in swaddling clothes. We do well to hallow the imagination of childhood with the mystic symbols of mysterious bounty, and to associate the visible gifts of joy in a sacramental unity with the invisible spirit of Him who is the children's friend.

When the World Visits Bethlehem.
REV. DAVID WREN, M.A.,B.D.
Trinity United Church.

The wheels of time speed round with ever-increasing swiftness, and once again in their ceaseless rounds they have brought us face to face with the world's greatest event.

Every year as we think of Christmas, with its joy and its gifts, we are led to ask, "Why does the birth of Christ take on a world-wide and timeless significance?"

One thousand volumes and more are upon my library shelves, the works of many authors, some belonging to the far-away days, while others come fresh from the pen of those who belong to our own age and times. What a variety of themes upon which they have written.

I try to picture them as I transpose myself in thought to the place of their dreams, and their haunts of meditation. What wide vistas of thought have come to them, what strange inspirations invaded their souls as they looked through the windows of God, upon the great undiscovered and unexplored areas of life, stretching before them and challenging them inthe name of the Child of Bethlehem to enter, and in His name take possession. As I read their thoughts I go back to the story of Him who was born in Bethlehem of Judea, and once again ask "For why did He come?" There are many ready to give answer to my query. One says He was born in Bethlehem that He might die on Calvary. But this does not satisfy. Another says He came to this earth, was born in Bethlehem, lived in Nazareth, a real human life and died on Calvary that He might achieve a Divine triumph over man's last enemy. But this does not satisfy. When I turn to the Gospel and read "The Word became flesh and dwelt amongst full of grace and truth." that we might have a new and all-inclusive revelation of God, His nearness to us and our dearness to Him and a vision of the possibilities of our own life. Then Bethlehem takes on a new meaning. To a world struggling under misconceptions of God, Jesus bent His energies to the task of ridding men's minds of false thought of God and man's relationship to Him. In a life of simplicity He moved amon men, reminding them again and again that only one thing would triumph in this world and that was love. The triumph of love was to be earth's last great achievement. The purpose of Bethlehem, was to unfold the gracious and uplifting ministry of love. That is why Christmas, with its ringing bells, laughter of children, its gifts and its fellowships, are all to me tokens of the one fulfilment of the dream of Him who came to teach men that the way of life, was the way of love. How great was that loss. If God loves men and He does, then will He seek to redeem them, even though blood be the price of redemption. This explains the cross and the sacrifice, for if God loves men, then nothing shall separate them from His love. The world can well afford to halt in its mad rush, its hectic feverish haste, so meaningless, and so fruitless in its attainment, and bow before the manger of Bethlehem, and then pay homage to Him who came to introduce a new ministry, a new way of living, the guiding principle of which would be love.

This is the need of our poor distressed and weary world today. Bitterness, jealousy, greed, avarice, strife and hate have well nigh wrecked the best civilization this world has known."

We believe a new day is dawning, a better age has appeared, to which brotherhood, heroism, chivalry and love, shall find a more full, complete and rich accomplishment in the service of mankind. Let all the world come to Bethlehem today.

"O Holy Child of Bethlehem,
Descend to us we pray!
Cast out our sin and enter in,
Be born in us today!

We hear the Christmas angels,
The great glad tidings tell
O come to us, abide with us,
Our own Immanuel.

Christmas Time.
COMMANDANT FRANK HAM
The Salvation Army.

The last day of grace allowed by the Editor of The Examiner for the sending in of this Christmas message has arrived. The busy rush of every day toil has prevented me from getting my pen to work until this very moment. But, so highly do I value this kind opportunity offered me that I have locked my office door, turned a deaf ear to those persistent claims, termed "urgent," and have decreed that they must wait.

The Time has Arrived!

In the history of mankind, at the cross roads of man's greatest need, the TIME ARRIVED, and God's promise to a sin-cursed world fulfilled.

In the Book of Generations a time came when this glorious record was written, "And Jacob begat Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ." It was God's time for the Coming of the Christ. In the fulness of time—the world was ready, and unto a heart-hungry, needy world, Jesus came; true Bread of Life for all the world's hungry need. Christmas time had come at last!

That First Christmas was a Time of Gifts!

"And when they had opened up their treasures. They presented unto Him, gifts, gold, frankincense and Myrrh."

In the giving of their best to the Saviour the Wise Men have set a standard for all time. Let us follow their example! Your gifts of love and service; your gifts of money and time; your powers of body, mind and soul can be brought in consecration to the feet of the world's Redeemer.

"O God, what offering shall I give
To Thee, the Lord of earth and skies?
My soul, my life, my all receive,
A holy, living sacrifice:
Small as it is, 'tis all my store;
More should'st Thou have if I had more."

The First Christmas was a Time of Praise!

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, 'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, goodwill toward men."

It is said to be a scientific fact that a sound wave moves outward from its centre to concentric circles until its vibrations touch the uttermost borders of infinite space.

It is a certainty that the thrilling Angel chorus of Bethlehem still re-echoes its wondrous message of praise to God and good-will to men. Let us, this Christmas time, sound it out anew. In song, yes, sing it again! Sing it in your home; sing it in your church; tune your heart to sing His praise.

"Joy to the world, the Lord has come
Let earth receive her King;
Let every heart prepare Him room
And Heaven and nature sing."

The First Christmas Was a Time of Prayer and Adoration.

"They saw the young Child with Mary, h's Mother, and fell down and worshipped Him."

Here the true significance of Christmas time is reached. They worshipped Him. In adoration the Magi knelt around the shrine of the Infant Jesus. The call today is for men to "Come and worship, worship Christ, the new-born King." Leave your feasting and join with me in repeating this prayer, written by the late J. H. Jowett, D.D.

"O God, the Father of all men, in Whose grace all our light is born, and in Whose love is the fountain of our festivity, mercifully lead me into the holy secret of Christmastide, and take me into the innermost room of its holy joy. Forbid that I should remain in the outer courts, dwelling amid its merely carnal pleasures, satisfied with the merriment that dies with the day, and contented with the happiness that passes with the fading flower and the withering leaf. Bring me into the eternal things of this blessed season, the things that abide, the love that manifests itself in unfailing goodwill, and the joy that rings Christmas bells all the year round.

"And graciously impart unto me the joy of a glorious hope. Let my horizon shine with most alluring light. May the Christmas star always go before me, leading me to ever-deepening revelations of the Lord, and giving fresh surprises of Heavenly grace and love.

"Kindle Thou the Christmas fire of holy love. Light the lamps of Christmas geniality and good will. Hallow and glorify my Lord's birthday with Thy presence, and crown it with unsullied joy and peace. Amen."

The First Christmas was a Time of Remembrance!

"Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart."

The ever-recurring anniversary of the Advent of our Lord Jesus Christ periodically reminds us of its great significance. May we, like the Blessed Mother of our Lord, keep all these things and ponder them in our heart. Think of what it meant to the Prince of Glory to leave the realms of glory; to make Himself of no reputation; to be born in a stable; to become obedient unto death, even the death of the Cross. Keep alive in your heart of hearts the real issues of Christmas time.

"Thou shalt call His name Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins."

A Merry Christmas.
REV. J. E. TODD, B.A.,
George Street United Church.

The coming of Christmas time has a potent way of helping men and women see many things in their lives that are mean, unwholesome and unlovely. It has a way at least once a year of challenging us to engage in more worthwhile activities that do not everlastingly revolve around our own puny desires and pleasures.

In a word how Life would be revolutionized if we as a People could only realize that in the deepest sense we have right here in the Christmas spirit that curative for all the ills of life; all the restless turbulence and dissatisfactions that we find more or less prevalent among people. Once again the Christ-Child is to be found in our midst, and it will be a merry Christmas in the finest understanding of that term, if we give Him His full honor and place.

So, with all our giving of gifts that are tagged with the dollar and cent mark, may we give to others that gift of the spirit which is without money, and without price.

Keeping Christmas.
REV. JOSEPH H. SUTCLIFFE, M.A.
Murray Street Baptist Church.

I suppose everybody keeps Christmas. Some keep it more elaborately than others, but all observe it with such gifts as are commensurate with their means. Some, however, which it is grievous to relate, celebrate the holiday with gifts which are not commensurate with their income. Christmas is a time of giving and getting, of bestowing and receiving. We present gifts to others and we receive gifts from others. In this sense everybody observes Christmas. But is this all there is to Christmas? If this is all that will transpire for us this year we shall be poor indeed. The spirit of the day is more than its outward form and unless we observe the day with its inward meanings we shall not really keep Christmas. Keeping Christmas means being kind, tender-hearted, generous, magnanimous, unselfish, loving, helpful, patient and having good will for our fellow-men. We are too prone to think that Christmas is merely a time for "giving" and a time for "getting" when we ought to think of it, as someone has well said, "as a time of 'forgiving' and a time of 'forgetting'."

Our hearts have been made glad by the many kindnesses and courtesies which have been extended to us during the busy days prior to the great day itself, and we have said to ourselves, "This is the right way to celebrate Christmas." Our hearts have been stirred to their depths because we have witnessed this true spirit of Christmas prevailing. This is keeping Christmas.

While most of us keep Christmas in the external sense, and while many keep it in the higher sense — with Christ actually in Christmas — we should keep it in another way. We should not only celebrate Christmas —we should actually keep it. The spirit that permeates a true Christmas ought to be kept by us throughout the year. All the days, not simply the 25th of December, ought to be filled with the spirit of the Christ Child. Keeping Christmas in this way means to keep it, hold it, possess it, and be possessed by it for 365 days. Every day will then be a Christmas Day.

It is the sincere prayer of the writer that all of us may keep Christmas in the loftiest sense, just as we believe Jesus would keep it, and that we may lay hold of the things invisible and eternal. May His Spirit inspire us to shed abroad the love of God to a world which needs more of "The Greatest Thing in the World."

ROOM FOR THE CHILD
REV. J. D. PATERSON
All Saints' Anglican Church

The near approach of another Christmas Day is already influencing the thought and work of all of us from the very youngest to the oldest. It is the season when we become most human, emotions are stirred and things seem natural to us, which at any other time would be quite unlooked for. The curious feature about this change in us is that the inspiration comes from the yearly remembrance of an event which took place over nineteen centuries ago. A little Child was born and the coming of that little Child has changed the course of the lives of men ever since. A little Child is the source of our Christmas spirit and the reason for all our Christmas joy.

Sometimes in our foolishness we try to have the Christmas cheer and happiness without having the spirit. We try to manufacture the effect without first having the cause. There is tragedy in keeping the feast of the birthday of Christ when the door is shut and, as it was in Bethlehem, there is no room for the Child Jesus. Is it not a reflection on our Christian civilization and on us as Christian people and often members of Christian churches that on the principal feast day of our year our greetings, our celebrations and all the delights of the season so often accept the gift while ignoring the giver?

It is a principle of God that all that is worth while comes from the inside and works out. There may be gaiety all round us and yet not joy within, but when there is joy within there must always be happiness round about. Some folks know peace all round but restlessness and unquiet within, but when there is peace within and that the peace of God, then we have the very source of the gift within us. So it is with the Christmas spirit. When it comes from the heart which has received Christ and enthroned Him there as King, we have the perfect joy of the Christmas season which will not fade away and be forgotten when the festive season ends. May we not pray as we sometimes sing:

"O, come to my heart, Lord Jesus,
There is room in my heart for Thee."

This is the secret of a merry Christmas which I wish you all.

THE CHRISTMAS ANSWER to
An All-the-Year-Round Question.
REV. J. W. GORDON,
St. Andrew's United Church.

Can a man know God? The incarnation is God's answer. Can a man know a brother man? Can a man know, shall we say, a carpenter, talk with him, hold fellowship with him, love him, understand him? Yes. Then, says the incarnation, a man can know God. God meant that to be settled once for all. We can know God with that in us by means of which we know each other.

Moreover, it was always intended that man should know God. We are so made that we cannot be happy or content without knowing God. No man can be entirely satisfied away from God. God as He is in those qualities and characteristics in which He most adequately displays his real self can be known as surely as one man can know another.

God said at the incarnation, look on Jesus; consider Him; know Him. I am like Him. Now when we think of God we think of His Incarnate Son. God meant it to be settled once for all.

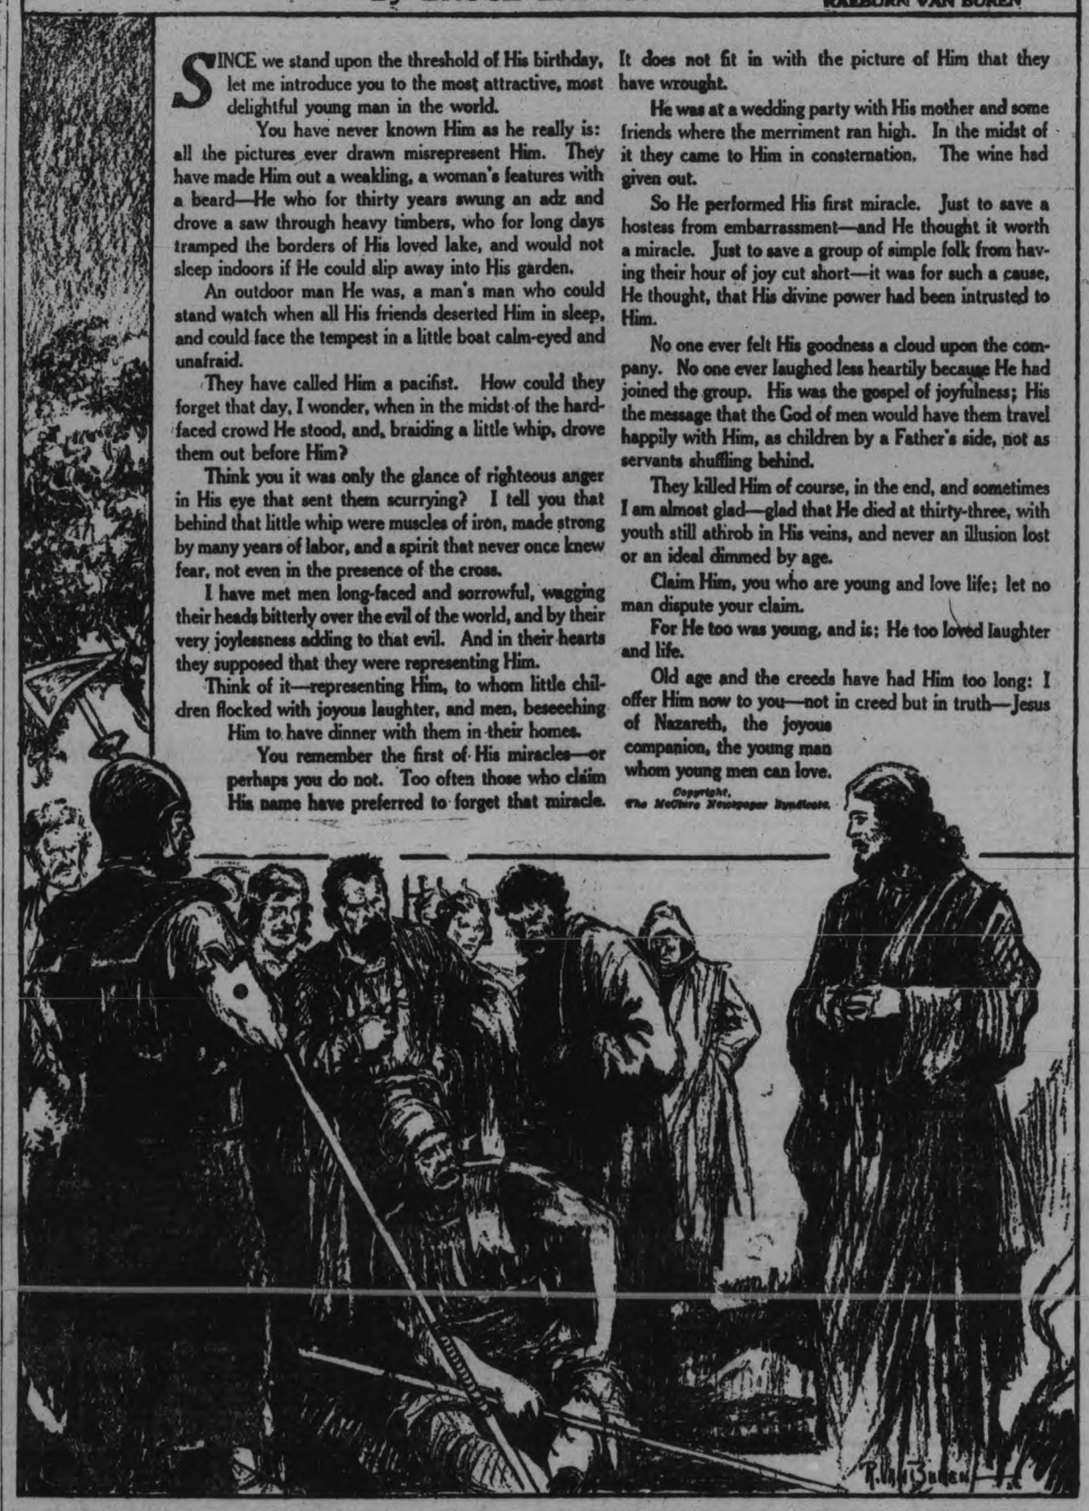
Have You Really Known Him?

By BRUCE BARTON

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN



SINCE we stand upon the threshold of His birthday, let me introduce you to the most attractive, most delightful young man in the world.

You have never known Him as he really is: all the pictures ever drawn misrepresent Him. They have made Him out a weakling, a woman's features with a beard—He who for thirty years swung an adz and drove a saw through heavy timbers, who for long days tramped the borders of His loved lake, and would not sleep indoors if He could slip away into His garden.

An outdoor man He was, a man's man who could stand watch when all His friends deserted Him in sleep, and could face the tempest in a little boat calm-eyed and unafraid.

They have called Him a pacifist. How could they forget that day, I wonder, when in the midst of the hard-faced crowd He stood, and, braiding a little whip, drove them out before Him?

Think you it was only the glance of righteous anger in His eye that sent them scurrying? I tell you that behind that little whip were muscles of iron, made strong by many years of labor, and a spirit that never once knew fear, not even in the presence of the cross.

I have met men long-faced and sorrowful, wagging their heads bitterly over the evil of the world, and by their very joylessness adding to that evil. And in their hearts they supposed that they were representing Him.

Think of it—representing Him, to whom little children flocked with joyous laughter, and men, beseeching Him to have dinner with them in their homes.

You remember the first of His miracles—or perhaps you do not. Too often those who claim His name have preferred to forget that miracle. It does not fit in with the picture of Him that they have wrought.

He was at a wedding party with His mother and some friends where the merriment ran high. In the midst of it they came to Him in consternation. The wine had given out.

So He performed His first miracle. Just to save a hostess from embarrassment—and He thought it worth a miracle. Just to save a group of simple folk from having their hour of joy cut short—it was for such a cause, He thought, that His divine power had been intrusted to Him.

No one ever felt His goodness a cloud upon the company. No one ever laughed less heartily because He had joined the group. His was the gospel of joyfulness; His the message that the God of men would have them travel happily with Him, as children by a Father's side, not as servants shuffling behind.

They killed Him of course, in the end, and sometimes I am almost glad—glad that He died at thirty-three, with youth still athrob in His veins, and never an illusion lost or an ideal dimmed by age.

Claim Him, you who are young and love life; let no man dispute your claim.

For He too was young, and is; He too loved laughter and life.

Old age and the creeds have had Him too long: I offer Him now to you—not in creed but in truth—Jesus of Nazareth, the joyous companion, the young man whom young men can love.

Christmas Notions Here And There

PAGAN CUSTOM IS FOLLOWED IN DECORATIONS

Church Authorities Did Not Always Permit Use of Evergreens.

BAN NOT OBSERVED

Jews Used Flowers and Green Boughs in Decoration of Tabernacle.

Although it now has centuries of sanction behind it, decorating the houses and churches at Christmas time did not always meet with the approval of the powers that were. Because this use of evergreens at the close of the year antedated Christianity and was associated with the customs of Roman paganism, several of the early church councils issued decrees of prohibition.

In spite of this fact, the practice of decoration at Christmas increased with the passing of the years, and its supporters, in answer to the prohibitory legislation of the church, pleaded the example of 'the Lord Himself, who sanctioned the strewing of His way with palm branches by the populace when He entered the Holy City in triumph.

Ancient Usage.

Flowers and green boughs were used by the Jews for decoration during their Feast of Tabernacles, in the month of September, the ancient Druids hung the mistletoe from their great oaks, to propitiate the sylvan deities; the Angles and Saxons who swarmed into Britain after the Roman with drawal decked their dwelling places with all the plants and boughs available around the season of the winter solstice, and the Romans themselves, in the early Christian era, continued to decorate the facades of their house on the Kalends or New Year's Day. The practice seems to have been well-nigh universal.

Three-fold Source.

Practically everything we are accustomed to use and indeed everything in use all over the world today for the decoration of the home at Christmas, may be traced to its bearing on the birth of Christ or superstitions connected with it that arose during the Middle Ages, or adaptations from the pagan world.

The Christmas tree, which we are accustomed to regard as our own, come from heathen Germany. Various stories are told of Martin Luther's introducing it into his own home—which shows that he had a regard for the Christmas celebration, which was unaffected by his breach with Rome.

Taking into consideration the fact that nearly every Christian country makes and has made for centuries some use of green growing stuffs at this period of the year we may safely conclude that the custom had its origin in the joy to be had in nature at this time of the year when so little of her productivity is evident, or else in some ancient custom connected with the birth of Christ.

So much for the origin of Christmas decorations. Other customs that have grown up since are largely corruptiosn or offshoots of the primary.

Distant memories, sometimes very dim, have governed the choice of decorations for the church and in course of time, the favorite plants were narrowed down to four chief members in the group—holly, bay, rosemary and laurel. For many years these were practically the only plants in use for church Christmas decoration throughout Europe. Ivy was frowned on for the simple reason that in pre-Christian days, it had been sacred to Bacchus and was employed largely in the orgies, celebrated in honor of the god of wine. Cypress, sometimes used, suffered on account of its funeral associations which made it an inappropriate decoration for a festive season like Christmas mistletoe was also under a cloud because of its Druid associations and also for more frivolous reasons which make it a prime favorite at house parties.

More Superstition.

In accordance with ecclesiastical canons, all Christmas decorations must be removed from the church before Candlemas Day. An old superstition declares that if every remnant of decoration is not removed before the stipulated time (February 2), there will be a death during the year in the family occupying the pew where a leaf or berry was left. The same rule and superstition applies to dwelling houses.

Wit of Irish Member Turned Ridicule On British M.P. Who Would Alter Christmas

Among the many private bills introduced into the British House of Commons last century by ambitious legislators anxious to perpetuate their fame by some novel proposal was one brought in by a member named Massey-Massey, whose pet project was to alter the name Christmas to Christide on the ground that the old title was redolent of too many exploded superstitions. Further, he believed that his suggested title was more English in sound. When the luck of the ballot favored him he prepared a measure and delivered a carefully worded address in which he descanted on the merits of his proposal. When he concluded, Daniel O'Connell, the witty Irish Nationalist member arose and blandly suggested that Mr. Massey-Massey should begin by reforming his own name, changing it to Tiday-Tiday. The House roared and nothing more was heard of the bill.

MANY WRITERS USE CHRISTMAS IN THEIR WORK

Poems and Prose Pieces About Nativity Are Numerous.

ANCIENT AND MODERN

Shakespeare, Milton, Scott, Dickens and Many Others Have Used Subject.

No anniversary in the twelve months of the year has such a distinctive and world-wide literature as has Christmas. The periodical celebration of the day has created a demand for special reading matter and the supply has been forthcoming as a matter of course.

References to Christmas are legion in the works of all the best writers in every European language. Poetical writers in English from Chaucer and Dunbar to Rudyard Kipling have found inspiration in the great religious festival. Shakespeare, the mind and mirror of his time, did not neglect the revels of his countryman at Christmas in his portrayal of men and matters of his age. A little known superstition,—that cocks crow all the night before Christmas—inspired this famous and lovely passage in Hamlet:

Some say, that ever 'gainst that season comes
Wherein our Saviour's birth is celebrated
This bird of dawning singeth all night long;
And then they say no spirit stirs abroad;
The nights are wholesome; then no planet strikes;
No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm
So hallowed and so gracious is the time.

Christmas Poems.

The noblest fruit of Christian inspiration, Milton's "Hymn on the Morning of Christ's Nativity" still stands peerless among our Christmas poems. Ben Jonson's "Hymn on the Nativity," George Herbert's "Christmas," Richard Crawshaw's "In the Glorious Epiphany," Herrick's "Christmas Carol" and "Ode on the Birth of Our Saviour" have long taken their place among the classics of all time. A rich anthology can be chosen from the poems of writers nearer our own day, beginning with Chatterton's "Hymn for Christmas Day," and passing on to Coleridge's "Christmas Carol" and his "Virgin's Cradle Hymn," Mrs. Browning's "Christmas Gifts," Miss Rossetti's "Christmas Carol," Lowell's poem with a similar title, Longfellow's "King Olaf's Christmas," Gilders' "Christmas Eve and Easter Day," and Matthew Arnold's "Saint Brandan."

Besides his great poem, "Ring out the old, ring in the new," Tennyson, in three other sections of "In Memoriam," lingers over Christmas memories. These are the lyric's beginning, "The Time Draws Near the Birth of Christ": "With Such Compelling Cause": and "With Trembling Fingers Did we Weave the Holly Round the Christmas Hearth." Scott, in the sixth canto of "Marmion," has a description of Christmas celebrations which is without a rival for graphic sprightliness. In it occur the oft-quoted lines:

England was merry England when Old Christmas brought his sports again
'Twas Christmas broached the mightiest ale
'Twas Christmas told the merriest tale
A Christmas gambol oft could cheer,
A poor man's heart through half the year.

Santa in Poetry.

Much of modern Christmas poetry is devoted to the retelling of the good deeds of Santa Claus. The surprise and delight of the little ones at the mysterious appearance of presents have been described in numberless stories and Santa Claus is the hero of much humorous verse. The happiest description of him informs us that

"He has a broad face and a little round belly
That shakes when he laughs like a bowlful of jelly" and they all agree as to his great carrying capacity and his power of getting down a chimney, and even of entering mysteriously into houses that have only very narrow outlets for smoke.

Christmas Stories.

First-class Christmas stories in English are very imposing in number, England and America having been specially prolific. Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and "The Chimes" instantly leaps to the mind in the consideration of Christmas literature. Kate Douglas Wiggins' "The Birds' Christmas Carol," T. B. Aldrich's "Christmas Fantasy," Thackeray's "Round About the Christmas Tree," and Bret Harte's "How Santa Claus Came to Simpson's Bar," are redolent of the Yuletide sentiment. Other stories occupying a high place in Christmas writings are "The First Christmas Tree" by Henry Van Dyke, "Christmas Eve on Lonesome" by John Fox, "Colonel Carter's Christmas" by F. H. Smith, and "Christmas Wreck" by Frank Stockton. General Lew Wallace depicts the boyhood of Christ in Ben Hur. Sir Walter Scott in The Abbot deals in one chapter with the revels of the "Lords of Misrule," who occupied such a prominent position in Yuletide merrymakers of long ago.

The themes of the true Christmas story are domestic happiness, reconciliation, doing good deeds anonymously, and the restoration of peace to disturbed communities. We see the hungry fed, the naked clothed, the lost one recovered, the poor pining girl restored to her lost rich lover, and in general, peace, love, plenty, and happiness, where misery, strife, want and hatred had ruled.

Dickens' Christmas carol, in spite of all that has been written since, is yet the simplest and best of this class of fiction and the story of the regeneration of the grasping flintry old sinner Scrooge seems to have a perennial charm wherever English is spoken.

Christmas Sermons.

To the orator, especially the Christian preacher, the story of the birth of Christ has been a source of never-failing inspiration. From the budding theologue to the greatest religious leaders, the theme is the subject of many of their most prized efforts. Some Christmas sermons rank very high in literary quality. Here is a quintette from an almost inexhaustible collection: Liddon's "Christmastide in St. Paul's," Phillip Brooks on Christmas Day, Cardinal Newman on the same subject, Alexander McLaren on "Christmas," and Charles Kingsley on "A Christmas Peace," all of them efforts that have taken place among the intellectual gems of our language.

CHRISTMAS OBSERVANCE STARTED ABOUT 400 A.D.

It is generally agreed that Christmas began to be celebrated by the Christian Church some time during the fourth century, but even there the authorities are not altogether unanimous. Some hold that the custom began much earlier than that, but, at any rate, by 400 A.D. the day was generally observed throughout the Christian world.

There is but little doubt, however, that one of the reasons for the selection of this day was for the fact throughout the heathen world Dec. 25 was one of the principal days of the Winter Festival, commemorative of the end of the sun's long journey northward. In Rome, Carthage, Scandinavia, Persia and among the early Britons, the winter solstice was observed with much pomp and weird ceremony. It may have been that the early Christians wished to combat the Pagan customs of this period of the year, or that they ought to enhance the popular appeal to Christianity by selecting this season for the celebration of the Nativity; but, whatever the motive, the choice resulted in a Christmas compounded of the beliefs of many religions.

How about a rug? It's a nice gift.

LOTS TO EAT FIRST DEMAND

After That Remainder of Christmas Festivity Came Easily.

In these days of high prices and scientific apportionment of calories and vitamines, few of us in Peterborough are at all disposed to endeavor to emulate the efforts of our ancestors, whose gargantuan Christmas dinners were truly the wonder of other nations.

England in particular was long celebrated for its substantial Christmas dinner, and many of its most curious ceremonies or pompous exhibitions were connected with feast and entertainment. The abundance of substantial viands with which the tables of the great were covered may be conceived from the following account in Pictorial England, of a feast given by George Neville, an Archbishop of York, of pre-Reformation days:

Some Lunch.

"A hundred and four oxen and six wild bulls, a thousand sheep, three hundred and four calves, as many swine, two thousand pigs, five hundred stags, bucks and roes, and two hundred and four kids formed the solid basis of the entertainment. Of fowls, large and small, rare and common, wild and tame, there were twenty-two thousand, five hundred and twelve. These were aided by mountains of fish, pasties, tarts, custards and jellies; and three hundred quarters of wheat formed the vegetable portion of the banquet. The quantity of liquids corresponded to that of the solids, consisting of three hundred tuns of ale, a hundred tuns of wine, and a pipe of hippocras, besides which there were twelve porpoises and seals."

True Pie.

The true Christmas pie was a learned mixture of meats, tongue, chickens, eggs, raisins, sugar, lemon and orange peel and spices; sometimes the chief ingredient was a goose.

Had They Enough.

At a Christmas evening supper of last century, given by Sir Francis Darwin, at Lyndope, Derbyshire, one of the dishes was a prodigious pie containing "among other things" as the chronicler quaintly observes, "two geese, two turkeys, two pheasants, two rabbits, a roasting pig and a quantity of small birds." Pies of this sort were usually spiced, so that they would keep for weeks, and were placed on a sidetable for all comers to cut at and come again.

Publican's Pie.

A Sheffield publican, landlord of an inn, known by the curious sign of "The Sportsmen's Group," used to pride himself upon setting a Christmas pie of huge dimensions before his customers for their gratuitous enjoyment. One of this host's liberal annuals weighed 170 pounds and was composed of fifty pounds of flour, nine pounds of lard, five pounds of suet and four pounds of salt and held in its interior two legs of veal, weighing together twenty-six pounds, thirty rabbits and forty-two pounds of pork. Its outside measure was three feet two inches in length, one foot nine inches in breadth, and seven inches in depth, the crust being beautifully ornamented.

An elaborate production of this kind is described in a newspaper of the year 1770 and consisted of the following ingredients: two bushels of flour, twenty pounds of butter, four geese, two turkeys, two rabbits, four wild ducks, two woodcocks, six snipes and four partridges, two neat's tongues, two curlews, seven blackbirds and six pigeons. This tasty bite measured nearly nine feet in circumference, at the bottom, and weighed 168 pounds, was fitted in a case upon four wheels and required two men to put it on the table.

John Bull.

Such enormities were proportioned to the open hospitality of the times. It appears that a Christmas the most abstemious and retired people relaxed from their quiet habits and gave free scope to the roystering spirit of the season. The country squire of three hundred pounds a year may serve as an example. This worthy never played at cards, but at Christmas, when the family pack was produced from the mantlepiece. He never drank anything, but home-brew (shades of the Ontario Temperance Act!) except on these gala days when he would make a bowl of strong brandy-punch, garnished with toast and nutmeg; and there, sitting in his cushions in a huge two-armed chair in the chimney corner, he would collect his tenants round a glowing fire, and set them going with tales of ghosts and witchcraft till fear made them afraid to move, so that we must infer they sat out the whole night with him till daybreak.

CHARMING TEA

For the housewife without a maid, the most charming electric afternoon tea may be arranged. Plates, cups and saucers, sandwiches and cakes should be in readiness on the dinner wagon, while the gateleg table, drawn close to the fireside, may be used for the electric appliances, and over which the hostess may preside graciously. Most delicious cheese dainties may evolve. Cinnamon toast, toasted crumpets or toasted muffins and creamed chicken may be prepared with an electric grill, toaster (hot water kettle, percolator) and chafing dish at the command of the housewife. There will be no necessity for the hostess to leave the room or break the charmed circle of conversation to prepare any delicacy or to procure extra hot water, for she is supplied with every accessory within easy reach, and a cheery, unruffled tea is the result.

If ever it is important to see what one purchases, it is when buying Christmas presents. Peterborough stores have what you want—at reasonable prices.

ANCIENT CONVENT SAW FIRST BULGING CHRISTMAS STOCKING

Good St. Nicholas Filled Stocking of Each Nun With Sugar Plums.

TREES IN MYTHOLOGY

Legend Tells of Gods, Giants and Dwarfs in Original Christmas Tree.

A pitter-patter of tiny feet on the stairs; a momentary halt halfway down, and a tense grip of baby fingers on the bannisters; an excited scramble to the bottom step, and an involuntary catch o the breath at the parlor door; then the riotous outbreak of joy with childish shrieks echoing through the house. It is the gladdest moment of the merry Yuletide, for Jackie has found his bulging stocking that he had hung up, limp and lanky, the night before by the chimney corner. And Jackie has also glimpsed the mysterious, glittering tree, its branches laden and sweeping the floor. Then back up the stairs fly the tiny feet to empty the magic stocking on Daddy's bed—the tree can wait till breakfast-time, but the red sock of mysteries will brook no delay.

Santa Fills Nuns' Stockings.

Funny, too, that with the march of progress the customs of Christmastide fail to lose their magic spell. Yet, it is said, that away back in the sixth century the first stocking was hung up for the good St. Nicholas to fill. Within the seclusion o. a convent it had become in that dim, distant past for young lady boarders to hang a silk stocking on the door of the apartment of the abbess on Christmas Eve. Next morning they were summoned to find that the good saint had liberally filled the stockings with tasty sweets.

Still another pretty tale is told of the origin of hanging up the stocking on Christmas Eve, and relating to an incident in the life of St. Nicholas. One day, overtaken by a severe storm, he took refuge in a convent, and the next day being Christmas, he preached a sermon to the nuns. So delighted were the sisters that they invited St. Nicholas to come again the next year to preach to them. Accepting this invitation, the good saint, before going to bed asked each of the nuns to lend him a stocking, and ere he retired he filled each stocking with sugar plums.

Origin of Christmas Tree.

Associated with the origin of the Christmas tree are many tales o folklore among the most interesting that which connects it with the great tree Yggdrasil of Scandinavian mythology. This ever green tree, coming from the centre of the earth, spread out its branches in which dwelt gods, men, giants and dwarfs. The roots were highly symbolic and above the branches a stag fed ceaselessly upon the leaves, as the year feeds upon the endless streams of time. Four other stags consumed the buds as the seasons consume the days and the hours. Higher up the sun eagle built his nest, and there were other animals who each stood for the wonder of the world.

The glittering brilliant balls of crimson and gold that today decorate the Christmas trees are relic of the moon and sun and stars and other characters that had their part to play with the mythological tree. An intriguing legend of the Christmas tree is told of Saint Winfrid, who was one day in the woods cutting down one of the sacred oaks of the Druids, when a terrific wind blew up and felled the tree. Crashing to the ground it split into four pieces. Directly behind the falling oak rose a young fir tree pointing its green spires to the sky and remaining upright and unharmed.

Legend of Evergreen.

When Saint Winfrid saw this miraculous escape of the young fir he proclaimed it a holy tree, saying that it was a sign of endless life because its leaves are green at all times, and because it pointed to Heaven it should be called the tree of the Christ-Child. Calling upon the people, he invited them to gather around it with joy in their hearts, and he bade each man take to his home a young fir tree, which should stand in the centre of the home, where it should shelter nothing but loving gifts.

TURKEY SCRAPS FEATURE SAVORY LUNCHEON MENU

A substantial one-piece luncheon dish is the turkey hash when combined with rice. Line the bottom and sides of a well-greased mould with boiled rice. Fill the centre with the turkey mixture, cover with a layer of rice and steam one hour. Unmould and serve with turkey gravy or a white sauce.

Turkey rechauffe with rich biscuits is a delightfully different and tempting means of utilizing the cold roasted turkey. Marinate the diced turkey with a very little French dressing for an hour. Drain and add to thinned gravy or white sauce if there is no gravy left. Boil and slice one cup chestnuts. Saute in a tablespoonful of butter until lightly browned. Combine with first mixture and add 1 cup mushrooms, 1 cup finely chopped celery, 1-2 cup cream and season well with salt and pepper. Simmer two minutes. Serve in small individual dishes between very rich biscuits cut in two. A dozen stoned olives cut in slices may be added if desired. They give an unusual flavor very pleasing to many.

Turkey hash au gratin is a savory dish, quickly made by pouring the hash into a deep baking dish and sprinkling with grated cheese. Bake ten minutes in a moderate oven or until a golden brown.

pies in Christmassy red and decorated with red ribbons leading to hidden surprises, as well as the dainty "Miss Muffet," whose frilled skirt hides an enticing box of crackers, are displayed in the season's shops. Admirable for decoration, they are as popular as the stockings filled with a miniature toy show, and ever appreciated by the home with its family circle of children.

Glace Fruits and Paste Tempting.

The elite grocery is also an enticing gift shop, for among the exhibits of "eats" that feature everyday life there stand out invitingly lovely, tasty glace fruits and fruit paste, packed daintily in fancy boxes and recalling sunny France. Plump raisins and delectable figs, glace stem ginger, dates and all the fruits that go into the Christmas plum pudding and the Christmas cake are with us this year in better form and quality than ever before. For the gift buyer seeking something most appetizing for the invalid there is a very special and luxuriant jar of stuffed pears in golden syrup. Raw fruits that feature the Christmas treat are also on exhibit in big, juicy oranges, tangerines, rosy-cheeked apples and beautiful bunches of grapes, cranberries to give spice to the goose, and golden grapefruit.

Fancy Baskets Packed With Goodies.

A feature of the exclusive grocery stores is the packing of baskets and hampers for customers who choose this manner of gift-presentation to their friends. Into these baskets, which only an artist is capable of packing, go fruit, pudding sauce, jars of fruit, candies, Christmas cake and all the dainties that the purchaser may choose. In an amazing assortment of Christmas candies, the grocery shops are displaying mixtures that will fill effectively the crystal candy jars and please the most fastidious connoisseur of candy, while exquisitely decorated boxes filled with chocolates and bonbons are offered as gift purchases.

YULE CRACKERS BRING HILARITY

Big Selection Offered This Year To Help Brighten Parties.

NEW DECORATIONS

Surely the inventor of the Christmas cracker was a veritable "King Cole and a merry old soul was he," for within every gay little package there lies hidden a jolly, wee imp who pulls the lever that starts the fun at Christmas festivities. Even the sternest of judges and stale professors melt under the influence of pulling a cracker and donning a rakish paper cap. So moderately have the boxes of gaily decorated crackers been priced this season that there promises to be provided a whirlwind of merriment in even the humblest of homes, while the man with a fortune to squander on fun will find among the most exclusive grocery and confection shops huge boxes of crackers bedecked most profusely and exquisitely in a medley of colors and designs.

Holly, Bell and Flower Decorations.

An intriguing cracker for the season has been decorated most artistically with holly and silver bells, others with holly and mistletoe, pine cones, heather, miniature Santa Claus, tiny crabapples, baby dolls, clowns, which the kiddies adore, and many of the flowers that scent the garden in June. Scottish designs are particularly appealing in the crackers made up in bright colors. Keeping company with the irresistible gay cracker, fascinating Jack Horne

DECORATING THE HOME

A gay red and green wreath hung upon the door or in the window proclaims the fact that the spirit of the Yuletide has entered the home. If the Christmas tree perchance is lacking, the house may be decorated profusely with greens, and for those enthusiastic for the preservation of the forests, and whose slogan is "Save the Trees," there are to be purchased paper trees that are excellent substitutes for the fir or spruce. With a touch of artistry or ingenuity, streamers of paper may be converted into intriguing hangings and festoons. Artificial poinsettias and scarlet bells add a cheery touch.

The task of decorating the home is one of the prettiest of Christmas festivities and one in which the children delight to have a part. A custom frequently followed by families with long-distance anticipations of the Yuletide is that of visiting the woods in the autumn and gathering material that will adorn the home to advantage. Branches of scarlet bitter-sweet, together with waxy snow-berries fill the vases effectively. Weeds may be collected and painted. Juniper vine entwines the mantel and windows in a frame of evergreen. A Christmas in which the children helped make the house "pretty" is thus described:

Trophies From the Woods.

"Pine cones were gathered from the floor of the woods. Tinted with silver paint and tied in clusters with red and green ribbons, they carried a suggestion of Christmas and Jack Frost. In the windows the children hung crescents, stars and crosses cut from silver paper, and on the dining-room windowpanes they pasted red birds which they had cut from stiff red paper. The buffet decoration was a large imitation plum pudding, made of brown tarlatan stuffed with cotton and tied with holly ribbon."

Nothing more Christmassy than the festive holly can be found with the lovely, mystic mistletoe. The florists display at the Yuletide a variety that is striking—potted, blossoming plants—that contribute gaiety to a setting of emerald; small ferns and wreaths rich with holly berries.

The lighted candle also has an important place in the home decorations as pictured thus:

Perhaps one of the loveliest customs connected with Christmas Eve is that of putting lighted candles in the windows to illuminate the path of our Saviour as He walks through the city on the eve of His birthday. Sometimes only one window contains a burning candle, but often all are lighted, and these, with other candles in the rooms, form the only light on Christmas Eve.

ARE YOU SUPERSTITIOUS?

These were old-time superstitions:

If you will go to the crossroads between 11 and 12 on Christmas night you will hear what most concerns you in the coming year.

If on Christmas Eve you make a little heap of salt on the table and it melts over night, you will die the next year; if, in the morning, it remains undiminished, you will live.

If a shirt be spun, woven and sewed by a pure, chaste maiden on Christmas morning you can see spirits.

If you burn elder on Christmas Eve you will have revealed to you all the witches and sorcerers of the neighborhood.

If you eat a raw egg on Christmas morning you can carry heavy weights.

It is unlucky to carry anything from the house on Christmas morning until something has been brought into it.

If the fire burns brightly on Christmas morning, it betokens prosperity; if it smoulders, diversity.

RICH CHINA AND BRASS GIFTS AMONG CHRISTMAS OFFERINGS

Bridge Novelties, Bright Crackers and Seasonable Books Are Shown.

SPLENDID DISPLAYS

Shoppers Will Find Much of Interest in Peterborough Stores.

No one need look far for gifts this year. The shops are full of them. China in the loveliest patterns, brasses from far-off India and Turkestan, gift books and wall panels and bridge novelties, to say nothing of Christmas cards which seem lovelier than ever, stare one in the face on every hand.

Drop in to Soden's, for example, and see their gorgeous boxes of Christmas crackers, one box in bright red having dainty maidenhair fern and holly adornments, with tiny red and brown birds peeping from the centers. See the intricate workmanship of the Indian brasses from Maharabadad and the exquisite shades of amber and rose and green glass sets, with gold-crusted edges, or the daintiness of Coalport china, with its marvellous dark blue and yellow edges. Here, too, are little bridge pencil weights with tiny flower pots attached to them and delicate shell place-card holders in Dresden blue and pink.

Or step into Trebilcock's store and peep into the pages of Dicken's Christmas Stories, with its darling frontispiece of a "Lollipop" lady. Here is the Prince of Wales on the gold cover of a box of the new grey paper, with yellow and blue and red lacquered shoe trees in little boxes and the daintiest of bridge novelties in colored celluloids. One exquisite little bridge book has a tooled leather cover with an embroidered linen motif inset.

At John Hill's store, china is the drawing card, in a variety of odd and pretty things; black satin glass vases and bowls, quaint, squat-shaped Paisley teapots with their shawl-like patterns, Jacobean ware in colored enamels and lovely little salt and pepper and mustard sets, with dainty ladies masquerading as covers, side by side with little duck and chicken families and some of the striking Japanese china that comes in black and green and yellow colorings.

At C. B. Routley's store, with the sale in progress, china is on every side and of every sort, white and figured and in solid colors, with another odd set comprised of tray and teapot and tea-kettle, developed in lipstick red and a checkerboard pattern of black and white. Ice cream sets in the Bird of Paradise design are another striking bit in a collection of beautiful china sets of many patterns, and there is table silver, dolls, toys and smoking sets in brass, also quantities of other delightful articles on view.

Some of the smaller stores have exquisite things tucked away in their show-windows and cases. Miss Alice Curtis has a full line of babies' things in dainty wool and lace and silk, with quantities of embroidered linens that include a wonderful bedroom set in honeydew rayon. New ideas in ribbons for powder-puff holders and lingerie accessories are shown here, also charming little Dresden china ladies that conceal Miladi's puff and perfumed sachets.

In the store of the Misses Ennis and Armstrong is displayed some of the wonderful things from the mission schools in Hwaiking, China, in embossed silver and brass goods, also embroideries of charming designs and a wonderfully chased silver bowl for holding roses.

Miss L. A. Derry also shows, in connection with her millinery display, some pretty things in embroidered pieces, dolls and little animal novelties.

JOHN BULL SPENDS HUGE SUMS IN FUN

That John Bull is a free spender at Christmas is borne out in statistics, which claim that it would require a cheque for 30,000,000 to cover the actual cost of expenditure. The items of John Bull's bill are of engrossing interest. His Christmas pudding, for example, has cost 1,000,000 and tips the scale at ten thousand pounds. It is judged that a train four miles long and drawn by 30 locomotives would be required to transport the five million constituent puddings by rail.

As for roast beef, nothing less than 15,000 tons will satisfy John's Yuletide appetite, while geese and turkeys number two millions. A million hares and rabbits keep company with five hundred tons of mutton. Pheasants and other birds account for roughly 10,000 pounds of the dinner bill, and if we add pork, ham and bacon, the vegetables, and all the other items, we arrive at a total cost of something like 7,000,000 pounds.

CHRISTMAS FRUITS BROUGHT FROM AFAR

Favorites Grow in Sunny South And on Foreign Shores.

Oranges, apples and bananas are always regarded as the favorite fruits for Christmas fare. Just a peep at where they come from: In Canada the bulk of the stock comes from California and Florida. In Great Britain they consider that their best bananas come from the Canaries, but Jamaica sends the largest stocks; while the biggest fruit, which unfortunately is also the coarsest, comes from Costa Rica. They receive 30,000 bunches a week at Christmastime, and on a full-sized bunch the number of fruit is about ten dozen. Of oranges at least a quarter of a million boxes arrive in Great Britain for Christmas, and a box holds from 140 to 250 oranges, according to size. The best come from the West Indies, and are known by their pale colored skins, often mottled with "rust." Canada sends most of the winter eating apples. The cheaper varieties of grapes come from Spain, but the best winter grapes are grown under glass in the Channel Isles. Fresh pineapples arrive from St. Michael, while walnuts, will be supplied by France. Figs and dates come from various parts of the shores of the Mediterranean, and crystallized fruits principally from France.

Tricks for which something at hand can be pressed into service, apparently on the spur of the moment, are often more effective than those needing special apparatus.

CHRISTMAS IS GREAT SEASON OF MEMORIES

Tradition Plays Big Part in Building Up of Festival.

MUCH PLEASURE MISSED

Yule Logs and Candles Lost Through Advances of Science.

How much of the richness and variety of our Christmas associations are due to memories and traditions that have been passed on to us from generation to generation, reaching away back into remote times in environment totally different from that to which we are accustomed! What does Christmas mean to us here in Peterborough? It is a cluster of memories crowding upon each other of parents and other relatives, bringing gifts to us of Christmas trees, candles, tasty foodstuffs, roaring fires, overheated rooms, and of snow, chilly winds and darkness in the great world outside.

Of all seasons in the year Christmas undoubtedly owes most to tradition, and to these old traditions we cling affectionately, notwithstanding the fact that other times have brought other manners. The open fire is still associated in our minds with the season of festivity despite the fact that the larger proportion of the population of this city will sit in rooms heated by furnaces or steam radiators on the night of December 25. One is at a loss to estimate exactly how much diminished would be our Christmas tradition had our forefathers, here and in Britain lived in steam-heated city houses, and how much greater would have been the loss had there been no Yule logs, no carol singers going from house to house, no candles in the windows and no gathering of mistletoe and holly. It is because he feels that Christmas without the old-time associations and rites and ceremonies would cease entirely to be Christmas that the Englishman spending the last days of the year in the torrid zone of Northern Australia where the temperature maintains itself fairly constantly above 100 degrees Fahrenheit, still continues to eat his plum pudding and other hot delicacies prepared for a season when the ground is white and King Frost nips the air.

Ye Olden Tyme.

In olden times each Yule log was lighted with fires kept burning from the year before. Older than Christmas this was a custom annually renewing the sense of obligation to beneficent Nature. It may still be possible to feel our dependence on Nature when we hear the steam bang in the radiator, but it is hardly likely to come home to our minds so readily. But it is still possible to get some of these joys second hand. If one wishes to get the real thrill that can be had from olden time Christmas and its trees, the reading of Washington Irving's wholly delightful essays will go a long way towards fulfilling the desire. Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and Pickwick Papers also bring one back to the Christmas of other days.

But if we want to make our Christmas as much as possible like that of former days we must try to capture some of the whole-hearted fervour of those times.

Children still retain something of the old artless enthusiasm. But, the rest of us seldom enter as fully and freely as we should into the fervent delights and rollicking humor of the holiday. Yet only by surrendering ourselves unreservedly to the spirit of the time can we learn to have an old-fashioned Christmas, only by becoming as little children can we renew the feelings that inspired our forefathers' enthusiastic observance of the Christ-child's birthday.

True, our forefathers' merrymaking was in some respects too rude and boisterous to suit our more fastidious tastes. But that objection was long ago removed by the refining touch of time. What remains is exactly what is needed to give life and sparkle to the conventional celebrations of these later days and "to make the cheeks of Christmas glow red and jolly" once more.

Make Your Own Preparations.

Nowadays we seldom regard the preparations for Christmas as an integral part of the celebration. Yet in the old days, they were one of its greatest features. It is our practice today to leave these matters wholly in the hands of those who make it a business to attend to them. Ten of us, for instance, gather our holiday decorations ourselves. We buy them. In the big city of course, this is unavoidable; but like Peterborough there is no necessity for it, and the old fashioned Christmas was essentially a country festival. So all who wish to enjoy it in its most characteristic form should spend some part of the holidays in the country if at all possible. There all kinds of evergreens are to be had for the plucking and no merrier prelude to an old-fashioned celebration could be devised than that of starting out together on December twenty-third to gather Christmas greens.

Remembering those likely to be forgotten at Christmastime, and doing it in such a way as to afford no clue to the giver is a course which, if generally followed, would make Christmas more what it should be. There are not merely poor people who are overlooked; there are also others, not poor, but away from home and friends who would be made happy by receiving some little gift from an unknown friend who had a kind thought of them. Even so simple a thing as a card bearing a seasonable greeting may carry a vast amount of good cheer.

Actions like this are much more common than is generally imagined, and are the outcome of the desires of good souls everywhere to create the Christmas atmosphere by consideration for others, and doing their little bit to extend the message and spirit of good-will throughout the land. Prepared by such thoughts you are ready for the Christmas message of kindliness, of sympathy, of brotherhood.

When considering the many details that have to be taken care of incidental to a successful Christmas Party one of the most perplexing is the question of entertainment. It is no easy task to devise pleasures of variety to please the cosmopolitan tastes of the average room full of modern guests.

FROM MAKER TO WEARER

SAMUEL PEPYS NOTED SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

Found His Church New Wreathed in Rosemary and Bays.

RELIGIOUS FESTIVAL

Church Services in Early Days Were Usually Most Spectacular.

With a very few exceptions all men were religious in the Middle Ages, but then as now, they were divided into two classes, the devout and the more or less indifferent. The former regularly made church attendance a part of their Christmas routine, the latter attended only occasionally. Attendance at church on Christmas was long desired by the authorities as an aid towards good citizenship, and the church service on that night was unusually spectacular and magnificent.

Even after the Reformation, Catholic and Protestant found joy in celebrating in their own way the annual feast of the birth of their common Savior, until the Puritan Revolution brought into power a section of the nation whose influence on Christmas is manifest even at the present day.

Diarist's Experience.

Cromwell vetoed church preaching altogether, but when Christmas came round, there were always found some ministers prepared to set the great Protector's order at defiance. In 1657, it was thought necessary to issue an order-in-council, reaffirming the repeal of Christmas, Easter and other religious festivals, and the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London were specially recommended to take steps to ensure the prohibition of the traditional merry-making at Christmas. Notwithstanding this ordinance, John Evelyn, the sober, religious diarist, followed his usual custom and coming to London attended divine service in Exeter Chapel. "The sermon over," says the entry in the diary," the chapel was surrounded with soldiers, and all the communicants and assembly surprised and kept prisoners by them, some in the house, others carried away." Evelyn goes on to relate his discussion of the matter with the officers of the troops, to whom he stated his case with such conviction that they dismissed him in pity at his ignorance.

Another Diarist's Experience.

Christmas was not to be much longer under ban. When three years afterwards another diarist, the worldly, amorous Samuel Pepys went to church on Christmas morning he found his pew covered with rosemary and bays and had the pleasure of hearing a good sermon. After dining off a good shoulder of mutton and a chicken, he went to church again with his wife, to be sent to sleep by a dull discourse from a strange parson; for which he made amends a day or two afterwards by making himself ill with too much eating and drinking. The following year he and Mrs. Pepys indulged themselves with cakes and ale at a tavern in Moorfields where his ears were regaled by the "singing of wenches" with their wassail bowls; a tolerable proof that Christmas had once more asserted its sway, and that its devotees were justified in singing:

The vicar is glad,
The clerk is not sad,
And the parish cannot refrain
To leap and rejoice
And lift up their voice
That the king enjoys his own again,

For not only was King Charles on the throne of his father, but repressive legislation had gone, and King Christmas, after nearly twenty years' exile was back.

The same Mr. Pepy's who usually found more attraction in the theatre than in the church was agreeably entertained on the Christmas of 1665, as recorded in his diary:

"To church in the morning and there saw a wedding which I have not seen for many a day; and the young people so merry with one another and strange to see what delight we married people have to see these poor fools decoyed into our condition—every man and woman gazing and smiling at them."

Mr. Pepy's wife evidently had scolded him the night before.

THE MAGIC GLASS

Two little experiments which demonstrate the power of air pressure are quite interesting. Take an ordinary drinking glass, lay it on the edge of a table open end outwards. Place another inside it, leaving about half-an-inch gap at the top. Challenge anyone of the company to remove the inner glass without touching it and then proceed to do it yourself by blowing into the gap between the two glasses.

The inside glass will jump out and if not caught quickly will further delight the audience by breaking in bits!

INCOMPREHENSIBLE PINS

Pins are either of steel or of tinned brass and these two kinds are not usually distinguishable save by magnet. Obtain a few of each and left a steel pin with the magnetized knife. Challenge someone else to do it even with your knife and secretly substitute a brass pin for the steel one. To his surprise he will fail to lift it. Then exchange the pins again and show that you alone are capable of the feat.

A STRIKING EFFECT

Place a board about one foot wide and two feet long on the edge of a table so that it is nearly toppling over. Cover the table end with a sheet of newspaper and it will be found that if the overhanging part is struck with the fist it cannot be knocked off owing to the suction between board and table. You can then dilate upon the 151 lbs. per square inch of atmosphere holding the board down when you try to pick it up.

People move with the times, and up-to-dateness in the matter of games is very necessary to the aspiring Christmas hostess. For this reason it is useful to have a friend with a repertoire of fascinating tricks, which, while amusing plentifully do not make too great demands on the conjurer.

THE TRUE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMASTIDE

"Ye have done it unto me."

PETERBOROUGH ORGANIZATIONS MAKE CHRISTMAS BRIGHTER FOR HUNDREDS

By Jeannette

"Therefore, Christian men, be sure,
Wealth or rank possessing,
Ye who now will bless the poor,
Shall yourselves find blessing."
Old Carol—"Good King Wenceslas."

Interwoven with the warp and woof of life are its apparent contradictions. For instance, the man or woman who is the most unselfish is really very selfish. He who gives to the poor with one hand pulls down for his own use a little corner of Heaven, even though he may not intend to do so. "Who gives himself with his gift feeds three: himself, his hungering neighbor and Me," says the Christ in "The Vision of Sir Launfal." But it is not likely that those who give to the needy at Yuletide think of such things. They just have a desire to bestow on others something that will make them have a happy Christmas.

In Peterborough, there is much charity expended during this season. People who bewail the overlapping evil and tell you that some families have two or three baskets at Christmas time and then perhaps go half hungry during the rest of the winter are pointing to an obvious fact, but those who give would probably rather have this condition prevail than the contrary one where there would be no baskets distributed.

The various churches have their Christmas-time giving, more or less systematized, and each has a list of needy parishioners who are taken care of by societies of men and women looking after this phase of the church's endeavors. The Central Charity Board is, of course, always busy at this time of the year, and represents the civic gesture toward charitable efforts to alleviate distress. Various societies, like the I.O.D.E. Chapters, and the Home and School Associations, always remember donations to the poor and needy at Christmas time, and others, like the Oddfellows, and the Caledonians, and the Knights of Columbus, organize special parties for children. Young Women's Christian Association, Protestant Home, House of Providence, St. Vincent's Orphanage and the Children's Shelter, along with the three hospitals, are remembered by kindly souls who give to these institutions with unfailing regularity.

The service clubs of the city do a great deal of this type of work. The Rotary Club has not yet decided on the particular form its givings will take for this Christmas, but seventy-five to eighty families benefit yearly by its donations. The Kiwanis Club this year will probably duplicate or surpass its givings of last season, when fifty-three families, comprising a total of one hundred and seventy-five children, were looked after by them. A little bit of extra consideration is shown by this club, in its addition to certain baskets of little luxuries, going into homes where these are known to be very unusual.

The Big Sisterhood has discovered that its day to day efforts to alleviate need and distress, which take the form of visiting homes and encouraging the despondent to fresh hope and cheer, as well as the actual physical comforts and clothes supplied where necessary, are not any more urgent, or, rather, are just as urgent at Christmas time as at other seasons of the year, and therefore does not make a practice of special gifts at this time. It strives to have its charges cared for at all times as well as possible and looks after an average of fifty families during the usual demands on this society, which wishes at all times for assistance from families are more urgently required than Christmas luxuries, and three of these would be very acceptable in as many homes. The stork does not consult the weather man when he makes his rounds. And this matter of layettes is an urgent need of another society which functions exclusively among the families of returned men. The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, a right bower to the work of the Legion itself in looking after the ex-soldiers and their dependents, knows of several homes where a lack of money prevents the proper reception of children of men who fought that these, and other children, might have a free land to be born into.

The Legion itself has manifold demands on its treasury and the time of its members, during this season. An average of about two hundred baskets of staple groceries and supplies goes out yearly at Christmas tide, to homes where returned men, their wives and children, look as eagerly for Noel eve as in establishments of more luxurious calibre. Sometimes the baskets come nearer the four hundred mark, and they have always a little room in them for a toy or a bag of sweets, for the children.

This matter of looking after the returned men and their children comes within the scope also of the peace-time activities of the Red Cross Society, who, as well as co-operating with the work of the local branch of the Legion, sends parcels of Christmas cheer to returned soldier settlers who are having a hard time, facing life in the isolated farming sections of Northern Ontario. Some idea of the manner of holiday-making of these men may be gained from the information that most of the gifts to them are of a very substantial and welcome nature, such as pork and beans, and clothing and bedding, with only a final touch of a few fruits, and nuts and candies. Again, the men who fought for Canada and find themselves marooned in isles of suffering in such places as Christie Street Hospital in Toronto, have their friends in the Thursday Club, who send them little remembrances at Christmas. The Thursday Club also, like so many of the other societies, makes a donation annually to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion, to assist with work among local returned men.

This year, the Peterborough Health Association is trying to alleviate the sufferings of those who suffer from the white plague, the tuberculosis patients of the city, by capitalizing the Christmas spirit in an appeal for support in the sale of Christmas seals.

The King's Daughters, finding some overlapping at the holiday time, give in a more business-like way, helping at this season the same families assisted by them during the entire year, also sending little dainties in Christmas baskets to Nicholls Hospital and the Protestant Home. This old people's home is also remembered at this season with gifts from the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League.

Little stories that illustrate the element of human nature that creeps into everything are those of the energetic member of a certain club who called on a foreign resident with a basket of Christmas gifts. He began by explaining the purposes of his organization and was met later by a statement to the effect that the listener did not have time or money enough to join the club to which he imagined he was receiving an invitation to membership.

Again, a woman who employed another woman to help her with household tasks during the winter was remembered by a certain society at Christmas time. They sent her a goose for her holiday dinner, as her name was on their list. The woman who was helping her—not being on the list—enjoyed a Christmas dinner, along with her children, of bacon and eggs.

CHRISTMAS CHEER

A delightful little surprise may be prepared for the sick-a-bed folk or the very feeble aged who are unable to participate with the family in the festivities in the living-room on Christmas Day. A tiny tree that will sit on the bedside table may be procured and decorated with the smallest colored candles, strings of cranberries and miniature twinkling balls. A dear old lady who had been bedridden for many months so delighted in her baby Christmas tree that she insisted upon having the candles lighted morning and night until after the New Year, and in the enjoyment of the surprise failed to miss the fun that the big tree downstairs had invoked.

PARLIAMENT ONCE BANNED CHRISTMAS

Ancient Law Made Yuletide Festivity a Crime—Fines Imposed.

With Christmas an event to anticipate weeks in advance annually, it is difficult to realize that there was once a time when the festivity was abolished in England. Parliament, in the year 1643, passed an act forbidding the celebration of the day, in spite of the protest of the King and the people. For 12 years there was no celebration of Christmas and all who attempted to celebrate were arrested and fined.

In the year 1659 the State of Massachusetts, through the General Court, enacted a law providing for similar punishment for anybody observing, by abstinence from labor, feasting or any other way, any such day as Christmas. For 22 years this law remained enforced, Christmas being again officially recognized when the act was repealed in 1681. For years after the restoration of Christmas Day celebration, the Puritans obstinately refused to celebrate.

TOYS DISCOVERED IN EGYPTIAN TOMBS

Lions and Hippopotami Are Found Reproduced in Miniature.

Among the toys which have been taken from Egyptian tombs are figures of lions, some springing upon a hapless quarry, others majestically resting. The mighty river-horse, or hippopotamus, which the small Egyptian must often have heard crashing through the reeds of the Nile, was reproduced in miniature for his amusement. One specimen, fashioned in china, is lying down with his head cocked on one side like a sleepy puppy.

Among the other birds, beasts and fishes which the Egyptian toymaker of old reproduced for his little customers were eagles, fish, swans with outstretched wings, but never a cat, a hawk or a crocodile. These were sacred animals, and it would be sacrilege to allow their images to be the sport of the nursery. Strange to British children's eyes is a queer, two-headed animal of unknown species.

TREE AT CHRISTMAS NOT EARLY CUSTOM

Dates From Conversion of German Tribes by Boniface in 724.

Unlike most other customs of the season, the use of the Christmas tree dates from a period subsequent to the introduction of Christianity. For more than seven hundred years, the Christmas tree was a thing unknown to the Christian children of Europe.

A deed of humanity by a good Christian missionary is said to have led to the introduction of this world-wide institution. In the year 724 A.D., Boniface, the organizing genius whose preaching brought the wild tribes of Low Germany within the fold of Christianity, came upon a striking scene in the depths of the forests on his arrival one Christmas Eve.

Beneath a magnificent oak tree an altar had been erected to the God of War, Thor, and a number of warriors had gathered round to make sacrificial offerings. Because of a failure of the crops, it was resolved to offer a human sacrifice to appease the offended deity and a little lad of twelve years of age was selected as the victim. Boniface, raising his voice in protest, was ordered to maintain silence, and the victim was blindfolded and bound and was led to the altar.

The boy, not unwilling to die for the tribe to which he belonged was placed in a kneeling position, awaiting the fatal blow. But that blow never fell, for Boniface, stepping forward at the crucial moment, interposed his staff and diverted the downward course of the priest's mallet which was shattered on the stonework of the altar.

In the amazement of the onlookers, the Christian saw his opportunity, and, moving towards the altar, he presented to them the claims of the Christ of whom they had heard in reports borne into their midst by warriors from other lands.

The appeal of Boniface was effective; the boy's life was spared, and the Germans, forsaking the gods they had worshipped, made the God of Boniface their god. The great oak tree, beneath which the altar was erected, became the symbol of the new religion, and in the tiny replicas of it which were placed in the various homes, were the beginnings of the Christmas trees which bring delight to the children of Peterborough of to-day.

"I HEARD THE BELLS—"

Sweetest of sweet melodies is the chime of carillons on Christmas morning. Voices are hushed and revelry pauses to listen to the harmonious cadence of Yuletide chimes. The history of bells is a fascinating one, involved as it is in curious superstitions. One finds in old chronicles that bells were rung not only to summon worshippers to church or to invite their prayers for a passing saint, but also as an active attack against the powers of evils. Bells were frequently given names and accorded individualities.

Today there prevails a beautiful custom of installing in many churches and cathedrals carillons as a memorial to a beloved and revered citizen who has passed to his reward.

For your men on Christmas there's nothing more welcome or sensible than one or two nice new up-to-date

Home Festivity Should Be Gay With Music

Music, the art that has power to "raze out the rooted troubles of the brain," to "minister to the mind diseased" and "soothe the savage breast" seems to make a beautiful setting for the jollity of the Yuletide season. It hardly seems to be complete without the accompaniment of music, whether it be the humble notes of a mouth organ in the hands of a little boy, or the magnificent strains of an operatic aria pouring forth from the interior of a luxurious electric phonograph.

A writer speaking of music in a recent article, says that the piano and the hearth are active combatants to the spirit of a jazz or savage age, and he advocates tuition in piano music as an antidote for the restless spirit of excitement-seeking modern youth. Again, an industrial observer speaks of the use to which music may be put to in factories to soothe the nerves of the workers and increase their productive energies.

Christmas waits and Christmas carols. How they chime in with the celebration of the birth of the Christ Child!

Heintzman Co.

In the various music stores of the city, there is plenty to interest the lover of melodious tones. In the big establishment of the Heintzman Company, one finds the last word in luxurious, modern instruments. Here is a machine that is electrical, orthophonic and automatic, for instance, in walnut or mahogany cabinets of French Renaissance design. One simply touches a button and strains of glorious melody pour forth from a dozen different records that play in turn, while a "reject" stop silences an unwanted number, and the machine goes on to the next. Or there is the Brunswick Panatrope, the Orthophonic or the Electrola of the cone type, operated with vacuum tubes, in large and baby models, with music alternating at will from the merest whisper to full orchestral volume. Or one may have a portable victrola of thirteen to twenty-two pounds in weight.

Here, too, are McLagan Phonothetic instruments and player pianos of the ordinary and automatic electric types, Welte-Mignon reproducing pianos that render selections exactly as the composer wrote them; grand pianos and uprights in regular finish and in the green "crack" finish that is designed for bungalow and sun room use, to withstand wear and tear of changing climate and temperature. And there are Victor records of the latest makes.

Radio, Says Santa Claus

What Can Fill the Bill Better? Asks Patron Saint of Yuletide—Old Folks, Youngsters, and the Whole Family Have Many Happy Hours in Store—Ever Hear of the SPUGS?

Santa Claus—the real honest-to-goodness Santa Claus—is in town, pleased with the activities of his various impersonators, who are very much in evidence.

"What are you specializing on this year in the way of gifts?" was the leading question asked him, when he made it known that he would be glad to be interviewed, while preparing for his public entrance into millions of homes on the night of Dec. 24. The good old man stroked his long, white beard and answered, somewhat sharply, it seemed:

"Radio, of course. Thought everybody knew that."

More Particulars.

Pressed for more particulars, Santa Claus stated:

"Remember the SPUGS? Guess they are still about—the Society for the Prevention of Useless Giving. That isn't a bad idea. I'm in favor of it. Real, worthwhile, all-the-year-round things; that's what I'm featuring this time—and nobody will forget me, any day in the year.

"Now what fills this bill better than a radio set? It brings joy and happiness throughout the year. I'm glad so many public-spirited men and women are supplying sets to the hospitals, places I like to visit, and I hope that I can visit them all this year. They need radios—and you may be surprised to know that there are many without them. Old folks' homes, too—they need radios. And the kiddies' homes all over the land, particularly where the blind children are—these, too, should be remembered. The radio means so much to them.

Still Empty Homes.

"I'm told that there are still homes where there are no radio sets to bring in the world's events and the fine musical programs. Really, I could hardly believe there were so many of them—but there will be fewer when I get through with my travels. Yes, siree, this is a radio Christmas.

J. M. Greene Co.

The J. M. Greene Music Company, Limited, handles Williams New Scale pianos in standard and player makes, the Brunswick Panatrope and a full line of orchestral instruments with an exclusive agency for Holton band instruments, and a recent order for Dunnville and Hagersville, both of the big Holton phones, a variation of the well-known Sousaphone, with its entwining tubes. Here, also, are Brunswick records and a full line of musical accessories, with something for kiddies in the tiny records and attached stories in Mother Goose books.

Royal Music Co.

These tiny records for children have a place also on the music shelves of the Royal Music Company's store, with P. J. Scollard as manager. They are especially adapted to Christmas, in the little "Santa Claus Visits the Children's Hospital" and Kiddies' "Dance on Christmas Morning" examples. Mr. Scollard also stock electrophonic and ampliphonic machines, pianos of various makes, sheet music, records, string instruments and accessories.

Peterboro Music Co.

The Peterboro Music Company deals in Mason Risch pianos, McLagan and Columbia phonographs and ampliphonics, accessories, sheet music and records and stringed instruments, with a special line of good violins and cases and rolls of all sorts. The newest music folios are available here.

E. V. Warne.

E. V. Warne handles the Wagner piano, orthophonic Victrolas and the automatic orthophonic player pianos and Victor records.

Canadian Department Store.

A sheet music counter is maintained at the establishment of the Canadian Departmental Stores, Limited, where the latest hits in popular music and the various old standard favorites and folios may be purchased, also records for any make of machine.

The sale of Christmas music has a wide range. There are people who want to put on a record like the "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah," for instance, or "Cathedral Chimes," the "Holy City" or "Adeste Fidelis," for the pipe organ. "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," a lovely carol like "Still Night, Holy Night," or "Abide With Me," also have their patrons. Or maybe the choice runs to something intermediate, like "Estrellita" with its dulcet organ tones, or "Les Rameaux" (The Palms) as sung by John McCormack.

One has a wide choice these days. "The Letter Edged in Black," with many hoary years to its credit, has a companion very up-to-date favorite in "Oh! Dem Golden Slippers," "Miss Annabelle Lee" and the funniness of "Two Black Crows," "The Varsity Drag," "Just a Memory," "My Blue Heaven," "Dancing Tambourine" and the two latest of Irving Berlin's compositions, are among the favorites of the moment. Mr. Berlin punctuated his romance with musical efforts, it will be remembered. "What'll I Do," "Remember" and "Always" marked episodes in its unfolding. "Together, We Two" is his latest foxtrot, but the waltz that companions it is entitled "The Song is Ended, but the Melody Lingers on," the wording making one wonder if the romance of the Berlins has struck a snag.

Just as a jazzy finale, here are some of the titles of the latest spasms in syncopation: "You Tell 'Em Ivories," "High Fever (Hot)," "Stomp Your Stuff," "I Left My Sugar Standing in the Rain," and "Dead Man Blues."

MELODY OF CHRISTMAS CAROL BRIGHTENS FESTIVE SEASON

Birth of Christ-Child Sung by Troubadors of Old.

OLD FAVORITES

Sweetest Melody of the Centuries Embodied in Gladsome Songs.

'TIS SAID that the true spirit of Christmas has been forgotten in the garish festivity and the mania of gift-exchange, but when on Christmas Eve sweet, old-timey carols ring out on the frosty air, the Christ-Child, the lowly manger and the story of Bethlehem are very, very real. Though memories of the dinner and the tree twinkling with a thousand tinsel ornaments may dim with the passing months, there remains a startling distinct picture of the little group of carollers standing beneath the window where glows the subdued sickroom light, their voices lifted in the old familiar:

"God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
For Jesus Christ, our Saviour,
Was born upon this day."

Carols in the Open Air.

No masterpiece was more lovely than the scene witnessed on a Christmas Eve, a-sparkle with stars and crisp with frost, a great company o' city folk congregated in the city park, the evergreen tree ablaze with brilliant, tiny colored electric lights, the mecca for all songsters, homely, uncultivated voices blending with highly-trained voices in singing carols. Yet another picture remains in the heart o' mankind, responding to the spirit of Christmas—a shabby downtown district with the frost-rimmed tree gaily decorated and a curious contrast to the tumbledown homes of the neighborhood. Around the tree a group of young folk gathered and singing with fervor carols that brought cheer to those homes of the surrounding district, that perchance would know little other festivity.

First Christmas Carol.

Some 1600 years ago, it is said, the first Christmas carol was written, yet as Bishop Jeremy Taylor expressed it: "The oldest Christmas carol was that sung by the heavenly host when the birth of the Saviour was announced to the shepherds on the plains of Bethlehem." The earliest Christmas carol, as we sing them today, was written in the fourth century by Aurelius Prudentius, while probably the oldest English carol is the "Angelus ad Virginem," found in a church manuscript of the thirteenth or fourteenth century. The first English collection of carols was published by Wynken de Worde about 1521. This publication contained the quaint version of the "Boar's Head Carol," with one stanza as follows:

"The boar's head, as I understand,
Is the finest dish in all the land,
Which thus bedecked with a gay garland,
Let us servive cantico.
Caput apri defero
Reddens laudes Domino."

Wandering Minstrels.

Angels and shepherds, the cradle, holly, ivy and even Yuletide hospitality have been interwoven in the carols written and sung through the centuries. Wandering minstrels and troubadours spread the custom of carol singing in the early days and they sang the more heartily perhaps because they were assured of the feasts that awaited them when they had toured the town. The "waits"—the bands of carollers who stood in the street outside windows agleam with Christmas cheer blazing within the homes—were descended from the troubadours. The "mumming" of the Yuletide was also an early feature of Christmas festivity, when the poor blackened and painted their faces and visited among their friends, chanted carols while the nobility, masquerading as emperors and princes swooped down upon the homes of their friends, who frequently refused them entrance until they had sung a group of carols.

In the French language the word "carole" means "to dance in a ring" and in the dim, distant past carols were connected with dancing. It is told how the Cathedral of Seville thrice yearly held a ceremony in which a religious dance was combined with carol singing by the choir. Attired in old Spanish costumes and equipped with castanets, the carollers chanting to joyous exercises. Among the quaint old carols were some that reminds one of negro spirituals so popular today—one known as "Dives and Lazarus," which runs in this fashion:

"Rise up, rise up, Brother Lazarus,
And come along with me.
There's a place in heaven prepared for thee
To sit upon an angel's knee."

A Legend of Carols.

A pretty story has been written regarding the birth of the Christmas carol more than seven centuries ago: "A wave of heresy was sweeping Italy, and St. Francis of Assisi was endeavoring to combat its spread. Therefore, in the little Village of Grecia, he caused to be built on Christmas Eve a reproduction of the scene in the Bethlehem stable. There were the manger, the ox, the ass. All the properties of the stable were set up in the tiny church. He called the community together, and men, women and children came thronging to the church, where they joined in singing hymns. All night the singing went on, while tapers burned, and when it was over the Christmas carol and the Christmas mystery play had been given to the world."

Ancient Christmas carols, which remind one of a ballad telling a story that are still popular, include the famous "Good King Wences'as," "I Saw Three Ships Come Sailing In," "The Cherry Tree Carol" and "The Holly and the Ivy." Today the carols sung on Christmas Eve, retelling the story of the Christ-Child's birth, are listed also as hymns, and what would the Yuletide be without the singing of "Nowell," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "Silent Night, Holy Night" and the matchless "O Little Town of Bethlehem?"

OLD FOLK SONGS STILL POPULAR

Negro Spirituals, Reflecting Slave Plantation Days, Are Revived.

Favorites among songs today are melodies that had their origin in the Sunny South on the old negro plantations. Over the radio and from the phonograph we hear songs that recall old slave days, while a popular number to many an entertainment is the singing of a group of negro spirituals. Colored minstrels alone are not the only singers of these ancient "spirituals," but many a concert tenor includes an old plantation song in his program. Negro folk-songs, in the very beginning were sung in beautiful harmonies. Attached to their origin there is a story of simplicity when the slaves, working in the cotton fields or gathering for "prayer meeting," composed the songs and sang them. Unwritten, these "spirituals" were handed down by ear from group to group and generation to generation.

Spirituals Quaint and Poetical.

Musicians declare that in the world of music there is nothing to compare with the melodies of the untaught negroes, and in the effort to write and publish these today a difficulty is experienced in expressing in notation the feeling of the strange rhymes, the weird tones of the chords and the sliding, slurring melodies. Among the best known of negro "spirituals" the old favorite "Sing Low, Sweet Chariot," expresses the religious life of the singers, and is both quaint and poetical.

Irresistible Appeal in Folk-Songs.

Folk-songs have a fashion of making an irresistible appeal, whether they be of Irish, Russian, Ukrainian or Polish. Perhaps the most colorful music that within recent years has been introduced into Canada are the folk-songs of Ukraine, which are sung in native costume, picturesque and in harmony with the rich song gifts given expression. Fascinating stories lie hidden behind many of the folksongs, while Songs of Nativity, sung at Christmas as Canadians sing carols, are pregnant with legend and beauty of poetical thought.

In the Never-Never lands of Australia the natives spend the entire Christmas week in hunting. Mounted on kangaroos and accompanied by packs of wombats, they pursue the duck-billed platypus, who seeks safety in the upper branches of the nearest gum tree. When captured, the aborigines extract the quack from their quarry, this being highly esteemed on account of its musical quality.

What Grandfather Missed At Christmas

By William Edgar.

Sitting in the Peterborough home of his son or daughter, watching his little grandchildren as they talk, in eager anticipation of the joys so near at hand, what memories, grave and gay, pass through the mind of the veteran as he travels on wings of thought through the intervening years!

For those who have passed out of the days of youth, Christmas brings some sadness with its joy; but what would life be without the memory of old homes and friends and good times? The glow of the fire on the hearth on Christmas Eve is fed quite as much by the memory of other Christmases as by the logs piled on the andirons.

The colors that are rude and repellent close at hand are mellow tints when viewed from a distance, and grandfather, looking back down the long vista of past years, forgets the hardships of farm labor in Smith or Monaghan, thinks no more of the cold, trying days in the woodlot, as he lovingly recalls the days of his fervent youth.

Thinking of these Christmases of long ago, grandfather misses other things besides those loved ones who sleep now in peace in Little Lake Cemetery. He finds city life, in steadily increasing centres of population, and the harsh stark materialism of the twentieth century pressing hard on the remnants of Christmas observance that are still with us surviving the onslaughts of time and social change. Never at any other time did men and women seek so avidly to find happiness in pleasure and the gratification of their wishes, and probably never at any other time has happiness so often eluded the hands so eagerly stretched out to grasp it.

Manufactured Joy.

Except in the country where the changes are much less marked than in the towns, he finds the Christmas joys and cheer ready made, and the product of big business. He contrasts this with the Christmas of the homestead, from which his father sallied through snow to the bush to cut down the tree for the home, where all those dainty delicious pies were home made, are where the features of the festival in the home were the results of the labor of the home.

"Folks today," he says, "have lost the habit of having a good time when thrown on their own resources. Men and women are now more self-conscious, and more readily attracted by the loud and the large." And he is right.

Having a good time is a habit. If you are waiting for great things to happen—if you belittle simple home joys—if you have not thought it worth while to undertake festivities because you can't do things in elegant style, it is quite likely that the spirit of the occasion has passed you by. And the spirit of the occasion does seem to pass by many homes, where the holiday has become an unceasing round of social functions, late nights, and headaches and bad temper on succeeding days. Life in overheated homes and apartments, Christmas entertainment in stuffy dance halls and theatres cannot possibly leave behind the sweet memories that even yet stir the old man's heart and have made Christmas for him a hallowed and beautiful reminiscence.

Away from Nature.

Men and women are too far from Nature to get the most out of Nature, says the ancient sage. Once again he is right. Even the most unreflective of us who goes instinctively back to Nature for sport and health on his holiday, deep down in his unconscious being absorbs more than bodily health from the process: he looks upon wider horizons; he sees fairer colors; he is silent in the hush of the forest; he hears, though he knows it not, the voice of the Ancient Mother and beauty walks by his side.

Nature and Home.

Grandfather's Christmas memories cluster round these two. Nature and Home; visions of the tree erected against the back door of the silent sentinels in the bush each with its frosted fairy tracery, and every twig with its snowy gem. He hears again the jingling sleigh bells, the merry quip of visitors, sees faces reddened by the cool, crisp atmosphere, become redder still as they enter the warm room where the table is set—loaded with good things; he recalls Yule-tide times of joviality, of kindness and good cheer, of brotherhood and innocent pleasures. Gone are these days. Progress has elbowed them to one side and, as he sees their present substitutes he exclaims with Wordsworth:

"Hail ancient manners sure defence,
Where they survive of wholesome laws."

Also he misses the restful feeling that was once well nigh universal during the Yuletide season. Christmas was then a truce of God in the battle for material existence. Increased buying power has hastened and intensified the commercialization of the season and has increased instead of diminished the competitive effort.

Overwork at Christmas.

Nor is that all. He sees another dark side to the picture.

Christmas buying overcrowds the stores. Hundreds of thousands of salesmen and saleswomen are physically injured by the Christmas rush. For several weeks all of those connected with the retail side of the stores are overworked and do not recover their mental or physical balance for several weeks after Christmas Day. The amount of actual physical suffering caused by Christmas buying is one of the darker sides that is often overlooked.

Youthful Spirit Lost.

Another reason why our forefathers got more real fun out of Christmas was that they were not afraid to become young in spirit again and to exercise the imagination that had been so vivid in childhood.

Imagination is the faculty that makes man better than an efficiency machine. Young and old gave free rein to this endowment in telling and retelling the magic stories that have come down to us from the childhood of the race, stories of the fairies and elves, of giants and ogres, and those products of later, but still far-off times, of Santa Claus, Rip Van Winkle, Ali Baba, and all that wonderful company of good and not so good spirits who exploits delighted generations. What does it matter if they were only legends, and were only half-believed by their hearers? Legends they were, but they were also truth—facts clothed in fine raiment; lessons of life enclosed in a candied pill.

Fairies Gone.

The modern child, sophisticated and incredulous, lifts his eyebrows when grandfather talks of Santa Claus, and unless he is very young is slightly resentful of an attempt to put a long exploded fiction over him.

NURSERY RHYME

Sing a song of Christmas,
A pocketful of bills.
Four-and-twenty merchants
Tinkling on their tills.
When the tills were opened
They all began to cry,
"We'll be lucky fellows if We're paid before July."
—Stephen Moon, in "Goblin."

SEASONAL CHEER

It's Christmas in China, it's Christmas in Spain,
It's Christmas for Turkoman, Dervish and Dane.
It's Christmas in Greenland, in clean and obscene land,
It's Christmas all over from Dover to Maine.

It's Christmas in Cuba and also Bermuda
At Lido, Toledo, St. Paul and St. James.
It's Christmas in Paraguay, Uruguay, fire away;
We've got an atlas that's chock full of names.

This concept is cheering when Christmas bills, leering,
Dismay the gift shopper, and fill him with woe.
For out of the masses of all sorts and classes
You only buy presents for those whom you know.
Stephen Moon, in "Goblin."

A CHRISTMAS TOAST

Pity the cop on the corner,
Faithfully guarding his post,
Freezing his feet in the snow and the slush,
Calmly directing the holiday rush.
Gentlemen, drink to my toast:
Here's to the cop on the corner.

Here's to the cop on the corner,
Patiently guiding the host,
Coat pockets bulging with mellow cigars,
Twentys and tens from the automocars
. . . .
Gentlemen, drink to my toast:
Pity the cop on the corner!
—Paul Ernst.

OLD CUSTOMS ARE OBSERVED AT CHRISTMAS

Many Have Origin in Celebrations of Heathen Peoples.

DATE IN DISPUTE

Dec. 25 Chosen to Give Substitute for Pagan Holiday of Same Season.

Most authorities on the subject are agreed that December 25th is not the anniversary of the birth of our Savior. January 1st, January 6th, March 29th, May 20th and September 29 have been variously assigned as much more probable dates.

But from time immemorial the period of the winter solstice has been a season of festivity and merriment. The ecclesiastical authorities in every country found that toward the close of the year their followers indulged in carnivals, dangerously reminiscent of the old Roman Saturnalia, the Druid mistletoe festivals, or the pagan feasts of Odin and Thor. The old habits were too strongly entrenched to be easily eradicated, but a way out was found when with the ready assimilation of the primitive church, the season was taken out of its pagan setting and incorporated among the Church observances.

Pre-eminent over all other Christmas rites was the burning of the Yule log, a relic of Scandinavian heathendom The tree was selected on Candlemas Day, and after cutting and trimming was dragged (never carted) by a large number of tenants and serfs to the castle. Conformity to traditional usage meant a great deal to our untutored forefathers. All who assisted in the transportation of the fuel from forest to hearth were thereby rendered immune from the evil spells of wizards. Each Christmas log was kindled from a small piece of the previous year's tree, specially kept for the purpose. This little portion of wood was carefully guarded. Lying in a corner, its magic influence counteracted the machinations of His Satanic Majesty, and a small chip thrown into the fire was sufficient to quell the most violent tempest.

In Devonshire, England, a county which is the home of many quaint customs, the Yule log, known locally as the Ashton faggot was invariably an ash tree with nine bands. The rules of Devonshire hospitality ordained that as each band burst with the heat, the master of the house had to provide a fresh supply of liquor to the assembly. Another Devenshire custom—that of sprinkling the apple trees—is not yet extinct. For centuries, the Devonshire farmer has entertained his servants and friends to Christmas repast of hot cakes and cider after which the company adjourned to the orchard. A cake was solemnly placed in the fork of the principal apple tree and a quantity of cider thrown over it. The men discharged their pistols or fowling pieces, and the women sang a rhyme entreating the trees to be fruitful in the coming year.

Woe betide the unfortunate cook in castle or grange who failed to have the "hackin," or great sausage prepared for daybreak of Christmas morning! The penalty was to be delivered into the hands of a pair of none too gentle youths who hustled her through the village market place, until she had repented of her negligence.

A typically British Christmas dish, the boar's head, had its origin amid the forests of ancient Britain, in the Druid sacrifices of a wild boar to Freya, goddess of peace and plenty. No Christmas dinner, to a family of any pretensions to gentility, would have been complete with out the procession in which the center was the boar's head, bedecked with laurel and rosemary, and having in its mouth a lemon, the Druid symbol of plenty, preceded by trumpeters and carol singers and followed by huntsmen, carrying their boar spears or drawn falchions.

The boar's head invariably figured in the Christmas dinners of Queen Victoria, who insisted in the scrupulous observance of all the traditional ceremonies. In accordance with an old custom this is the principal dish on the Christmas table, at Queen's College, Oxford, and commemorates the legendary feat of a former collegian, who, when attacked by a wild boar, killed it by thrusting a copy of Aristitle down its throat.

The Lord of Misrule or as he was often called, the Abbot of Unreason, was a very important Christmas functionary. Kings, lords and commons rendered him implicit obedience during the twelve days of Christmas. At first the reign of the Lord of Misrule was confined to the Court, but in course of time the practice became so popular that every castle or township had its own elected master of the revels. Proceedings, usually commenced by this harmless despot summoning his "vassals" to whom he made a quaint speech, absolving the entire community from the exercise of their reason for the time being. As was almost inevitable, in these boisterous times, the revels too often degenerated into license and the custom was finally abolished by Act of Parliament.

Later, during the fierce heat of the religious struggles of the seventeenth century attempts were made to uproot entirely all the long prevailing Christmas customs and to make the day as much as possible like an ordinary working day. But the people clung for a long time to the old beliefs and superstitions. They believed that horses and cattle on Christmas eve at midnight were given for one hour the gift of human speech: that the bees sang "Gloria" at the same time: that fairies lost their power to charm; and that water turned into wine on the hallowed eve. Scientific investigation proved too strong for the old superstitions but fondness for the old festival was too powerful to be legislated out of existence and Christmas is still the outstanding season of remembrance in all parts of the Christian world.

PLUM PUDDING BRITISH ALONE

Attempts to Popularize Dish Among French Have Failed.

Plum-pudding, a standard delicacy on British Christmas dinner-tables, never succeeded in gaining favor among the French either in Europe or in this country, partly, no doubt, because French patriotism of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries could not be reconciled with fondness for a typically English dish, but more largely because the heavy, rich fare ill consorted with the more dainty and fastidious taste prevailing in France. French cooks, in fact, at one time affected to regard plum-pudding as a barbarous invention of the barbarous islanders.

On the other hand, the English dish suffered at the hands of its friends in France. Louis the Eighteenth of France during his years of exile in England acquired an inordinate liking for plum-pudding, and insisted on having it served on the table at every Christmas dinner after his return to France. In his enthusiasm for the dish he had introduced, he could not bear the thought of any portion going to waste, consequently he gave orders that what was left of it on the royal table had to be eaten by the servants on the following day—a method which, we may be sure, added neither to the popularity of the king, nor the English plum-pudding.

It is related of one of Louis' predecessors, Henry the Fourth, whome the English admired above all other French monarchs, that being anxious to pay a compliment to the English ambassador, he ordered a grand plum-pudding to be included in the menu for the Christmas dinner. The utmost attention was bestowed upon its preparation, and nothing was omitted to make the plum-pudding a complete success—except the cloth in which it ought to have been boiled. The consequence was that instead of presenting the compactness and solidity, essential to its character, it was served up like soup in immense tureens, and bore a close resemblance to stewed peas. The ambassdaor could scarcely repress his astonishment, but with the good breeding and ready lying of a courtier, he declared it was excellent.

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES ARE LIFE-SAVERS IN MODERN HOME

Work Made Easy When Kitchen Has Power To Do Work.

LAUNDRY, TOO.

Washing and Cooking and Cleaning Need Be Bugbears No Longer.

Fortunate indeed is the housewife who is living in this electrical age. The grill, the percolater and the toaster have made life easy in preparing breakfast and luncheon for, although mother is without a maid or help in the kitchen, she need seldom leave the family group during the meal. Even a light dinner may be prepared at the table with the little wizard, electricity, at the right hand of the housewife.

Menus that will make housework easy in the electric-equipped home may include the following:

Breakfast: Fruit, toast, bacon and eggs, waffles, coffee.

Luncheon: Creamed chicken, warmed-over vegetables, fruit cup, tea or Welsh rarebit, toasted muffins, lemon snow chocolate.

Electric Sweepers.

There are many tasks the electric sweeper is capable of performing, and if they are only used to clean the rugs they are loafing on the job. There are many attachments available and any of them are suitable Christmas gifts that the housewife will appreciate the year around.

The hose will suck up the rim of dust and soot which may have accumulated through the winter on the picture mouldings, tops of windows and door frames. Attachments can be had to clean the upholstering on the furniture, and the dust off the walls. They will even clean the fur coats, the velvets, the cloth suits and gowns.

Laundry Electrified.

A perfect modern laundry is completely electrified. The equipment calls for electric washing machine, ironer, iron, drier or fan, either of which is necessary to dry clothes indoors, when the weather is bad.

The electrical shops of this city are filled at this time with all the latest conveniences in time-saving and labor devices for the present day housewife. She will appreciate a Christmas of this kind more than anything else for it will aid her in the housework throughout the year, for when night comes she will not be stooped with fatigue and the mist of weariness will not cloud her eyes.

There's no need to go out of town for your gifts THIS Christmas. Give your friend the home-town news for a year—a real Christmas gift.

Druggist Gave Her Very Good Advice

Miss Ruth Horowtiz, Bronx, N. Y., writes: "Having been troubled with indigestion caused by constipation for several months, my druggist advised a purely vegetable laxative pill.

I can safely say that since I am taking them, and only one each night, I feel like myself again and can eat most anything without fear of an attack."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. All druggists—25c and 75c red pkge.

Mother's Surprise

It was the night before Christmas and all through the house not a creature was stirring, except mother. She was accustomed to stirring long after the family had gone to bed. Tonight, despite the realization that it was Christmas Eve she was stooped with fatigue. She had trimmed the tree with father. She had found such irksome tasks as finishing the weekly ironing, mending stockings, preparing for the morrow, a part of the duty that must be completed before she dare seek her own bed.

All week the laundering had dragged, and memories of the Monday's wash, executed in the basement, bending over the set of tubs were still with her. There were scars on her hands that told of vigorous scrubbing on the wash board and the skin had become hard on account of being so long in hot and cold water.

In the house across the street the lights had been dimmed for several hours. Her friend who had an electric washer had carefully laundered her clothes and put them away in the dresser drawers early in the week. Mother had slipped across the street for a few moments on Monday morning and watched her neighbor turn the switch to the motor washer in which she placed the weekly wash. Then, during the fifteen minutes that the clothes swished and swirled in the hot suds she had washed the breakfast dishes and helped the children off to school.

Mother had enjoyed watching the clothes go through the electric wringer into the bluing water. Then the roller swung into another position speedily and without the expenditure of woman's energy the clothes, snowy white from the bluing water, were wrung dry enough to hang on the lines.

What a lucky woman mother thought her neighbor was, but she feared to suggest such a thing to her husband, for he might just laugh at her.

In that midnight hour with her body drooping from weariness that was almost unbearable, and the loneliness of the house that Christmas Eve made mother ask if there were any Santa Claus.

Fifteen minutes later as she passed the living room on her way to her bedroom she wondered curiously what the bulky object, partially hidden in the shade of the branches of the evergreen tree was. She thought it was Benny's bob-sleigh, but she had thought father hid it nearer the window.

In the morning mother shared the triumphal attack on the Christmas tree with her four young hopefuls. There she found an electric washer, all shiny and perfect with its gleaming roller.

"Mother, that is my Christmas gift to you."

"Yes, dear, I know there now is a Santa Claus," said mother.

Peterboro's electrical dealers have a wonderful assortment of electrical washers on display and what better Xmas gift could be given to mother than one of the washers found at Grant and Thorpe's, Miller-Powell Company or F. R. J. MacPherson's.

In Patagonia the Wifflets, a pigmy race of the negroid type, celebrate Christmas Day by taking their annual bath.

The Trappist Brothers have, from time immemorial, devoted Christmas Day to imparting to their cheese that pungent odour for which it is so justly famed. At the conclusion of this solemn rite, the windows and doors of the monastery are flung open, and the brethren wish each other a Merry Christmas.

Amongst the blond Eskimos, the Christmas season is given over to outdoor sports. Their big racing event is the Aurora Sweepstakes in which walruses (ridden by trained penguins) take the place of horses. The purse, consisting of ten gum-drops, attracts entries from all over the Arctic Circle. The course, which is twice around the North Pole, was covered last year in the remarkable time of six months and three days flat.

A table of some kind, being always handy in the home, is an appreciated gift.

Centuries ago Christmas Day in China was known as "Pullee-Pullee Day." On this date nobles and coolies alike thronged the streets of Pekin, tugging impartially at each others' pig-tails. This quaint custom was prohibited by imperial edict in the year 1403, when an intoxicated mandarin gave the Emperor's pig-tail so hearty a jerk that the queue came off in his hand.

MANY BODIES RECOVERED TO-DAY FROM RUINS OF OLD ORPHANAGE; FIREMEN EXPECT TO FIND MORE

Most of Victims Found Met Death By Suffocation, Not Flames.

RESCUERS HEROIC.

Only Two of Little Ones Yet Identified—Sister Gave Alarm of Fire.

QUEBEC, December 15. Canadian Press. — Firemen and other rescue workers to-day searching the ruins of the St. Charles Hospice had found up to 2 p.m., the bodies of fourteen little tots, victims of last night's disastrous fire. With seventeen bodies recovered during the night this brought the death list to thirty-one. According to an estimate made by the Sisters connected with the institution there are still twenty-three mising.

QUEBEC, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Of the 24 young children, all girls, and the 18-year-old girl, who are known to have lost their lives in last night's tragic fire at the Hospice St. Charles, eleven had been positively identified by parents or relatives at noon to-day, while two others had been identified, but not definitely, and the remaining twelve bodies had not been claimed. Eight bodies were taken from the ruins to-day. According to Sister St. Amie and Marie Des Anges of the Good Shepherd Order, who visited the morgue shortly before noon to identify the bodies, thirty-one children remain unaccounted for. A number of these, the sisters expect, are probably being cared for by relatives or friends in various parts of the city, though it is feared that a later inspection of the ruined hospice will bring further bodies to light. Buried under ice and debris, many bodies may lie, and the complete death-toll may not be known for a day or two.

The fire, which swept with devastating suddenness through the east wing of the structure, found the children and nuns in bed. Eighteen bodies were recovered a few hours after the structure had been destroyed, and when the ruins cooled, the firemen early to-day found additional bodies.

Few of the bodies showed signs of having been burned. The children, it is believed, were suffocated in their mad endeavor to reach safety. Most of the children are orphans and had been asleep for nearly three hours when the flames began to sweep the old wing of the institution. So rapidly did the flames spread that despite every effort by the nuns little could be done to rescue the poor youngsters, many of whom were so overcome by sleep that they could hardly have realized what was going on.

The scene was one of the most heartrending ever witnessed in this city. Rescuers fearlessly entered the burning building and returned with children still half asleep and not fully aware of the danger in which they had been. Many children jumped from the windows and the elder children came forth from the burning hospice dragging younger children along with them.

All last night and this morning the local morgue was a pitiful sight. The little bodies were laid on slabs, and frantic mothers were there in hundreds to try to identify the children. Only two children had been identified up to eight o'clock this morning. One was believed to be the daughter of Mrs. Albert Racine, of Canardiere Road, and another is thought to be the daughter of Mrs. Marcoux, but the mother's address is unknown.

Still 20 Missing.

There are still about twenty of the 371 children who were living at the institute missing, and searches are being continued all to-day among the ruins of the old wing of the building in the hope of finding them.

Rose Anna Goudreault, seventeen, employee in charge of the babies' ward, the daughter of Mrs. Albert Racine, and the daughter of Mrs. Marvoux were three victims of last night's fire at St. Charles Hospice that had been identified this morning.

Until the various places where the children were taken for refuge during the fire were carefully checked up and the ruins searched, it was impossible to estimate how high the death list would be, but it was thought there were twenty children missing of the 371 that were in the building.

The body of a little girl of about eight years was found this morning on the third floor of the ruined wing of the Hospice St. Charles. The little corpse was frozen with cold and death appeared to have been due to asphyxiation.

The cause of the fire is unknown. According to a Nun who was stationed in the older part of the building, shortly before half-past ten last night there was an odor of smoke

Lindbergh's Flight Will Aid Aviation

NEW YORK, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's flight from Washington to Mexico City was hailed here yesterday as another valuable contribution to the progress of aviation and international goodwill and co-operation.

Informed that Lindbergh had landed safely at his goal, Clarence D. Chamberlain, who flew from New York to Germany with Charles A. Levine last June, said:

"That's a very nice job, and I'm mighty glad Lindbergh made it. Such flights as this help aviation along very much."

Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Guggenheim Fund for the promotion of aeronautics, under whose auspices Lindbergh made a 22,350 mile countryside tour, said:

"I am naturally perfectly delighted at the news of Colonel Lindbergh's latest grand achievement. By his splendid personal efforts he has demonstrated once more the reliability of aircraft, and has again forcefully called the world's attention to the future possibilities of international air travel.

35 SEEK JOBS AT FREE RINKS

Aldermen Receive Large Number of Applications For Positions.

HYDRANT DISCUSSED.

Thirty-five applications for positions of caretakers of the municipal skating rinks and toboggan slide startled the members of the Railways and Parks Committee last night, and Chairman Ald. Greene was given the task of picking out five suitable men from them for the positions. Nineteen of those who applied asked $15 a week, two were willing to work for $10, one for $12, two for $14, two for $16, and two for $18, while seven quoted no price.

It had been intended to appoint a caretaker for the rink at Inverlea but as there is no building it was decided to put this under the supervision of the Board of Works.

A. W. Wray offered to sell the foundation and brick wall of the old mattress factory on the James Stevenson Park property to the city for $250. Some time ago the committee asked Mr. Wray what price he would place on this part of the building, considering that it might be possible to make it into a club-house with lavatories and dressing-rooms. He asked $1,000, and was instructed to remove his building. Now the committee has other plans, with which the building in its present site will interfere, and therefore decided last night not to accept the offer.

Mr. Wray was relieved, however, of rent for the property for December as the building has not been used for manufacturing purposes during the month.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee was visited by N. McMillan and J. W. Anderson of the C.P.R., and C. H. Rogers of the Peterborough Canoe Company with regard to the hydrant wanted on C.P.R. property to serve these firms and the Duffus garage.

The Mayor pointed out that an agreement submitted by the C.P.R. was not acceptable to the city because all other hydrants on private property are paid for by the owners and the city could not pay for this one without creating a bad precedent.

Mr. Rogers answered that the fire hazard there is largely caused by the city dump along the river bank, which is burning most of the time, and that therefore the city has some responsibility.

On the aldermen agreeing that the dump will be covered with ashes all winter and dumping stopped there in future, the delegation agreed to consider putting the matter through with the Utilities Commission in the usual way.

Report Is Denied Lines To Raise Rates

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Members of the North Atlantic Conference yesterday denied a local report that the Conference lines had agreed to raise in freight rates from Montreal and Saint John. It was stated that the report was contradictory to the facts, which go to prove that there is a reduction on many of the rates applying from Montreal and Saint John during the past season, and there is no single instance of an increased rate.

Delegates Clash At Tariff Hearing

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Cotton companies clashed before the tariff board yesterday. The Wabasso Cotton Company of Three Rivers asked that yarns in counts 40 and finer be granted tariff protection. As opposed, the Canadian Spool and Cotton Company of Montreal, makers of thread, asked to be allowed to import free, as in the past thirty years, cotton yarns, single strand in counts 40 and finer for use in the manufacture of thread.

Briefs were presented on both sides mostly of a statistical nature but no arguments of length developed. The British Association entered a brief protesting against any increase in cotton tariffs.

HOUSE OF LORDS VOTE APPROVAL OF PRAYER BOOK

Decisive Vote in Favor of Revision Surprise to Some.

GALLERIES CROWDED.

Viscount Cave Believes New Book Will Be More Acceptable Than Old.

LONDON, December 15 (Canadian Press Cable). — The House of Lords last night voted approval of the revised Church of England prayer book by 241 to 88. The division, owing to the unusually large number of voters, occupied twenty minutes. Unprecedented congestion was experienced in the precincts of the House as the members and strangers dispersed.

The decisive vote in the House of Lords last night in favor of the new prayer book came as a surprise to members of the House of Commons and others who have taken a keen interest in the question. A majority was expected, but not one so overwhelming as was returned. It was clear when Right Hon. Viscount Cave, Lord Chancellor, first collected the voices" that the "contents," which is the name given to the "ayes" in the Upper House, were in the majority, but the difference between the volume of the two criers did not seem large.

Not since the days of the Parliament Act have the crimson benches been so crowded. Everywhere there were peers and privy councillors Peeresses occupied the galleries which were full to overflowing and many women stood. One elderly peeress took an apparently precarious seat on the canopy over the throne.

Would Lay Foundation.

When the debate on the bill was resumed yesterday the Bishop of Durham said he foresaw that if Parliament rejected the book and the Church of England acquiesced, injury to re-union would be irreparable, but if the book were legalized, the foundations would be laid for restoration of discipline in the Church.

Lord Cushendun entirely disagreed with the Bishop of Durham's view, contending there would be bitter strife in every parish in the country for the new book restored doctrines which it was the main purpose of the reformation to repudiate. Its adoption would kill all hopes of a reunion of the churches.

Will Be More Acceptable.

Right Hon. Viscount Cave, Lord Chancellor, suggested that too much was being made of the differences between the two books and too little of their essential agreement. He believed that when people became familiarized with the new book, it would be more acceptable than the old, for words more congruous with our times have been substituted for incongruities. No word or phrase in the new book conflicted with the Protestant faith.

The Bishop of Norwich described the measure as an extravagant use of an enabling Act. The revision was an ecclesiastical movement with slender roots among the laity, and he advised the Church Assembly not to proceed on this very slender authority until the Assembly had a better hold on the country. If they put their heads together they could easily concert a less contentious book.

The Archbishop of York was the concluding speaker. He argued that the unity of the bishops in favor of the new book was most notable, and that this unity was an augury of new times approaching for the Church. He quoted Non-Conformist leaders who, he alleged, were anxious that the measure should pass, for if the Bill were rejected the Church would waste its energy in internal strife, which would divert it from its main system in the national life.

When the result of the voting was announced by the Lord Chancellor from the Woolsack, it was received in customary silence. The House then adjourned.

PROVINCE WILLING TO PAY PART OF COST OF LABORATORY HERE; CITY TO ASSUME OTHER EXPENSE

Visit of Delegation to Toronto Yesterday Results in Agreement.

POINTED ARGUMENTS.

Value of Laboratory To Large District Stressed By All Speakers.

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — Discussion yesterday between members of the deputation conveying the protests of their home city against the contemplated closing of the Provincial Laboratory in Peterborough and the Provincial Minister of Health, the Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, with the Deputy Minister of Health, Dr. Bell, bore fruit in the shape of a compromise arrangement which leaves open a way for the retention by Peterborough of the institution whose existence was threatened by the centralizing policy of the Ministry.

The via media proposes the appointment of a part time medical officer to take charge of the institution at a salary of $1,200 per annum, and of a technician working full time on a salary of $1,000 per annum. These salaries are to be paid by the Department of Health, which agrees to make a further annual grant of $800 for supplies with the understanding that any expenses incurred beyond this figure will be borne by the municipality. A verbal agreement to this effect was given last evening and final confirmation of the arrangement now awaits the signature on a written undertaking of the Mayor on behalf of the city. The effect of this agreement will be to cut in half the expenditure of the Ministry of Health on the Provincial Laboratory in Peterborough.

The deputation which obtained this important concession from Dr. Godfrey comprised W. H. Bradburn, member for Peterborough City in the Provincial Legislature of Ontario, Dr. W. T. Holloway, Mayor of Peterborough, Dr. G. Raymore Scott, Dr. F. P. McNulty and Dr. H. M. Yelland. James Dutton, who laid some very convincing arguments before the Minister in the forenoon was unable to be present at the afternoon conference.

In accordance with Dr. Godfrey's decision that the deliberations were to be conducted in private, the press was excluded from the morning session, the Minister promising to issue a statement after the matter had been finally disposed of.

Many reasons were urged upon the Minister of Health, in support of the endeavor to have the laboratory retained in Peterborough. It was pointed out that the institution was becoming increasingly useful to the community and that recognition of its value was constantly growing. Along with the two hospitals it served a large constituency and on account of the geographical position of Peterborough, the deputation declared, a wide area outside the city enjoyed the benefits of the service rendered by the laboratory.

Dr. Holloway pointed out that it was unfair to close the laboratory now after the expenditure by the city of more than $6,000 in connection with it. The city had had the impression that the laboratory was to be located permanently in its midst.

Doctors Testify.

Eloquent testimony to the usefulness of the laboratory to their profession was set forth by the three Peterborough practitioners. Dr. Scott laid special stress on the rapidity with which analysis were secured. Dr. Godfrey then referred in very eulogistic terms to the high standard maintained by Peterborough physicians, which drew from Dr. McNulty a rejoinder to the effect that the laboratory had played no small part in helping to create that high standard.

All the milk used in the city, stated Mr. Dutton, was tested in the laboratory and in view of the fact that large quanities of milk were shipped from Peterborough to Toronto, he thought that the retention of the laboratory in Peterborough would be an additional safeguard to the health of the larger city. He maintained that the railway service between Toronto and Peterborough was not adequate to give efficient service as is now enjoyed by reason of the location of the laboratory in Peterborough. Doctors from districts outside the city could now bring in their specimens by car—which could not be done so readily if they had to travel all the way to Toronto. With regard to leaving the laboratory to be operated by the city, he considered that the expense entailed would cast an unfair burden on Peterborough.

Peterborough, continued Mr. Dutton, had gained considerable prestige on account of its choice as being the location of the laboratory. It had a large tourist population in the summer months. In reply to an objection from the Minister that the tourist attraction had not been fully exploited by Peterborough in the past, Mr. Dutton admitted that the city had not always put forth its fullest efforts in this direction, but declared that during the past two years the Council and local bodies had made great endeavors to attract summer visitors. Advertising had been used in great measure and Mr. Dutton emphasized that these labors had produced results. The tourist traffic had increased, and this fact consti-

Question of Rule Over Vilna Is Open

PARIS, Dec. 15.— Canadian Press.)— The technical state of war between Poland and Lithuania was abandoned at Geneva but questions pending between the two states remain unsettled, Premier Waldermaras of Lithuania declared in an interview last night.

"There is a long road yet to be travelled," he said, "before the situation between the two countries is clear."

The Lithuanian premier asserted that the decision of the League Council practically nullified the decision of the ambassadors' council which gave title to the city of Vilna to Poland after its seizure by Polish forces.

"Poland, in accepting the Geneva decision," said M. Waldemaras, "tacitly agreed that the question of sovereignty over Vilna is still open. Both countries are now to draw up a list of questions concerning every contention between the two countries and when they have been compared, a method of procedure will be adopted for future negotiations."

U.S. PLAN LARGE NAVAL PROGRAM

Congress Asked To Authorize Construction of Seventy-One War Vessels.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — Congress was asked by the administration yesterday to authorize the second largest naval building programme in the history of the nation. It proposes the ultimate construction, at a cost of approximately $725,000,000, of seventy-one war vessels, which would include 25 additional light cruisers, nine destroyer leaders, which are practically the equivalent of scout cruisers; 32 submarines and five aircraft carriers.

The plan was transmitted to Speaker Longworth by Secretary Wilbur, who said that he had been informed by the director of the budget that the "proposed legislation is not in conflict with the financial program of the president.

The naval secretary said that the new vessels would be constructed under the terms of the Washington Arms Treaty and that in the event of another naval arms conference, the president would be empowered, in his discretion, to suspend in whole or in part the proposed construction.

Within a few minutes after the program reached the speaker's office, Chairman Butler of the House Naval committee introduced a bill drafted by the navy department to put the program in legislative form.

The chairman declared that the navy in submitting the program had not specified any date for its completion and that until this was done, he personally would not vote for it.

At the navy department, however, it was made clear that the navy, once given the funds to proceed, intended to get the programme completely under way in five years.

Secretary Wilbur said that the average expenditure each year during that time would be about $130,000,000.

Nine Years To Build.

The secretary said that construction of the ships asked for would extend over a period of nine years as it would take four years to build the vessels laid down in the fifth year. It takes four years, he explained, to build an aircraft carrier, about four years to complete a cruiser, two years to finish a destroyer and three years for submarines.

In his communication to Speaker Longworth, the naval secretary said that while the estimated cost of the programme was "merely speculative," he estimtaed that a rough approximation of the cost would be as follows:

"Light cruisers $17,000,000 each, total $425,000,000; destroyer leaders $5,000,000 each, total $45,000,000; submarines $5,000,000 each, total $160,000,000; aircraft carlers $19,000,000 each, total $95,000,000. Total for programme $725,000,000.

Third Fire to Claim Many Young Lives

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — Canadian Press. — The fire at the Hospice St. Charles last night, is the third disaster to take toll of numerous young lives in Canada this year, bringing the number of child victims to about 120. The other two were the fire and panic at the Laurier Theatre, Montreal, January 9th, when 78 were killed, and the orphanage fire at Lac La Flonge, Sask, September 19th, when twenty children were burned to death. Other fires in Canada this year claimed upwards of forty lives.

HEROIC NURSE DIED BRINGING CHILDREN OUT

Never Returned From Fourth Trip To Dormitory of Tiny Charges.

STORY TOLD BY NUN.

Young Girl in Charge of Smallest Orphans Went Back After Warning.

QUEBEC, Dec. 15.— Canadian Press.)— Rose Anna Gaudreault, a young woman of seventeen years, who lost her life in the disastrous fire at the Hospice St. Charles last night, met her death on her fourth entry into the dormitory to rescue the youngest of the children in the institution, of whom she had charge.

A thrilling story of the heroism of the girl was related this morning by one of the Sisters of the institution who was on the second floor of the destroyed wing and who met Miss Gaudreault while rescue work was proceeding before the flames prevented the work being continued.

"A couple of minutes after the Reverend Mother had given the alarm that there was a fire, the Religious said, "I saw Miss Gaudreault coming down the steps from the third floor leading a group of six or seven young girls. She was carrying two younger ones. I took them from her and rushed to the fire escape at the rear and on my return to the second floor to see that all the children were out of my dormitory, I met here again with a similar group of children.

"As before I took them from her, but found the passage to the fire escape cut off. I had to put the children through a window and firemen on the ground caught them in nets. Continuing to work with Miss Gaudreault, I again returned to find her again carrying children who had been overcome by smoke. She was very sick herself and I told her it was certain death to go upstairs again as the flames were leaping around us as we spoke. As I spoke to her, I felt myself fainting and I rushed to a nearby window and jumped on to the snow."

The Nun did not see Miss Gaudreault again, but heard her mounting the stairs to go to the children on the third floor.

Aldermen Vote Against Closing Break in Pipe

Favor Taking Up Reported Connection of School to City Sewer With Monaghan Authorities Before Taking Drastic Action.

ANGER AT RUMORED MOVE OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES EXPRESSED BY MEMBERS OF BOARD OF WORKS

Vote on Matter is Close, Chairman Having To Cast Deciding Vote Against Proposal To Repair Break in Pipe—Long and Heated Discussion Takes Place.

It was necessary for Chairman Alderman Walter Stocker to cast the deciding vote in favor of conferring with the Council of the Township of North Monaghan about the reported connection of the new Confederation School to the city's outfall sewer. Four of the aldermen present at last night's Board of Works meeting were in favor of sending the city engineer's men down tomorrow to dig up the place where the sewer appears to have been tampered with and to repair any openings they found in the city's pipe. Four others favored the more conciliatory course of attending the meeting of North Monaghan Council today and discussing the matter.

The Aldermen were very much annoyed by the methods reported to have been used by the trustees or their employees. Everything done by the city in the matter, it was pointed out, had been done in a fair and above-board manner, and at the request of the North Monaghan people, who had asked for permission to make the connection and had been quoted a price, while an agreement was prepared to cover the matter.

The matter was introduced by Ald. Stocker. On Tuesday evening, he said, it was reported to him that the connection had been made. It was too late then to do anything, but in the morning he and some Board of Works employees had gone down and seen evidence that a tunnel had been driven under the road and a hole dug over the sewer so the connection could be made. His informant had told him that he had seen five lanterns at the place on Monday night. He had then reported the matter to Joseph Wearing, City Solicitor, and E. A. Peck, M.P., solicitor for the Township.

Street Commissioner Harry Evans declared his belief that the connection had been made. He had been told by one of the workmen that they had had trouble with water when they tried to do the work but that when they made the hole in the city's pipe the water ran away. Later it had come back, which was caused by the pumps. A four inch pipe had been used to make the connection.

If a pipe belonging to any other utility had been tapped in that manner, Ald. Stocker pointed out, a police court case would have resulted, and the city should take some action.

The City Solicitor suggested that the action might be taken as accepting the agreement offered by the city, but the Mayor remarked that the clause calling for the supervision of the City Engineer had not been complied with and the agreement was therefore broken.

May Fill Up Sewer

City Engineer R. H. Parsons brought up the possibility of the connection not being a proper one, pointing out that the soil in the district is sandy and gave trouble before and might be pouring down the sewer now.

Ald. McIntyre advocated repairing the city's pipe first thing in the morning. He would, he declared, throw the proposed agreement to the winds. This was emphatically supposted by Ald. Macdonald. "Everything here has been fair and above board," was Ald. Greene's contention.

Ald. Denne proposed referring the matter to the Provincial Health authorities to whom, he recalled, the Monaghan trustees had suggested appealing. The Mayor declared that the provincial authorities had no power under the act to make the city enter an agreement with the township.

Ald. Cotton asked if the township would make the agreement now to cover the connection. Ald. McIntyre

TRAGEDY MARKS SEASON'S CLOSE

Feared That Kamloops Has Gone To Bottom of Lake Superior.

NAVIGATION ENDED.

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — Unless the missing Canadian package freighter Kamloops is accounted for, the 1927 season of the Great Lakes, notably free from disasters, will have closed on a tragic note.

The locks Sault Ste. Marie were closed at midnight and all ships which cleared port before the dead line on Monday night when insurance was discontinued were reported safe in port, all but the Kamloops, last seen Dec. 6, the day before the Upper Lakes were whipped high by gales.

In the days that have intervened since the Kamloops moved into Superior from the Sault, a careful seach has been futile. In a final effort to get a trace of the missing freighter and its 22 officers and men, the Eagle Harbor coast guard to-day was working its way through the ice to search Keweenaw Point. If the Kamloops has dropped to the bottom of the lake, as shippers fear, it will be the first and only real disaster of the 1927 season on Lake Superior, known as the most treacherous of the Great Lakes. Several vessels were forced to send out "S.O.S." messages in the storm of last week and nearly 50 men were rescued by coast guard crews and others but there has been no serious loss of life.

COUNCIL TO MEET CITY'S COMMITTEE

Monaghan Authorities Had Nothing To Do With Sewer Connection.

A deputation from the City Council appeared before the North Monaghan Council at its meeting in the Court House this afternoon to consider the Confederation School sewer question. The Council said it had nothing to do with making the connection to the outfall sewer, and Reeve Lillico did not know the sewer was connected until told by City Clerk Armstrong last night.

As the Council had a lot of business to transact it being the last meeting of the year, the question will be discussed at the Fire, Water and Light committee meeting of the City Council when the Monaghan Council will be present.

35 CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH AS QUEBEC ORPHANAGE BURNS; HUNDREDS RESCUED BY FIREMEN

Screams of Trapped Victims Mingle With Roar of Flames.

FLAMES SPREAD QUICKLY.

Fire Works Into Dormitory From Cellar Before Alarm is Given.

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Between 35 and 50 children, ranging from 5 to 16 years of age, are believed to have lost their lives when fire swept suddenly and devastatingly through the Hospice Saint Charles late last night.

Five hundred children and 40 nuns were in the four-storey stone-faced building when fire burst out in a dormitory on the second floor. It was believed to have originated in the basement and to have eaten its way to the second floor before discovery.

In a short time the entire building was a mass of flames and doomed to destruction. Efforts of firemen, policemen and the Grey Nuns who conducted an orphanage in the building were directed toward rescue work. A dreadful scene ensued.

So sudden was the disaster that early this morning fire and police officials had not completed a check. A score of bodies were known to have been recovered and a desperate attempt to locate others that might be in the smouldering ruins of the ancient building, was underway this morning, with volunteers combining with other forces in the work.

An unknown number of injured were removed to hospitals. Here again no check had been completed early this morning. Officials of the institutions merely stating that the number was large.

Ladders were placed on every side of the building and firemen and policemen carried many children to safety in their arms.

Mingled with the roar of the flames were the screams of the frightened and injured children and those trapped within the structure.

Rescue workers made repeated trips at great personal danger into the dormitories rescuing as many children as possible before being driven forth by the flames.

"The men ran into the building and each groped in the darkness to find the children in their beds," a policeman, his face blackened by the smoke, said. "We picked up as many as we could carry and ran outside, to return into the building again and get more. We did this several times before the fierce flames and fallen sections of the roofs and walls prevented us from rescuing any more."

The building which houses the orphanage was an old one, having been built in 1832 for the use of sailors.

The fire was discovered by Sister Ste. Therese, who noticed smoke in the adjoining corridor and sounded the alarm among the children and other occupants of the institution. In addition to orphans, the inmates of the building included other children placed there by their parents for education.

The parents of these children were tragic spectators of the rescue work and the later search for bodies.

Children were carried from the building protected by shawls and clothing loaned by spectators, to the building facing the destroyed structure. Here parents came and reclaimed those who had been rescued.

Firemen at first reported that all the inmates of the institution had been saved, but this was later found to be incorrect, when examination was made of one of the dormitories.

In this section of the building 16 bodies were found, 15 children and one woman. The bodies were transported to the morgue. In most cases death was due to asphyxiation. Other children were found in a neighboring room and most of them were suffering from the effects of smoke. The latter were immediately taken to the hospitals of the city.

Officials expressed the opinion this morning that other bodies would be recovered in addition to the sixteen already at the morgue.

MANY KILLED DURING RIOTS IN CANTON CITY

Estimated 5,000 Lose Lives in Battle With Regular Troops.

DISORERS CONTINUE.

Latest Reports State Police Headquarters Not Yet Recaptured.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Due to the interruption of communications from Canton as a result of disorders attendant on its seizure by radicals and recapture by Nationalists, details of the engagement were meagre yesterday.

However, despatches from Canton to various sources indicate that the death toll in Tuesday night's Nationalist coup, which were at first stated as probably not exceeding 4,000, will reach 5,000 at least.

Although Nationalist authority has been re-established, police headquarters had not yet been taken at last reports. Chinese Reds with a few Russians were mantaining a determined stand there.

Disorders continued, but were considerably lessened. Numerous incendiary fires were burning. An unknown number of Reds have been executed.

Japanese despatches yesterday state that dawn revealed countless dead bodies littering the streets. They also state that Labor union headquarters was razed and innumerable shops looted. Those few that remained untouched were heavily barricaded. A thousand houses were burned, according to the Japanese despatches.

Foreigners Safe.

While the danger to foreigners is believed to have passed, United States naval authorities have given permission to Americans whose homes were in the suburbs of the Chinese city to return, and armed parties have been withdrawn from shore to their ships. A heavy concentration of foreigners of many nationalities remains in the foreign section.

With the sudden suppression of the disorders in Canton, Nationalist officials here were unanimous in their claim that there is no more danger of a further Red uprising. Military officers declared that the Nationalists are amply prepared to prevent a recurrence.

Would Expel Communism.

The Nanking Nationalists have launched a campaign against alleged Russian influence in Chinese affairs. Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Nationalist party, yesterday reiterated a statement of Tuesday night condemning the Soviets. He declared yesterday that "Soviet consulates throughout China have been serving as hotbeds of Communistic propaganda, necessitating immediate severance of diplomatic relations between China and Moscow. Otherwise Communism is bound to cause a breakdown of the Chinese revolution. Some time ago I recommended that the Kuomintang (Nationalist party) break off relations. If action had been taken then, the Canton disaster probably never would have happened."

Chiang Kai-Shek reiterated a statement that the Kuomintang executive committee had instructed Foreign Minister C. C. Wu to inaugurate moves looking toward severance of relations, but that the Minister had not had time to carry out his instructions yet.

It was learned yesterday that the Nanking Nationalists are holding prisoner five Russians charged with treason against the Chinese Government. They have been in jail at Soochow since October 1.

The Russians formerly were advisers to two Chinese generals recently accused of Communism by the Nanking group. The generals escaped just before they were due to be courtmartialled.

Quo Tai-Chi, Nationalist Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, speaking last night before the University Club, composed of American and Chinese graduates of American universities, stated that "with the recent exposures of Communist activities in China, China determined to rid herself of Communism. To China Communism means chaos and disorder. China is fed up on such activities. If the Kuomintang is to survive, Communism must be expelled."

HERO OF TRANS-ATLANTIC HOP LANDS SAFELY AT MEXICAN GOAL

Flies From Washington To Mexico City in 27 Hours.

WAS THOUGHT LOST.

Milling Mexican Crowds Acclaim the Air Hero as a King.

MEXICO CITY, December 15. — "Lindy" has done it again—he and the other half of the famous "We." Without stop, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, piloting the "Spirit of St Louis," which earlier in the year had carried him to Paris, flew from Washington to Mexico City.

For more than 27 hours he was at the controls.

Perhaps there has never been witnessed such a delirious demonstration of joy by a Mexican multitude as that at 2.39 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when after some three hours of apprehension that misfortune had befallen the flier the Spirit of St. Louis settled on the Valbuena military aviation field, two and a half miles from Mexico City.

Lindy and his plane were safe and sound; nothing was wrong except that a miscellaneous miscalculation of direction carried the plane in a great circle from Tampico into the interior, instead of flying in a direct line to Mexico City.

The lone eagle not only flew over Mexico's mountains and deserts in this first non-stop flight between the two capitals, but he flew straight into the hearts of the Mexican people—hearts already long attuned in devotion to him by exploits of which they had read, hearts torn with fear for hours for his safety.

Anxiously Await Arrival.

And then — against the purple mountain ranges in the distance appeared a little white speck. At least fifty, some say one hundred thousand people at Valbuena field, and as many more lining the city streets, awaiting the coming of the airman, began to whisper: "Can it be Lindy? —Can it be?"

They were afraid to cheer; they were almost afraid to hope. Their nerves had been on edge as time and again false reports were spread that the plane had been sighted near at hand. At last gloom had conquered the crowd; silently and sombrely the great masses stood dejectedly, trying to hope and finding it hard.

Then that white spot against the purple ranges that Cortez and his Spanish adventurers mastered four centuries ago, to conquer an empire and open a new world.

A new conqueror was crossing those formidable purple ranges where the great snow-tipped volcano of Popocatapetl towered against the azure sky—a new kind of adventurer, a messenger of good will a cavalier of the air doing deeds beyond the wildest dreams of those ancient knights whom Cortez led.

"Can it be Lindy?" the multitude murmured. Then while the escort of Mexican army aeroplanes performed circus stunts overhead, there began to circle the field a graceful creature of the field, coming closer and closer.

"Viva Lindy!"

A roar that might have rocked those mighty distant mountains swept the throng—"Thank God—it's Lindy. Viva Lindy," they cried. No person in all that vast assemblage had been more disturbed over Col. Lindbergh's delay more apprehensive or more excitedly overjoyed at his safe arrival than President Calles himself. The president with the United States ambassador, Dwight W. Morrow, beside him, had been sitting since early morning awaiting Lindy. As noon passed and one report after another had been proved false, the president plainly showed perturbation. He asked the Associated Press to assist him in getting information as to Col. Lindbergh's authentic location, and ordered the government telegraph services throughout the nation to make every effort to ascertain what had happened.

Calles Worried.

Refreshments were brought into the presidential stand—Calles refused. He smoked cigarettes incessantly lighting one after another, a certain manifestation that the president of Mexico was worried. His usually stern face became more set, more care-worn; it seemed to be more deeply lined.

He tapped nervously upon the floor with his walking stick. And then, as the people strained themselves tensely on tiptoes and with craning necks, an aide whispered to the president:

"It is Lindbergh—it is positively Lindbergh this time."

Calles leaped to his feet as though convulsed by an electric shock. He

Hindered In Search By Heavy Ice-Floes

HOUGHTON, Mich., December 15 (Canadian Press). — Held back by heavy ice floes, jammed in by a stiff north-west wind, the Eagle Harbor Coastguard crew yesterday was still awaiting an opportunity to launch its lifeboat to make a search of the Keeweenaw shore and Manitou Island for the missing Canadian package freighter Kamloops, which, it is feared, was sunk with its 22 officers and men aboard.

The bay is filled with floating ice, and with the temperature 5 above zero more is forming constantly. The coastguard crew is in readiness, but expects to be unable to launch its lifeboat until the wind changes.

It is not believed here the Kamloops is on the Keeweenaw Peninsula, as shore line all the way to the point is visible from Eagle Harbor, as is the north side of Manitou Island, and no signs of wreckage have been seen.

HIAWATHA NEWS.

Hurrah! for the Christmas tree and entertainment in the Council Hall, Hiawatha, Wednesday evening, Dec. 21st. 25c and 15c.

Geese, duck and fowl dressing for the market are the order of the day in the village.

On Thursday morning the community was visited with a strong, whirling destructive windstorm. Ten trees were blown down. Three were spruce and the others English poplars. They were torn up by the roots. The ice on the lake was broken up by the fierce wind, and the water had become a seething mass of mud and water.

The chimney from the furnace on the large new brick house, the home of Robert Paudash, was blown down on the roof with such force that the rafters were splintered.

Mrs. Robert Paudash and Mrs. James Howard have returned to their homes from the hospital in Peterborough, where they have been confined to their beds on account of a serious accident in an auto some weeks ago as they were coming home from the city.

George Paudash and neighbor, who have been in the north country hunting and trapping, have returned to their homes.

James Howard is on the sick list and has been confined to his bed for several days.

The Hiawatha people are expecting a treat next Sunday in having Dr. Barner, the general evangelistic superintendent of the work for Canada.

CHRISTMAS OFFERS CHANCES FOR SERIOUS FIRES TO START

Fire Chief Issues Warning About Use of Inflammable Decorations.

CANDLES DANGEROUS.

Though Peterborough has in the past been singularly fortunate in the few accidents or fires of disastrous proportions that have taken place during the Christmas season, Fire Chief Gimblett is anxious that the citizens be conscious of their duty as citizens to take every precaution to maintain this record. Accordingly, he has submitted the following warnings and Christmas tree "don'ts" which are worthy of more than a passing glance. Read them over. It may be the means whereby a fire in some Peterborough home will be averted.

Don't decorate your Christmas tree with paper, celluloid, cotton or any other inflammable material. Use metallic tinsel and other non-inflammable decorations only and set the tree securely so that the children, in reaching for anything, cannot tip it over.

Don't use cotton to represent snow. If you must have snow, use asbestos wool as it will not burn and looks just as nice.

Don't permit the children to light candles while parents or guardians are not present. They frequently set fire to their clothing instead.

Don't light a single candle until the children are ready to come in.

Don't let any person change the position of anything on the tree after the candles are lighted as it is easy to sway a candle against something that will take fire.

Don't leave a lighted tree unwatched.

Don't move a single thing from the tree until the candles are put out.

Don't let the tree stand long after Chrismas. When dry, it is doubly dangerous.

Always start at the top of the tree to light the candles and at the bottom to put them out.

Always keep a pail of water near the tree to be used in case of fire.

Don't leave matches within reach of the children at any time. Candles are meant to be lighted and if the children can get matches, they will experiment with them. They imitate their elders. A house of joy is much better than a house of mourning.

Think "Fire" Before It Happens.

Between the time of discovery of the fire and the appearance of the firemen, at least five minutes must elapse. This particular five minutes is the "vital time" in the life of the fire. It is the time when you, alone, may do more in that five minutes to save your property than the entire fire department can do in fifty-five minutes afterward. It is the time when the smallest blaze may gain sufficient headway to become a serious conflagration. During these five minutes, the fire is the personal responsibility of the occupant of the building. See section 515 of the criminal code.

Suggestions on Fire Prevention.

Unquestionably, the public is, through the efforts of fire prevention campaigns, being brought to a realization that the stupendous loss by fire is not wholly a subject of concern for insurance companies It is still very difficult to dissociate from the minds of the great majority of people that a loss covered by insurance offsets the destruction and thus closes out the occurrence. Every fire means so much property absolutely lost, for in no sense do insurance companies restore values—they merely distribute the misfortunes of fire over a community.

Endless suggestions present themselves for the improvement of existing conditions many of which can be accomplished only with great difficulty, but it seems judicious that efforts in this direction should, at this time be concentrated upon those remedies which will respond most quickly and save the most. Four famous fire fiends contribute probably one-third of our fires—shingle roofs, defective chimneys, faulty electric installation ,and last, but foremost of all, the strike-anywhere match To this infamous incendinary is attributed five per cent of the fires, but insurance men generally believe that double this figure is nearer a correct estimate.

Their cheapness causes them to be a plaything for children in almost every household and they are, with disastrous results scattered about indiscriminately almost every place—for the reason that they cost next to nothing.

Keep them out of the reach of children. There are no fire prevention rules more important than those applying to the use of matches and habits of carefulness should be formed by all.

Matches should be kept out of the reach of children and away from the stove and stovepipes, the sun's rays or any other place where they may become overheated. Matches should not be left loose in a drawer or on a shelf but should be kept in a covered metal or non-inflammable receptacle.

Make Peterborough Fireless.

Keep cellars and attic free from rubbish ashes, waste paper, rags, etc.

Don't hang electric wires over nails or any kind of electric pipes. This is liable to wear off the insulation and start a fire by short circuiting.

Don't look for a gas leak with a match or candle. You might suddenly find it—to your sorrow.

Don't blow out the gas. Always turn it off at the cock.

Don't use gasoline for cleaning purposes near an open fire or light.

Don't use a match to look for anything in a dark closet as the head may fly off and set fire. Neither use a candle.

Don't use coal oil, gasoline or any other inflammable oils in lighting fires or to quicken a slow fire. It may result in death.

Don't throw a lighted match cigar, or cigarette butt where it will set fire.

Don't fill a lamp or stove with coal oil while they are burning.

Don't have storage closets under stairways. Fires in these places cut off your main exit.

Don't neglect to have chimney flues cleaned once a year.

Don't pour gasoline, benzine or naptha down the train. Pour it on the ground if you must get rid of it.

Don't use fire for thawing out frozen pipes, but use hot water cloths.

Don't use paper or cotton shades on electric light bulbs as they may catch fire.

A good mixture for extinguishing oil fires—ten pounds of bicarbonate of soda to one bushel of sawdust

Warnings For Stores, Churches, Bazaars.

Holiday fires in these, while filled with people, are usually holocausts. Light, inflammable decorations make fires easy to start and easy to spread. A gas flame or electrical defect may do it.

Do not take any chances in wiring without consulting the electric inspector. Have him inspect all electrical decorations.

Do not allow people to stand in or obstruct aisles of churches or amusement places. Do not allow crowding at the rear of such places.

Keep a sufficient number of ushers to open doors and to assist the people out of the building and, if possible, avoid panic in case of fire.

Read your insurance policies before attempting any hasty or ill-advised decorations which may catch fire. Examine the insurance contracts and see if the policies contain anything like this:

"This entire policy, unless otherwise provided by agreement indorsed hereon, or added hereto, shall be void, etc., if the hazard be increased by any means within the knowledge or control of insured."

If you burn, you want your indemnity; do nothing, therefore, to impair your contract.

Peterborough will soon be known as having Community Spirit. Go to the Carol singing on December 23.

PARTY IS HELD IN TWO HOUSES

Guests Dance and Play Cards in One and Dine in the Other.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 15.—A very unique and enjoyable birthday party was given on Friday evening, December 9, by Mr. Joseph Falkner to a few of his many friends and well wishers in town, at the homes of Mrs. James Craighead and Mrs. O. Jamieson.

The affair was in true Irish style, green and white being the prevailing colors and some of the ladies costumes reminded one vividly of the pretty colleens in their quaint attire as one often sees them in "that little bit of Heaven they call Ireland." And "Pat" would have felt quite at home among the gentlemen present with their powdered hair, white shirt waists and knee breeches.

Under canopies of green and softly toned lights the long table was laden with a sumptuous repast and here the green and white color scheme was beautifully carried out. Trailing festoons of smilax and white chrysanthemums adorned the centre of the board, the smilax wending around the stand on which the three tiered birthday cake reposed with its white dress and green trimmings.

Progressive euchre occupied the earlier hours of the evening and the successful scorers were presented by the host with beautiful gifts as prizes. The winners were Miss Reta Buchanan and Mr. E. Jones, with the consolation awards to Mrs. E. Jones and Mr. F. Bennett.

Mr. R. Bonny was appointed toast master and the health of "the King and Country" was loyally responded to, after a few remarks and Irish witticisms. "Our Host" was given with vim and enthusiasm and appreciatively replied to by Mr. Faulkner. Then the three hostesses of the evening, Mrs. Bonny, Mrs. Craighead and Mrs. Jamieson were given a toast, which was replied to by the ladies themselves "God bless them."

On behalf of the assembled guests Mr. Bacchus presented the host with a beautiful kodak as a small token of their high esteem and good wishes for a long happy and useful life.

Mr. Faulkner also presented the three ladies who so kindly gave their best endeavors to make the evening a success a beautiful gift of hand-painted china.

After an hour or two on the "light fantastic toe" a very enjoyable Irish party was brought to a happy ending.

GENERAL ALDERSON.

The intelligence of the passing of General Sir Edwin Alderson, K.C.B., will carry the thoughts of Canadians back to the first days of the Great War when he was the officer commanding the 1st Canadian Division.

It was under General Alderson's command that the first contingent was welded into an efficient force, and under his command that the Maple Leaf troops had their first actual fighting experience.

He had a long and distinguished military career, including successful service in the South African war, and as commander of the Canadians in the early stages of the great war he added to his reputation, his work being recognized by his being created a Knight Commander of the Bath and Commander of the Legion of Honor.

Veterans of the 1st Canadian division will look back upon the days when General Alderson was their chief and will feel in his death the loss of an officer that all ranks held in respect.

CHRISTMAS AT THE SHELTER.

The annual appeal for Christmas gifts for the children at the Children's Aid Shelter is being made, and The Examiner is satisfied that it is only necessary to mention that fact to ensure an ample supply for these little waifs.

Nine children need to be looked after, six boys and three girls, their ages ranging from two to fifteen years.

Donations of toys, games, candies, etc., will be gladly received by Mrs. J. S. Fanning, or may be sent to the Shelter, while cash donations will also be gratefully acknowledge.

Arrangements have been completed to have the gifts distributed from a Christmas tree on Thursday of next week and it is hoped that this event will be as successful and happy as usual.

The people of Peterborough have in other years seen to it that there was no lack of Christmas cheer for the children at the Shelter and it is confidently expected that in their Christmas planning they will not forget them on this occasion.

In many homes there must be toys that would be a source of joy and entertainment to the little ones who are being cared for by the Children's Aid Society

WHERE HELP IS NEEDED.

One of the answers made by Examiner readers in response to a question as to what they would do if they were Santa Claus, touches a condition that exists in every community, a problem for which no solution seems to be offered.

Everywhere there are people who are not in actual want so far as the bare necessities of life are concerned but who are struggling along on a small salary that affords little or no chance for an occasional luxury and that makes the exchange of Christmas gifts a battle against odds which can only be won by scraping, saving and self-denial.

There are children in such homes who will find their Christmas stocking slenderly filled, and yet every gift therein has been puchased after a bitter fight against circumstances.

There is need of a Santa Claus for families like these—yet because they are not absolutely down and out nobody comes to their assistance.

Their fight is a lone-handed one, its details known to themselves alone.

And yet, thanks to the courage and stamina that are characteristic of most of our people they battle along with a smile on their lips. Meagre, as sometimes must be their Christmas offerings, the spirit of love and self-sacrifice that permeates their homes may oft compensate them for the lack of the things that more fortunate families enjoy at this season of the year.

THE DUTY OF VOTING.

The response of the Ottawa Journal to a request from a reader that it should find out the reason why his name was not on the voters' list for the recent municipal election was that it did not propose to fuss itself about an indivdual grievance which twenty-seven thousand men and women in Ottawa consider to be no individual grievance at all.

The incident is of value because it calls attention to the indifference of the majority of people to their duty as citizens.

This particular elector found his name was not on the list and naturally complained bitterly about the omission, but the funny part of it is that while this man had a grievance twenty-seven thousand other Ottawa people thought so little of their responsibility as electors that they did not take the trouble to go out and vote.

Probably if such citizens were notified that their names had been stricken off the lists they would be highly indignant but of their own accord they put themselves in exactly the same position as if they had no vote—they put such small value on the privilege of being given a voice in the selection of the civic government and in the determination of civic policies that they remain away from the polling booths.

GREAT BRITAIN AND DISARMAMENT.

Who, or what, was responsible for the breakdown of the three power naval conference held at Geneva last summer? Taking the published records of the conference as its authority (the report has just been made public) an Associated Press despatch from Geneva says that the collapse of the gathering was due to inability of Britain and the United States to agree regarding eight-inch guns on cruisers. The Americans, according to this version, upheld their right to place eight-inch guns on cruisers of any construction. The British, on the other hand, were adamant for restricting the eight-inch gun to 10,000-ton cruisers and other specified vessels. As neither side would yield, the conference collapsed.

Technically, this may be right. Actually, it is liable to mislead. The reason is that the dispute over the matter of eight-inch guns was really only a part, a detail, of a large and more fundamental issue. That issue, briefly, was this. Great Britain, seeking not supremacy, but security, placed before the conference a program of cruiser construction which she knew to be the minimum of her needs. In effect, she said to the United States: "We don't want cruiser mastery. We don't want naval supremacy. We admit your right to go ahead and bring your cruiser strength up to ours. But the equality that exists between us must be one which permits us to build as many cruisers as we think we require for our naval security. Here is the number we propose to build."

* * *

The United States, on the other hand, with an existing smaller cruiser strength than Britain, and taking no account of Britain's greater need, said: "No, we have all the cruisers that we require, and we don't want to go to the expense of building more. If, therefore, you are not looking for naval supremacy, you should stop building cruisers, or at least level down to equality. We don't see why you should have more cruisers than we have now, or why you should be permitted to build more than we choose to build."

* * *

That, roughly, was the dual position. Britain, it cannot be made too clear, never challenged the American right to equality in cruisers. On the contrary, her spokesmen said that they not only accepted equality, but welcomed it. The trouble, if we may repeat it, was simply that while Britain left it freely to the United States to level up in respect to cruisers, the United States asked Britain to level down.

* * *

Below a point, which she specified, Britain held that she could not do it. The British Empire is a great reality. It extends through every sea. Its total coastline and its lines of communications are immense by comparison with those which the United States has to protect. Largely, indeed, merchant ships are to Britain what railways are to the United States. They are vital.

Nobody expressed the British viewpoint more convincingly than the eminent French publicist and politician, Jacques Seydoux. Writing in the Petit Parisien at the time of the downfall of the conference, he said:

"But England does not only defend her glory. She defends her life. The British Isles contain only seven weeks food. If the British fleet cannot assure the defence of trade routes England runs the risk of becoming the prey of her enemies. Nor should we forget that the freedom of the seas was assured by England during the war."

Sir Austen Chamberlain, too, put Britain's case very persuasively when, about the same time, he said:

"It is to be noted that the sea routes upon which Great Britain depends for existence lie largely in narrow waters bordered by other states. This is not the case with the United States, whose most important lines of communication lie either on land or within her own frontiers, by sea along her own coasts or in great oceans."

American naval experts, in fact, have always recognized that Britains naval problem is incomparably more difficult than that of the United States, and never can be otherwise. Admiral Mahan, in one of his authoritative naval books, stressed this point. And Britain's naval position today, with France and Italy not even a party to the Geneva conference, is as acute as it ever was. More so, perhaps, with the growth of the submarine.

It is not, as already said that the British people demand naval supremacy. They have given evidence of this, powerful evidence, in the fact that since the war they have done more in the way of disarmament than any European power. Only the other day, Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for Air, gave some impressive figures in respect of British armaments, men and money, compared with 1914. Thus:

	1914	1927
Battleships	44	12
Cruisers	80	37
Destroyers	183	89
Personnel	145,600	100,700

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If you don't know what a Liberal-Progressive is Miss Agnes MacPhail will tell you. Her definition is a member who is a Progressive in his constituency and a Liberal in the House.

It is fortunate that static does not interfere with the movements of Santa Claus on Christmas eve as it does with his speeches over the radio.

If you miss an issue of The Examiner you are sure to miss the entrance of another candidate into the municipal race. They are coming forward now with a liveliness that suggests the people of Peterborough are beginning to realize that there is a real call for service in the civic government.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, December 15 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was extremely dull, there being practically no demand from any source. The domestic trade was also slow, but prices were unchanged. Prices for all grades of spring and winter wheat flour were firmly maintained under a moderate demand.

A feature of the millfeed market continued to be the heavy demand from United States buyers for all lines, and the volume of business was large. The local inquiry was also good, and prices were firm. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fair and prices were steady.

A fairly active business was done in all grades of fresh and storage eggs, and the undertone to the market was firm. The receipts were 227 cases.

There was little demand for butter, but prices ruled steady. The receipts were 111 packages.

An easier feeling developed in the cheese market, and prices were reduced 3c per pound. This was attributed to the limited demand of late. The receipts were 119 packages.

Only a small business was done in potatoes, and the undertone was easy, but there was no change in the prices. Car lots of Prince Edward Island whites were quoted at $1.05 per bag of 90 pounds. Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of ninety pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at 95c per bag in bulk; and Quebec varieties at 90c per bag in bulk, ex-track.

The trade in imported beans was moderately active, and prices were steady. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were sold at $2.50 per bushel on spot and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, ex-track, while broken lots sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Buying power broadened out to a notable extent in the corn market yesterday, and corn values took a fresh upward swing. One of the most widely known figures in the grain trade came forward strongly in favor of higher prices for corn, and this circumstance, together with an advance in corn export bids at the Gulf of Mexico, did much to stimulate confidence.

Closing quotations on corn were firm, ½c to 1¼c net higher; wheat finished ⅝c off to ¼c up; oats showing ¾c to 1c gain; and provisions varying from 15 cents setback to a rise of 30 cents.

Throughout most of the day, wheat values were inclined to sag, pending issuance of the Argentine official crop report due December 16. Recent advices have shown a tendency to increase previous estimates of Argentine production.

Oats yesterday showed independent strength. As with corn, rural offerings to arrive were small.

Eastern buyers of lard helped to make provisions average higher.

TRENT RIVER NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 15.—Heavy gales prevailed continuously Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The only damage reported was several trees being blown down. The telephone connection with the Havelock central was put out of commission for a few hours owing to obstruction on the line. The water was high in the main channel owing to great quantities of ice forming which broke away on Saturday and passed on down the river.

Figure on profits for next winter. Your birds can't lay regularly unless they are put in shape now. They'll lay if you feed them right. Put money in your pocket.

Keep Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash in front of them all the time. Nothing like it to produce more eggs and better eggs—strong-shelled and uniform in size.

Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash is a scientifically balanced feed. It works rapidly and thoroughly on egg producing organs. Contains about 9% mineral. No domestic animal, size considered, requires more mineral than the laying hen. Cod Liver Meal gives Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash its vitamines, which insure assimilation of all feed. It makes up for absence of sunlight, or green stuffs in winter time. High quality oatmeal is the base of all Ful-O-Pep feeds—not just ground oats.

Get your hens on the nests. Have layers not boarders. Do it the Ful-O-Pep way. It pays. Ful-O-Pep is an economical feed.

MANY BODIES

and the children were awakened at once.

The younger orphans had gone to bed at 7.30 and the older ones at 9.30. Very soon this section of the building was a mass of flames which spread with alarming rapidity long before the firemen, Nuns, and passers-by had been able to undertake any effective rescue work. While the building was a roaring furnace, Nuns, firemen and people who had gathered at the scene entered the building to rescue the children who were known to be still there in large numbers. The rescuers entered by windows and were not expected by witnesses to return, so terrible did the flames appear. Many of the rescuers, however, were successful in finding children and in being able to bring them to safety.

Building Very Old

It was only in the older part of the building that the tragedy occurred. This was built in 1823 and served at first as a hospital for sailors. Children in the new building filed out in perfect order and there were no lives lost there.

Many stories of heroism were told. One fireman was reported to have rescued fifteen children, making repeated trips up and down a ladder. Firemen throw children and Nuns from windows into lifenets and a human chain passed these victims across the street to the shelter of a warehouse.

The fire which began in the basement, presumably through the explosion of a furnace, shot flames up the central flue, creating a draft and carrying the fire through the old building and through the roof. Rescue work was stopped when the walls collapsed.

To-day, the structure which formed the east wing of the group of buildings was a heap of ruins. The new section was of fireproof construction and was practically undamaged. The police reported that the majority of the children were in the dormitories, in the section which fell a prey to the flames. The fire resulted in the hasty mobilization of fire and police staffs from all sections of the city, and a great crowd collected, including the frantic parents of many children.

A particularly distressing episode occurred when the firemen who first entered the hall found a tall Christmas tree decorated and ready to be lighted for the pleasure of the children during what was to have been a happy Christmas season.

Smoke Hinders Rescue.

Dense clouds of smoke hampered the rescuers who had to grope in darkness for the youngsters in their beds. In one section of the dormitory they found grouped together the bodies of 16 children who had been asphyxiated. This group accounted for the majority of the bodies at the morgue. While death had been due to asphyxiation some of the bodies were so badly burned as to make identification difficult. Pulmotors were used to revive some of the children carried out unconscious.

Rev. Mother St. Hildephonse who was living in the old building, was the first to notice the odor of smoke. She immediately ran to give the alarm, running through the building calling out "Fire! Fire!" Louis Turgeon was passing before the building at the time and he saw smoke. He sounded the alarm which brought men and equipment from the nearby station; on their arrival however a general alarm was put in, bringing all the men and equipment of the city.

The flames spread so rapidly that all efforts to organize safety measures were useless. Seventy or so children sleeping in the old wing, were at the mercy of the flames. The unfortunate infants, the majority of them orphans, could be heard crying for help but most of their cries were in vain. It became very soon a physical impossibility to enter the building and in less than two hours it was a mass of ruins. In the new part of the building were over two hundred children were sleeping, the Rev. Mother Stromauld, superior of the Hospice, organized the children into sections, and they marched out in splendid order and without panic.

Mothers Frantic.

By half past eleven last night, the area at the foot of Crown street became the centre of frantic women, many of whom fainted.

"Where is my child, is he dead?" On every side could be heard this plea in passionate tones from the throats of mothers who were mad with anxiety for the fate of their fatherless children. The 371 children living at the Hospice were all children who had lost father or mother or belonged to poor families which were unable to care for them.

After the warehouse across the street was filled with children the others were removed to the St. Roch Hotel, every room of which was placed at the disposal of the Sisters. Here, the same frantic scenes were again enacted, and when this building and the tobacco works became too small to cope with the crowd of parents seeking their children, the Good Shepherd Convent was ultilized as an emergency hospital and some children were removed there.

It was after midnight before the flames were under control. Then, firemen were able to enter the ruins in some sections in an endeavor to rescue children unable to get out of the building when the fire began. Pitiful sights met the eyes of those who entered the ruined edifice. Some of the bedrooms were untouched by fire, but on the beds were little lifeless corpses, the unfortunate youngsters having been apparently choked to death by the smoke.

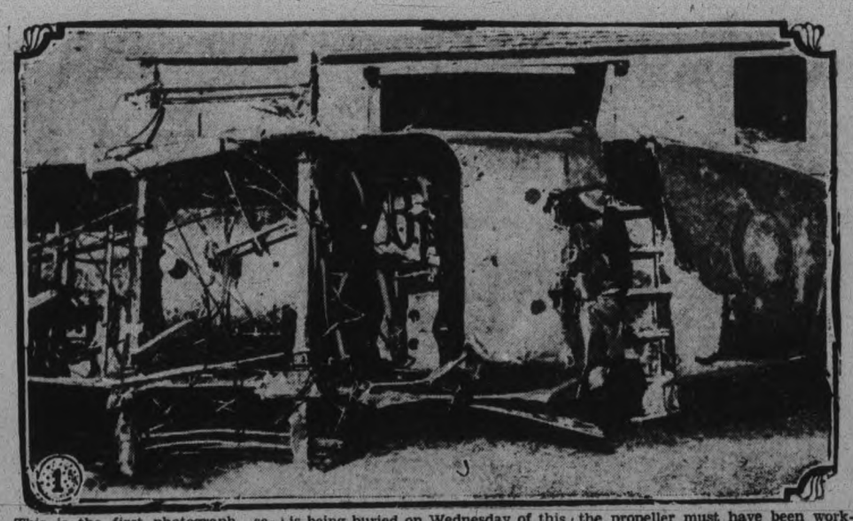
Although a crowd of doctors entered the ruins with the intention of trying artificial respiration, it was soon found that the children who had been less fortunate than others were beyond human aid. Asphyxiation had done its work and in addition the bodies were coated with ice.

PREMIER ANSWERS FALLON'S LETTER

Government Had Nothing To Do With Thornton's Visit To Mexico, He Says.

OTTAWA, December 15. Canadian Press. — "The government of Canada had no more to do with the acceptance by Sir Henry Thornton of the invitation he received from the government of Mexico than the government of the United States had to do with the acceptance by Colonel Lindbergh of the invitation received by him from the same government," declared Premier W. L. Mackenzie King ,in a statement issued in reply of the open letter by Bishop Fallon of London, Ont., criticising Sir Henry Thornton's visit to Mexico.

AIRPLANE IN IN WHICH DE LESSEPS MET DEATH



This is the first photograph secured of the flying boat in which the Count de Lesseps met his death in foggy weather on a 75-mile flight from Gaspe to Val Brilliante. He is being buried on Wednesday of this week. In this photograph the prow of the flying boat indicates that the fatal accident, long a mystery, was not caused by engine trouble since the propeller must have been working. It is supposed that the ship came down in rough water wrenching the engine loose.

Advance In Argentine Sends U. S. Corn Higher

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Fresh advances in the price of corn here developed early today following an overnight jump of 2⅝ cents a bushel at Buenos Aires. The Argentine upturn brought the January delivery at Buenos Aires to within one cent of December corn in Chicago. Starting ⅝c to 1c higher, the Chicago corn market held near to the initial figures. Wheat and oats were also firmer, wheat opening unchanged to ½c up and later showing some rise all around. Provisions likewise went higher. Opening prices were:

Wheat, December 126⅝, March 129⅝. Corn, December 86¼, March 91⅛. Oats, December 51½, March 55⅛.

Tendency To Decline On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, December 15 (Canadian Press). — A tendency to slightly lower the price levels on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning did not result in any material losses and a few moderate gains were scattered through the quiet list. McColl, leading the active oils, firmed a quarter at 64, but Imperial, British American ,and International Petroleum all lost slightly. Carlings and Canadian Malting were fractionally easier, and Walker Rights lost five at 125, but Canadian Brewing gained a half at 36. In the regular list Brazilian and Page Hersey issues scored point gains and International Nickel, the leader in activity, had a net gain of an eighth at 73⅝. Seagrams, Industrial Alcohol ,and Canners Preferred eased a little. Dome's dollar climb at $14.00 featured the mines.

Dome Makes Gain; Other Shares Weaker

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Dome's advance was the bright feature of an otherwise depressed list on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. On a turnover that is large for Dome, more than ten thousand shares, the stock climbed to 14.00 and at noon had a net gain of ninety cents at 12.70 on the standard board. Leaders of the downturn were Nipissing, down 17 at 634; Amulet, down 32 at 475, and Central Manitoba, down seven at 192. Tough Oakes lost two, and arry Hollinger, Area, and Kirkland Lake sold lower. Teck Hughes improved seven at 10.17.

New York Market Dull With List Narrow To-day

NEW YORK, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Speculative interest in to-day' sstock market was confined largely to a select group of coppers and specialties, several of which were bid up in spirited fashion under pool manipulation. The general list displayed less general strength than heretofore, apparently due to nervousness created by the recent collapse of a few specialties and fears of another large increase in brokers' loans.

Coppers continued to respond to reports of improving trade conditions under the leadership of Anaconda, which sold at the highest price in five years. Calumet and Hecla, Nevada, Kennecott, and Dome Mines also reached new high ground and Homestead Mines jumped nearly five points.

One of the most sensational movements of the day took place in Continental Insurance issues. The old stock ran up from 276 to 302 and the new stock, which was admitted to trading to-day, opened at 74½, advanced to 86½, and fell back to 78. New Haven crossed 60 to the highest price in ten years.

PETROLEUM ROYALTIES.

The progress of the Petroleum Royalties Company through successful operations and conservative management has placed this company in the very forefront of the royalty companies of America

During the past year the earnings of the company have steadily increased On December 1 1926, the earnings were $10,500 per month; in May, 1927, the earnings had crept up to $22,000 per month, and by the time the annual statement was issued on September 30, 1927, the earnings were shown to be approximately $25,000 per month, and by Dec. 1, the monthly earnings had jumped to over $31,000 per month.

The royalties owned by the company in December 1926 have—during the past year—increased from 36 to over 70 royalties as on December 1st.

In December 1926, the company, was receiving royalty oil from 393 producing wells, and on December, 1927, the company was receiving royalty oil from nearly 700 wells, with a daily production of more than 110,000 barrels.

Since the first dividend was paid in February, 1926, the company will have distributed to the shareholders 34½ per cent. by Jan. 1, 1928.

The company's income—which now amounts to over $31,000 per month—is received from its royalty interests entirely free of costs, bringing the company's annual earnings to nearly 50 per cent. of the 750,000 outstanding shares. It is therefore quite easy to understand how it is possible for the Petroleum Royalties Company to pay such large dividends—amounting to 19 per cent. for the current year—have been paid, the whole of the balance is reinvested in new producing royalties to build up the reserves of the company.

The Petroleum Royalties Company is in a unique position as its charter restricts it from investing any money whatever in drilling wells or other phases of the oil industry. It is restricted to the one purpose of investing in oil royalties and confines its purchases to producing royalties in the well known oil fields of the Mid-Continent which are being operated by the major oil companies.

The royalties owned by the company are actually the first mortgage on the oil produced by the great oil companies of America and its preferred shares are backed by such excellent security that they can rightly be regarded as an absolutely safe investment.

The above results have been accomplished during a time when oil has been at its lowest price for some years. When the price of oil comes back to normal—as it will in due course—the earnings of the Petroleum Royalties Company will be greatly enhanced, and should considerably exceed the present high income. 1d-140-3909

4 PETERBORO TROOP.

The meeting of the Fourth Peterborough Troop opened last Thursday with flag break and then inspection.

After inspection stalking was played. The Kangaroos and the Crows were chosen to compete first. Both patrols were blindfolded and were at different ends of the H. Q. At the signal to start the teams came slowly down the room trying to touch the members of the opposing patrol. The Kangaroos won the first game and the Owls the second game.

There were two ten minute instruction periods in the patrol corners. Dodger ball and a number of other games were then played.

The patrols were then given one minute to think up a short play, on the second Scout Law, "A Scout is Loyal."

An artificial campfire was made with an electric light covered with red paper and short sticks piled around in log cabin style. The three patrols then put on their plays. The Owls play was the best one. A few lively songs were sung ,and a short story about birds was read from "Scouting for Boys."

The meeting closed with the singing of "God Save the King" and thirty seconds, Scout silence.

William Taylor has now taken over Owl patrol and L. Walsh the Crow patrol. From now to the end of January there will likely be a very close run for first place in the troop competition.

The competition ended this week with the Kangaroos 164½, the Owls 164 and the Crows 158 points.

SEARCH FAILS TO SHOW SIGN OF LOST SHIP

Little Hope Held Out For the Safety of Crew of Kamloops.

MISSING SEVEN DAYS.

Marine Men Doubt Rumors of Wreck at Keweenaw Point, Near Altadoc.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., December 14 (Canadian Press). — Systematic search of many miles of the rugged coast line of Lake Superior has failed to produce any trace of the missing freighter Kamloops which, with its crew of twenty men and two women cooks, was last sighted seven days ago during the height of the blizzard off White Fish Point. While every resource was being summoned to hunt, marine men at the head of the lakes expressed little hope for the safety of the crew.

While a report was in circulation that the Kamloops had probably struck the rocks of Keweenaw Point, local shipping officials were without any definite word as to the progress of this investigation.

Captain Gehl, of the tug Champlain, which returned to port to-day from the wrecked steamer Altadoc, expressed the belief that there was little chance of the Kamloops having foundered of Keweenaw Point. Captain Gehl declared that he cruised from Portage entrance along the shore, but failed to find any trace of the missing freighter. The Altadoc was reported to be about eight hundred feet from the steamer City of Bangor, which was wrecked near Keweenaw on November 30, 1926. There is very little hope of salvaging the vessel.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any coughs or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FALLIS HERD PASSES TEST

Holsteins Make Good Showing in Butter Fat Test.

DEMAND IS GOOD.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 15.— A Brady, Campbelliford, paid an official visit to "Windermere Farm," over the week end and testing W. Fred Fallis' fully accredited herd of pure-bred Holstein cattle, the result being: Alice Vale 4.2, Lulu Alice 3.7, Alice Vale Rauwerd 3.7, Korndyke Mercena Alice 4.6, Alice Rue Vale 3.4, Rauwerd Alice 3.2, Alice Lulu Rauwerd 3.2, Jean Alice 3.2, Alice Iosco 3.3.

The above record was in connection with the record of performance test, which deals solely with the butter fat content, and on the whole is a satisfactory showing.

Mr. Fallis is a past president of the Durham County Holstein Breeders' Club, and has for several years been actively interested in building up his herd of pure-bred cattle.

According to R .M. Holtby, fieldman for the Dominion Holstein Association, there has been a big demand for dairy cattle in the United States in recent months and a large number have been shipped from Canada across the line to make up the shortage. "As many as fifty Holsteins a day," Mr. Holtby said, "have been going into New York state."

The scarcity was caused by the thousands of animals that reacted to the tuberculin test having to be slaughtered; the keeping of milk records meant that many others had to be sacrificed because of low milk production, and the agricultural depression has had an effect also in lowering the number of cattle in the dairy districts.

Durham breeders who had animals ready for the sales market have been among those benefitting by the increased demand for good cattle for shipping purposes.

CAREFUL DRAINAGE

All drainage pipes should be cared for scrupulously in summer. The ice box pipe, the toilet and sink should al be washed weekly with lye.

FRESH CABBAGE

New cabbage, cut finely and cooked only 10 minutes in little water, uncovered, is one of the tenderest of vegetables. Serve with butter or cream sauce.

RED CROSS BAZAAR IS GREAT SUCCESS

Apsley Ladies Realize Good Sum—Consolidated School Closes.

APSLEY, December 15. — The bazaar organized by the Ladies' Committee was quite successful, and nearly all the articles were sold, though, according to the prices which were more those of a bargain sale than a bazaar, nothing should have been left over. A sum of nearly $50.00 will be netted for the Red Cross Hospital as a result. The event entailed a lot of work for the ladies, and they deserve great credit for their efforts.

The Apsley Consolidated School is a thing of the past. The Board held its last meeting on Saturday, and the four sections will at the end of the year revert to their former status and each will elect its own board of trustees.

MENDING SHELF

The small apartment should have one linen shelf kept for mending. If only the article that is to be mended is taken out, order will be preserved easily.

BAZAAR SUCCESS IN SPITE OF COLD

Regent Street Church Ladies Hold Well Attended Sale.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 15.—The annual Christmas bazaar of the Ladies' Aid of the Regent Street United Church was held in the school room on Friday afternoon and in spite of the low temperature and high wind there was a large attendance. Outside one felt the biting wind which seemed to penetrate even the heaviest clothing but inside all was warmth, soft lights and a hospitable atmosphere, and a hearty welcome from Mrs. S. S. Spence and Mrs. Robert Nugent, who were in their accustomed places on the reception committee.

The president of the Ladies' Aid Mrs. Albert Darling, acted as general convenor of the bazaar.

The color scheme of red and green was used in a variety of ways and combined with Christmas greens suggested the festive season and the booths, each with a different scheme of decoration, although all used the same colors, were each and all so pretty that one could not make a comparison.

The wares for sale were especially attractive and were displayed tastefully and were quickly disposed of. The tea room was in charge of Miss Webster, who was assisted by Mesdames J. Morrison, R. A. Bell, F. H. Richardson, J. Millage, P. Darling and W. Purdy. Mrs. T. T. Milburn and Mrs. A. Northey poured tea and Mrs. N. A. Moore was cashier. The entrance to the tea room was through a white gate in a neat white low picket fence, and the effect was that of stepping into a tea garden with its dainty tables, attractively arranged.

The handkerchief booth was in charge fo Mesdames Wagar and J. Murphy, Jr., and the wares displayed were dainty in quality and design.

Mrs. S. Pearson and Mrs. A. Darling were convenors of the home cooking table on which were displayed the most toothsome wares, triumphs of the housekeeper's art. The assistants were Mesdames W. J. Northey, H. J. Abbott, H. Ingram and W. J. Madill.

Mrs. Welbourne and Mrs. John Hendrin were convenors of the apron table which was as popular as in former years with a most attractive display of aprons, varying from the dainty embroidered variety to the gingham or print practical work apron. The assistants at this booth were Mrs. H. J. Brown, Mrs. J. R. Northey and Mrs. D. H. Webster.

Mrs. John Charlton, the capable convenor of the woollen booth was unable to be present owing to her recent serious illness but her assistant, Mrs. J. Reid, ably carried on assisted by Mrs. F. Darling, Mrs. G. Scriver and Mrs. J. Murphy, Sr.

Mrs. N. Payne and Mrs. S. A. Kemp were convenors of the fancy work table which was loaded with pretty trifles, both useful and ornamental and with the daintiest of hand work for boudoir, dining room or living room, all of which found ready sale.

Mrs. W. H. Stabler, Mrs. W. Hamblin, Mrs. T. Crawford and Miss Milburn assisted at this table.

For those who have a sweet tooth, and who has not, there were homemade sweets in profusion at a stall presided over by Mrs. A. E. Higgins (convenor) and Mesdames P. Spence and H. Dunford.

Miss Grace Darling was in charge of a small booth which occupied a place all to itself on the south side of the room and was appropriately named "Treasure Island", where many pretty and useful things were to be found in surprise packages. Besides being a money making proposition this annual bazaar is valuable as a social event where friend meets friend and a pleasant social hour is spent and the 1927 function was in no way behind previous years in this respect.

FALSE TEETH
made spotlessly clean without any tiresome brushing

Two Sizes: 6-oz. - 35c 16-oz. - 60c

On Sale at all Drug Stores

To keep false teeth glisteningly white, gold work unclouded—cleanse them every day by the easy HYGEOL method. Tiresome brushing is done away with entirely. The teeth are purified (completely sterilized, as well as cleansed) by a twenty-minute immersion in a solution of one part HYGEOL to three parts water. They can be left to clean while you dress. At the end of that time, remove and rinse. The teeth will be sweet and fresh, freed from all food particles, discolorations, germs, and that mucous film which resists brushing so stubbornly.

If you prefer, teeth can be left overnight—a much milder solution sufficing under this method—one teaspoonful of HYGEOL to a glass of water.

A trial costs nothing. Get a sample bottle by mailing the coupon and put HYGEOL to the test. The booklet which accompanies the sample will show you many other ways to use HYGEOL.

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN

The table at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning was well attended, Mr. Allan preaching an impressive communion sermon.

After the sermon, and just preceding the communion, the dedication of the table for this purpose was performed. In a few feeling sentences, Mr. Allan told of the gift of the table by Mr. H Gilgour, in memory of his father, Mr. Thomas Gilgour, who passed away in 1925. In conveying thanks to the donor, Mr. Allan at the same time hoped much blessing would be enjoyed by those partaking of the symbols of communion therefrom, and by the donor. He dedicated the table to the glory of God, and to the memory of one who had worshipped many years in St. Paul's church.

The table is handsome quarter-cut oak, and harmonizes with the organ front.

'A Communion Meditation.

"In commenting upon the portion of Scripture, John 15:14, from which my text has been taken," said Mr. Allan, at the morning service, "one writer describes it as one of the sweetest and most smiling spots in all this holy tract of heaven-lit land of blessing. The Master has bidden His disciples carry an untroubled heart through all life's tumult and alarm, telling them that God shall be in very truth their own God, bringing of necessity with His in-dwelling presence the divinest peace. He has further taught them that the union with Himself shall be so close, so intimate, so vital, that all His life of love shall be their own, making their life also to be fruitful in all good. And now He at once sums up what He has said, and anticipates what He will say, in the words, which it was worth while for the world to have waited all the long centuries to hear, 'Ye are my friends.'

Till He Come

"It seems to me that these words are highly suggestive for such a season as this, when we gather around the Lord's Table to remember His death and look forward to His return.

"The disciples, along with the Master, had but recently left the upper room, where, for the last time, they had with Him celebrated the Passover. At the close of that feast He had inaugurated and observed with them this feast which we have met to celebrate this morning. Leaving the upper room they all went forth to Gethsemane. As they wended their way down the slope toward the brook Kiddon, they came among the vines, which at this season of the year had just been pruned. Here it was that He uttered the words of our text, 'Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you'."

"We Must Emigrate," was the subject of the evening message. "This," said Mr. Allan "is a phrase that I came across in the course of my reading. It is to be found in a book entitled, 'The Next Life.' My hope is that I may be able to show in the course of this sermon that title and text suit each other well.

"The apostle says (II Tim., 4, 6), as a part of his farewell message to Timothy, 'the time of my departure is at hand.' He is about to leave the seen for the unseen; like an emigrant he is leaving the old world for the new. He is a voyager about to embark for the shores of a new sphere. Naturally, he has some regrets at having to leave many friends behind him, but his regret is tempered by the thought that the time will come when they, too, shall embark and He shall be there ahead of them to greet them when they arrive."

The music at the evening service was appropriate to the passing of one of the esteemed members of the congregation, Mrs. R. W. Davidson. The hymn, "Crossing the Bar" was sung by the choir: solo, "Nearer, My Qod to Thee" (Carey) by Miss LeBarr; and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," by Mrs. Byers and Harold Snelgrove, with choir; and Martin B. Chenhall's organ recital, preceding the service.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

ST. PAUL'S ANGLICAN.

MARMORA, December 15.—Good congregations are being seen at St. Paul's this advent season and Sunday's proved no exception to the rule. The service was brightened by the addition of the anthem "How long wilt Thou forget me, O God?" Mrs. F. S. Pearce took the solo part being assisted by Mr. W. M. Lester in the duet. The Rev. A. B Caldwell gave a profitable discourse from John 1, verses 7 and 8. He pointed out that the life of John the Baptist witnessed to the central fact of the deity of Christ and showed that the witness of the Scriptures contends against various erroneous conceptions of Christ to be met with to-day. In like manner as to John the Baptist, Jesus has given to the world assertions concerning Himself. We should pray that we might follow the footsteps of the Baptist in bearing witness to the truth concerning Jesus. Our individual life should have this witness "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away my sin"

The attendance at St. Paul's Sunday school on Sunday morning was the greatest in its history no less than eigthy one being present exceeding the record set two weeks ago by seven.

PERCY TOWNSHIP PIONEER PASSES

Late Samuel Black Came To Canada in 1850 at Age of 17.

A pioneer of Percy Township and one of the few nonagenarians in the County of Northumberland passed away at Warkworth, on Sunday, December 4, in the person of Samuel Black. The late Mr. Black was born in Antrim, Ireland, in August, 1833, and after a sea-voyage of many weeks in a sailing vessel he landed at Port Hope in 1850 at the age of 17. From Port Hope he made his way to Bowmanton and for several years was employed by the late George Isaacs.

In 1862 he married Miss Mary Sherwin, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sherwin of White's Landing. Shortly after his marriage he bought a farm near Bowmanton and after fifteen years' sojourn on this farm he purchased the homestead in Percy Township at present occupied by his son, James. Until a few years ago, when he came to Warkworth to reside with his daughter, Mrs. W. J. Harper, he successfully managed the farm, taking a keen interest in all things appertaining to farm life. The grain grown and the livestock raised by Mr. Black were of such a quality as to win many coveted prizes at the district fall fairs.

Each year on August 15th, the occasion of his birthday, his family and friends would gather in an annual picnic. This year on the occasion of the passing of his 94th milestone he was the youngest and gayest spirit of the party.

Mr. Black was blessed with an exceedingly robust constitution and until a few days before his death, he retained his faculties to a remarkable degree. He always took a keen interest in the affairs of the home, the church and the municipality and was always ready and willing to lend a helping hand to a brother in distress. As a result of his interest in the welfare of his fellow creatures, he leaves behind a wide circle of friends who regret his passing.

Honorary Director.

For many years, Mr. Black was an active worker for the Percy Agricultural Society, having been its president and at the time of his death, being numbered among the honorary directors of the association. The present success of the society is due in no small measure to the time and energy spent in its behalf by the late Mr. Black.

He was a Liberal in politics, and while not seeking political honors for himself, he always took an active interest in the affairs of the village, the township and the state. He was every ready to pass onward to those in search of information the result of experiences gained in a long and busy life.

At the time of his death, Mr. Black was a member of St. Paul's United Church, having transferred his membership from the Presbyterian Church at the time of Church Union. He was always a diligent worker in the cause of religion and his name will be included in the Honor Roll of those who did much to uphold the principles of Christianity in the community.

The funeral took place Tuesday at two o'clock, service being held at St. Paul's United Church and being conducted by Rev. W. W. Jones, pastor of St. Paul's, Rev. Lewis Fowler, pastor of Warkworth Presbyterian Church and Rev. Hammond of Comber, Ont., a former pastor of Warkworth Presbyterian Church. The church edifice was crowded with friends from far and near who came to pay homage to the useful life and sterling character of the deceased.

Surviving the late Mr. Black are two sons, Rev. J. A. Black, of Plainfield, Ont., and James H. Black of Warkworth; and four daughters, Mrs. W. J. Harper and Mrs. J. A. Armstrong, of Warkworth, Mrs. O. M. Alger of Oshawa, Ont., and Mrs. C. L. Cryderman of Toronto, Ont. His wife and a son, Dr. Geo. I. Black, predeceased him some years ago.

ALDERMEN VOTE AGAINST CLOSING

reiterated his opposition to offering it again.

Mayor Holloway declared his belief that the proper thing to do was to go down and close up the break. Ald. Greene suggested that a watchman would have to be stationed at the place to prevent the connection being made again, and Ald. Stocker proposed taking Provincial Constable Maker along while the work was being done.

Suit Suggested

That suit be entered against the township authorities to make them repair the break was proposed by Ald. McIntyre, but Ald. Hancock pointed out that the city was not sure the pipe was damaged as the hole would have to be made. The Mayor denied this, stated that other people had no business to put a hole in the city's pipe, but Mr. Wearing pointed out the difficulty in fixing the responsibility.

The payment of $156 by Mount St. Joseph for sewer connection was mentioned by the Mayor, who called attention to the fact that 100 children would attend the school and the charge of $100 would therefore be reasonable.

"We should do something; we should repair the pipe," was Ald. Macdonald's contention.

"We won't let those boys beat us," added the Mayor.

The suggestion that an interview with the Township Council might help matters was put forward by Ald. Greene, but the Mayor countered that it was not up to the city to run after the Monaghan people. "Stop it up," was Ald. Macdonald's verdict, and when someone said that the connection might be made again he added, "Keep on stopping it up."

"That it would cost us money as well," pointed out Ald. Greene, while Ald. Denne proposed trying to reach a settlement with the Township Council, saying that the city could take further action if necessary at the council meeting to be held on Monday. The Mayor advocated letting the Monaghan people come to the city, but Ald. Denne wanted the city to be above such a course. "We have them bound to the $100," added Ald. Hancock—"But are damaging our own sewer," retorted Ald. McIntyre.

"We can't prove damage," said Ald. Hancock, while Ald. Greene repeated his suggestion that the Monaghan Council be asked why such steps were taken.

That such action would seem to indicate that the township was not going to sign the agreement with the city was Ald. Phelan's conclusion, and Ald. Macdonald feared that the suburban people would laugh at the city if any peaceful steps were taken. Ald. McIntyre brought the discussion to a close when he declared:

"Speaking as a citizen of Peterborough, I move that we close it up at once." Ald. Macdonald seconded the motion, saying, "We have used Monaghan right, and this is what we get."

Ald. Denne moved that a committee interview Monaghan Council, and Ald. Greene seconded his amendment.

The vote was:

For the amendment: Aldermen Denne, Greene, Hancock, and Cotton.

Against: Aldermen McIrtyre, Macdonald, Mayor Holloway, and Alderman Phelan.

Ald. Stocker announced his support of the amendment as he wanted to pursue the reasonable course.

Police Dog Found On Chief's Verandah

CAMPBELLFORD, December 15. — Mons, the thoroughbred German police dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Nadoo was missing yesterday morning. At first no serious thought was taken of the matter, but later it developed that the dog might have been stolen. A search for the dog was at once instituted. Reports of his having been seen at various placed all proved false clues until Mons was discovered doing duty on Chief Light's verandah later in the day.

Just what connection there is between the local or any other police is not known, but Mons is a thoroughbred and closely related to the world-famous Strongheart of the movies. He is an exceptionally intelligent canine, and is highly prized by his owners. Another circumstance worthy of note is the fact that Bobs, one time playmate of Mons, disappeared or was killed two years ago exactly. Mr. Nadoo wonders whether this circumstance had anything to do with Mons' disappearance yesterday.

HERO OF TRANS-ATLANTIC HOP

gave one searching, piercing glance into that aide's face. One felt it would have gone hard with that officer if he had been mistaken in the information he gave the president. Then, completely accepting the information as genuine, Calles' face became transformed instantly from sombreness to positive radiance. He glowed; he laughed aloud. For hours he had been declining food.

"Bring me a sandwich," he declared. "Give me a drink."

He munched and gulped, and then stopped to cheer. Rarely if ever has Calles been known so to betray his feelings publicly.

It demonstrated the depths to which he must have been moved during those hours when he feared that the gallant youth he had caused to fly to Mexico by presidential invitation might have found tragedy awaiting him somewhere behind those mighty mountain ranges.

Embraces Flier.

A few minutes later, after the airman had landed and reached the presidential box, Senor Calles did not content himself merely with shaking hands. The president gave the lone eagle a "full embrace," that is, a full hug, throwing both arms about Lindy's shoulders and patting him affectionately.

Colonel Lindbergh looked a little flustered. Ambassador Morrow seemed just as happy as it is given to men to be in this world.

The crowd by this time was surging by the thousands in front of the presidential stand. They cheered and yelled louder than before if that could be possible. They demanded 'Lindy,' nothing would do them but Lindy. So the youthful birdman, upon the arm of the president, advanced to the edge of the platform and waved and smiled. And the crowd seemed quite as happy as the president and the ambassador.

When Lindbergh's plane struck the dry sun-baked field covered with grass which had been burned brown under blistering rays, and taxied across that parched surface, it kicked up great clouds of dust—a perfect screen enveloping the plane and completely shutting it from sight of the stand and the spectators. Instantly thousands dashed through the lines of soldiers and police, swarmed over the field and darted in pursuit. And then both crowds and plane were hidden in the dust clouds, which prevented the scattered military guardians from seeing those who were chasing the Spirit of St. Louis and its pilot. Thus they became powerless to accomplish what they had promised to do at all costs—keep the crowds from Lindbergh.

SHIP'S COOK KNOWN IN CAMPBELLFORD

Miss Nellie Grafton of Kamloops Sister of Mrs. Bonsteel.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 15.—The tragedy of the packet steamer Kamloops, of the Canada Steamship Lines, has reached Campbellford. The steamer has been reported missing since the recent gales and it is feared that it has foundered with all hands on board. Numbered among the crew of the ship was Miss Nellie Grafton, stewardess. She is a sister of Mrs. Bonsteel of this town. For some years past Mr. Bonsteel has been conducting a very successful grocery business on the west side of the river. Both he and Mrs. Bonsteel have a host of friends in town and much anxiety is being felt for the safety of Miss Grafton.

Although there have been many reports concerning the whereabouts of the Kamloops in the press the latest information is that it is aground on the rocks off Keeweenaw Point. Whether the crew is still on board and intact is not known but investigations of the report are underway. So far Mr. Bonsteel has heard no word of his missing relative. Messages from the agents of the company at Montreal and Fort William have advised him of the probable disaster and the company has stated that they will communicate with him any details of the crew which may come to their attention.

Discuss Business For Next Session

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Premier Mackenzie King had no announcement to make yesterday following the meeting of the Cabinet Council. The session had been purely a routine one, declared the Prime Minister, the Cabinet discussing the business of the next session of Parliament which opens on January 26. It was unlikely, he said, that the members who would move and second the address in reply to the speech from the Throne would be named until after the New Year.

Above is shown how the United States yacht Vidor, left, which slipped out of Montreal harbor in an effort to evade the serving of a writ of attachment taken out by the Canadian National Railways in connection with damage done to the Black bridge over the Lachine canal, when the Vidor crashed into it. When the Vidor reached Quebec, the master, Captain Stokes, refused to allow the pilot, Leona Gendron, to go ashore. The latter leaped overboard, and 10 minutes later was picked up by a pilot launch. The Vidor proceeded downstream. As soon as the department of marine and fisheries learned of the incident the cruiser Margaret, right, and the marine and fisheries patrols, Beebe, Belaire and Montcalm were sent in pursuit which continued for several days, the Vidor making good her escape.

The end of the year for the Junior W. A. of St. John's church was celebrated with a very jolly Christmas party. When the teachers were preparing the refreshments the children had a very enjoyable program upstairs in the main hall of the parish. Several recitations were given by the small tots, special mention being made of Dorothy Boormans selections. Jean Nicholls a very pretty solo and was loudly applauded. Dorothy Pitchford gave several piano solos which were much enjoyed. An excellent number on the program was a solo dance by Sophie Yeotes. This received great applause. At the conclusion of the programme the children went downstairs for the delicious supper prepared for them under the direction of Mesdames Deyman and Mann. The tables were decorated with red and green streamers and looked very attractive with red candles. After supper games were played.

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1927.

Until late in the day the planetary government is threatening according to astrology, which finds the aspects adverse.

It is a day rather unfavorable to certain lines of trade making for depression and discouragement, which soon will pass.

Merchants should profit reasonable from this sway, which will bring much activity later.

For all sorts of transportation the rule of the stars is most stimulating, and there will be unprecedented travel in the next few months.

The sway today continues rather sinister for airplanes and automobiles, both of which will focus widespread attention.

If the seers are to be believed new inventions are to affect motor-cars, bringing losses and disappointments as well as great benefits.

This direction of the stars is read as rather menacing for certain branches of the motion picture industry.

Theatres may expect a dull period to be followed by big business, astrologers foretell.

For a year prognostications of devastating floods and storms of various sorts have been made by the seers, who now forecast a winter of unprecedented severity in many states.

Conflicts of opinion are to be presented, regarding the proper observance of Christmas, both before and after the great holiday, if the stars are to be believed.

Many weddings will take place this month, which should be lucky for all who marry under the right planetary aspects.

Much work for the Red Cross and other philanthropic organizations is foretold, for the elements will cause much human suffering.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of great success and happiness in the coming year.

Children born on this day probably will enjoy financial success. Promoters and persons who develop big enterprises are born under this sign.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"That's easy," Faith smiled at Nils as she rose impulsively. "If you really want to talk with me, we can go into the sun parlor. It's very cozy in there. Bob, my husband, uses it as a sort of office, you know."

When they were comfortable on a cretonne-cushioned wicker settee in the sun parlor, Nils plunged into his subject with startling abruptness:

"Mrs. Hathaway, I have asked Cherry to marry me. I wanted you to know immediately." His incredibly blue eyes met her amazed brown ones unflinchingly.

"But—Nils," Faith gasped. "You never saw her until last night! How can you possibly know—"

"Pardon me!" Nils' deep, cello-like voice interrupted her with gentle deference. "I have seen her before—many times. I attended her trial for murder, every day of it, because I loved her."

"But, Nils, I don't understand," Faith protested, sinking back against the cushions helplessly. "Suppose you tell me all about it. I'm really overcome."

The blonde young giant in perfect evening clothes leaned forward, his tightly clasped hands swinging between his knees.

"I'm twenty-six years old," he began abruptly. "I have never been in love with any other girl. I fell in love with Cherry when I found her picture in a paper which announced her engagement to old Mr. Cluny. It was terrible. I suffered," he said simply. "Then when she eloped with Chris Wiley and was accused of murdering Mr. Cluny I could not bear it, for every picture they printed of her made me love her more. I came here to attend the trial. The sheriff is a relative of my dead mother. He got me a pass to the courtroom and I never missed a session. But there was nothing I could do. I would have given my life to save her, if she had been convicted, but she did not even know I existed. When you and Mr. Hathaway discovered the real murderer I was almost insane with joy, but—she was married. I went back to my farm. I should like you to see my farm," he interrupted himself, smiling at her with sudden, boyish enthusiasm. "I am very proud of it."

"I hope I shall see it," Faith said softly.

"You shall," he promised her, laughing with sudden exultation. "For I'm going to marry Cherry, and her sister will always be welcome."

Faith sat erect, her face blooming richly with hope. If Cherry was going to marry Nils, then she and Bob would be alone, alone!

"Has she accepted you, Nils?" she cried. "I—why, I can't believe it! It's all too fantastic!"

"No, she hasn't accepted me—yet," Nils admitted, his smile as brilliant as ever. "But she will. I asked her at luncheon today. She was very angry at first and then she laughed at me and ran away. It was very good—her running away. She knows I will win. I told her so."

Faith herself wanted to laugh at his sublime young conceit but she found, strangely enough, that there were tears in her eyes and a lump in her throat.

"Have you told her all you've told me?" she asked gently.

"But, no, of course not!" Nils seemed amazed at the question. "You see, it is not good for Cherry to know I care so much. She is very much spoiled—our Cherry. I told her I did not like her very much but that I thought she would make a good farmer's wife. It was then she ran away."

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BEAR'S NOSE

"What are you laughing at?" the Bear asked Uncle Wiggily as the rabbit gentleman sat down on a snow covered log and giggled at the shaggy chap. "What are you laughing at?" the hungry Bear growled.

"At you," answered the rabbit and he did not seem at all afraid. "It's so funny!"

"What is funny about me?" asked the Bear. "If you don't look out I will bite you and that will not be at all funny to you."

"No, I suppose not!" chuckled Mr. Longears.

"See how wide I can open my mouth to bite!" snarled the Bear.

"Ah, very interesting. I'm very—"

The bear opened his mouth very wide.

murmured the rabbit. "Would you mind opening your mouth a bit wider, if you please?" Uncle Wiggily was as polite as a dentist. "Ah! That's better. I see you have two of them."

"Two what?" growled the Bear.

"Two gold teeth," answered the rabbit, "and they will do very nicely to cover these pine tree cones with gold so Baby Bunty can have them to comb out the hair of her doll Shooie, I might add," went on Uncle Wiggily, taking from his pocket a buttonhook, "I might add that Shooie is the doll's name because she has shoe buttons for eyes."

"That makes no difference to me!" snarled the Bear.

"Oh, but it does to me!" said Uncle Wiggily. You see," he went on, "I came out to these woods to look for a gold comb to give Baby Bunty so she could get the tangles out of Shooie's hair. Shooie is ill, and the doctor said the only thing that would cure her would be a gold comb for her hair. So I told Bunty I'd get her one."

"What in the world are you talking about?" asked the Bear. "It's all a puzzle to me."

"You should have read the Bedtime Story last night, and then you would know!" laughed Mr. Longears. "It isn't my fault if you didn't. Anyhow, as I was saying, I found these pine tree cones which will do nicely for combs, only they aren't gold, the way they should be. But when I saw you coming, with your mouth wide open and your gold teeth showing, I thought at once, how I could take the gold out of your teeth and put it on these pine tree cones and make Baby Bunty's doll well."

"And do you mean to tell me," snarled the Bear, "do you mean to say you are going to pull out my gold teeth to make doll's combs?"

"Certainly I am!" said Uncle Wiggily firmly. "I have brought this buttonhook along on purpose to pull out your gold teeth. Now open your mouth real wide and—"

The Bear was so surprised that he did open his mouth very wide. Uncle Wiggily hopped toward him, with the buttonhook held out and then, all of a sudden, the Bear howled:

"Oh, no! I couldn't stand it! I never could let you pull out my gold teeth. I prize them too highly. Don't pull out my gold teeth!" and he actually began to shiver, perhaps with the cold but more likely with fear. The Bear never knew Uncle Wiggily could be so brave.

"Yes, I'm going to pull out your gold teeth!" cried the rabbit, hopping closer with the buttonhook. And then, all of a sudden, Mr. Longears reached up, and instead of pulling out the Bear's gold teeth, the rabbit rubbed one of the hard, rough, scritchie scratchie pine tree cones on the soft and tender nose of the Bear. The rabbit had to hop up on a stump to scratch the Bear's nose, but he scratched it good and hard and the Bear howled:

"Oh! Wow! Ouch! Oh, this is worse than having my teeth pulled! Oh dear me!" and off down the hill he ran, scuffle, shuffle with his short tail tucked close in between his legs.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, as the Bear with the scratched nose ran away. "Ha! Ha! That was a good trick I played on him! And of course I wasn't going to pull out his gold teeth. I was only fooling about that, but he believed me. Well, it's a good thing he did, or else he might have bitten me. It's lucky I found these pine cones."

He looked at the two cones he had picked up to give Baby Bunty as combs for her doll's tangled hair.

"But they aren't gold, so I suppose they won't do," sighed Mr. Longears. "Bunty said, very particularly, that the combs must be of gold or else Shooie would not get well. Dear me! How can I make these combs become golden?" And then, all of a sudden, there was a rustling sound in the bushes behind the rabbit. Quickly he jumped around as a voice cried: "I'll show you!" And then Mr. Longears said: "Oh! my goodness!" For he saw a very strange sight.

BECAUSE women feared them, and because they presented endless opportunity for embarrassment, old-time sanitary "pads" had to go. Now one goes about for hours, wears sheerest frocks and gowns under the most severe hygienic difficulty without a moment's fear.

Kotex is a new-found scientific protection that virtually 8 in 10 better-class women now employ.

Filled with Cellucotton wadding, science's remarkable, new super-absorbent, it is 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads. Also, it deodorizes while it acts. AND—you discard it easily as tissue; no laundry, no embarrassment!

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Fashion has found a new place for the ornament. This black velour hat attains distinction by having the mother-of-pearl pin thrust through the back of the crown.

The hat ornament is as much a matter of course now as the hatpin was a generation ago. And while a really attractive hat ornament may be worn for several seasons, every season brings forth new types and new ways of wearing them.

The idea this season seems to be that no sort of ornament is too precious for one's hat, and while no one would have thought of using diamonds and emeralds, rubies and other precious stones in a mere hat ornament a season or so ago—a number of very well dressed women today are wearing brooches on their hats that gleam and sparkle with the unmistakable fire of real gems. In the meantime, however, a good type of strass or paste ornament is in perfectly good form.

I know of some women who have given up wearing imitation jewels of any sort. Not having diamond hat ornaments they content themselves with cut-out silver or mother-of-pearl. In fact, mother-of-pearl is decidedly smart at the present time and one of the smartest of new hats is a soft, closely draped shape of soleil velours with a dagger shaped ornament of mother-of-pearl not thrust in at the front but high at the back—so that from a front view it is not to be seen at all. At least this arrangement has the advantage of novelty.

Meantime rhinestone hat ornaments are still much in evidence and they are to be seen in all sorts of quaint and amusing shapes. One little ornament represented a basket with the top partly open and from it protruding the head and long neck of a goose. To suit other fancies there are lizards, cats, dogs, horses, Pierrots, beetles and birds of all descriptions. One unusual little hat ornament consists of an elaborately jeweled swan-like bird with bits of real plumage inserted for the wings.

Taking up the question of draft, both the American and National Leagues decided upon the course of action they will pursue in the joint session today. Judge Landis means, while conferred with minor league owners and will meet them in a body at 10 a.m. today.

NO STALLING TO BE ALLOWED

Referees Instructed To Stop Players From "Killing Time."

O.H.A. MEETING.

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — It was mentioned at the annual meeting of the O.H.A. referees held at the Prince George Hotel that no changes had been made in the rules, it being the policy of the association not to tinker with the rules and confuse the public and the players.

President George B McKay, of the O.H.A, was in the chair and asked the referees to pay particular attention to keeping the play clean and to impress upon the junior players the need of playing the puck at all times. President McKay thought too many of the junior players were started wrong and that they very often gained the erroneous impression that their greatest need to get along in the hockey world was the knowledge of how to "get" the other fellow. If they were started in the right way they would make good hockey players.

Every clause in the rules and instructions to referees was gone over carefully by Secretary W. A. Hewitt, and official rulings were made where there was any ambiguity or doubt.

No Stalling Allowed.

The O.H.A. does not propose to allow stalling or ragging the puck by teams when forced to play short-handed owing to penalties. The referees were instructed to make the teams play hockey and that when they attempted to waste time to stop play, and face the puck at centre for the second offense to face the puck at the offending team's 60-foot blue line and for the third offence right in front of the goal.

Next season it is likely that a rule will be introduced whereby a team in the lead will not be permitted to shoot the puck the length of the ice as a defensive measure in last few minutes or at any other time to offset determined attacks of the trailing team. The rule, if adopted will read that defenders must carry the puck out of the defending zone before shooting. Otherwise the puck will be faced off where the foul occurred.

No Anti-Defence Rule.

It was suggested that an anti-defence rule might be serviceable but it was decided that in view of the fact that there is no centre ice area and that the coaches haven't followed the example of the professional tutors in using one and two man attacks, that the time is not ripe for the introduction of this rule. However in the future this menace creeps into amateur hockey the Ontario Association heads will know how to deal with the matter.

It was decided that when the puck is being faced off in the defending zone that the defending player facing off must not kick the puck. It would be an unfair advantage for the defenders. Of course if the puck has been played by use of the stick, a kick by defending player then becomes legal.

When an attacking player makes a foul or an offside near the opposing team's net the puck will be faced off halfway between the net and the side of the rink and 15 feet away from the goal line. If the offense is made by the defenders in front of the net the puck will be faced off ten feet directly in front of the net. This rule applies when goalkeepers fall on the puck.

Interference will be frowned on in future and players checking back will be prevented from coming in bodily contact with opposing players who are not in possession of the puck.

The Body-Checking Rule.

A body check can be delivered while skating at a slow rate of speed or while standing still and by use of the hip or the side of the body. The stick will have to be held to the side and not used in a cross checking way. Body checks are permissible only in the defending zone.

Clubs having coaches will have to apply to the O.H.A. for permits for these tutors. A professional athlete may be allowed to act as coach and sit on the bench if he is not receiving remuneration for his services.

When facing off the left side of the players must be toward their opponents' net and they must keep the blades of their sticks on the ice until the referee drops the puck.

There has been an erronous impression that in order to skate a man onside the player doing the passing would have to skate ahead until even with the puck. It was explained that the passer must only overtake his teammate.

Accidental Trips.

A trip is considered accidental if the defending player gets his stick on the puck, but if he is in such a position that he cannot reach the puck and he then trips a puck-carrier he has earned a penalty. Players hurdling must take their own chances unless checkers have been detected lifting their sticks to aid in the attackers fall.

If teams go into overtime and one refuses to continue it will be charged with defeat. If both agree to cease play both will be charged with reverses.

When an offside play is committed by the defending side and from within the defending area the puck will be faced on the 60-foot line.

Only the captain will be permitted to talk to the referee. This holds good in all cases, including disputed goals. Players ignoring this rule will be penalized.

Goalkeepers' pads must measure only ten inches, and no leniency will be shown. If other pads cannot be secured the onus rests with the club at fault and the net guardian will have to make the best of a bad situation.

Those Present.

In addition to President McKay and Secretary Hewitt, Past President William Easson of Stratford, honorary member P. J. Mulqueen, and Alvin Schlegel of Preston, a member of the O.H.A. Executive Committee, the following referees were present:—M. J. Rodden, Toronto; F. R. Lishman, Hamilton; R. C. Puddicombe, New Hamburg; Steve Vair, Toronto; Herb Matthews, Toronto; L. W. Appel, Tavistock; Eugene Dopp, Toronto; Lou Walker, Toronto; E. V. Ramey, Simcoe; Gerald Goodman, London; Bob Armstrong, Toronto; Doug. With Harry Wismer in charge at Kitchener, "Dad" Ashley at Preston, Mike Pearson at Varsity, Harry Watson at Marlboros and Ed. Wright at Peterborough, the O.H.A. senior clubs will not lack for leaders of experience or ability.—Toronto Star.

Garden Club To Give Huge Banquet For Champions In Major League Sports

NEW YORK, N.Y., December 15 (Associated Press). — For the purpose of demonstrating a deep interest in sports other than boxing, the Madson Square Garden Club, commonly known as the "600 millionaires," announced yesterday that a banquet will be tendered champions in all major sports on January 4. Outstanding representatives of five sports already have informed a committee headed by Charles H. Schwab ,steel king, and Walter Chrysler, automobile magnate, that they will attend the banquet.

Acceptances have been received, the announcement said, from "Big Bill" Tilden, outstanding tennis player; Johnny Weissmuller, swimming champion; Devereaux Milburn, polo star; Gene Tunney, heavyweight boxing champion; and Babe Ruth, home run monarch. No reply has yet been received from Bobby Jones, golf king.

Close to 800 sportsmen are expected to attend. The announcement declared that Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives, would be the principal speaker of the evening, along with Mr. Charles Schwab, while James Walker, Mayor of New York, has agreed to act as toastmaster.

PROMOTERS LOOK FOR RECORD GATE

Estimated That Gate Will Reach the $30,000 Mark.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—There is little chance that the Ontario commission will have to follow the example of the Detroit boxing authorities and levy fines on the principals next Monday night for indifferent work during the bout. This was done the other night in a contest at the D.A.C. while the affair was in progress, one battler being assessed $250 at the close of one round when the action was not at all what the official thought it should be. It is said that the Detroit body intend making a regular practice of this sort of thing.

At that it is not a bad idea, but Playfair Brown hardly thinks that it will be necessary to do anything quite so drastic when Ernie Jarvis and Frenchy Belanger start throwing padded fists at each other on Monday night.

There will not be a repetition of the mob scenes which marred the pleasure of many of the fans on the occasion of the Belanger-Genaro encounter if it can be in any way avoided. Tuesday the officers of the Shamrock club, members of the Ontario commission, and the parks department inspected the Coliseum and made every provision for the handling of the record crowd which is expected to attend the title tilt on Monday.

All the entrances will be available for this show instead of only four or five as was the case a few weeks ago when the jam was terrific. With every indication of an even larger turnout for the Jarvis-Belanger battle the precaution is justified.

The sale has already passed the $6,000 mark. At 6.30 on the evening of the bout the general admission tickets will be placed on sale, thus giving the dollar boys plenty of time to get their places.

It is estimated that the gross gate will be in the neighborhood of $30,000, which if it is reached will be a record either for an indoor or outdoor show in Canada.

OUTSIDE PLAYERS ALLOWED TEAMS

The Ladies' Basketball League Rescinds Rule of Last Meeting.

A special meeting of the Ladies' Basketball Association was held at the Y.W.C.A. last evening, every team being represented. The meeting was called to discuss the ruling of the last meeting that no player not connected with the organization she represented was eligible to play on that team. Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, the honorary president, was present, and spoke a few words in regard to this question, saying that as an interested follower of girls' basketball, she did not see how it would work out if teams were allowed outside players, as this would not protect any team. She extended to the girls her wishes for a successful season. This question was voted on and the majority voted against it. Each team can now have outside players. As this was the only business of the evening, the meeting then adjourned.

Must Stop Rowdyism At Pro Hockey Games

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—The hockey fan's method of voicing his displeasure of a referee's decision by hurling rubbish on to the ice will be met with summary police action in the future in this city at least, Manager George V. Brown of the Boston Arena and President Charles F. Adams of the Boston National Hockey League Club decided yesterday.

The shower of papers, coins, fruit and other rubbish which three times halted Tuesday night's Bruins-New York Rangers' match when Referee Mickey Ion's decisions aroused the ire of the fans, yesterday drew a joint statement from the hockey moguls announcing "immediate action to stop for all time the throwing of objects on the ice during the progress of hockey games at the arena."

"Any person, in the future, who commits this offence will immediately be ejected from the building by the ushers and the police and if they resist such action will be prosecuted as well for the offence and refused further admission to hockey games this season," the statement said.

Season ticket holders will not be exempt from action, and the edict will be effective for both National and Canadian-American League contests.

Questions and Answers.

Question: L. E. H. writes: "I have a brother who has been sick with tuberculosis for over a year. He has been in a sanitarium for six months and still is no better. In fact, he is getting weaker. What would you suggest for him to do?"

Answer: It would be unwise for me to attempt to advise you about your brother's case, as,of course, I cannot examine him or diagnose his case through the columns of this paper. My theories about the treatment of tuberculosis are very different from those practiced in the average sanitarium. For example, he has probably been kept in bed and stuffed on too much food. My plan would be for him to take light exercises such as walking, and decrease the quantity of food, using only those foods of the finest quality, with no effort being made to increase his weight. I have written a great deal on this subject, and will be glad to send you any literature you wish if you will only send me your name and address.

Question: H. T. asks: "Is stale bread easier digested than fresh? If so, why

Answer: The reason why stale bread is digested more readily than fresh is because it requires thorough mastication and insalivation due to its dryness. There is no less starch in stale bread, however, and if one is attempting to avoid so much starchy food it is best to toast the stale bread completely through in order to dextrinize every part.

Question: M. P. K. asks: "Is there any remedy to stop a white coating around the eyes every morning? Seems to be caked on the lashes."

Answer: Use some good eye wash two or three times daily, and have your eyes examined by a competent optometrist.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE FRIENDS ONE NEEDS

Here are the friends a fellow needs:
A few kind friends to wink at deeds
A fellow does, some foolish blunder;
And then what other friends, I wonder?
A few close friends, in age or youth,
To whom he dares to tell the truth,
Some patient friends to hear his troubles
And help repair his shattered bubbles.

These friends he needs, and needs some more:
A lot of friends to find his door,
To come and fill his house with laughter;
Then two or three to linger after,
To sit and smoke the final smoke,
Finish the food, repeat the joke,
Yes, when the casual friend's a rover,
A few to stay and talk things over.

He needs another friend or so,
A few rich friends, they're nice to know.
He needs some old friends, tried and true friends,
And now and then a few good new friends.
But how shall any man acquire
All of the friends that men desire?
Why, it is very simple, brothers:
By being all these things to others.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

PHYLLIS HAVER HAS RECIPE FOR SCREEN SUCCESS—HARD WORK.

Rising within a few years from the ranks of a Sennett bathing beauty in slapstick comedy ,to the dignity of a screen comedienne Phyllis Haver is to-day one of the most popular figures of the American screen. Is there any better recipe for screen fame?

When Emil Jannings, the famous German screen star, saw her in "What Price Glory," he insisted that she be given a leading role in his production, "The Way of All Flesh." And now she is featured in the new Metropolitan comedy, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary."

The story of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," now playing at the Regent theatre ,deals with an old woman who thinks herself ready for the tomb ,but who is rejuvenated by her nephew with the aid of her up-to-date nurse portrayed by Miss Haver. The nephew is in a distant city presumably studying to become a physician ,and Aunt Mary is paying all expenses. He devotes most of the money sent him by Auntie to the perfection of an automobile motor.

In order to raise $2,000 to perfect the motor ,the nephew writes Auntie that he has opened a sanitarium and named it after her. She sends the money and announces her intention to visit the hospital. Then the fun begins, for to deceive her, the nephew forces his friends to become patients for the duration of her visit.

Payne, the president, was in the chair, and reported that the deputation to the village council had secured the use of the council chamber for the second Wednesday of each month gratis.

Mrs. Leslie Harrison presented a comprehensive report of the convention in Toronto, which was much appreciated as Mrs. Harrison had devoted a great deal of time to its preparation and had made it very interesting.

Mrs. J. W. Ridpath and Miss Graham read papers on "Christmas Cheer," presenting various aspects of the seasonable theme.

It was decided to send a parcel to the House of Refuge for the aged who are spending the evening of their lives there.

Rev. W) J. Creighton, M.A., delivered a pleasing address on the "Christmas Season; its privileges and its obligations."

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, who is coveted by hideous Count Ravoir. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoir. She rejoins Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The King plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating. Manon is sent to be deported. Fabien kills Ravoir, and follows the prison caravan.

CHAPTER XX—Continued.

The woman laughed raucously. She was one of the group who, to use her own words: "Don't care a hang about being deported to America—men are just the same, no matter what side of the ocean they live on—besides a change of scene is stimulating."

Manon shuddered—it was all so horrible that it hardly seemed possible that she could be alive. Forgetting her own sorrow she reached over and tenderly patted the girl's hand—the one who dreaded leaving her baby.

Manon was the picture of abject despair. Her hair was mussed, the prison uniform was too large and her tear stained cheeks were blotched from dust that the great wooden wheels threw into her face. She had been assigned to a seat at the front end of the cart, almost directly over the shafts. It was dusty but preferable to the close interior where women were crowded together without any consideration for their comfort.

Fabien discerned the little caravan from a distance and immediately cut across a field which brought him out at a bend of the road just as the cortege drew near.

The guards saw nothing terrifie in his approach, however they had been cautioned that no one was to molest their progress, so the leader shouted, 'Get out of the road there—we're in a hurry."

"It is not my purpose to stop you, gentlemen," corrected Fabien, "I would like to proceed with you."

"We have strict orders to watch the prisoners," continued the chief. "But you seem a harmless young man and we will relax in our duty for a while—provided you can make it worth while."

"I have only about sixteen pistoles in my purse," replied Fabien regretfully.

"In that case we shall act generously," offered the chief. "It shall only cost you a crown an hour for conversing with any of our girls that you may prefer—that is the ordinary price in Paris."

Fabien made a payment and was permitted to peer into the caravans unmolested. He was searching for Manon, although the guards did not suspect that he had a passion for any particular girl. They imagined his interest was the indulgence of a boyish whim and that any creature would do for an hour's amusement.

Fabien saw Manon seated in front of the second van. It would be impossible to describe the torment her dejected appearance caused him. For a few paces he followed along, gazing at her in mute agony before he called, "Manon!" in a flood of lost self control.

"My darling!" Manon recognized his voice before she saw him and unconsciously tried to leap from the wagon, but the chain checked her and she fell back in her former position.

Fabien jumped up on the shafts and gathered Manon in a close embrace. She cried for joy and he could feel her tears mingling with his. They were both so overcome that for a long time neither uttered a word. After so much doubt and anxiety it was enough just to be together. Their future was so hopeless that it was better not to talk bout it.

Grief and shame had taken a deep hold on Manon and she was ashamed to look into Fabien's eyes.

"You know that they are sending me on the ship to a penal colony in Louisiana?" she asked tremulously.

"Yes—" Fabien's hands held her tight.

"I am glad to have seen you before I go!" Manon was crying.

"My dear—I am going too. No power on earth can separate us again. I will find a way to sail on your ship." The desire to comfort Manon and stay with her had made Fabien forget for a moment that he was wanted for treason and murder.

She was so grateful for his devotion that a flood of tender emotion almost overcame her. She marveled at Fabien's excessive love and could not understand how she had been fortunate enough to have inspired such a perfect passion.

"What happened to Andre? He tried to help me." There was a note of pride in Manon's voice.

"My dear, I know." Fabien dreaded the task ahed of him. "He sent you his love and asked me to look out for you."

"Was he captured for working against the King?" she asked anxiously.

"Worse than that, Manon. He was—"

"No!" she cried in anticipation. "Not—"

"Yes, darling." Fabien crushed her to him and spoke very softly into her ear. "He died trying to help you."

Burning tears welled up in her eyes and a great lump filled her throat. She could not talk and was grateful for Fabien's silent sympathy. She knew that he understood how she felt about her big brother, whom she had loved and who betrayed her. Fabien did not have the heart to add to her grief by saying it was the Comte's cowardly sword that took his life.

The jolting of the wagon made Manon miserably uncomfortable. Her face was colorless and her eyes had become circled with great lavender rings that made Fabien's heart ache. In a tender effort to give her a little rest he removed his coat and rolling it into a long pillow effect had her lean against it from her chained position.

All the other women in the van were diverted—each in her own way—by this last minute love making enroute to the ship.

When the guards discovered that Fabien was interested in the prettiest girl on the chains they demanded payment every time he spoke. Consequently his thin purse was speedily emptied. He was riding on the shafts at Manon's feet when a mounted guard drew rein alongside again and said, "We got to have some more money for your fare!"

"I have given you all I have." Fabien's voice seemed to imply that he was sorry, but it had no effect.

"Well, you can't ride for nothing—get off!" The butt end of a musket emphasized the command.

There was no alternative. With a reassuring pressure on Manon's hands, Fabien whispered that he would follow along, then he jumped off the wagon and stood at the roadside until the last van had passed. Unmindful of the clouds of dust, he followed along, reconciled to whatever destiny fate had in store just as long as it left him free to live and love with Manon.

The sun was terrifically hot and directly overhead when the little procession from the Magdalen Prison arrived on the wharf at Havre.

A pitiful crowd, composed of heart-broken mothers, wondering children, sympathetic friends and remorseful sweethearts, were there to bid the unfortunate women a tearful goodbye as final and more tragic than death. No one who had been deported ever came back!

The carts were driven out to the head of the largest wharf and the guards ordered the chained women to "Get out!"

Cramped and tired—broken in body as well as spirit—they stood in a pitiful line, as far apart as the heavy iron chain would permit, while their loved ones gathered around them in small, close groups.

The disconsolate young mother cradled her baby Jean in her arms for the last time and moaned about the injustice of separation.

The hardened sinner, who had no regrets about deportation, looked over all the different groups and sneered. She was the only woman in the entire line who had neither friends nor relatives to weep at her misfortune. She stood alone. A woman whom France considered a menace and no longer wanted, a woman who had given her beauty, her youth and her ardor to men of the nobility and to others; to men who, after ruining her life dropped her as they would an empty sack by the roadside. No wonder she appeared cynical, but at heart she was still the woman she would like to have been. She laughed boisterously, all to herself, to keep the lump down in her throat and the tears out of her eyes. "God, it's cruel!" she thought, and laughed again.

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — XXXII — by Nicholas Afonsky

Santos-Dumont meanwhile developed a biplane glider with an eight-cylinder motor, in which he rose from the water in 1906 and flew 200 feet. This was the first officially recorded European airplane flight. In 1908 the Wrights—Orville in America, Wilbur in France—began a series of flights.

Henry Farman, an Englishman living in France, made one of the early records. He had a big reputation as an automobile racer when he turned his attention to flying. In 1908, in a 1400-pound Voisin machine, he made the first recorded flight of an airplane carrying a passenger.

Glenn Curtiss, who was in many bicycle races and made the first motorcycles, became associated with Alexander Graham Bell and other scientists in aerial experiment. In 1908 in the June Bug he made the first previously announced flight and won the Scientific American trophy.

On September 12, 1908, the first recorded airplane fatality occurred, when Orville Wright, flying at Fort Myer, near Washington, D. C., had some sort of accident that sent his plane crashing to the ground. Wright was not badly hurt, but his passenger, Lieutenant Selfridge, was killed.

tuted an additional reason why the institution should be maintained in Peterborough.

Again, the laboratory had done great public service to the entire area by its water tests. It had been suspected in the past that the water of certain streamlets and wells was unwholesome and the work of the laboratory was invaluable in discriminating between those good for drinking and those that were to be avoided.

As was the case at the forenoon session the consideration of the question was held behind closed doors. The members of the deputation declared that they received very sympathetic hearing from the ministers, who indeed seemed to be as pleased as their Peterboro visitors at the upshot of the meeting.

Moral Effect Stressed.

It was evident when the discussion was resumed that the points raised in the forenoon had made an impression on the minds of the ministers, especially of Dr. Godfrey. The moral effect of the presence of the laboratory on the medical practicioners of the city, was especially stressed in the afternoon. The laboratory, as one of the physicians said at the close of the conference, "Kept the doctors of the city on their toes." Reference was again made to the geographical position of Peterborough and to the comparatively poor transportation services that were available between the city and Toronto. It was pointed out that the constituency served by the laboratory in Peterborough covered a wide area. In serving places like Apsley, it was said Peterborough was far enough away, with but one stage regularly communicating between the two localities, without throwing on the rural doctor the burden of the additional journey he would have to make to Toronto if the laboratory were removed from Peterborough.

Although the deputation had made a valiant fight to get the Minister to rescind entirely the order for withdrawal and to place the laboratory on its former footing, it was evident after the discussion was in progress some time that concessions would have to be made on the part of the city

The Minister and Deputy Minister were both in great good humor at the successful result of the effort on both sides to meet half way, and were evidently thoroughly satisfied that the agreement was just to all parties concerned.

Dr. Godfrey accompanied his guests to the door of the office, and the farewell greetings were particularly cordial on both sides.

WEDDING BELLS

EARNSHAW—TUCKER.

A pretty wedding took place last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Zach. Tucker, when her daughter Charlotte became the bride of William Earnshaw, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. W. Ogden. In the evening a reception was held which was very largely attended, the capacity of the house being severely taxed, especially during the dancing. Dainty freshments were served about midnight and a most enjoyable time was spent. The presents to the bride and bridegroom were quite numerous, besides many gifts of money. Mr. and Mrs. Earnshaw went to Toronto for the honeymoon.

OLD MASTERS

She sat and wept beside His feet; the weight
Of sin oppressed her heart; for all the blame,
And the poor malice of the worldly shame,
To her was past, extinct, and out of date:
Only the sin remained—the leprous state;
She would be melted by the heat of love,
By fires far fiercer than are blown to prove
And purge the silver ore adulterate.

She sat and wept, and with her untressed hair
Still wiped the feet she was so blessed to touch;
And He wiped off the soiling of despair
From her sweet soul, because she loved so much.
I am a sinner, full of doubts and fears:
Make me a humble thing of love and tears.

—Hartley Coleridge: Multum Dilexit.

OBITUARY

PATRICK McAULIFFE.

The following article is taken from the Atchison Guide, of Dec. 5th, and refers to an ex-Peterborough resident:

"The death of Patrick McAuliffe, which occurred yesterday, marks the passing of one of Atchison's oldest citizens. Mr. McAuliffe died at his home, 421 North Fourth Street, yesterday afternoon of uraemic poisoning combined with heart trouble which had made him practically an invalid for the past three years. He was 82 years of age.

"Mr. McAuliffe was born at Peterborough, Canada, March 18, 1845, coming to Atchison in 1870, and was in business here for many years, with the exception of one year when he and Fred Sutton were associated in business in St. Joseph. He had a host of friends here, was a man who loved his home and family and was always honest and fair dealing in business. His sudden death is a great shock to his friends.

"Surviving him are his widow; two sons, Martin and John of Atchison; a brother, Martin, and a sister, Ellen McAuliffe of Effingham; two nieces, Ella and Kate McAuliffe, and a nephew, John Perdue of Huron. Mr. McAuliffe came from a family of six brothers, Peter, Leonard, Michael, John and Martin, and three sisters, Mrs. Kate Flaherty, Mrs. Mary Hickey and Ellen. Only Martin McAuliffe and the last mentioned sister survive.

"The funeral which will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. George Harouff, will be held Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at St. Benedict's Church. Burial will be at Mt. Calvary Cemetery. Rosary will be recited this evening at 8 o'clock at the Harouff Funeral Home. Pall-bearers will be Charles Weinman, John Taylor, Michael Horan, Charles O'Keefe, E. C. Post and Fred Sutton of Kansas City.

"Fred E. Sutton of Kansas City, an old resident of Atchison, is here to attend the funeral of his old friend, Pat. McAuliffe. Mr. Sutton, who is joint author with A. B. McDonald, of the book, 'Hands Up,' a history of the early days of the West, recently published, was for a time in business in Atchison with Mr. McAuliffe, and says he never knew a squarer man, and that his word always was as good as his bond."

MISS NELLIE PICKEN.

The community was saddened by the sudden death of Miss Nellie Picken, who passed away on Sunday evening, Dec. 11th. Miss Picken was just in the prime of life, being forty-three years of age. She was of a very kind and unassuming nature. She was a member of St. James' United church and also an active member and teacher in the Sunday school.

Left to mourn her loss are one brother, George of Percy township, and one sister Mrs. Daniel Sedgwick, McKellar street, with whom she has lived for a number of years.

The funeral took place Tuesday morning at 10.30 from the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. Daniel Sedgwick, McKellar street, interment being made in Trent Valley cemetery, Hastings.

Services at the house were conducted by the Rev. James H. Dudgeon, of St. James' United church, who was assisted at the graveside by Rev. A. C. Hie, of Hastings.

The large circle of friends that attended the funeral and the beautiful floral tributes indicated the high esteem in which she was held.

The pallbearers were William Andrews, Hugh Cuthbertson, Jack Williamson, Robert Sedgwick, Leonard Sedgwick and Walter Sedgwick.

MISS LIZZIE KERR

BETHANY, Dec. 15.—Much sympathy is felt for the Kerr family in the second bereavement within a few months, when their younger sister, Lizzie, passed away following an operation in Toronto General Hospital. Mrs. Kerr succumbed to pneumonia early in the year and Miss Lizzie worn out with nursing her mother, herself became quite ill. It was hard to determine the extent of her illness which continued all through the summer; sometimes she was better and again an operation was thought necessary to bring about perfect restoration, but her system had become weakened, and the frail body was unable to recover from the shock, and although she put up a brave fight she passed away on Saturday, Dec. 3.

The funeral service which was held on Tuesday, from her father's home, was one of the largest seen in these parts for some time as Miss Kerr was a great favorite with the young people, and older ones as well.

Three ministers were present, Rev. G. Fierheller, of St. Paul's Anglican church; Rev. V. Walker, of the Presbyterian church, Janetville and Rev. A. Poulter, of the United church, who was both pastor and friend of the family. It was Mr. Poulter who spoke the few comforting words of the funeral service to the mourning family. Mrs. Poulter sang by the request of Lizzie before her death the same beautiful solo which Mrs. Poulter had sung at Mrs. Kerr's funeral—"That City Foursquare." Six young men bore the casket from the home, and interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful, showing to a slight degree the esteem in which the deceased was held.

Left to mourn are the aged father, two brothers, Robert and John and four sisters, Mrs. Ernest Beer, Mrs. Alban Sisson, Mrs. Thornton and Mrs. Porter.

MRS. JOHN CHALLICE

BETHANY, Dec. 14.—On Sunday evening, about 8 o'clock, the angel of death visited another home and took away a dear mother, in the person of Mrs. John Challice.

Mrs. Challice underwent a critical operation about six years ago, but was recovering nicely when she met with an automobile accident, after that she became more retiring, and kept more to her home.

Her last critical illness came, however, as more or less of a shock to her friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Challice was a member of the Methodist church and raised a very large family of boys and girls, all of whom are married but two, Richard and Mabel, who are at home with the parents.

Had Mrs. Challice lived until spring she would have been able to have celebrated the 50th anniversary of her marriage.

In all these almost 50 years she had to face many trying circumstances in sudden and unexpected deaths of members of her family. One of the last of these was the death of her little grandson, who was killed by a horse down near Garden Hill several months ago. Mrs. Challice bore all these sufferings with great fortitude and could still see the silver lining behind the darkest cloud.

Interment took place on Tuesday afternoon to Graham's cemetery.

FORSYTH — In memory of Olga Francis Forsyth, who died December 15, 1925.
In sorrow we waited day by day,
And watched her suffering there,
Slowly, but surely passing away,
From the pain she scarce could bear.
And then God called from His throne above.
Her suffering and pain is past;
We know she has gone to realms of love ,
And in Heaven has peace at last.

THIRTY-SEVEN KNOWN DEAD IN QUEBEC ORPHANAGE FIRE

Searchers Forced To Suspend Operations Because of Danger of Falling Walls.

SEVENTEEN MISSING.

Parents Visit Morgue in Attempt to Identify Victims of Disaster.

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 16.—(By The Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)—After recovering thirty-seven bodies from the ruins of Hospice St. Charles, the old wing of which was destroyed by fire Wednesday night, searchers were forced to suspend operations last night on account of danger of falling walls. Of the thirty-seven bodies recovered, thirty-six were children and one an adult. A police check-up of the children that were housed in the destroyed section revealed the fact that seventeen others were still unaccounted for.

Many of the children who were carried out alive were hurried off in automobiles, either to homes of citizens or institutions, and the final check-up of the missing will not be available for perhaps a day or two. A demand that persons sheltering children notify the police was broadcasted yesterday in an effort to facilitate this work, but up to a late hour last night seventeen still remained missing.

Scenes of Anguish.

Words fail to express the scenes of anguish that were enacted throughout the day as the bodies of the little victims were carried from the fire-swept section of the Hospice, an institution devoted to the care of fatherless or motherless children and children of poor parents.

All of the bodies of the victims were taken to the Hubert Moisan morgue, Notre Dame Des Anges street, which was besieged by a crowd of tearful and grief-stricken mothers or relations seeking news of their little ones. Morgue authorities were forced to only allow a few in at a time. Sister of the Good Shepherd visited the morgue during the day and in the evening and identified as many as possible of the little victims.

In the meantime preparations were under way for the opening of an official investigation. Coroner Dr. Jolicoeur will open his inquest this morning, while Fire Marshal Leclerc is now investigating the cause of the tragic outbreak. The latter discounted rumors to the effect that a boiler explosion had occurred shortly before the fire. An official investigation will probably be opened in a day or two.

Uncover Many Bodies.

As the day wore on and the excavation work proceeded the faith of mourning relatives was shaken as firemen uncovered body after body. Scarcely an hour passed that did not find the death toll added to. From seventeen in the early morning, it mounted to thirty-seven and firemen, before being driven from the ruins expressed the belief that the end was not yet.

Few Marked.

Few of the little bodies recovered were marked by fire, proving that death had at least been merciful and that most of the infants had died in their sleep, overcome by the poisonous fumes that preceded the flames and which billowed into the sleeping quarters.

Tragic as the death of the children had proved, it has been accentuated by the suffering of the bereaved relatives. All night long and all to-day yesterday an army of women clamored for admission to the morgue, many to realize their worst fears and to recognize among the forms on the long row of slabs the body of their loved one. Many last night were still waiting, hoping against hope that their children would be found alive and sheltered in some friendly home

Woman Has Smoked For 90 Years But Says Women Shouldn't Smoke

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 16 (United Press).—If 105 years on earth may be credited as years of e xperience, then—take it from Mrs Limeback—women shouldn't smoke.

Mrs. Limeback, who celebrated her 105th birthday at her home in Grain Valley near here, has blown rings since she was 15 years old, but she regards the women of today not as hardy as their mothers.

"No, sir, women shouldn't smoke," she asserted.

"I smoke of course, but I got started when I used to light Grandma's pipe for her.

"Women nowadays are different. Before the children grew up I used to take in as high as seven washings a day. But today—no chance of women doing that."

Mrs. Limeback's birthday was a civic event for Grain Valley. The town's population visited her cottage to pay its respects.

Her sight and hearing have succumbed partially to age, but she is still energetic and interests herself in current events.

NO AGREEMENT WAS REACHED AT CONFERENCE

Board of Health Adopts Resolution to be Sent to Council.

LEFT WITH MINISTER

$3,000 Was Mentioned as Possible Laboratory Expenditure for Year.

The City Council will be asked next Monday night at its special meeting to adopt a resolution that was passed last night by the Board of Health and forward it to Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health for the province, whereby the provincial department will be asked to finance a scheme up to $3,000, so as to keep the provincial laboratory open in this city.

The idea expressed in last night's Examiner was erroneous as no agreement was entered into between the delegation and the minister and as for the new agreement that will be put before the City Council, it is not known whether the minister will accept it or not.

In cutting the expenditure down to $3,000 the Board of Health suggests that a full time technician be secured at a salary of $1,200 per annum. Dr. C. M. Waite, who is experienced with the work of the laboratory, be appointed medical officer at a salary of $1,000. Dr. Waite at present is getting $1,200 for his duties, but he said at the meeting last night he was willing to throw $200 from his salary if the laboratory could be kept in this city. Up to $800 will be allotted for supplies and the City Council will be asked to furnish any extra money if the amount of supplies exceeds that sum.

The Minister and Deputy Minister were quite determined to close the laboratory here and the delegation was given to understand that if an agreement was entered into, it would only be temporarily and that sooner or later the city would have to appoint a full time Medical Officer of Health. It was the opinion of Dr. Godfrey that it was ridiculous for a city the size of Peterborough to try and get along without a full time officer.

The Peterborough laboratory was being closed because it costs $1.41 per specimen, while in Toronto the cost is only 30 cents. In the Peterborough ratio there is also included hundreds of specimens of milk and water; something that the provincial department claims to have nothing to do with.

Dr. Young maintained that from the standpoint of health the report was very favorable, as the less diseases there are in the city the fewer will be the number of specimens examined.

If the new agreement is approved by both the City Council and the Department of Health the city will furnish heat, light, caretaker and an office for Dr. Sutton, the District M.O.H. It also agrees to form some plan whereby in the near future a full time M.O.H. will be appointed for this city.

Those at the meeting last night were Alderman Hancock, Dr. T. W. H. Young, Mayor Holloway Drs. McNulty, R. Scott, and Waite. Alderman Denne and Stocker and Dr. Sutton were interested listeners in the gallery.

Wolves Driven Nearer Settlements By Cold

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The protracted cold weather in this district is driving coyotes and timber wolves into the settled sections and not in years has there been so many of the prairie marauders on the sheep and cattle ranches. Coyottes are travelling in bands this winter, a rare habit among these animals

The creatures have become unusually daring and sheep losses are attributed to the timber wolf. Range conditions are beginning to give the ranchers some concern, although actual losses to date have been slight

Y'S MEN ELECT NEW EXECUTIVE

Tom Dutton Is President of Young Men's Club For 1928.

REPORTS PRESENTED.

Tom Dutton was last night elected president of the Peterborough 'Y's' Men's Club, succeeding Roy White, who has held the office since the formation of the club in October, 1926. The vice-presidents are Howard Wood and Bill Hamilton, while Ed. Hall is secretary and Cran. Layfield treasurer.

The reports of the various officers, presented at the annual meeting last night, showed that the club had had an active year and had finished with a substantial balance in the treasury. President Roy White in his presidential address thanked the members and executive for the support given. He warned the incoming officers that the second year would be a difficult one. In the first year there is the enthusiasm of organization, but after that results have to be shown to keep the members interested and working. He announced that the quota of thirty set for the club's membership had been reached with a new member, Horace Ballard, inducted at last night's meeting.

Secretary Percy Johnston told of the club's activities in giving assistance to the Y.M.C.A. by handling the lobby program at the annual New Year's Day open house, the Boys' Hobby Show, and other events. Alec Fitzgerald, treasurer, explained the amounts collected and paid out by the club and was complimented for his handling of the bank roll.

A motion of thanks to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., which has catered for the club for the fall term, was proposed by Tom Dutton and Joe Beauclerc and heartily endorsed by the members. Mrs. G. H. Roper replied for the ladies.

FINE SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS

Cheques and Cash Remittances To Be Made To J. H. Vanston, Manager Bank of Toronto.

There are some people in town who received Christmas seals that have expressed themselves as somewhat in doubt as to where to send their remittance. To those we would say, if they would send the money to Mr. Vanston at the Bank of Toronto, it would be gratefully received.

We are glad to say the letters keep rolling in every day, letters containing not only money for the seals but also full of good wishes, such as the following:

Peterboro, Dec. 14, 1927.

Dear Mr. Vanston,—Should have acknowledged sooner the very nice stamps I received from the Health Association, only I have been out of town.

Am enclosing the sum of five dollars ($5.00) as I am very much in sympathy with the good work the Association are doing.

With all good wishes for success in raising the amount you require.

Peterborough, Dec. 14 1927.

Dear Sir,—Enclosed find cheque to cover stamps sent me. Trusting this will be a huge success, I remain,

The good wishes expressed in the letters are as highly valued and as much appreciated by the hard working members of the Health Association as the money itself. While the Christmas season is at hand and the Christmas spirit in the air, if there are any who have forgotten to send in their money for the seals, now is the time when it would be most truly appreciated.

LOWER HOUSE VOTES AGAINST MEASURE BY 42 OF MAJORITY

Recommended For Adoption By Premier Baldwin—Cannot Now Be Presented.

HOTLY DEBATED.

Many Throng Visitors' Gallery at Discussion in House of Commons.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(A.P.)— Contrary to all expectations, the House of Commons last night rejected the revised prayer book, despite the fact that Premier Baldwin recommended its adoption. It had already been approved by the House of Lords by a vote of 241 to 88 The Commons rejected the measure last night, 247 to 205. It therefore cannot now be presented for royal asset.

Although supported by the prime minister, it was naturally not a question of confidence in the government and the House was allowed a free vote. The government, however, had put out whips urging all members to attend, and it seemed to be generally expected that the Commons would follow the vote of the Lords, although after the speech of Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the home secretary, opposing the measure, it was thought the majority might narrow.

Remains in Gallery.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, clearly anxious over the fate of the measure, remained in the gallery of the Commons throughout the entire eight hours' debate, and when the figures of the vote, showing rejection, were announced, the House gave way to unusual demonstrations. The opponents of the revised form cheered frequently and loudly.

Premier Baldwin, declaring himself independent in church matters, said he thought it would be tragic if the Church of England ever became so narrow that two streams of opinion could not flow side by side. He would support the measure on the simple ground that the course would best serve the nation's religious life, and to do otherwise would be equivalent to saying that Parliament could not trust the church or its leaders, and would deprive those leaders of the whole of their authority in the sweep, leaving chaos more rampant than ever.

The premier said he dreaded, if the measure were rejected, that this establishment might become a big political issue.

Lord Hugh Cecil contended that rejection would mean a long and intricate controversy over the relations between the church and the state. England, he declared, was the reconciler of Christendom and could speak the language of unity to the Roman, the Eastern and the Non-Conformist churches, and this book was in perfect harmony with that function.

GALLERIES CROWDED.

LONDON, Decemebr 16 (Canadian Press Cable). — Many persons sought vainly yesterday for admission to the visitors' gallery of the House of Commons in the hope of hearing the debate on the revised prayer book of the Church of England. The members' benches were comfortably filled. In the Peers' Gallery were few except the Archbishops of Canterbury and York and three bishops.

Speaker Whitley was indisposed, and the chair was taken by the Deputy Speaker, Right Hon. J. F. Hope, who incidentally belongs to one of the most devout Catholic families in the land. He is an uncle of the youthful Duke of Norfolk, the premier peer of the realm.

Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, was entrusted with the presentation of the measure for the approval of the House. It had been passed on by the House of Lords, with a favorable majority of 153 on Wednesday.

"I have no claim whatever to speak as a theologian or as an authority on doctrine," he declared. I am a simple specimen of the man deeply attached to the church, and a fairly regular attendant."

There was a suspicion of a snigger from the Opposition benches at the minister's honest qualification of his church-going record and his further assertion that he appeared last night "as the man in the pew," failed to arouse any demonstration of sympathy.

Portly and middle-aged, Mr. Bridgeman is one of those statesmen

M.O.H. Gives Example of Value of Speed; Swabs From Normal Examined Quickly

One of the best proofs that a provincial laboratory is necessary in this city is found in the report made by Dr. T. W. H. Young, City Medical Health Officer. On Tuesday a case of diphtheria developed at the Normal School, a provincial organization. Dr. Young immediately had the 140 students' throats swabbed and the swabs were examined yesterday at the provincial laboratory. Those from seven students were found to be carriers, and immediate attention is being given these students. Dr. Young points out that if it had been necessary to send the swabs to Toronto to be examined, the students probably would have been scattered all over the province on their Christmas vacation before returns could have been made.

CHAPLAIN BLAMES FIREMEN FOR HEAVY TOLL AT HOSPICE

Abbe Caron Says Ladders Were Not Placed Where Directed.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH FOUND.

Mother Superior Describes Heart Rending Scenes and Sounds During Fire.

QUEBEC, Dec. 16.— (Canadian Press.)—"The death toll of fire which gutted the Hospice St. Charles here on Wednesday night was increased by the failure of the fire department to put the latters up as directed."

This declaration, made by the Abbe Caron, chaplain of the Hospice, was the feature of the opening session of the inquest into the death of thirty-six children recovered from the debris which was the Hospice. The Abbe Caron, who wept copiously from the opening of the inquest, declared when he took the stand that the firemen were directed to place ladders to the windows on the upper story from which many children could have been rescued. Instead, he said, the ladders were placed otherwise, and the hope of saving the inmates was lost. The firemen later testified and denied that they had received any orders from the Sisters or other persons of the institution with regard to placing ladders.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by the jury after hearing the testimony of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, the parents of some of the dead children, and the firemen. Thirty-six bodies have been recovered and fourteen others are still missing.

The pathetic and graphic descriptions of eye witnesses were heard today at the opening session of the inquest. Coroner Jolicoeur presided at the investigtaion and after the jury was chosen the taking of evidence began.

Father Gives Evidence.

Joseph Roy was the first witness called. He had three children, and all of them were wards of the Sisters of the Order of the Good Shepherd. One Estelle, aged seven, lost her life. He was awakened, he said, by the passage of the fire apparatus and proceeded to the scene of the fire. He assisted in the rescue work and managed, with others, to save a score of children, including two of his own.

Sister St. Germain, Superior of the Hospice, followed, and her testimony was heart rending. She described the layout of the building and said that the majority of the dead had been housed in one dormitory. She had been informed of the fire by one of the Sisters and by this time, she said, the halls and staircases were filled with smoke. The first thought of the Sisters had been to remove the charges from the threatened building. The kiddies had been ordered to dress and hundreds poured from all exits of the biulding.

Sister St. Germain said she had carried several children out. Three trips had been made, and the last time she had been told that to enter the building would be suicidal.

At the outset of her testimony, Sister St. Germain's voice was heard throughout the small room where the coroner's inquest is being held, but towards the end her voice faltered, especially so when she described the screams of the trapped victims. She said that on her last trip she had heard many of the children screaming and pleading with the rescuers to save them. By the time the Superior had finished her evidence, there was hardly a dry eye in the court.

Bandits Make Escape With $20,000 Payroll

CHICAGO, December 16. Canadian Press. -- Five robbers armed with pistols and a rifle, held up the cashier's office of the University of Chicago late yesterday afternoon, escaping with $15,000 to $20,000 of the university's payroll.

William J. Mather, the cashier, four women employees and five other persons, were terrorized by the robbers as they scooped up the cash and currency. They spent about five minutes in the office, fleeing in a large automobile.

Mr. Mather said the loot would amount to between $15,000 and $20,000, the money being on hand to pay off certain groups of university employees.

Four of the robbers wore masks while the fifth was unmasked. All but the leader were armed with pistols, the leader carrying a rifle and directing the holdup.

WILL HOLD CONFERENCE WITH BRIAND

Mussolini To Meet Premier of France in Near Future.

IRON OUT FRICTION.

Believes Unemployment Situation in Italy Will Soon Be Abated.

ROME, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press)--Premier Mussolini will be glad to meet Foreign Minister Briand of France for " a solemn consecration of an understanding between France and Italy," he told his council ministers yesterday.

Such a meeting, however, he said, should not take place before the professional diplomats of both countries have done their work of ironing out a few remaining points of friction.

Il Duce reaffirmed the new Italy's desire for peace with dignity, and speaking of the Franco-Jugo-Slav pact which has been criticized as a threat to Italy—which he acknowledged Italy had been asked to subscribe after the two contracting powers had inititalled it—he declared it "perfectly correct from an international and League of Nations viewpoint.

"But the interpretation given that pact at Belgrade in responsible and irresponsible circles has created a certain impression, world wide except in Italy, which has not lost her sangfroid and her discipline."

The Premier stressed the fact that the Italo-Albanian pact concluded eleven days after the signature of the Franco-Jugoslavian treaty was not a direct effect of the latter. The Italo-Albanian treaty, he reiterated "had an absolutely pacific character designed to conciliate and harmonize fundamental needs and interests of two nations facing each other across the Adriatic Sea."

Taking up relations with France, Il Duce cited M. Briand's recent "most friendly speech," and the recent signing of a modus vivendi between the two nations as "two facts which permit belief in the possibility of clarifying relations between the two countries."

Speaking of Italy's internal situation, the Premier declared that the nation was continuing its "disciplined silent action." He rejoiced over the solemn and imposing commemeration of the fifth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome, observed with no disturbance of public order, and commented with pride upon the efforts of the government to combat unemployment, which he felt certain would soon be greatly abated.

As proof of his confidence in the durability of the Fascist regime, he announced that 250 out of 600 political prisoners would soon be freed and a large number conditionally liberated "in view of the people's perfect tranquility and the evident absolute innocuousness of continued attempts against Fascism."

Alienists Present Conclusion As Remus Prosecution Rests Case

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press)—Capping its long effort to send George Remus to the electric chair for murder, the prosecution late yesterday presented as a witness the 68-year-old, grey-haired mother of the wife he slew and, with the jury still leaning forward eagerly to catch her low-voiced testimony, suddenly rested its case. The defence, too, attempted to spring a coup. It unexpectedly admitted that its case was closed.

Left out of the record, the report of the three alienists who yesterday presented their final conclusion:

"That the defendant, George Remus, was sane at the time of the commission of the act of killing, to wit: On October 6, 1927."

Prosecutor Charles P. Taft, II., asserted he had depended upon Judge Chester R. Shook to call the alienists, but got permission to re-open the case and lay before the jury the finding to which Remus, as his own chief counsel, had bound himself to adhere.

Charles H. Elston, co-counsel with Remus, objected. He never had asserted his adherence to the final report of the psychiatrists. Judge Shook referred to Remus' own pleading last November 4, when he waived a sanity hearing, announced his determination to face trial on a first degree murder charge, and bound himself to the ultimate determination of his sanity by the three alienists.

Elston fought strenuously to prevent the case being re-opened to further testimony, but Judge Shook held to the letter of Remus' pre-trial assertion.

Inquest Ordered Into Death of Keith Blewett

Boy Was Hunting With Two Companions Near Buckhorn On Wednesday Afternoon—Two Boys Fired at Same Time When Rabbit Appeared.

PROVINCIAL CONSTABLE INVESTIGATING HAS OBTAINED SHELLS AND WEAPONS

Operation To Save Wounded Youth's Life Proved Futile—Inquiry Will Be Held Next Wednesday Evennig in This City.

Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young today ordered an inquest into the death of Orville Keith Blewett, who was shot near Buckhorn on Wednesday afternoon, while out with two companions shooting rabbits.

As yet it has not been determined whether Blewett fired the fatal shot or if it were fired by one of the other boys.

Keith Blewett, who was 14 years old and the son of Mortici Evans Blewett of the Township of Smith, and Moss Montgomery and Robert Armstrong, two boys about his own age, were shooting rabbits on the Peterborough-Buckhorn road. Each boy was equipped with a shot gun, and Blewett fell shot through the right side after he and Montgomery had fired their guns at a rabbit that was chased out of the woods and across the road by the hounds.

Dr. A. G. Howson was summoned and when he arrived at the scene of the accident he had the boy removed to Nicholls Hospital, where Dr. G. S. Cameron immediately operated, but the boy died about 10.45 that night.

Provincial Constable Maker and Dr. Young, on hearing about the shooting yesterday afternoon, investigated the accident. Constable Maker secured the shells and shot guns that were used by the boys and from these it will be determined who fired the fatal shot. One boy had a single barreled 20-gauge shot gun, one had a double barreled 12-gauge shot gun, and the other was a single barreled 12-gauge.

The inquest will be held at 8.00 p.m. on Wednesday, December 21, in the Police Court, Peterborough.

PRIMATE ASKS FOR PATIENCE

Speaks of Time of Confusion and Anxiety Caused By Rejection.

APPEALS TO MEMBERS

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—The Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of England, to-day issued an appeal to the members of the Church of England for patience and charity "in this time of confusion and anxiety," caused by yesterday's dramatic rejection of the revised book of common prayer by the House of Commons.

Lindbergh's Plan Not Yet Settled

MEXICO CITY, December 16. —Colonel Lindbergh's plans are not yet settled. He does not even know how long he will remain in Mexico City, or where he will go from here. One thing he emphatically declares—he will go by air when he does go.

Invitations have been received from several Centra American countries including Nicaragua, for a visit there, but these must be taken under advisement before a decision is reached. And there is the question of flying to Havana. This is still in abeyance.

There will be a flight over Mexico City some day; all the people are looking forward to this and the American flier is anxious to meet their wishes.

Lindbergh went to Valbuena field yesterday afternoon and made a careful examination of the Spirit of St. Louis. He pronounced the plane in perfect condition—no damage whatever in yesterday's landing or by the crowd. He could start on another flight immediately, he remarked, if necessary.

LINDBERGH IS GIVEN OVATION AT MEXICO CITY

Vies With Reception Tendered By Ottawa, Washington, Paris and London.

CALLS ON CALLES.

Makes Series of Official Visits —Entertained at Fete.

MEXICO CITY, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Mexico yesterday gave Col. Charles A. Lindbergh a reception that impressed him more than any other he had received at home or abroad.

"Vivas," flags and bunting in the capital of the southern republic vied with New York's ticker tape, and the bouquets and medals of Ottawa, Washington, Paris, and London, in acclaiming Col. Lindberg as the darling of the people wherever he goes.

President Calles, who hugged the flier on his arrival on Wednesday, put the official seal on the nation's welcome by a half-hour conversation with him in his private office. The aviator left Chapultepec Palace for an afternoon of sightseeing and other entertainment, to be followed by a fete in his honor arranged by the Foreign Office at one of the city's largest theatres.

Lindberg said at his reception: "I have never been so impressed by any of my receptions anywhere as that in Mexico, and I am very grateful for the warmth and spontaniety of the expressions of goodwill."

The young flier made a series of official visits in the morning after a 12-hour sleep at the United States Embassy, and then went to Valbuena Air Field to see the famous plane that carried him from New York to Paris, to Ottawa, over practically the entire United States on a nation-wide tour, and eventually from Washington to Mexico.

Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow accompanied his youthful guest on the official calls. Several hundred persons had gathered at the gates of the Embassy when Col. Lindbergh and Mr. Morrow left it for the Foreign Office. The crowd shouted "Viva," and Lindbergh responded with his usual quick smile and a wave of his hand. Ambassador Morrow beamed with pleasure.

Crowds Acclaim Flier.

As the ambassadorial party proceeded through the decorated streets to the Foreign Office, crowds recognized and acclaimed the aviator. Within a few minutes after arrival at their destination, the corridors of the building were packed with spectators, who overflowed into the street.

A formal reception for the flier was held in the great salon. Acting Foreign Minister Estrada and prominent members of the Foreign Office greeted him warmly in the name of the nation. They proposed a toast to good relations between the United States and Mexico. Lindbergh courteously touched a glass of champagne to his lips, but did not drink any of the wine. Senor Estrada expressed the belief that Lindbergh's latest flight has already strengthened and will continue to strengthen friendly relations between the United States and Mexico. Lindbergh replied that nothing he has

PEOPLE TO VOTE ON STATUTE LABOR

Councils of Manvers Have Tried Out Two Systems.

BETHANY, Dec. 16.—A special meeting of the township council was held on Monday night. It was to decide whether to keep or abolish statute labor. The council of 1926 abolished it for that year, then the council of 1927 re-established it, so that it has been tried out both ways—now in the coming election the people of the township will have a vote in the matter and it will rest with them which measure will be adopted in 1928.

Found Not Guilty On Murder Charge

BLAKELY, Ga., December 16 (Canadian Press). — Harris Hayes, sixty-year-old farmer, was found not guilty yesterday by a jury on the charge of the murder of Gladys Hayes, his daughter-in-law, of Detroit.

Hayes, however, is under indictment for the murder of James and Amos Hayes, his sons, who died last summer under mysterious circumstances similar to the death of Gladys, Amos' 17-year-old wife.

BUSINESS MEN DISCUSS FIRES

In Favor of Getting More Adequate Apparatus For Lakefield.

PRAISE FIRE BRIGADE.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 16.—Mr. White, of the Fire Marshall's office, Toronto, spent Tuesday in the village looking over the scene of Saturday morning's fire and on Tuesday evening met some of the council and a number of the business men in the Memorial Hall, to discuss the question of new equipment which will adequately serve the town in future fires and to give to the brigade, which is considered the village's most valuable local asset, the proper means of fighting a fire in the village. The present equipment is all right as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough.

As one man said, "the time has come when we don't have to take a back seat with any town."

The feeling of the meeting was strongly in favor of going ahead and buying what is necessary to give adequate protection. A tribute was paid to the work of the fire brigade, a body of young men who express their obligations of citizenship in service and not empty words, and who have earned the lasting gratitude of this community not only on the occasion of Saturday's fire, but many times during the past seven years.

Revenue Bill Is Passed By House

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 16. —(Canadian Press.)—Calling for an estimated tax cut of $289,770,000, the revenue bill was passed early last night by the House and sent to the Senate.

The vote was 366 to 24.

As approved, the bill carried three important amendments, attached to the measure by a Democratic-Republican coalition.

One provision for complete repeal of the sales tax on automobiles, instead of a reduction of the present rate of three per cent to 1½ per cent as recommended by the ways and means committee.

The others accord additional relief to corporations with small incomes, and require corporations and subsidiaries to file separate instead of affiliated tax returns.

HEARST CALLED AS WITNESS AT SENATE PROBE

Testifies as to Documents Regarding Charges Laid Against Mexico.

AUTHENTICITY DENIED.

Tells Committee Had No Evidence That Any Money Was Paid.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 16. — Mexican documents of disputed authenticity, saying that $1,215,000 had been set aside by the government of Mexico for payment to Senators Borah, Heflin, La Follette and Norris ,were laid before a Senate committee yesterday, and were answered immediately with unqualified denials by all of the principles involved.

The documents were submitted by William Randolph Hearst, in whose newspapers they have already been published in part. The publisher told the committee that while he had reason to believe the papers genuine, he had no evidence that any of the money was paid

Voluntary Denials.

Three of the four senators named came before the committee voluntarily and made their denials under oath. Borah, of Idaho, who is chairman of the Senate Committee which deals with international relations, said he had never been approached "either casually, directly, expressly or impliedly, in any way, shape or form." He, Heflin, of Alabama, declared he had received no money in connection with Mexico, except from ministers, Ku Klux Klansmen, and others for expenses of his lectures on Mexico, and demanded that the committee "make an example" of those responsible for the charges. La Follette, of Wisconsin, described the attempt to link his name with this matter "an infamous and cowardly fraud."

Norris of Nebraska, confined to his house by illness, rose from his sickbed to prepare a statement saying that he "had never had any offer or any intimation that anyone contemplated offering me anything."

During its two sessions yesterday, and a third last night, the Senate also heard denials from others who were named in the documents.

Among the witnesses was Dudley Field Malone, the New York lawyer named in the Spanish text of the documents as the pay off man in this country He said he never had any connection whatever with such a project and described signatures purporting to be his as forgeries or copies.

Arturo M. Elias, Mexican consul-general at New York, also took the stand just before the long afternoon session of the committee adjourned, and flatly denied the references made to him in the mytserious documents. He volunteered to be sworn before he told his story, despite the fact that the Mexican embassy has taken the position that he need not appear at all if he preferred to plead diplomatic immunity.

Denies Authenticity.

The Mexican government several times has denied the authenticity of the documents, but both Mr. Hearst and several of his employees said on the stand yesterday that they had been assured that the papers came from the official files of the Mexican government. Some of them it was testified, were brought out of Mexico and some were taken from Mr. Elias' Mexican consulate in New York. Mr. Hearst said they had cost in the neighborhood of $15,000.

The publisher also told the committee that it was his understanding that the collection had been submitted to the United States embassy at Mexico City and to officials at the Summer White House in the Black Hills some months before publication.

HEPBURN REFERS TO MORRISON CASE

Press Featuring of His Remarks Unfortunate, He Tells Toronto Liberals.

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Further references to his "family compacts" charges made against J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, were made by M. F. Hepburn, Liberal member of the House of Commons for West Elgin, in an address before the Toronto Young Men's Liberal Club at a luncheon yesterday. The featuring by the press of his remarks concerning the family of Mr Morrison and the positions they occupied in the United Farmers' Co-operative Society, made in a speech at Dutton, was unfortunate, Mr Hepburn said, as they were not what he considered the most important.

"He is indeed a strong family man," declared the speaker. "I am entirely opposed to nepotism of this sort."

EDWARDS—BOLTON.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 16.—A pretty wedding took place on Wednesday at high noon at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bolton, Nelson street, Lakefield, when their second daughter, Etta, became the bride of Earl Dickson Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, of Keene. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. A. Kemp, under a floral and evergreen arch erected in the living room. The wedding march was played by Miss Fern Bolton, of Toronto, sister of the bride.

OBITUARY

DONATO SABATINO.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 16.—The funeral of the late Donato Sabatino took place on Wednesday morning at 9 a.m. from St. Paul's church, where requiem high mass was sung by Father Gerard Meagher, of Peterborough, in the absence of Rev. J. J. Garvey, who is away on sick leave.

The church was filled with friends, relatives and fellow citizens who wished to pay a last tribute of respect to a man who came to the village nearly thirty years ago with his wife and elder children, and who had earned the right to be called a good citizen and a kind neighbor. He was of a quiet, retiring disposition, but possessed of great integrity and was universally respected. Although born in a foreign land, Mr. Sabatino was never regarded as a foreigner, and he and his family have always played their part creditably in the village life. Mr. Sabatino was interested in sport, particularly in hockey, and his sons have played on the village teams for years.

Interment took place in St. Peter's cemetery, Peterborough. The pallbearers were relatives of the family from Peterborough.

The choir of St. Paul's church sang during the mass, Miss Margaret Bissonette presiding at the organ.

MRS. HUGH SCOTT.

NORWOOD, Dec. 16.—The death occurred on Wednesday night of Mrs. Hugh Scott. Deceased had been confined to her bed for many months. She was the widow of the late Hugh Scott, and leaves to mourn her loss two sons, Harry of Sault Ste. Marie and Roy at home. The late Mrs. Scott was a highly respected citizen of this village for many years. The family has the sincere sympathy of the community in their hour of bereavement.

ever done could please him more than that.

Visit Museum.

The flier and his host then went to the presidential palace, stopping on the way at the National Museum for Lindbergh to see the historic Aztec calendar stone, by which the ancient natives of Mexico reckoned time.

As the party approached the National Palace, the military guards snapped to attention, and Col. Lindbergh returned their salute. The party, limited to the Ambassador, the flier, Senor Estrada, and General Alvarez, entered the president's private reception room with an interpreter, and remained in conversation with Mexico's chief executive for half an hour. The president renewed personally and officially his enthusiastic welcome of Wednesday at Valbuena Field.

The modest, half-bashful demeanor of the unofficial aerial envoy, and his ever-ready smile in response to all praise seemed to captivate every one who saw him yesterday.

Approximately 200 congratulatory cablegrams were received for him during the day at the Embassy from all parts of the world, in addition to scores of messages from officials and individuals throughout the United States.

LOWER HOUSE VOTES AGAINST

who reach the treasury bench by hard work rather than by brilliant achievement, and while members of every degree are ready to yield him respect, there are probably few who would urge that he has great gifts of oratory.

Was Against Change.

Despite his attachment to Anglicanism, Mr. Bridgeman perhaps felt himself out of his element last night in leading the debate on the liturgy. "My instincts were at first against the change," he frankly admitted, amidst a murmur of cheering.

There was whole-hearted approval, however, judging by the demonstration, when he made a reference to the long labors of the Archbishop of Canterbury. Approval mixed with dissent was aroused by his declaration that the opposition to the book within the church came from extremists of both sides, and that the vast majority favoring the book consisted of moderate men and women of both sides.

The minister continued to speak rather haltingly. "I can well understand those who dislike the Church of England voting against the measure," he declared. A Laborite said the statement was an insult and the Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, advancing to the Speaker's table, suggested the statement should be withdrawn.

Mr. Bridgeman, however, found nothing to withdraw. He declared that the people who found most holes in the new book were lawyers.

In his whole speech the minister carefully refrained from touching on doctrinal or disciplinary matters, declaring that others better qualified to do so would follow him.

Opposes Measure.

Hon. William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, who followed Mr. Bridgeman, is a parliamentarian of a different calibre. Besides being a fluent orator, his task in proposing the rejection of the measure was one upon which he could bring the full strength of his personal opinions, for long before he became known as a member of the Cabinet he was prominent in uncompromising Protestant societies.

At the outset Mr. Hicks put himself on agreeable terms with the whole House by a warm endorsation of Mr. Bridgeman's tribute to the Archbishop of Canterbury. After that he went straight to what he held was the heart of the matter, namely, whether the new book involves any change of doctrine.

"Why," he declared impressively, "the Bishop of Worcester had said in the House of Lords two nights earlier that a change of doctrine was involved."

"It may be true that the Church of Rome is right," he solemnly declared, "but her doctrine is not the doctrine of the Church of England."

Despite his eulogies of the Archbishop of Canterbury a few minutes earlier, Joynson-Hicks did not hesitate to openly arraign His Grace's own record. From his seat in the peers' gallery the aged Primate lookhis shaggy eyebrows, while the Home ed down upon the house from beneath Secretary recited how, 21 years ago, a royal commission on church discipline, of which the Primate was a member, distinctly stated that reforms were necessary. Yet the Primate had allowed these irregularities to go on.

Thirty years ago, when he was Bishop of Winchester, the present Primate had stated discipline would be exercised and, if necessary, exercised sternly, the Home Secretary continued. "Yet," declared Joynson-Hicks, "nothing had been done."

Gave Evidence.

The Home Secretary recalled that he had himself given evidence before the afore-mentioned royal commission and the Archbishop had then asked him how he would propose to reform matters. His answer then was that he should refuse if he were Bishop, to promote men who refused to obey him, he said.

There was subdued cheering when the Home Secretary specially cited the Bishop of London, Rt. Rev. Arthur Winnington-Ingram, as having filled the diocese with "priests who broke the law."

"Yet," said Joynson-Hicks, "we are to suppose that this Bishop will now turn around and say to these men 'you must give up these practices' and that he will have the power to compel them to do so."

Speaking with extreme gravity concerning the reservation of the sacrament, the Home Secretary said, "I realize fully that if in the act of consecration there is a change in the elements—a spiritual change if you like—and you reserve those consecrated elements, then the thousands of men and women to-day who feel it their right to worship these elements are entitled to do so."

But, he went out, if it was not the intention of the new book that they should not be worshipped, why were the reserved elements to be kept in the aumbrey on the north side of the chancel instead of being placed reverently in a cupboard.

Mr. Joynson-Hicks concluded with an exhortation to the nonconformists to vote. "Vote for the new prayer book if you wish but every man should vote for what he believes to be truth and justice," he concluded.

Whatever the result of the debate might be, it brought disestablishment of the church appreciably nearer, asserted C. G. Ammon, Labor member for North Cumberwell.

Extends Greetings To the Dominion

OTTAWA Ont., Dec. 16.—Canadian Press. — The greetings of President Machado and the Republic of Cuba, were extended to the Canadian government and people yesterday by Dr. A. F. Sainz de la Pena, commercial attache of Cuba. He lunched with Dr. Skelton, Canadian undersecretary of state for external affairs. There are two treaties under consideration by the two countries, a postal agreement and a trade pact, and no doubt these were discussed. The Cuban representative left for Montreal last night but intimated that he was returning for further conferences.

Speeches of Well Known Business Men Stimulate Public Interest.

By H. BAILEY, British United Press

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The frank return to a free trade policy may become an issue in the next general election. The propaganda of the Liberals is strongly urging the abolition of all forms of protection and public inteerst has been intensified by the free trade speeches made Wednesday by Sir George Paish, the famous economist and Lord Inchcape the great shipping magnate.

WEDDING BELLS

ENGISCH—PORTER.

NORWOOD, Dec. 16.—The marriage of Alice Lawrence Porter and Robert Percival Engisch, Phm.B., took place in Hamilton on Monday, Dec. 5. The groom is a son of Mrs. Engisch of this village. The happy couple have the best wishes of their Norwood friends.

EDWARDS—BOLTON.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 16.—A pretty wedding took place on Wednesday at high noon at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bolton, Nelson street, Lakefield, when their second daughter, Etta, became the bride of Earl Dickson Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, of Keene. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. A. Kemp, under a floral and evergreen arch erected in the living room. The wedding march was played by Miss Fern Bolton, of Toronto, sister of the bride.

The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Robert Bolton, wore a becoming gown of white silk with overdress of white georgette, beaded with crystal, with a tulle veil and orange blossoms arranged cap fashion and caught on the shoulder with pearls. She carried ophelia roses and wore the gift of the groom, a white gold bracelet set with sapphires. Her slippers were of silk brocade.

Miss Gladys Bolton, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, gowned in coral and silver shot taffeta and carried Killarney roses.

Mr. Raymond Buskard of Montreal, attended the groom. The groom's gift to the pianist and bridesmaid were Fifth avenue sets and to the best man gold cuff links.

Following the ceremony luncheon was served, four young ladies, cousins of the bride, serving, Misses Violet and Grace Bolton, Irene Jarvis and Inze Johnston.

The young couple left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for Toronto, where the honeymoon will be spent, the bride travelling in rosewood satin and embroidered georgette, with velvet hat to match, with grey hose and shoes and wearing a gray crushed plush coat fur trimmed.

The bride was the recipient of a number of beautiful gifts, including a handsome cheque from her father, who is slowly recovering from a recent serious accident.

Pre nuptial events included a shower given by a group of her intimate girl friends, a shower given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bolton, and a presentation of a beautiful dinner set and linen table cloth from the choir and congregation of the Baptist church, of which the bride is a member.

OBITUARY

DONATO SABATINO.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 16.—The funeral of the late Donato Sabatino took place on Wednesday morning at 9 a.m. from St. Paul's church, where requiem high mass was sung by Father Gerard Meagher, of Peterborough, in the absence of Rev. J. J. Garvey, who is away on sick leave.

The church was filled with friends, relatives and fellow citizens who wished to pay a last tribute of respect to a man who came to the village nearly thirty years ago with his wife and elder children, and who had earned the right to be called a good citizen and a kind neighbor. He was of a quiet, retiring disposition, but possessed of great integrity and was universally respected. Although born in a foreign land, Mr. Sabatino was never regarded as a foreigner, and he and his family have always played their part creditably in the village life. Mr. Sabatino was interested in sport, particularly in hockey, and his sons have played on the village teams for years.

Interment took place in St. Peter's cemetery, Peterborough. The pallbearers were relatives of the family from Peterborough.

The choir of St. Paul's church sang during the mass, Miss Margaret Bissonette presiding at the organ.

MRS. HUGH SCOTT.

NORWOOD, Dec. 16.—The death occurred on Wednesday night of Mrs. Hugh Scott. Deceased had been confined to her bed for many months. She was the widow of the late Hugh Scott, and leaves to mourn her loss two sons, Harry of Sault Ste. Marie and Roy at home. The late Mrs. Scott was a highly respected citizen of this village for many years. The family has the sincere sympathy of the community in their hour of bereavement.

The flier and his host then went to the presidential palace, stopping on the way at the National Museum for Lindbergh to see the historic Aztec calendar stone, by which the ancient natives of Mexico reckoned time.

As the party approached the National Palace, the military guards snapped to attention, and Col. Lindbergh returned their salute. The party, limited to the Ambassador, the flier, Senor Estrada, and General Alvarez ,entered the president's private reception room with an interpreter, and remained in conversation with Mexico's chief executive for half an hour. The president renewed personally and officially his enthusiastic welcome of Wednesday at Valbuena Field.

The modest, half-bashful demeanor of the unofficial aerial envoy, and his ever-ready smile in response to all praise seemed to captivate every one who saw him yesterday.

Approximately 200 congratulatory cablegrams were received for him during the day at the Embassy from all parts of the world, in addition to scores of messages from officials and individuals throughout the United States.

LOWER HOUSE VOTES AGAINST

who reach the treasury bench by hard work rather than by brilliant achievement, and while members of every degree are ready to yield him respect, there are probably few who would urge that he has great gifts of oratory.

Was Against Change.

Despite his attachment to Anglicanism, Mr. Bridgeman perhaps felt himself out of his element last night in leading the debate on the liturgy. "My instincts were at first against the change," he frankly admitted, amidst a murmur of cheering.

There was whole-hearted approval, however, judging by the demonstration, when he made a reference to the long labors of the Archbishop of Canterbury. Approval mixed with dissent was aroused by his declaration that the opposition to the book within the church came from extremists of both sides, and that the vast majority favoring the book consisted of moderate men and women of both sides.

The minister continued to speak rather haltingly . "I can well understand those who dislike the Church of England voting against the measure," he declared. A Laborite said the statement was an insult and the Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, advancing to the Speaker's table, suggested the statement should be withdrawn.

Mr. Bridgeman, however, found nothing to withdraw. He declared that the people who found most holes in the new book were lawyers.

In his whole speech the minister carefully refrained from touching on doctrinal or disciplinary matters, declaring that others better qualified to do so would follow him.

Opposes Measure.

Hon. William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, who followed Mr. Bridgeman, is a parliamentarian of a different calibre. Besides being a fluent orator, his task in proposing the rejection of the measure was one upon which he could bring the full strength of his personal opinions, for long before he became known as a member of the Cabinet he was prominent in uncompromising Protestant societies.

At the outset Mr. Hicks put himself on agreeable terms with the whole House by a warm endorsation of Mr. Bridgeman's tribute to the Archbishop of Canterbury. After that he went straight to what he held was the heart of the matter, namely, whether the new book involves any change of doctrine.

"Why," he declared impressively, "the Bishop of Worcester had said in the House of Lords two nights earlier that a change of doctrine was involved."

"It may be true that the Church of Rome is right," he solemnly declared, "but her doctrine is not the doctrine of the Church of England."

Despite his eulogies of the Archbishop of Canterbury a few minutes earlier, Joynson-Hicks did not hesitate to openly arraign His Grace's own record. From his seat in the peers' gallery the aged Primate lookhis shaggy eyebrows, while the Home ed down upon the house from beneath Secretary recited how, 21 years ago, a royal commission on church discipline, of which the Primate was a member, distinctly stated that reforms were necessary. Yet the Primate had allowed these irregularities to go on.

Thirty years ago, when he was Bishop of Winchester, the present Primate had stated discipline would be exercised and, if necessary, exercised sternly, the Home Secretary continued. "Yet," declared Joynson-Hicks, "nothing had been done."

Gave Evidence.

The Home Secretary recalled that he had himself given evidence before the afore-mentioned royal commission and the Archbishop had then asked him how he would propose to reform matters. His answer then was that he should refuse if he were Bishop, to promote men who refused to obey him, he said.

There was subdued cheering when the Home Secretary specially cited the Bishop of London, Rt. Rev. Arthur Winnington-Ingram, as having filled the diocese with "priests who broke the law."

"Yet," said Joynson-Hicks, "we are to suppose that this Bishop will now turn around and say to these men 'you must give up these practices' and that he will have the power to compel them to do so."

Speaking with extreme gravity concerning the reservation of the sacrament, the Home Secretary said, "I realize fully that if in the act of consecration there is a change in the elements—a spiritual change if you like—and you reserve those consecrated elements, then the thousands of men and women to-day who feel it their right to worship these elements are entitled to do so."

But, he went out, if it was not the intention of the new book that they should not be worshipped, why were the reserved elements to be kept in the aumbrey on the north side of the chancel instead of being placed reverently in a cupboard.

Mr. Joynson-Hicks concluded with an exhortation to the nonconformists to vote. "Vote for the new prayer book if you wish but every man should vote for what he believes to be truth and justice," he concluded.

Whatever the result of the debate might be, it brought disestablishment of the church appreciably nearer, asserted C. G. Ammon, Labor member for North Cumberwell.

LINDY WINS AGAIN.

After a flight of twenty-seven hours, during which he for a time lost his bearings, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the United States ambassador of the air, arrived safely at Mexico City on Wednesday and was given a wonderful welcome by the people of the Mexican capital.

Lindbergh's 2,000-mile air journey to Mexico City was in some respects as remarkable as his solo flight to Paris and demonstrated conclusively that the pilot of the "Spirit of St. Louis," who has since last spring covered almost 35,000 miles in the air, is indeed the ace of flyers.

Although "Lindy" himself would probably be the first to resent any such attempt, there is an appeal being made by newspapers that the life of the hero of the Paris flight should not be further jeopardized by his being sent on any more missions like that he has just accomplished.

Skilful as Colonel Lindbergh is, these papers point out the law of averages is working against him, and they maintain that should he continue these long air voyages he cannot hope to escape disaster eventually.

But he loves flying, and probably will keep on in spite of the agitation.

TAXING WHARVES.

It has been claimed to the credit of the present Ontario Government that it has shown an ability to collect revenue that surpasses all record of any previous administration, and owners of summer cottages at Stoney Lake who are being billed for an annual tax of $5.00 a year for their wharves are willing to admit that the claim is justified.

Certainly no other Provincial Government has ever asserted a claim to revenue from this source, and just where the present administration finds its justification for claiming a license for each wharf is a deep mystery not only to Stoney Lake cottagers but to the public generally.

At any event there is among those affected a deep-seated resentment at what they consider to be little short of piracy on the high seas, and it looks to be up to the Minister of the responsible department to make an explanation of the assessment and to justify the action of the Government in seeking to secure revenue in a manner that seems to be neither reasonable nor fair.

An explanation from some responsible source is long overdue.

THE COMING SESSION.

It is announced that the Ontario Legislative will meet on February 9th, and intimated that the session will be free from exciting legislation and likely to be brief.

The public will not find fault if these predictions as to a light programme and a short session are verified.

The majority of people feel that there is considerable time wasted both at Toronto and at Ottawa, and that the usual session does not provide any real excuse for the delay.

Nor is there any lack of legislation.

While our legislative bodies have not yet reached the speed at which State and Federal Governments across the border turn out new laws, there are more than enough of them on the statute books now, and if the new legislation at the coming session proves to be light there will be no mourning over that fact throughout the Province.

Mr. Ferguson's Township School Board bill, which he hopes has been sold to the farmers by this time, will again be introduced, but if the Premier adheres to his decision not to force the measure through until public opinion favors it another recall is likely.

It is obvious that rural sentiment is still unfavourable, although the opposition to the measure is perhaps not so widespread as when the bill was first mooted.

THE FATAL GRADE CROSSING.

The latest figures given out by the Railway Board show that the toll of death as a result of level crossing accidents is not decreasing.

There were forty-four such accidents last month, with motor cars being involved in thirty-six of them, eight people were killed and 40 injured.

In the last four months 42 fatalities occurred at level crossings in Canada, the total number of accidents being 145.

In six years from 1921 to 1926 499 people were killed and 1,437 injured in grade crossing accidents, and last year saw the heaviest death roll on record, 144 in all, with 1927 likely to show an even lengthier list.

These figures should shock even the most careless driver into endeavoring to exercise caution at dangerous crossings.

Many such points are totally unprotected, and upon the man at the wheel of the car the whole responsibility rests.

The engineer can do nothing to avert a collision; if the motorist errs there is no escape.

The death toll is heavy enough surely to convince every driver that it does not pay to take a chance; the penalty for losing is too great to warrant the risk.

INSTALMENT BUYING DISCUSSED.

It is said that due to the instalment plan of buying, the people of the United States at present owe $2,000,000,000. Some authorities have pointed out the danger of such a condition, in which they see a lack of thrift by the debtors.

The instalment plan has thus far received no check. It seems to have arrived to stay. While the sum of two thousand million dollars may be owing, it is said that the plan is responsible for $5,000,000,000 in production in one year. It speeds up business and industry, and raises the standard of living.

The benefit or abuse of instalment buying depends on the individual. Certainly to go into debt for luxuries at the expense of other necessary things in life is not good business. But to go into debt for an appliance for household use, and to pay a moderate interest during the course of a few months for the use of the appliance while the debt is being wiped off is not bad business for many careful householders. Otherwise, they would not be able to secure something for improved living conditions. Many articles might be mentioned in this regard. In regard to motor cars one cannot be so sure that they are always essential, although their owners think so. To mortgage a home to purchase a motor car is not good business and that has been done times without number.

But an expert in economics comes along who declares that instalment buying is not an evil but a good. This is Prof. E. R. A. Seligman, economist and financial expert connected with Columbia University. He asserts from a study of the matter that there is not only safety but prosperity in instalment buying.

These are some of the benefits of instalment selling, according to Prof. Seligman's analysis: It gives great purchasing power, increases production, insures against unemployment, and is the basis of sound prosperity. It is one of the factors producing the high standard of living in the United States.

"So far as concerns the probablity of payment", says Prof. Seligman, "it is difficult to distinguish between loans to consumers and loans to business enterprises. Instalment credit is not more dangerous than ordinary forms of credit."

And, of course, like ordinary credit, the thing can be unwise or overdone.—St. Catharines Standard.

AN ENGLISH VIEW OF CANADA.

The complaint that Canada's resources are not sufficiently known in Great Britain is likely to disappear. The London Financial Times has issued a Canadian Resources Supplement in magazine form, containing forty very large pages. In the leading editorial it is said that the nineteenth century was the century of the United States, and the twentieth century Canada's, and that the ratios of Canada's progress in the twentieth century were never equaled in any equivalent period of the nineteenth century expansion of the United States. It is pointed out that American industrialists and financiers are investing money without stint in Canadian enterprises. "Can British capital and enterprise afford to hold aloof?" Canada, it is said, is no longer a supplier of primary products merely, but is attaining prominent rank among the nations of the world as a manufacturer.

The supplement contains an article by Mr. R. J. Barrett, managing editor of The Financial Times, on "Opportunities in Canada." Mr. Barrett visited Canada twenty years ago and wrote a book entitled "Canada's Century." He points out that in the last twenty years the population of Canada has increased 50 per cent., the value of field crops has increased fourfold, the total trade has grown in the same ratio, the value of manufactures has trebled, the mineral output has increased 350 per cent. and the export of forest products sevenfold, and steam railway mileage has grown from 21,353 to 40,352. As one reads these figures, he cannot help reflecting on the absurdity of denying the fact of Canada's national status. Leaving aside the political or constitutional aspects of the question, this material progress, combined with provision for education and the administration of justice and other elements of civilization, establishes the fact of nationality.

Canada, says Mr. Barrett, offers the most attractive field in the world today for British capital and enterprise. The trend of her economic evolution has been on sound and natural lines. First came agriculture, forestry, the fur trade and the fisheries. Then mineral resources were exploited. The third and inevitable stage was manufacturing. True, there has always been manufacturing in Canada, but in recent years progress in this respect has been remarkable. Mr. Barrett says:

"The illusion was formerly cherished by a school of economists in this country that the Dominions of the British Empire would be content to supply us with primary products, in exchange for which they would take our manufactures—neglectful of their own industrial development, though possessed of advantages superior to our own. That was sheer fatuity. The great Dominions have their own destinies to fulfil. They are convinced that their future must, in the nature of things, transcend that of the Mother Country, with its relatively small area and its scant natural resources."

Canadians have probably not carried their expectations quite that far, but it is interesting to observe how the prospect strikes an outsider. Mr. Barrett goes on to say that Great Britain is faced with the now formidable menace of industrial competition in the old world, and of loosening hold on markets where her supremacy used to be unchallenged. The soundest policy of insurance against loss in this respect, he holds, is to co-operate in the development of British overseas Dominions. It is pointed out that American investments in Canada now amount to more than three billion dollars and that there are 1,400 branch plants of American industries in the Dominion. Great Britain must take a leaf out of the American book. "Neglect of opportunities now may tend to Canada's eventual alienation and our own economic decadence." This is stronger language than a Canadian would be disposed to use, but the advice is good.

Space would not permit of more than mention of the articles on various phases of Canadian activity contributed by Canadian Ministers and experts, but it may be said that even a Canadian fairly well informed on these matters will find the supplement useful for reference. There is a foreword by Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce. He asks that Canada be judged not by statistics of material resources alone but by her progress nationally, spiritually and intellectually in conjunction with her remarkable advance in all those departments of human activity which add to the wealth and prosperity of the Empire and the world.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is strongly suspected that the work of connecting the new Monaghan school with the city's sewerage system was done by amateurs. Regulars wouldn't have completed the job so quickly.

There is only one Lindbergh—and only one "Spirit of St. Louis."

The North Monaghan case looks like a chance for the City Council to dig in.

J. G. Lethbridge has only been leader of the Ontario Progressives for a few weeks and already there are rumours that his job is to disappear by reason of a Liberal-Progressive alliance in the Legislature.

It looks as if the city of Peterborough-North Monaghan controversy may yet provide work for the League of Nations.

Thirty-five men applied for jobs as caretakers of the municipal skating rinks. There are only five positions. Is the flood of applications indicative of an unemployment problem for Peterborough this winter?

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Small quantities of wheat were sold yesterday for export on the downturn of the market and upon receipt of news of poor weather conditions in the Argentine. Cash prices for contract grades closed ¾c per bushel lower, with No. 1 Northern quoted at $1.38, No. 2 Northern at $1.34, and No. 3 Northern at $1.22 per bushel, ex-store, Fort William.

Oats sold off with the other grains, as compared with the closing quotations on Wednesday, December oats closed ¾c per bushel up, May closed ¼c per bushel down, and July were unchanged.

No change was noted in the flour market. Car lots of first patents sold at $8.00, second patents at $7.40, and strong bakers at $7.00 per barrel in jute bags, ex-track, less 10c per barrel for spot cash.

Millfeed continued to be in demand in the United States market. Manitoba bran brought $34.25, shorts $36.25, and middlings $44.25 per ton, ex-track, less 25c per ton for spot cash. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was steady under a fair demand at $3.85 per bag of 90 pounds, delivered to the trade.

Trade in baled hay was quiet. Local demand was limited but prices ruled steady. No. 2 Timothy brought $13.50 to $14.00 a ton, and No. 3 Timothy $12.50 to $13.00 per ton, f.o.b. cars here.

No change was reported in either the butter or cheese market. Wholesalers quote 37½c per pound for offerings of eastern townships' finest September No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter, though odd lots changed hands at 38½c per pound. The ruling price for current receipts is 36 cents. Current receipts of white and colored cheese were sold at 18½c per pound, although 19 cents was more generally mentioned. An odd lot of October brought 20¼c per pound.

The egg market looked better with 43 cents being quoted for storage extras, cases included, delivered in Montreal in carload lots. One car load was disposed of at 42½c. Other prices were 63 cents for extras, 59c of firsts, and 54 cents for pullet extras.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Grain values underwent a little setback yesterday after showing an early upward trend. Enlarged selling pressure developed, especially in the wheat market on account of expectation that the Argentine Government crop report looked for today would prove bearish.

Wheat closed heavy, ¾c to 1¼c net lower, at about the day's bottom figures; with corn ⅝c to ⅞c off; oats ⅝c to ⅞c down; and provisions unchanged to 17 cents up.

Much of the late selling of wheat was to liquidate Chicago December contracts on which the holders desired to avoid accepting actual deliveries. Tenders of such deliveries yesterday resulted in 215,000 bushels being handed over in settlement of December accounts here. Besides, Canadian country marketings of wheat continued heavy, latest figures being 1,773,000 bushels for one day, against 664,000 bushels a year ago.

Houses with north-west connections were conspicuous on the selling side of the wheat market, and in the absence of any aggressive buying support, prices declined readily toward the last, whereas earlier the market showed considerable firmness because of advices that rains in Argentina were dimming the harvest outlook. Export demand for wheat from North America was only fair, with yesterday's sales totalling 300,000 to 500,000 bushels in all positions.

WESLEY LADIES SERVE SUPPER

Ladies' Aid Effort Proves Success in Spite of Bad Weather.

PROGRAM FOLLOWS.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 16.—The hot supper put up by the Ladies' Aid Society of Wesley United church, on Thursday evening was a decided success. This was an initial effort on the part of the ladies to "serve it hot" and the plucky crowd that braved the elements did ample justice to the good things provided and bore splendid testimony to the success of the undertaking.

The program, which was given almost entirely by local talent, was considerably shortened as several numbers failed to respond, owing to the very severe weather. Rev. T. M. Wesley, the popular pastor, made an able chairman and announced the items as follows:

Hymn—"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."
Prayer.
Chairman's address.
Accordion solo—Mr. N. Ball, accompanist, Miss May Nicholls.
Reading—Mr. John Harrison (a humorous account of two ball games in which Wesley Muskies took part).
Dialogue, "The New Hired Man"—Four boys.
Male Chorus—"Some Day I'll Wander Back Again."
Monologue, "An Aspiring Dish Washer"—Miss Margaret Northey.
Instrumental number—Mrs. J. A. Northey, Messrs. James Irwin, J. W. Blewett and Evans Blewett.
Dialogue, "Mischievous Matty"—Five young ladies.
Accordion solo—Mr. N. Ball.
Monologue, "Dorothy Entertains the Minister"—Miss Margaret Northey
Male chorus—"Golden Slippers."
Dialogue, "A Minister's Mistake"—Misses Orethea Northey and Isobel Graham and Mr. Kenneth Graham.
Instrumental number—Mrs. Northey, Messrs. James Irwin, J. W. and Evans Blewett.
God Save the King.

The proceeds, although far below what they would have been had the weather been propitious, were gratifying. A short time ago the church anniversary was held and a liberal thankoffering, greatly in excess of any previous amount, was received. This, together with the proceeds of the supper, amounted to $161. The ladies have cause for gratitude on the success of both undertakings.

CANADA'S RESOURCES DISCUSSED BY SPEAKER AT KIWANIS DINNER

C. T. Young, of C.N.R., Tells of Development Along Many Lines.

POWER, PULP AND MINING.

Interesting and Instructive Talk is Given, Full of Facts and Figures.

At the regular weekly luncheon of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club today, the speaker was C. T. Young, Superintendent of Development of the Canadian National Railways. His address on "The Development of Canada's Resources, the Mines, the Pulp and Paper Industry, and Power Development," was, to use the words of one Kiwanian, "a straight business talk to business men without the usual superfluous funny stories or platitudes of any kind."

Mrs. H. F. Doig, soloist of St. Andrew's Church, accompanied by Martin B. Chenhall, contributed two particularly pleasing vocal numbers. The presentation of a beautiful bouquet to Mrs. Doig bespoke the appreciation of the club.

Mr. Young.

In his opening remarks Mr. Young expressed his pleasure at being present and paid tribute to the club and to all Kiwanis Clubs which have carried out their slogan, "We Build."

"In discussing the development of Canada," he began, "it is fitting that we should first consider, very carefully, the matter of financing research work as conducive to the progress of our industries. Germany held a leading position in the manufacturing world before the war because of extensive research, and other nations, the United States for example, spend a much larger sum per capita for research work. It is up to us to take steps in this direction; we must talk it over and create a sentiment in favor of research. As to the main development of our mines, our pulp and paper industry and our power resources, we should extend them and develop them to the limit."

The speaker drew attention to the desirability of selling the raw products of all three, not as raw material, but in manufactured form, and quoted figures to show the increased profits of such action, with regard to textiles, wool, mineral ore, and other products.

The point is this, that while it is all very well to grow wheat and to become the world's largest exporter of it, the full dinner pail is the result of industries that run twelve months in the year. Mining is one of these," he declared.

Pulp and Paper.

The pulp and paper industry, said the speaker, is responsible for much of Canada's favorable trade balance. Thirty years ago Canada sold $130 00 worth of paper, last year she sold $73,000,000 worth, so that now Canada is the largest manufacturer of paper in the world.

Power Development.

In dealing with power development in the Dominion, Mr. Young first of all stated that tremendous strides have been made in every province. He gave a brief resume of the location of the various sources of electrical power and described to what extent each had been developed. In this connection he stated that only one-eigth of the total number of horse power afforded by natural resources is being utilized. It has been developed at a cost of several millions of dollars and the securities that have stood the test in this have proven worthy of praise and consideration of all business men. "While the mines may fall off, the farms lose their fertility or the timber resources fail, power development will continue and be of profit to all concerned," he concluded.

Population Increases.

The extensive growth of the power, pulp and mining industries has been responsible for an increase in the population of the northern districts. Reference to the various mining districts, the Rouyn, Kirkland Lake, Porcupine, Hollinger, Cobalt, Sudbury, Red Lake and others, explanation of the development and products of each and to the success of all ,and final survey of new power resources preceded and justified the speaker's closing prediction of a future Canada of profitable mines, waterways, forest resources and contented people.

A hearty vote of thanks, moved by Kiwanian A. J. Reynolds, was the final function of the meeting, which closed with the singing of 'O, Canada."

Weakness Of Corn Sends Wheat Down

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press)—Aggressive selling on the part of speculators led to a decided early setback in corn values today and also indirectly weakened wheat. Below zero temperatures in Iowa acted as a brisk incentive to sell corn. Opening at ⅛c to ¾c off, the corn market quickly underwent a material further setback. Wheat started unchanged to ⅝c lower and subsequently showed losses all around. Oats were easy. Provisions likewise tended to sag.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 125⅞, March 128⅝. Corn, December 84⅝, March 88⅞. Oats, December, not quoted, March 54⅝.

Mine Market Dull With Small Changes

TORONTO, December 16 (Canadian Press). — The Standard Mining Exchange was again dull this morning, with a turnover around three-quarters of a million shares. An easier movement was in evidence but a great many stocks were unchanged from yesterday's close. Dome suffered one of the chief recessions, losing 25 at 13.50. Bidgood lost a point at 165 and Area nearly two at 31¼, while Laval Quebec, Teck Hughes, Barry Hollinger, and Columbus Kirkland had small losses. Kirkland Lake issues firmed, along with Granada and Amulet.

MILK PRODUCERS DISCUSS QUALITY

J. P. Griffin of Toronto Addresses Members of Local Association.

J. P. Griffin of Toronto last night addressed a meeting of the milk producers and distributors of this district in the office of J. B. Nelson agricultural representative for this district. William Seymour, president of the local milk producers, occupied the chair. Mr. Griffin discussed ways by which Peterborough could secure the best quality of milk, at a most nominal price. Ways of inspecting the dairy barns were discussed.

Mr. Griffin made it plain that the idea of his organization was not to raise the price of milk but to get the best quality possible.

LOCAL COUNCIL HEARS ADDRESS ABOUT LEAGUE

L. J. Pettit, of the Collegiate Staff, Gives Talk To Ladies.

SPIRIT OF BROTHERHOOD.

Routine Business Transacted By Ladies at Regular Meeting.

The meeting of the Local Council of Women, held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., was featured by an interesting address on the League of Nations, delivered by L. J. Pettit, of the teaching staff of the Collegiate Institute. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. C. H. Edwards.

"The true significance of the League of Nations," said Mr. Pettit, does not lie in its practical efficiency but rather in the spirit of brotherhood which is behind the movement.

"Among the firmly held ideas of the world is the one that many people are anxious for war, whereas the truth is that no one wants to fight—if he can get what he wants without fighting. Even Napoleon had a vision of world peace in a federation of nations which he had built up by the sword The world has ever longed for a cessation of war and history abounds in recipes for perpetual peace."

The speaker went on to refer to several of these recipes as advanced at various times: in 1598 at the end end of the great struggle between France and Spain, a century later, when the contest for the balance of power in Europe was finally concluded, and in 1815, after the Napoleonic wars. But various proposals of peace advanced at these times had failed. In 1918, at the conclusion of the Great War, President Wilson suggested a peace formula, which was really adapted to the idea of a great Christian nation which had taken as its slogan, "A war to end war," a slogan which found a sympathetic echo in the old world of Europe.

"Only as it is the fruit of the travail of Jesus Christ will the League of Nations be a success," said Mr. Pettit, speaking of the League being bound up in the Treaty of Versailles, "which is such a mixture of selfishness and altruism, of idealism and of international political jobbery, with its idea of universal brotherhood contradicted by its exclusion of Germany, made a sacrifice on the altar of France's natural desire for revenge, and also its exclusion of Russia. This travesty was the work of a coterie of practical politicians who were not necessarily statesmen, in President Wilson, Lloyd George and Clemenceau." "This treaty contains enough political dynamite to blow up the whole universe. If the League of Nations fails, it will not be due to the practices with which it is bound up but to the inherited flaws of the principle with which it is involved."

Even before the war declared the speaker, the world had been made familiar with the ideals of international brotherhood by means of the Hague Conferences and the International Brotherhood by means of the Hague conferences and the International Congresses of the Socialist movement, both trying to provide arbitration as a substitute for war.

"The old systems and their political shibboleths had gone by the board in war time. It had swept away the idea of the balance of power in Europe, of England's two-power naval standard, of Britain's splendid isolation and of secret diplomacy But the mob requires a mouth-filling shibboleth. It was ready for a new one. It was only when the faith in an old creed has been destroyed that one is ready to accept the statement of a new one. It was then that President Wilson who according to Clemenceau, "spoke like like Jesus Christ," made his appearance in Europe.

"And it must be remembered," said Mr. Pettit, "that, although Satan may influence us individually at times, it is no devil's voice that can rouse humanity to concerted action. Only the voice of the living God can sound above the din."

Brotherhood Is Base.

"The League of Nations is based upon the idea of brotherhood and it is the offspring of a democratic nation, the United States, which was never led much beyond the edge of the whirlpool of the Great War. It provides moral and also economic safeguards, the latter in its proviso for a commercial boycott of those nations that refuse to live up to the covenant made with the League.

"It is often asked if the League can be made a success without the inclusion in its ranks of the United States. But possibly it can do much better without her than with her. The moral and economic influence of this nation may be much greater from without than within. The position is somewhat similar to that of a family and a neighbor. We often hesitate to take the same liberties with a stranger that we would unhesitatingly take with our families, because we rely on their co-operation and indulgence to a greater extent. If the United States were a member of the League, the other members might begin to take liberties with her. She can stay out and use her immense wealth as a fulcrum to gain a leverage on the belligerents of the world."

Mr. Pettit spoke of the Monroe Doctrine, upon which the United States bases its policy, as implying a "hands off" warning to European nations with regard to its own domestic affairs and an "open door" policy of non-interference towards Europe, on its own part. This doctrine, although only a doctrine, had not been violated by the United States or any other nation for the past hundred years and more, and the United States was naturally loth to do anything now which would be a departure from this somewhat easy, but economical formula. The great interest of the United States at present was in the Orient, and by staying out of the League of Nations, it had a free hand there.

"I think the war of the Pacific is a certainty of the future," said Mr. Pettit, "but it will be a commercial rather than a military war." The American business man considers himself a match for any other business man in the world. Its open door policy towards others is shrewd, fair and above board.

"The United States has another reason for not entering the League of Nations, and that is because of practical politics. If President Wilson had taken some Republicans to Europe with him, it would have made the League a sort of union measure in their minds, but ,as he didn't, it became almost a matter of duty to them to oppose it. But practical politics makes strange bed fellows. The first group in the United States swore by Wilson's original fourteen points. Then there was the German element that resented what they considered the dismemberment of the Fatherland, the Italian element that thought Italy was unfairly treated, and the Irish element that can always be relied upon to oppose anything that includes Great Britain in it. Finally, President Coolidge has come out recently with the rather weak pronouncement, in my opinion, to the effect that to join the League of Nations would interfere in a way with the powers of the United States' Senate."

At the conclusion of Mr. Pettit's address, an appreciation was voiced by Miss A. Lancaster, and a vote of thanks was accorded by the members.

Movies For Children.

General business of the meeting included a suggestion for the adoption of a program of children's movies, as carried out in some of the larger centres ,also a motion, moved by Mrs. A. Stevenson, and seconded by Mrs. R. Bugg, to send a letter to The Examiner, protesting against the advertisement of "True Story" magazine. Mrs. Edwards said the former experience gleaned by herself among girls who were brought up for sex offences in the Juvenile Court showed that the majority of them were constant readers of this magazine, also that most of its local patrons were young girls. Several titles of articles from a recent issue, as read by Mrs. Edwards, included such titles as: "Stronger than Pride," "He Wanted Children," "Plaything of Nature," "Man Won't Forgive," "Hell's Highway," "Did I Do Right?" and "Movie Mad."

A letter from the Board of the Children's Aid Society, inviting a representative of the Local Council to attend its meetings, was read, and it was decided to ask Mrs. Hodgson, who is a member of the Board of the C.A.S., to represent the Council in this way.

A letter was also read from the office of the National Council, asking the Local Council to contribute towards the International Press Exhibition which will be held at Cologne, Germany, from May to October of next year. It is desired that Canadian Councils get a certain amount of publicity from this exhibition by furnishing copies of their publications, periodicals, pamphlets, posters and calendars. Mrs. Edwards asked Miss Cathleen McCarthy, of The Examiner staff, to make a collection of this type to represent Peterborough at the Exhibition.

LIFE OF MANY NATIONS TOLD

Women's Canadian Club Hears Interesting Travel Talk.

GLIMPSES OF THE GLOBE.

An intriguing glimpse of the manner of life and the highlights of existence in various countries of the world was afforded the listeners at the meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, held yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the Public Library, and addressed by Miss Florence Withrow of Toronto, in an informal, chatty, friendly talk entitled "Glimpses of the Globe." The president, Miss S. A. Tomkins, was in the chair, and voiced the appreciation of the members at the conclusion of the address.

Miss Withrow prefaced her talk with an exhibit of various small curios brought from different lands, with such items of interest as some of the oiled paper which served for windows in France and Belgium, during war time, a little shrine-encased Buddha from China, examples of ancient Inca workmanship, spoons and forks picked up from the battlefields after the Great War, and a tiny lamp used by the early Christians hiding in the Catacombs at Rome. A number of colored photos were also passed among the audience, illustrative of various notable spots.

Miss Withrow went on to give some entertaining sidelight on various royalties she had encountered during the course of her extensive travels. At Sydenham Palace on one occasion, she had seen Queen Victoria, "a comfortable, kindly looking woman, wearing an atrocious bonnet with purple ribbons", and drinking pink lemonade out of a straw at the American Pavilion. King Edward, in his grey suit and grey top hat, Queen Alexandra coming back to England after a visit to Denmark, shortly after King Edward's death, with the red carpet let down for her arrival which is used always for a queen, but not for a king, and accompanied by her oldest daughter, Queen Maud of Norway, and her little grandson, Olaf, whose nursemaid was carrying his tin bathtub, were all mentioned.

Reference was made to the visit of the German Kaiser to England in connection with the preparatory ceremonies to the coronation of King George, when a wonderful theatrical affair was performed in Drury Lane Theatre. Here was Queen Mary in a white satin dress with painted flowers and a little hat whose blue ostrich plumes stood straight up. Here was the surprise of the evening, the drop curtain painted with allegorical figures representing the Kaiser and King George on horseback, holding up olive branches that signified eternal peace between the two countries. Here was the royal box draped with imitation ermine, and a decorative scheme in the house achieved by the use of a marvellous pink paper ceiling, purple wall hangings and white felt covers to the chairs. The little Prince of Wales fidgeted in the royal box and the Kaiser laughed uproariously during passages of the performance of "Money", one of Bulwer-Lutton's plays.

A description of royalty's passage through the streets was interesting. Sand is scattered over the route and the royal carriage, with its outriders and lackeys, is preceded by motor-cycle riders and mounted policemen, "Curb stone watchers" line the passageway.

The Duke of Connaught was mentioned, also the King and Queen of Belgium. The cry of "Vive le roi" from a mighty concourse of enthusiastic people was heard for the first time by the speaker at a huge gathering at Bruges, when the Belgians proclaimed their loyalty to the king in this way, on his appearance.

The touring party organized by Miss Withrow visited on one occasion the little modest red villa at San Sebastian, where the King and Queen of Spain like to spend some time, and the summer place was visited of the former Czar and Czarina, at Peterhof, where the furnishings are very shabby and where the royal children used to climb to sleep on the third floor by means of a narrow, spiral staircase. Queen Wilhelmina of Holland was another figure introduced to the audience, with a passing reference to the individual flagpoles of Dutch residences, and the mirrors placed at a point outside where watchers withing doors can see what is going on outside.

At Cairo, on the birthday of Mahomet ,a celebration was staged at which Miss Withrow was present and saw the whirling dervishes perform, and she saw also the Mardi Gras celebrations at Buenos Ayres, where the beautiful senoritas with their black lace mantillas and combs a foot high, parade through the streets and the gentleman motor by, for the sexes are segregated in South America in these celbrations, and flirtations are carried on by means of throwing rose-colored "serpentina", colored streamers similar to those used here.

The Carnival at Nice, with a "Madame Carnival' on a gorgeous float, and permission given the Venetians to throw a fine gravel during the celebration, with a mask worn to protect the eyes, was described also a Venetian funeral, when the gondolas (always painted in black, by order of a Dodge who was harassed by quarrels between rivals for colored boats) are draped with trailing black velvet palls, and covered with flowers.

Miss Withrow spoke of the funeral of the Duke of Teck, the brother of Queen Mary, who died about ten years ago, when the attendant princesses walked in the cortege with black chiffon veils and also of the various occasions when she had seen the taciturn Kitchener in jovial mood.

A Chinese funeral and the Cherry Blossom Festival and Tea Ceremony of Japan were alluded to, Miss Withrow spaking of the erroneous idea of the geisha harbored by Occidentals, and describing her as an entertainer in the musical programs of the better class tea houses, where the Tea Ceremony is made a beautiful occasion, with tiny lacquered tables fringed by tiny iris silk lanterns and "execrable green tea" served in formal fashion by the attendants. The Japanese habit of placing only one ornament in a room was lauded by the speaker, in comparison with the European mode.

Some "supernal" sights referred to in conclusion were the sunrise of Mount Everest, when the rossate glow reminded the watcher of a similar radiance over the Jungfrau at Interlaken; the sunset on Fuji, sacred mountain of Japan, where women, instead of spending their afternoons in bridge, play a little game of making miniature Japanese gardens with tiny pagodas and bridges and flowers, with a prize for the best achievement; the moonlight of the great Pyramids of Egypt, and the great electric glow of the blue sky on leaving Pekin, after seeing the lying-in-state which followed the death of Sun Yat Sen.

BANKER ADDRESSES BUSINESS STUDENTS

A. J. Reynolds Explains Functions of Bank in Practical Talk.

The pupils of the Peterborough Business College were, on Monday, given an address on banking by Arthur J. Reynolds, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. In the course of his address Mr. Reynolds outlined that the chief purposes of the bank were fourfold.

1st: To provide a safe place in which the public may keep money and valuables.

2nd: To lend its own money paid in by shareholders and money deposited, at a profit.

3rd: To act as agent for collection and remission of money.

4th: To provide the public with a convenient currency in the shape of its promissory notes, intended to circulate as money.

He then developed his theme to show that the banks in Canada were satisfactorily performing the four functions for which they were devised and also gave some practical details of banking.

The address was followed with considerable interest by the students of the college, to whom it appealed particularly as future business men and women.

CHURCH SHOWS GREAT DECLINE

Year Book Says Some Areas of England Left Without Clergy.

PICTURE APPROVED.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(United Press) The supporters of the revised prayer book are elated over the large majority by which the bill was passed by the House of Lords Wednesday night but its opponents claim that although the House of Commons is likely to take similar action the majority will be small. A number of members will abstain from voting and yesterday Lloyd George had been advised not to speak on the measure because of the attitude of the non-conformist voters.

Meanwhile startling figures have been published revealing how the Church of England is losing ground in Great Britain. Last year there was a decline of $600,000 in voluntary contributions, a decrease of 10,000 confirmations; of 11,000 baptisms and 15,000 Easter communicants. The Christian Year Book commenting on these figures says:

Some areas of Great Britain have been left without clergy or ministers and the people there are in danger of becoming heathen. In such places England is as non-Christian as some unorganized areas overseas, and it may presently be impossible to call England a Christian nation in the sense understood by our forefathers.

An audience, composed mainly of church leaders viewed yesterday the American film dramatising the life of Christ under the title "The King of Kings" and newspapers today are filled with reviews of it. The majority of the church leaders favor the presentation of the picture but most of the dramatic critics find fault with it on the gounds that there is too much "Hollywood" about its presentation of Christ.

25 FREIGHTERS CAUGHT BY ICE

May Have To Stay All Winter in the St. Mary's River.

KAMLOOPS STILL LOST.

SAULT STE. MARIE, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Twenty-five lake freighters may be caught fast in the St. Mary's River for the winter, as they have been unable to make any progress in the past 48 hours, and the thermometer has dropped well below freezing.

The tie-up is in the rock cut of the west Neebish Channel, where the steamer Eades, in the lead of a procession of boats, is stuck fast, and efforts to release her have been unavailing. Traffic on Lake Superior is over for the season, and the light tender, Murray Stewart, the last boat on the lake, is expected to reach here to-day if it succeeds in taking off the lightkeeper at Parisienne Island. There is still no word of the Kamoops.

Whereabouts a Mystery.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—The fate of the twenty men and two women, crew of the Michigan package freighter Kamloops, remained unsolved to-day, eight days since the vessel last was sighted. While marine men here still cling to the hope that the long overdue steamer might yet be located, no tangible clue has been discovered to indicate whether the Kamloops sank during last week's storm which swept the Great Lakes, or became ice locked in some isolated inlet.

No Further Word

MONTREAL, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press). — The Canada Steamship Lines here report that no further word has been received from the search ships which are at present scouring the shores of Lake Superior for signs of the steamship Kamloops, package freighter, which has not been seen nor heard of since before the storm which swept the Great Lakes last week. It was announced here today that land parties had been organized to cover the coast line along the lake, in hopes of finding some definite sign or clue as to the fate of the vessel and crew of twenty.

PRESIDENT REPORTS ON W.I. CONVENTION

Gives Synopsis of Resolutions Passed at Meeting in Toronto.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Dec. 15. — The December meeeting of the Mount Pleasant branch of East Durham Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Richard Graham on Wednesday with an attendance of eleven members.

The roll-call subject was home-made candy which was answered by contributing recipes. Those who answered with a recipe were Mrs. W. H. Lowes, Mrs. Geo. Jamieson, Mrs. Ira Lowe and Mrs. Garnet Shield.

A number of blocks for a quilt made during the past month were brought to the meeting and exhibited and the making of this was left over till after Christmas owing to the busy season in all homes just now.

It was decided to remember the sick and shut-ins in the community and a box of Christmas cheer was arranged for the lonely.

A letter of acknowledgment was read by the secretary from "Navy League" for a donation of money sent. The program was in charge of Mrs. Chester Best and Mrs. J. Eggleston, both of whom were absent.

Mrs. W. H. Lowes gave an interesting paper entitled "Christmas Candles." The president gave a synopsis of part of what took place at the convention held in Toronto November 15, 16, 17, also read the resolutions passed at the convention which were as follows:

That, in view of the shifting of rural population to the urban centres, the suggestion be made to the Dominion Government that consideration be given to the policy of placing selected Canadians, now city dwellers, on the land under conditions similar to those in force under the Empire Settlement scheme.

That an earnest effort be taken to induce rural trustees to see that our rural schools be properly supervised at noon and at recess.

That we co-operate with other women in their protest against the beauty contests which are being held in our cities as being detrimental to the womanhood of our country.

That, recognizing the great influence of the films, we, the Women's Institutes in convention assembled, humbly beg to request that every effort be made to furnish educative wholesome films and to eliminate anything of a degrading and useless character, and we beg further to request that a more strict censorship be introduced, so that gradually our people will be led to call for nothing but the best, and that the use of British films be encouraged.

That our Women's Institutes desire to express appreciation of the reduction already granted by the Hydro Commission in the cost of electric service in rural sections of one Province; and, in view of the fact that it is very difficult to get help in the farm homes, be it hereby resolved that the initial cost of installing Hydro in the rural districts be further equalized as compared to the cost in the more thickly settled sections; we also beg to request that arrangements be made for supplying electrical equipment through the Women's Institutes at wholesale prices on cash payment.

That the government be asked to extend the municipal franchise to farmers' daughters of legal age on the same terms as it is now given to farmers' sons.

That the Institutes show more interest in our new Canadian women and that they be asked to our meetings, in that way making a beginning in Canadianizing our foreign element.

That the Institutes show more inties among pedestrians on our highways demands that provision be made for either paths or more stringent regulations for both pedestrians and motorists, and we hereby pledge the co-operation of the Women's Institutes in whatever manner thought desirable.

That the Women's Institutes in convention assembled assert their belief that in the B.N.A.A. the word "person" used in reference to membership in the senate should be taken to include both men and women.

A social half hour was enjoyed while refreshments were served by the hostess. Those who were present included: Miss L. Finley, Mrs. Rosenburg, Mrs. H. Gardiner, Mrs. W. H. Lowes, Mrs. G. McLean, Mrs. G. Shield, Mrs. G. Jamieson, Mrs. T. I. Lowe, Mrs. S. Paragreen, Miss D. Paragreen and Mrs. Graham.

BAZAAR GREAT SUCCESS.

St. Paul's W. A., Bethany, Sells Many Articles of Various Kinds.

BETHANY, Dec. 16.—The annual bazaar which was held in the town hall under the auspices of St. Paul's W.A. was well attended and the proceeds of $150.00 was considered well worth the time spent in the preparation.

The hall looked very attractive upon entrance and the booths were very inviting with the many useful and fancy articles which were offered for sale.

A dainty and appetizing supper was also enjoyed by those who attended.

The pupils of the Public school here, under the leadership of their teachers, Mrs. Ida Carscadden and Miss Gladys Fierheller, are giving a school concert in the town hall on Monday, Dec. 19. The entertainment is in the form of a fairy play. The children are personating rain fairies, snow fairies, fire fairies, etc. They are greatly interested in their concert and are hoping their parents and friends will all be present on Monday, December 19 to see how well they take their parts.

During the wind storm of Thursday night the roof was blown off a stock car on the C.P.R. siding. The wind also opened the door of the town hall which faces north and blew the door off its hinges breaking it badly.

The several stores in the village are in holiday dress with many attractive articles on display for Santa Claus' distribution.

Warsaw, Prague and Budapest, capitals of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary, are among the world's most important air terminals.

The presentations were made by Miss Elsie Clinkscale and Mr. D. H. SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith laughed. A sudden mental picture of Cherry's beautiful, furious little face as it must have looked when Nils had announced to her that he did not like her very much -but that he thought she would make a good farmer's wife was irresistibly funny. Then her amusement turned upon the astonishing young man who was watching her with imperturbable, patient blue eyes.

"But Nils," she laughed, as she laid a friendly hand upon his arm, "don't you see how absurd you've been? You've given yourself away right at the first, in asking her to marry you less than twenty-four hours after you met her. She'd be an idiot if she didn't know that you were in love with her—so much in love at first sight that you couldn't wait even a decent length of time to ask her to marry you."

Nils flushed, then grinned boyishly. "I couldn't help it. You see I'd been in love with her so long and had had so much opportunity to know her thoroughly during the trial that I felt as if she knew me, too. But I've thought it all out. It was really very good psychology, you know—hurling a proposal at her right off. I've got only a short time here this trip and I wanted to make her notice me—"

"As if she could help it."

The big young man flushed and grinned his gratitude. "But I wanted her to be thinking of me as a husband just as soon as she began to think of me at all. It will save a lot of time, you see. But I've worked it out this way. Cherry is a born flirt. In my opinion, she's never been in love in her life—seriously in love, I mean. She's just been playing at love, and any fool listening to the evidence at the trial could have deduced that the reason she was always in hot water with men was that she was simply crazy about herself and determined to get every man she met just as crazy about her. But it was pretty clear that as soon as any man told her he loved her and asked her to marry him she lost interest. All but Chris Wiley, and he kept her guessing, by having affairs with other girls. But as soon as she was married to him she discovered that she wasn't in love with him and left him. Faith—do you mind if I call you Faith? Thank you!—Cherry has never been in love with any man yet because no man whom she could love has held out against her. Think a minute! Isn't that right?"

Faith considered, her brown eyes thoroughly bent upon her clasped hands. "I believe you're right, Nils. That may explain a good many things about Cherry that have—hurt me."

"I've shot my bolt," Nils asserted confidently, "and now I'm going to sit tight and watch the effect. She'll be expecting me to pursue her with invitations and flowers and candy and languishing, jealous looks. Not because she's in love with me, but because she enjoys seeing men unhappy and desperate in their love for her. If I ignore her, not pointedly, but just as if I were no longer interested after her refusal of me, she'll do a lot of thinking about me. I may be a conceited fool, but I believe I'm the right man for Cherry, Faith, and that I'll win—"

"Are you two going to hide in here all night?" Cherry's voice demanded furiously from the doorway. "I've been waiting for you to dance with me, Nils."

OLD MASTERS

Mother wept, and father sighed;
With delight aglow
Cried the lad, "Tomorrow," cried,
"To the pit I go."

Up and down the place he sped,—
Greeted old and young;
Far and wide the tidings spread;
Clapt his hands and sung.

Came his cronies; some to gaze
Wrapped in wonder; some
Free with counsel; some with praise:
Some with envy dumb.

"May he," many a gossip cried,
"Be from peril kept,"
Father hid his face and sighed,
Mother turned and wept.

MISS GLEITZ FAILS IN GIBRALTAR SWIM

Forced o Give Up After Eight Hours in the Water.

TANGIER, Morocco, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press). Miss Mercedes Gleitz, London typist, abandoned her attempt to swim the Strait of Gibraltar to-day. She started from the mouth of Jeus River at 2.30 a.m.

The woman swimmer had covered more than half of the 27 miles she estimated would be the length of her swim, when she was forced to give up. Shifting currents and the possibility that sharks might be encountered were the two greatest handicaps of the unsuccessful attempt.

Miss Gleitz was in good spirits and confident of success. When she started from the beach conditions were good. The sea was dead calm and there was a slight mist. The launch accompanying her carried a wireless set and a phonograph. A Spanish member of the party took a guitar along.

On returning to Tangier, Miss Gleitz said that she had to give up her swim because of sea sickness after eight hours swimming.

LINDBERGH LETS PEOPLE GET VIEW

monies and Fly Over Will Attend Big Public Cere- City.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 16. —(Canadian Press.)—Lindbergh is ready to gratify the desire of the plain people of Mexico City to see him before he flies away. During the course of his stay several public ceremonials will be held in the big athletic stadium, seating thirty thousand people, and other enclosures, so that all may see the flier. He has expressed his willingness to fly over the city to gratify the public interest. Lindbergh will fly to Panama, it was announced there, at a date to be determined later.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1927

After the early hours of this day, planetary influences should be helpful, according to astrology, which finds benefic aspects strong.

There is a good sign for oil exploration and for stockholders in established companies.

The day is read as lucky for beginning ocean voyages, making for safe passage.

The aspects are favorable to the making of plans, for clear vision is supposed to be imparted to mortals, while this configuration prevails.

Under this rule of the stars, land holding should be well directed and activity in real estate widely encouraged.

Banks should profit from the sway, which foreshadows immense business projects to be launched in the new year.

Signing of leases and contracts should be lucky under this day's aspects.

Advertising continues subject to the most stimulating influences which promise great profit to newspapers and magazines.

Political interest is supposed to be quickened by this positing of the stars, which is lucky for persons who hold office.

Warning is given that prejudices fostered in regard to foreign nations may be exceedingly dangerous at this time.

The seers declare that wolves in sheep's clothing are numerous and that certain of them will gain big followings among the people who vote blindly.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which many favors come to them.

Children born on this day probably will be endowed with fine natures as well as keen intellects. Girls are likely to marry ambitious and successful men.

BOTH CHANNELS ARE BLOCKADED

Hamonic Stuck in Attempt To Open Upbound Neebish Cut.

WATER HAS RISEN.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 16. —(Canadian Press.)—With the Northern Navigation Company passenger liner Hamonic stuck in the ice in the middle of Neebish channel, thus closing the only exit to Lake Huron for the fleet of grain ships now in the line of blockade and with the arrival of zero temperature, the marine situation here last night was regarded as most grave.

The Hamonic ventured out yesterday in an effort to break through the upbound channel, but was stopped by six inches of blue ice. The plan was for the Hamonic to open the middle of the upbound channel and so release the grain carriers.

The pulling and pounding of six tugs for the last two days has failed to move the twenty-four ships, with 600 men aboard, which are held fast in the ice.

The position of the James B. Eads, stuck in West Neebish rock cut, was the same yesterday, while the cold weather was adding inches to the ice in the river. The swift current of the rock cut is jamming the ice against the walls to make the passage impossible. The Eads is leaking forward as a result of having struck a submerged obstruction.

So heavily is the ice massed in the cut that the water in the river has risen a foot and a half since the blockade. Should the attempt to break a passage through the Middle Neebish fail, the fleet will be obliged to winter here.

The presentations were made by Miss Elsie Clinkscale and Mr. D. H. Moore, the latter also delivering a very appropriate address.Mr. Chenhall, in acknowledgment for himself and Mrs. Chenhall, spoke of the agreeable nature of the six years of service he had given St. Paul's Church as organist and choir leader and of the very harmonious atmosphere imparted to the work by the genial co-operation of the choir members. SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith laughed. A sudden mental picture of Cherry's beautiful, furious little face as it must have looked when Nils had announced to her that he did not like her very much but that he thought she would make a good farmer's wife was irresistibly funny. Then her amusement turned upon the astonishing young man who was watching her with imperturbable, patient blue eyes.

"But Nils," she laughed, as she laid a friendly hand upon his arm, "don't you see how absurd you've been? You've given yourself away right at the first, in asking her to marry you less than twenty-four hours after you met her. She'd be an idiot if she didn't know that you were in love with her—so much in love at first sight that you couldn't wait even a decent length of time to ask her to marry you."

Nils flushed, then grinned boyishly. "I couldn't help it. You see I'd been in love with her so long and had had so much opportunity to know her thoroughly during the trial that I felt as if she knew me, too. But I've thought it all out. It was really very good psychology, you know—hurling a proposal at her right off. I've got only a short time here this trip and I wanted to make her notice me—"

"As if she could help it."

The big young man flushed and grinned his gratitude. "But I wanted her to be thinking of me as a husband just as soon as she began to think of me at all. It will save a lot of time, you see. But I've worked it out this way. Cherry is a born flirt. In my opinion, she's never been in love in her life—seriously in love, I mean. She's just been playing at love, and any fool listening to the evidence at the trial could have deduced that the reason she was always in hot water with men was that she was simply crazy about herself and determined to get every man she met just as crazy about her. But it was pretty clear that as soon as any man told her he loved her and asked her to marry him she lost interest. All but Chris Wiley, and he kept her guessing, by having affairs with other girls. But as soon as she was married to him she discovered that she wasn't in love with him and left him. Faith—do you mind if I call you Faith? Thank you!—Cherry has never been in love with any man yet because no man whom she could love has held out against her. Think a minute! Isn't that right?"

Faith considered, her brown eyes thoroughly bent upon her clasped hands. "I believe you're right, Nils. That may explain a good many things about Cherry that have—hurt me."

"I've shot my bolt," Nils asserted confidently, "and now I'm going to sit tight and watch the effect. She'll be expecting me to pursue her with invitations and flowers and candy and languishing, jealous looks. Not because she's in love with me, but because she enjoys seeing men unhappy and desperate in their love for her. If I ignore her, not pointedly, but just as if I were no longer interested after her refusal of me, she'll do a lot of thinking about me. I may be a conceited fool, but I believe I'm the right man for Cherry, Faith, and that I'll win—"

"Are you two going to hide in here all night?" Cherry's voice demanded furiously from the doorway. "I've been waiting for you to dance with me, Nils."

MISS GLEITZ FAILS IN GIBRALTAR SWIM

Forced o Give Up After Eight Hours in the Water.

TANGIER, Morocco, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—Miss Mercedes Gleitz, London typist, abandoned her attempt to swim the Strait of Gibraltar to-day. She started from the mouth of Jeus River at 2.30 a.m.

The woman swimmer had covered more than half of the 27 miles she estimated would be the length of her swim, when she was forced to give up. Shifting currents and the possibility that sharks might be encountered were the two greatest handicaps of the unsuccessful attempt.

Miss Gleitz was in good spirits and confident of success. When she started from the beach conditions were good. The sea was dead calm and there was a slight mist. The launch accompanying her carried a wireless set and a phonograph. A Spanish member of the party took a guitar along.

On returning to Tangier, Miss Gleitz said that she had to give up her swim because of sea sickness after eight hours swimming.

OLD MASTERS

Mother wept, and father sighed;
With delight aglow
Cried the lad, "Tomorrow," cried,
"To the pit I go."

Up and down the place he sped,—
Greeted old and young;
Far and wide the tidings spread;
Clapt his hands and sung.

Came his cronies; some to gaze
Wrapped in wonder; some
Free with counsel; some with praise:
Some with envy dumb.

"May he," many a gossip cried,
"Be from peril kept."
Father hid his face and sighed,
Mother turned and wept.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1927

After the early hours of this day, planetary influences should be helpful, according to astrology, which finds benefic aspects strong.

There is a good sign for oil exploration and for stockholders in established companies.

The day is read as lucky for beginning ocean voyages, making for safe passage.

The aspects are favorable to the making of plans, for clear vision is supposed to be imparted to mortals, while this configuration prevails.

Under this rule of the stars, land holding should be well directed and activity in real estate widely encouraged.

Banks should profit from the sway, which foreshadows immense business projects to be launched in the new year.

Signing of leases and contracts should be lucky under this day's aspects.

Advertising continues subject to the most stimulating influences which promise great profit to newspapers and magazines.

Political interest is supposed to be quickened by this positing of the stars, which is lucky for persons who hold office.

Warning is given that prejudices fostered in regard to foreign nations may be exceedingly dangerous at this time.

The seers declare that wolves in sheep's clothing are numerous and that certain of them will gain big followings among the people who vote blindly.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which many favors come to them.

Children born on this day probably will be endowed with fine natures as well as keen intellects. Girls are likely to marry ambitious and successful men.

BOTH CHANNELS ARE BLOCKADED

Hamonic Stuck in Attempt To Open Upbound Neebish Cut.

WATER HAS RISEN.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 16. —(Canadian Press.)—With the Northern Navigation Company passenger liner Hamonic stuck in the ice in the middle of Neebish channel, thus closing the only exit to Lake Huron for the fleet of grain ships now in the line of blockade and with the arrival of zero temperature, the marine situation here last night was regarded as most grave.

The Hamonic ventured out yesterday in an effort to break through the upbound channel, but was stopped by six inches of blue ice. The plan was for the Hamonic to open the middle of the upbound channel and so release the grain carriers.

The pulling and pounding of six tugs for the last two days has failed to move the twenty-four ships, with 600 men aboard, which are held fast in the ice.

The position of the James B. Eads, stuck in West Neebish rock cut, was the same yesterday, while the cold weather was adding inches to the ice in the river. The swift current of the rock cut is jamming the ice against the walls to make the passage impossible. The Eads is leaking forward as a result of having struck a submerged obstruction.

So heavily is the ice massed in the cut that the water in the river has risen a foot and a half since the blockade. Should the attempt to break a passage through the Middle Neebish fail, the fleet will be obliged to winter here.

Schwartz and Brown to Battle for Fyweight Title

WO BATTLES FOR TONIGHT

n Championship Tussles Set Record for One Night's Programme.

FLYWEIGHT CONTEST

NEW YORK, December 16. Canadian Press. — One of Tex Rickard's genuine championship tussles, and another granted that status by the New York State Athletic Commission will combine to set a new record to-night at Madison Square Garden. The big arena never before has housed two 15-round title fights on the same night.

Tod Morgan, busy little junior lightweight champion from Seattle, Wash., will defend his crown for the second time against Joe Glick, the punch proof buttonhole maker, of Brooklyn, in the main engagement. Morgan battered the local entry to a decisive defeat in their fray last winter.

Glick won the right to another meeting by defeating Bernstein.

The flyweight title vacated by Fidel La Barba, California youngster, who gave up the ring to attend Leland Stanford University, will rest with the winner of the 15 round semi-final between Corporal Izzy Schwartz, of New York, and Newsboy Brown of Sioux City, Iowa, as far as the New York boxing authorities are concerned. Rickard intends to clarify the situation further by matching the New York champion with the winner of the Ernie Jarvis-"Frency" Belanger fight for National Boxing Association recognition as the champion in Toronto next Monday night.

On a bargain bill Tod Morgan will defend his junior lightweight championship against Joe Glick of New York and Corporal Izzy Schwartz of New York will fight Newsboy Brown for the vacant flyweight championship in a pair of east-west intersectional contests

Tod Morgan's claim to the junior lightweight championship—one of those trick classes invented by the New York Boxing Commission—is undisputed, as both the New York Commission and the National Boxing Association agree that the nice-looking California boy is the real champion. If Glick wins there will be no dispute about his right to the title but the betting favors Morgan to get the nod from the officials.

The winner of the bout between Schwartz and Brown may be disputed however as the world's flyweight champion. Since the retirement of Fidel LaBara who hung up his gloves when he entered Stanford University the title has been vacant officially.

In spite of other unfortunate experiences in filling vacancies by elimination tournaments the New York Commisson sounded a call for all the contenders to enter a tournament and they all entered but Newsboy Brown, one of the many boys in the stable of the astute Lee Flynn.

When the tournament had been completed, Schwartz and Frankie Genaro, Olympic champion in 1920, and former world's champion, were considered to be the outstanding competitors for the title.

Instead of recognizing Genaro the commission passed one of its peculiar resolutions and ordered Schwartz and Brown to meet for the championship. The violent protest of Joe Jacobs, Genaro's manager, was futile, and Brown got the call.

Admitting the quality of Genaro's record the boxing sharps around Broadway felt, however, that Brown would make a better fight even if he did not bother to enter the tournament, as Genaro undoubtedly has gone back and is not the fighter he was.

Brown and Schwartz are both hitters, while Genaro always was more of a boxer.

43,000 Signatures Att ached To Petition Protesting Greyhound Racing Proposal

LONDON, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press Cable).—The biggest organized movement against greyhound racing yet staged produced extraordinary scenes at Guildhall yesterday, when thousands of residents of the South London district, attempted the almost impossible task of entering the famous Council Chamber of the City Corporation to support the petition protesting against the proposal to introduce greyhound racing at Crystal Palace. The deputation, headed by the Bishop of Woolwich and representatives of the Bishops of London, Stepney, Willesden, Southwark and Kensington, finally presented the petition with its 43,000 signatures, including those of 7 bishops, 50 magistrates, and scores of educationists. The throng dissolved when the city fathers promised sympathetic consideration of the matter.

Sir Ernest Lamb, who is a member of the common Council as well as a trustee of Crystal Palace, supported the petition during the Council's discussion. He said he had been on the point of resigning his trusteeship on account of the proposal of other members of the Crystal Palace trustee board to sanction greyhound racing there.

The London City Corporation, Croydon Municipality, and other public bodies contributed funds to the acquisition of Crystal Palace for the nation some years ago. Finally the London Corporation took steps to apply for an injunction to restrain the palace trustees and the Greyhound Racing Association from using the grounds for greyhound racing.

SPRINT STARS AWAIT OLYMPICS

Borah Seeks to Avenge by Paddock and Bowmen.

"When shall we three meet again?" Such is the famous quotation that Charles Borah of Southern California is directing at a pair of sprinters with whom he believes he has matters to settle—Charles Paddock and Chester Bowman.

Borah has figured in hundred-yard races with both Paddock and Bowman, each race having aroused considerable discussion and both close decisions going against Borah.

The answer to the query about the next meetings between Borah and his two rivals centers on one location at which all three are likely to be in competition—the 1928 Olympic games in Amsterdam, Holland.

If these three sprinters face the starting gun in the finals of that international contest what a race it should be! Instead of being United States runners against the world it will be a grudge meeting involving this trio from America and feeling will probably run so high that these contestants will carry away the first three places in that 100-meter jaunt.

It is highly probable that Borah will not run against either Paddock or Bowman until the team is in Europe. Places on the United States team are usually determined on qualifications and the three are likely to be jockeyed into separate heats when the final American try-outs are held for the trip.

Paddock has definitely announced that he does not intend to run Borah again until at the Olympiad.

"It wouldn't be fair to either of us to race when we are not both in the best of condition," says Paddock. "I am going to start training for the Olympic next February. I expect to reach my peak at Amsterdam and in my building up program I may be beaten several times. I don't want to race Borah during this time because the race wouldn't be a fair test."

Both Paddock and Bowman were on the United States Olympic team at Paris in 1924. Bowman taking fourth and Paddock fifth in the 100 meters.

Borah admits he holds a grudge against both Paddock and Bowman. Although only 20 years of age he has learned a great deal about campaigning, one secret of which is to "be for one's self at all times." The foundation for this grudge is as follows:

On May 15, 1926, Charles Paddock entered the Southern Pacific A.A.U. championships in the Los Angeles Coliseum with the previously-published intention of establishing a new world's record for the 100-yard dash. Sir Charles had run 9.6 seconds eleven times in his career and was sure he could do 9.5 seconds.

Borah took the lead in that race and for 98 yards was out in front. Paddock made a flying leap at the finish. There were as many witnesses of the race who thought Borah won as believed Paddock had broken the tape. Pictures of the finish were puzzling. They don't show who did win.

Paddock later said that the race could have been called a dead heat. The judges, however, picked Paddock as the winner. The time was 9.5 seconds—a new world's record. Because of the closeness of the race, Borah might have been the one to get the "break" in decision. The fact that he didn't puts Paddock's name and not Borah's down as holder of that record.

The Borah-Bowman duel was practically a repetition of the Paddock-Borah race. It was at the 1927 A.A.U. championships in Lincoln, Neb., that Borah and Bowman finished the 100 in practically a dead heat. The time was 9.6 seconds, a tie for the A.A.U. record and something worth having one's name attached to. The judges named Borah the winner. Then suddenly out of a clear sky, the officials decided they weren't sure who won and they took Borah's medal back. Two days later they held a vote on the subject. Judges and timers joined in the balloting and the final count was 5 to 4 in favor of Bowman.

So by a "popularity" contest Borah's name was kept from the books and Bowman goes down as the champion and joint record holder with Paddock. Ten years hence the second place man will never be recalled by fans. That's why Borah feels hurt.

SHAUGHNESSY TO RESIGN

Give Up Position as Coach of Rugby Football at McGill.

IN CHARGE SINCE 1911

MONTREAL, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—The Gazette yesterday said:

"Frank Shaughnessy is to resign as coach of rugby football at McGill, according to information from those in close touch with the rugby authority who has had charge of McGill squads since 1911. The McGill rugby coach returned to Montreal Wednesday, but would not comment on the report that he was to announce his decision at the dinner of the McGill rugby football club today.

"The retirement of Shaughnessy will not come as a surprise to those who have been in touch with football at McGill for the past few years. Shaughnessy resigned last season but his resignation was not accepted and he was asked to withdraw it and take charge of the 1927 team. Shaughnessy agreed to withdraw his resignation at that time, but on the understanding that he would coach rugby only and not hockey during the winter months as he had done in previous years.

"Before the recent season ended he was contemplating entering business. As soon as the final game was played in the Autumn Shaughnessy entered a mining brokerage firm here, which was a clear indication that he was forsaking the gridiron.

"His resignation comes at a time when many of those prominent behind the scenes in rugby at McGill were prepared to advocate a long-term contract for the McGill coach a sopposed to the one-year arrangement on which he has worked since taking charge some sixteen years ago.

"Financial questions are apparently the reason for his resignation. Shaughnessy is settled in Montreal and does not want to leave this city. He has turned down tempting offers from United States colleges and, according to those who are in close touch with him, plans on concentrating his future activities to the mining brokerage business and probably baseball. In ball Shaughnessy has been coach and right hand man of Manager Moriarty, of the Detroit Tigers in the American league.

"With the passing of Shaughnessy from the Canadian gridiron, which is apparently definite this time, football loses one of its most colorful and sound authorities. Shaughnessy, probably the most criticized coach in rugby, retires with a record that is unblemished. He, more than any other leader, developed the Canadian game to its present high standing. He possessed remarkable enthusiasm, a sound knowledge of rugby fundamentals and in his long connection with the game he has always taught his players to play clean and sportsmanlike rugby. No finger can be pointed at him for unorthodox tactics.

"Shaughnessy's McGill teams have not met with success in the past years. As in all such cases the coach has to carry the blame, but time will tell and the future will probably show that, if there is any blame for failure by McGill teams, it does not lie on the shoulders of the most famous of all Canadian coaches, but on conditions over which he had no control.

"However, recent defeats are not forcing Shaughnessy out of a sport to which he has given many years of splendid service, but a desire to settle into a vocation which lasts longer than the two or three months of a rugby season."

Hagen-Ganzel Granted Week To Raise Funds

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—Walter Hagen, national professional golf champion, and John Ganzel, former first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, yesterday were granted an additional week in which to raise enough funds to complete their purchase of the International League club.

Meeting in special session, the league granted the request of Hagen and Ganzel for more time to raise the $40,000 which remains to be paid for the franchise. Part payment of $25,000 has been made already. The league authorized President John Conway Toole to confer with the two new prospective owners in Rochester a week from yesterday, when final payment on the franchise will be due.

Montreal, which replace Jersey City, was formally welcomed into the league. President Toole announced that the Montreal club had completed its organization and had plans for a $7,000,000 stadium.

Appointment of a schedule committee was left in the president's hands. Toole said the committee would be named some time next week and would begin its work immediately.

BELANGER HEAVIER THAN HIS OPPONENT

Canadian Champion Tips Scales Two Pounds Heavier Than Jarvis.

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—Interest in the Belanger-Jarvis flyweight championship affair slated for Monday night at the Coliseum is increasing as the time for the all-important tilt approaches. The rush for accommodation does not show any diminution and the advance promises to exceed that of even the Wilde-Wallace sale.

There is little doubt but that Toronto fans like the little fellows, and in that respect they differ from their brethren in New York and other centres of the fistic industry.

If Belanger comes through as he is expected to do on Monday night despite the high calibre of his English opponent he will have the world by the tail.

His immediate connection and more particularly Dave Garrity, cannot see any other outcome than a victory for the Queen City candidate for the crown which was worn so worthily for many years by the Welsh rarebit, Jimmy Wilde. As a matter of fact, Mr. Garrity considers Frenchy a moral.

Jarvis is good, he admits, but he thinks that Belanger will outpunch him and win inside the limit. His opinion is that whether the bout goes six, ten or twelve rounds that the former amateur will come home in front.

Some surprise was expressed when the private weighing-in of the principals showed that Belanger carried a little more weight than the Britisher. Jarvis, who some weeks ago shaped up more like a featherweight than a 112-pounder, scaled close to the weight that he will have to make on Monday night, and generally speaking appeared supremely fit. Belanger also stripped well and it was apparent that he was as strong as a young lion.

With over three days in which to rid himself of the extra poundage the gallant little battler should have no trouble in saving his $750 deposit. At least that is the feeling in his camp. Belanger has not been hurried along in his training and he will be in much better condition for a grueling contest on Monday night than he was when he swapped swings with Genaro.

The officials for the bout will be selected at the ringside. There will be two judges and a referee as was the procedure at the Genaro-Belanger bout.

CHOIR PRESENTS GOWN TO LEADER

Mrs. Martin B. Chenhall Also Recipient of Gift From Singers.

The choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church met for the usual weekly practice last night. The attendance was about fifty, and a splendid rehearsal was the outcome, the work being principally for the Chrisamas season.

About nine o'clock, the members hied them to the home of Martin B. Chenhall, the choirmaster, Water Street, and after a few introductory remarks, Miss Simpson (who, by the way, with Mrs. Walter Byers, sponsored the "mystery" party), called upon D. J. Moore to perform his alloted task. Dave, with his usual tactful opening phrases, thanked the choir for the honor of the occasion, and with a few stories, asked Mr. and Mrs. Chenhall to "attune their ears" to his voice. He unfolded a document (the frontispiece showing a minute photograph of St. Paul's Church), written in letters of gold, symbolizing the thoughts of the signatories, and read the following address:

St. Paul's Church,
Peterborough, Dec. 15, 1927.

Dear Mr. Chenhall,

We, the members of St. Paul's Church Choir, your co-workers in the service of praise ,who have served with you for the past five years, have had ample opportunity to know you. We are proud to own and acknowledge that you hold such a place of honor in our esteem and affections. Your qualifications as an organist and choir leader have been fully manifested by your work in our midst.

As workers with you, we have every reason to count you as one of our best friends, for your tactful leadership has been to us constant inspiration to do our best.

As a visible and tangible evidence of our regard and esteem, we ask you to accept this gown, and with it the hope that you may for many years have occasion to wear it. Every time you put it on, may it recall to your mind our approval of and satisfaction with the capable services you are giving us as our organist and choir leader.

Nor can we forget to accord Mrs. Chenhall a very large measure of appreciation for the very cheerful and ready help she has so often rendered to the choir, and we ask Mrs. Chenhall to accept this picture.

We wish you and your family good health, prosperity in life, and happiness, not only in this life, but also in the world to come.

Signed on behalf of the Choir.

Harry McKeown made the presentation to Mr. Chenhall, and Miss Elsie Clinkscale presented Mrs. Chenhall's gift.

"For they are jolly good fellows" was sung by the choir, as if it meant something, and cheers followed.

Mr. Chenhall—who is loved by the choir members, and they feel proud of the fact— was visibly moved on replying for both gifts. He remarked on the absence of even one jarring note, or quarter note, during his tenure of office. Complete harmony has existed, he said, and this had meant much to the choir and its place in the church. He "played" his last thanks by four notes of the "Amen," on the piano.

The gown is a handsome one, of corded silk, with purple braid trimming; and the picture to Mrs. Chenhall, who has been a real helpmate to the organist and choir, is a pretty, framed color.

This interesting part of the program accomplished, games were organized; and after presentation of the "prizes," a general call brought a dainty lunch to the waiting choristers, and with cake and ice-cream to "top off," another stanza was passed.

The members of the choir joined heartily in some "close harmony" (emphasis on the harmony), and with good-nights and good wishes all round, the members departed with happiest thoughts of the evening spent with their beloved choirmaster, Martin B. Chenhall.

CLASS ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Pearson Mowry is President of Young Men of St. Andrew's.

BANQUET HELD.

At the "Y" last evening, there gathered many members of the St. Andrew's Young Men's Association for an organization meeting held following a most appetizing supper. After a pleasant hour around the festive board, during which Pearson Mowry's orchestra contributed several numbers, the class teacher, G. H. Roper, announced the fact that it would be necessary to elect new officers for the coming term.

Accordingly, the following were elected by more or less secret ballot:

Hon. President—G. Gillespie.
President—Pearson Mowry.
Vice-President—V. Barry.
Secretary-Treasurer—K. McDonald.
Chairman of Social Committee—J. Jennings.
Chairman of Athletic Committee—R. Sturgeon.

The newly appointed office holders briefly addressed their class-mates, a vote of thanks was tendered the orchestra, and those responsible for the supper, after which the meeting adjourned in usual manner.

5TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

The meeting opened under the auspices of the troop leader. The troop was called to the alert and then as the flag broke saluted it. Roll call then took place and the last week's court of honour doings were read to the troop, which was then dismissed to the corners for patrol instruction.

For about fifteen minutes the patrol leaders instructed their patrols in compass points and signalling. The A.S.M. then arrived and the boys were called out for games. The games were not easy and the three patrols had a hard job. In the first game of setting up sticks the Owls won by a long margin. In the other games the Bulldogs showed what they were made of and carried off the honors.

The A. S. M. called for troop instruction work in knot tieing. As most of the boys were a bit rusty the practice came in useful. They were taught additional knots, including the running bowline and another one which was a quick way to tie knots. This was by making a series of half hitches and then pulling the end through them and tightening. The boys learned that this made a series of overhand knots.

At council fire songs were sung. God Save the King.

5TH PETERBOROUGH WOLF CUBS

The meeting opened with the Cub howl. The leaders in charge were the senior sixers and assistants. The Cubs were then led in a merry dance by the assistant being that they had to do everything that he did. This was a funny sight to se them trying to imitate him. The Cubs were put through their first star work. Instruction work was carried on. In the first star tests one has to be able to bowl a hoop, throw a baseball to another fellow so he can catch it, then there are the knots and the figure eight course, and most important, the flag. Hikes were proposed, but owing to the weather were left to a future day. The Cubs were then called up and after repeating the oath were dismissed.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

LILLIAN GISH IN "ANNIE LAURIE."

Someone writing of the song, "Annie Laurie," has said that it will live forever, because it has the indefinable quality that appeals to the hearts of all who listen to it. There is a great deal of the same appeal to the picturization of the old story of Annie Laurie, who contributed much to the peace of Scotland when she married into an enemy clan. Just as the screen does so often, in the type of visual education that makes bygone years so clear to modern eyes, so the war of the rival clans in old Scotland is made a living, vital thing in the moving pictures. The Chinese are right when they say: "It is better to see once than to hear a hundred times." To read of the historic massacre of Glencoe is little. To see it pictured, even with the added frills of theatrical license, is to realize somewhat of the nature of these rugged, stubborn sons of heather-clad hills.

"Annie Laurie" is one of Lillian Gish's triumphs. This little lady is, without a doubt, one of the most artistic actresses that the "jumping flickers" has ever produced. Her art is so great that one is apt to forget the actress altogether and think only of the woman whose life she is portraying. She isn't Lillian Gish at all. She is "Annie Laurie" come to life. What art could be greater?

Donald Campbell wooed his sweetheart with the aid of a sweet-toned guitar that masked the falseness of a treacherous heart. Ian MacDonald, the bold and poverty-stricken son of a highland chieftain, was an exemplification of the old Sandy's warning: "Wild men hae a way wi' them," and he employed cave-man methods. Naturally, he won out. Norman Kerry, in this role, is a magnificent foil to the sweetness and delicate charm of the little Annie.

The rattle of the claymore and the broadsword, the skirl of the pipes, the breath of the heather blown over Highland moors, the wild, free life of the clansmen, coming down from their hills to try to make peace with rivals and then falling to with a zest, fighting at the drop of the hat, permeates this picture. The Camerons of Lochiel, the MacPhersons of Glenitanna, "The Macdonald" himself, white-bearded, defiant-eyed, with the opposing Campbells in their luxurious home, meet at Maxwellton, residence of Sir Robert Laurie, to try to make a peace that ends in miserable failure. Here is Enid Campbell, bride of Alastair Macdonald, and cursed by her own wrathful father because she has joined with the enemy clan and wears the hated Macdonald tartan, and here are the swarthy hillmen, dancing the hornpipe and tossing the caber, while their proud chieftain hurls defiance at the laird, sitting in his castle hall. With indignant kilts, the Macdonalds hie them back to the hill fortress of Glencoe, ignorant of the fact that the King has promised to give them back their lands, if they will make peace.

To acquaint them of the truth, Annie Laurie goes by night and in the storm to Glencoe, and there the drunken Ian taunts her with fickleness. Later, she convinces him, however, and the Macdonalds hurry away to sign the peace pact. But it is too late. Taking cruel advantage of the King's command, the jealous Donald Campbell treacherously gains admittance to Glencoe Fortress, and there engineers the massacre of the Macdonalds. This is a stirring scene, vital by reason of its historical truth. Even though license has distorted some of the elements of the story, the fact remains that history records a similar treacherous massacre, and the picture of "Annie Laurie" makes bygone years live again for those who watch the unfolding of the romance of Annie Laurie and her highland lover.

Nothing has been forgotten to make this a notable and extraordinary production. A wonderful supporting cast, a portion of the picture done in colors

CHRISTMAS NIGHT

A. D. Browne, an old Peterborough boy, an dformer member of The Examiner staff is at present editorial writer for The Golden Rule magazine, an inspirational publication dealing with the fundamentals of true success. Mr. Browne also has proven himself a poet of considerable merit for in the Christmas number he has written a poem entitled Christmas Night. The Golden Rule magazine is printed in Chicago, and all its articles are interesting to those who desire reading that will give them food for thought. They are well written an dmake most enjoyable reading.

The wind whistles cold o'er moor and fen,
As the logs on the hearth burn bright;
The stars from their blue-vaulted home are aglow,
This glorious Christmas night!
On the fields and the valleys the snow lies white,
The hills are a silvery light;
The radiant moon sends its crystal sheen
O'er the world this Christmas night.

Far, far away o'er the dream of years,
On another winter's night,
When the world was wrapt in slumber
And the heaven illum'ed with light;
A star appeared in the Eastern sky
And its brightness lit the way
For the three Wise Men who travelled far
To the place where Jesus lay.

For it is the night when Christ was born,
When the Herald Angels sang:
"Peace on earth, good will to men",
O'er the village of Bethlehem.
"Fear not," they said, "for mighty dread
Has seized your troubled mind;
Glad tidings of great joy we bring
To you and all mankind."

The Christmas snows and the summer flowers,
The valleys, brooks, and rills,
The fields and mossy banks and bowers,
The moon, the stars and hills,
Are all the emblems of the gifts
That God has given to men;
And the Christmas tree and childish glee
Are the jewels and diadem.

Tonight from the depths of two thousand years
Comes the sound of the old refrain—
The song that little children sing:
"Jesus has come to reign!"
So, amidst the deep and dreamless sleep
Of the stars in their watch so bright,
Let us pledge to Christ our faith anew,
This glorious Christmas night.

After a few talks the meeting was called to order and dismissed with which adds the finishing artistic touch, and an appropriate musical score of stirring Scottish airs, make it a complete and satisfying reproduction of a heart-catching romantic tale.—Jeanette.

WHAT I THINK OF AUNT MARY
(By May Robson.)

There were laughs aplenty in the stage version of that old favorite of mine—"The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary,' in which I starred for more than a score of years.

"But I never realized that the film version of my play could bring out so many more really humorous, and exciting situations as Erle Kenton, my director, did in the film version.

"What consumed ten minutes on the stage is rendered in a 'flash' on the screen—and yet this slight scene is so vividly impressed upon the mind of the spectator that it remains almost indelible.

"I never enjoyed a play so much as 'Aunt Mary' and this is but natural, for I have literally lived with the character for more than a score of years— but I enjoyed the picture much more. I do not want to be classed as an egotist when I say that I laughed heartily when I saw my Aunt Mary on the screen.

"There I was—me—on the screen and here I was—watching myself go through the same scenes which are still so dear to me. With the laughter, I felt a tear slowly make its way down my cheek — it brought back memories and a few sad ones.

"I'm sure though, that in the celluloid version of 'Aunt Mary' the friends who were so near and dear to me are going to see the same 'Aunt Mary' they did when I was on the stage.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salts at First Signs of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to fiter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

When a Man Loves

By ALICE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, who is coveted by hideous Count Ravoir. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoir. She rejoins Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The King plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating. Manon is sent to be deported. Fabien kills Ravoir, and follows the prison caravan to Havre.

Fabien had rushed up to Manon and put his arms about her protectingly. They felt lost and out of place. All the silken glory of magnificent clothes and priceless jewels that had been theirs the night before at the Duc de Richelieu's salon had been literally stripped from them, leaving only two very tragic young people who had lost everything except their love for each other. They did not even own the clothes they wore—Fabien's suit was borrowed from Tiberge and Manon's dress was a uniform from the Magdalen!

Passion and loyalty had been the indirect cause of all their misfortunes, yet happily enough it was the only thing that survived every ordeal.

Money, that had once seemed so vital to their happiness, now meant nothing. There was not a single coin between them, nor did it matter. In the excitement and stress of the moment Fabien had left his money on the card table at the Duc's salon, but if all his winnings had been in a sack at their feet on the wharf they would have been useless.

The only thing that concerned them was separation, and although Fabien had bolstered up Manon's courage by saying he was sailing with her for America, he knew there was not a chance in the world of his being able to board the deportation ship.

Within the hour Manon would be sent to exile, alone, and it was Fabien's lot to remain and suffer the consequences of opposing the King and murdering the Comte.

CHAPTER XXI.

Moored to the end of the wharf was the grim little sailing vessel that was destined to carry the exiled women across the Atlantic to the penal colony in New Orleans, Louisiana.

It was an annual voyage and the passage required two long, agonizing months. However, the miserable accommodations and hardships did not prevent His Honor, the Governor of the distant Colony, from making the voyage in company with Synnelet, a favorite nephew, for the express purpose of selecting for themselves the most attractive of the condemned women.

While the ship was being loaded for the sail, two men leaned against the barrels on deck and calmly, yet with decided interest and speculation, looked over the chained women to see if they were particularly promising.

The Governor was about fifty, respectable in appearance and with a good face—that reflected an understanding and reliable character.

Synnelet was younger by twenty years and his features were decidedly those of a sensualist. He was not married and had no desire to be.

After sizing the women up for some time the gaze of both men returned to Manon.

"At last they have sent us a woman worth looking at!" exclaimed Synnelet with a whistle of delight.

"I see the one you mean—but do you notice that her affection is already bestowed upon a young man?" The Governor saw Fabien holding Manon in his arms.

"What difference does that make? He will be left here, I shall take his place and she will be more interesting for the experience." Synnelet was impatient for the ship to get under way so that he might have Manon to himself.

The Governor had always given this headstrong nephew everything he wanted so it was a foregone conclusion that the prettiest girl on the chain should be assigned to Synnelet's cabin and tender mercies.

The important matter of a companion being settled for Synnelet, the Governor left him contemplating his future mistress, and went off to superintend the handling of a consignment of dangerous men that were being herded out on the wharf.

After the manner of the women these men were chained together and driven onto the ship like animals. There were convicts, thieves, rogues and murderers among them. All undesirable characters that were being stored away in the unspeakably dirty hold of the ship like so many sacks of coal, to be dumped at the penal colony in America.

The armed guards chained these men to the ship's walls with scarcely enough room between them to move. The only light and air they were to have came through the close iron grating in the floor of the deck above. A terrible fate for any man, no matter how great his crime!

After the men had been securely locked away the Governor gave instructions for the women to be brought aboard. They were a pitiful sight, but the guards had neither mercy nor compassion for the unfortunate girls or their families and roughly brought the farewells to an abrupt end.

Manon clung so tightly to Fabien that he was pushed along with her up to the gang plank before the guards realized what they had done.

"Clear out of here!" ordered the most burly fellow, addressing Fabien.

"There is time," he stalled, dreading to let Manon go.

"Yes, and this is it." The guard grabbed Manon roughly by the arm and pulling her away said, "Now, nothing's holding you—go."

Fabien's face turned a ghastly white, he set upon the guard with clenched fists, but was pushed aside and immediately pinioned by two other uniformed men whose duty it was to preserve order.

Sobbing pietously, Manon was pushed away from her lover. Their dreams of happiness were again shattered.

Synnelet, still watching Manon from the deck, called to his uncle, "That's the one for me, all right. She appears to be a faithful little soul." He was generous enough to admire traits in others that were foreign to his own nature.

"You shall have your choice, my boy." The Governor gave his nephew a fond smile. Synnelet noticed that Manon was in a state of collapse as she and the other women were pulled and pushed across the gang plank. It did not suit his plans for her to be too rudely treated and he hastened to speak with the guard in charge.

"Be gentle with this girl and see that she is not hurt," he requested.

The guard winked knowingly, but paid no attention to the suggestion.

Not for a moment had Fabien taken his eyes from Manon since she was torn from his arms and he made prisoner by the guards. He saw Synnelet, apparently a privileged character, speak in her behalf and it nearly drove him insane. He thought—she is being taken away from me again, I am powerless to follow, and even before the ship pulls anchor another man is waiting to annoy her!

As if in a dream Fabien saw the sailors scurrying about on deck preparing to get under way. The Captain was shouting commands. The crowd of sad friends and relatives gathered about the wharf-head waving a last farewell to their loved ones as the girls and women leaned over the railing, looking back with regret and longing. They stood quite close together in a long line, because they were still bound together by the cumbersome iron chain.

Synnelet was directly behind Manon, appraising her with a satisfied smile! The ship's anchor was weighed. The hulk moved slowly away from the wharf. Manon was being taken away! ! ! !

Fabien wanted to curse. His mind was in a mad whirl. He seemed to hear Manon calling, calling to him for help, and he felt so small and helpless as he just stood there watching her move away from him.

Suddenly the sound of galloping horses penetrated his consciousness and their arrival caused a great commotion at the land end of the wharf. On recognizing the King's guard and men from the Magdalen Prison, Fabien's captors sensed something unusual and, eager to be in the midst of the excitement, they released their charge and ran back to find out what had brought these men to Havre.

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — XXXIII — by Nicholas Afonsky

The London Daily Mail offered a thousand-pound prize for the first flight of the English Channel. In July, 1909, Hubert Latham and Blériot, both French, were waiting at Calais for weather favorable for the crossing. For days contrary winds held them back.

Finally, on July 24, the weather seemed favorable, and the two men started. Latham was ahead, when his plane stopped and he glided down into the Channel. He swung his feet up to a crossbar to keep them from getting wet, lighted a cigarette, and waited for a French destroyer.

In the meantime Blériot made a good flight. Fifty minutes after leaving France he saw Deal. He landed near Dover Castle, where only one man, a French journalist, saw his descent. But he was soon acclaimed by the world as the first man to cross the sea by airplane.

Next day Latham started again from Calais. In twenty minutes he was almost at Dover. Then the crowds watching from the English coast saw his plane lurch forward and fall into the water. He was quickly rescued, with only a cut from his motor goggles as a result.

MUSIC PERVADES CENTRAL STREETS

Big Phonograph Can Be Heard Several Blocks From Store.

Music of a captivating nature pervaded the entire downtown section of the city this forenoon, causing many of the Christmas shoppers and staid businessmen to cease their activities and seek the origin of the mysterious strains.

Between Simcoe and Charlotte Streets and as far north as the Armouries the music was heard plainly and without the slightest distortion in its tone.

Its source was finally located at Heintzman Hall on Hunter Streets, where the new Electrola was being demonstrated in the store, the music being carried outside by means of a special amplifier.

This amplifier was obtained from the head office of Ye Olde Firm Heintzman & Company by Robert Haddow, the enterprising manager of the local branch.

Mr. Harrow told The Examiner that this was Heintzman Hall's contribution toward the general desire for a real community Christmas, which seems to be so much in evidence this season.

Special musical recitals will be given daily between 3 and 4 o'clock and from 7.30 to 9.30 p.m., when Christmas carols, chimes and the latest dance records will be rendered.

CHIMES BORROWED.

The Peterborough Rangers Band have kindly loaned their set of tubular chimes to Knox church for use in the "White Gifts to the King," children's service, on Sunday morning next.

DR. T. T. SHIELDS GIVES ADDRESS

Supported By Two Other Clergymen at Meeting Here Last Night.

UNIVERSITY DISCUSSED.

About seventy-five people, many of them members of the several Baptist churches in the district and others representative of non-interested denominations, gathered in the Canadian Legion Hall, Murray Street, last evening. The visit of Dr. T. T. Shields and companion speakers on this occasion had aroused considerable interest and consequently the discussion of the present controversy, by the Rev. Mr. Brownlee, Rev. Mr. Atkinson, and finally Dr. Shields was listened to with careful attention by the audience. Every phase of the controversy was dealt with, including the action of the convention in dealing with the Shields party and the matters pertaining to McMaster University.

Y.W.A. OFFICERS ELECTED FOR 1928

George Street Church Society Holds Its Annual Meeting.

The regular December meeting of the Young Women's Auxiliary of George Street United Church was held in the board room of the Sunday School Hall last evening.

The President, Mrs. W. Knox, presided, and the secretary, Mrs. C. Poulson, gave a very gratifying report of the year's work. Miss Ethelwin Clysdale, the treasurer, reported that last year had been very successful, and that the society had more than reached its allocation.

Reports from the two teams into which the young ladies had been divided for the map contest of missionary fields were listened to with much interest. Miss Elma Coon and Miss Edna Manning proved their fitness for leadership in this contest, which was very instructive and interesting. It also resulted in the raising of a large sum for the cause of missions. Miss Emily Griffiths read the Bible lesson, and Mrs. J. E. Todd led in prayer. A beautiful solo was rendered by Miss Freda Allison, accompanied by Miss Pearl Carruthers.

An extremely interesting paper on the study book for the year was prepared by Miss Thelma Paxman, and read by Miss Eva Elliott. Mrs. Knox took charge of the nomination and election of officers, the results being as follows:

Hon. Presidents, Mrs. J. E. Todd and Mrs. William Knox; President, Miss Thelma Paxman; Vice President Mrs. Charles Poulson; Secretary, Miss Elsie Taylor; Treasurer, Miss E. Clysdale; Superintendent of Systematic Giving, Miss Edna Manning; Superintendent of Mite Boxes Miss Florence Marshall; Pianist, Miss Addie Batten.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

LAUNCH CAMPAIGN TO DRIVE COMMUNISM FROM SOUTH CHINA

Bolshevik Diplomacy Suffers Severest Setback Yet Experienced in Far East.

RAID CONSULATE.

Soviet Subjects Ordered To Register With Authorities By December 23.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—(A.P.)—South China is being purged of Communism by fire and sword and, as a result of events this week in Canton and Shanghai, including complete severance of diplomatic relations between Nationalist China and Soviet Russia, Bolshevik diplomacy has suffered the most severe setback yet experienced in the far east.

It is still too early to interpret the full significance of the riot of bloodshed, destruction and cruelty during the latest spasm of violence in the birth of the new Chinese nation, but observers here think events show that China has discarded Communism once and for all. They are convinced that the Third Nationale faction of the Soviet government in Moscow staked its last hopes for world revolution on the Orient against the Occident — and lost.

Influence Eliminated.

If, as observers here seem to think is likely, the Russian influence is eliminated, the whole puzzling panorama of the Chinese civil war may be somewhat simplified soon. The antagonistic factions are again likely to be grouped as Northerners and Southerners, as they were during triumphant Nationalist campaigns last year when, with Peking almost within the grasps of Nationalist legions, internal strife broke out within the Nationalist council. This was followed by a long struggle between the Wuhan and Nanking factions of the Nationalists.

Unification was finally accomplished only last week, with the re-appearance of Chiang Kai-Shek as the leader of the re-united Nationalist forces.

City of the Dead.

CANTON, China, Dec. 17.—(A.P.)—Canton has been quite aptly described as a city of the dead" since the suppression of the Communist, Peasant and Labor uprisings of Sunday.

Photographs confirm the ruthless slaughter that occurred. They are pictures available of trucks loaded with bodies piled thre eand four deep as they were driven through the streets to burial places.

Long rows of corpses laid on the pavements provided the gruesome evidence of the vengeance wreaked upon those suspected of Communist leanings when the Nationalists recaptured the city later in the week.

The buildings of the Central Bank of China is a mass of ruins. This is served at headquarters of the Nationalist organization and the fate of $5,000,000 stored in its strong room is unknown.

Russians Executed.

Witnesses declared that Russians commanded the Chinese Reds in bitter fighting prior to the Red defeat, while the Russian consulate was involved in active direction of the rioters. These statements are responsible for the action of the anti-Reds in tracking down all Russians. Every hotel haunt was visited. Two Russians were shot down near the municipal offices, and five of the others, including the vice-consul and a woman, were publicly executed.

The Soviet consul-general and 14 other Russians were taken through the streets prisoners amid the ap-

Birnie took the chair for the election of officers, which resulted in the return of last year's officers, as follows: President, Mrs. A. Mowat; 1st Vice President, Mrs. J. Mills; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. A. Stevenson; Secretary, Miss A. Wood; Treasurer, Mrs. F. C. Neal; Supervisor, Dr. Jessie Birnie; Nurse, Miss Mamie Foote.

Bandits Make Escape With Diamond Haul

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press). — Emil Ginden, owner of a wholesale jewellery house in New York, was robbed of $50,000 worth of unset diamonds here yesterday when three bandits slugged him as he stood on the rear platform of a street car. Two bags containing the jewels were snatched from his hands as he fell.

Other persons on the car were terrorized by the men, who were armed with pistols.

Before attacking him one of the trio attempted to exchange a black bag he carried for one of Ginden's, the latter told the police. The jeweller snatched up the bag and one of the men pulled a pistol and hit Ginden over the head. Others seized the grips and leaped from the car.

POLICE RAID RUM RUNNER

Cargo Valued Between $40,000 and $50,000 Seized By Officers.

11 PERSONS ARRESTED.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec 17 (Canadian Press).—Concentrating on the influx of liquor for the holiday trade here, State Police Thursday night boarded a two-masted schooner in the East Haven River and ssized liquor valued at between $40,000 and $50,000 and arrested eleven persons, including Ross Mason of Nova Scotia, captain of the vessel.

The raid surprised landing preparations and 111 ten-gallon kegs of malt whiskey, 33 cases of gin and several quarts of "private stock" were seized.

Four members of the schooner's crew who were held under $10,000 bond gave their names and addresses as follows: Fred Smith, 27, Boston; John Pearson, 32, Sweden; John Olsen, 34, Norway; Edward Decker, 20, New York City; James Brockett, James Carecce, Fred Antonio, Anthony Jasnaen, all of New Haven; Walter Rogers, and Mr. and Mrs. B. Talmadge, all of Short Beach, were held in bonds of from $1,000 to $3,000.

The ship's papers indicated that it was the M. E. Hanes of Digby, N.S., equipped with a motor auxiliary, Ross Mason of Lunenburg, N.S., was named as master; Carl Jenson, cook; Robert Carlson, engineer; Perleigh Mason, seaman, all of Lunenburg, were named on the crew list. The names given by the crew when arrested were believed by police to be fictitious.

Arrraignment in East Haven town court was scheduled for Tuesday evening.

The machine made a very successful trip. The plane will fly from New York to Murray Bay next Monday for inauguration for the service, according to present plans.

Retiring President Entertains 1927 and 1928 Boards at Social Evening.

JOINT MEETING.

Presentation Made To Retiring Secretary After 22 Months' Service.

At a very pleasant party in the splendidly-equipped Downyflake last night, President Isaac P. McNabb entertained the 1927 and 1928 Boards of Directors of Kiwanis Clubs and their ladies. A joint business meeting was held, in which the ladies participated ,and games, cards, and dancing were enjoyed.

It is usual for the outgoing and incoming Boards to meet jointly for one meeting to clear up the year's business and plan for the succeeding year, but last night was the first occasion on which the gathering had taken a social nature. Music for dancing was provided by the Panatrope, kindly loaned by Heintzman Hall.

During the course of the evening a presentation of a console table, mirror, and candlesticks was made to Mr. and Mrs. John R. Heron. Mr. Heron is retiring after serving nearly two years as secretary of the Club. The presentation was made by Past President John J. Craig.

Another presentation was made by Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, on behalf of the Club, to Miss Katheryn G. Rowland, who has very ably served as stenographer.

Carl S. Browne expressed the thanks of the party to the host of the evening.

There were present: Dr. and Mrs. John J. Craig, Dr. and Mrs. Frank C. Neal, Mr. and Mrs. John I. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph John. OTTAWA, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—To-day Premier Mackenzie King is celebrating his fifty-third birthday. Messages of congratulation came to him at Laurier House here. Premier King was born at Kitchener, Ont. (then Berlin), on December 17, 1874.

SECOND CATHOLIC SCHOOL BURNED WITHIN 48 HOURS

No Lives Lost in Destruction of St. Jean Berchman's School.

DAMAGE IS HEAVY.

Military Needed To Handle the Crowds—Pyromaniac Sought By Police.

QUEBEC, Dec. 17. Canadian Press.—Two fires with appalling losses have ravaged Quebec within the short space of 48 hours. On Wednesday night at the Hospice St. Charles a fire caused the destruction of the building and the loss of at least 36 lives. Last night a fire began at St. Jean Berchman's school, resulting in a loss of property estimated at between a half and three-quarters of a million dollars.

No lives are as yet reported lost as a result of last night's fire but many are in hospital suffering minor injuries.

Both institutes are under the control of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

For the first time within memory the military were called out last night to handle the large crowds that gathered.

While last night's fire was raging a sixty mile gale swept the city, making the task of the firemen a hazardous one.

Twenty-five Sisters and sixteen young girls are at present lying in the Hotel Dieu Hospital as a result of last night's fire at the St. Jean Berchman's school here. The young girls were in the mother house opposite the school at the time of the fire and when the alarm was given they had to leave the building at once. Several of the young children became alarmed and with the hurry and panic many of them fainted or sustained minor injuries from falls.

The Sisters, of whom there are 14, slightly injured and in nervous condition, all received their injuries while engaged in rescue work. The remaining 11 Sisters were suffering from shock.

QUEBEC, Dec. 7 (Canadian Press) —One hundred and forty-two half-dressed young boys were led to safety when fire broke out last night in St. Jean Berchman's boarding house for boys and St. Louis Academy, both housed in one building which was located in the heart of the best residential section of Quebec close to the Legislative Buildings of the Province. The six storey building was completely gutted.

Several were injured, two seriously. Sister Ste Victorie, a nurse at the Academy, is reported near death following a heroic attempt to save a sick boy isolated at the top floor of the building. Sister Ste. Victorie was attending the boy when the fire began. Finding her retreat cut off she took the patient in her arms, made her way to the window, called to firemen and jumped ninety feet into the net spread for her. Both she and a youngster named Redmond were carried to the hospital seriously hurt.

The origin of the fire ,the second within two days to destroy a Catholic institution here, remained a mystery today. Police began an investigation as soon as the flames were controlled and announced that they had reports that two men were seen leaving the grounds shortly before the alarm was given.

Pyro-Maniac Sought.

Police vigilance over Catholic institutions has been redoubled following advice that maniacal activities

Chicago Bandits Get Gifts For Christmas

CHICAGO, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Chicago stick-up men did a hundred thousand dollars' worth of Christmas shopping yesterday; furs, jewelry, and cash to that amount being taken in nine robberies.

Slugging seemed the preferred "shopping" method. Emil Ginder, a wholesale jewelry salesman, made the heariest contribution with fifty thousand dollars in sample gems. He was robbed on a street car by three men who escaped in an automobile.

C. Hudson, a real estate dealer, donated $25,000 in jewelry, clothing and valuable rugs, which were taken from his home. Other hold-ups on the street and in a store brought the total to the hundred thousand.

MANY CHINESE LEAVE CANTON

Thousands of Refugees Crowd Steamers For Hong Kong.

REDS TURNED BACK.

HONG KONG, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Thousands of Chinese refugees of all classes are pouring into Hong Kong on every steamer from Canton. The ships are crowded to capacity. Police have already arrested three hundred suspects, of which twenty-five have been identified as Communists. They are to be deported to Canton.

As it has been discovered that according to the act it would be necessary for His Worship Mayor Holloway to resign before contesting the vacancy on the Utilities Commission, he has considered that, in view of the honor conferred upon him by the citizens of this city in electing him mayor for the past two years, he would not be fulfilling his duty where he to cast the office aside at this time.

Stormy Weather Halts Search of Ruins For Bodies Of Victims In Quebec Fire

QUEBEC, Que., December 17 (Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — Further search of the ruins of the destroyed section of the Hospice Saint Charles was halted yesterday by adverse weather conditions after three additional bodies had been found. From early morning the city was swept by a gale with snow. Owing to the danger of walls being blown down, officials in charge of the search decided to postpone it for another day. To date, 36 bodies have been recovered. Sixteen of these have been identified, and it is not likely that the other twenty will ever be identified, as the majority are beyond recognition owing to burns. Fourteen of the four hundred inmates are still reported as missing.

Yesterday the whole Dominion joined in offering sympathy to the city in its great tragedy. Telegrams of condolence were received from Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada, Lord Rothermere, the Duke of Devonshire, a former Governor-General of Canada, Hon. Lucien Cannon, Solicitor-General, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, in the Federal Cabinet, and many others.

Until a late hour last night the procession of relatives to the morgue continued.

The destroyed section yesterday represented a scene of desolation. The four walls of the fatal building were covered by several inches of ice, and occasionally sections were toppled by the high wind. If the present weather continues little will be left of the destroyed structure except a mass of ruins.

Post Office Open Until Nine o'Clock

The Post Office will be open to-night and every evening next week until nine o'clock to accommodate those having Christmas letters and parcels to mail. This will be of assistance to those unable to get to the office conveniently during the day.

Service will be given at the stamp, registration, and insurance wickets. All mail matter other than for Ontario or Quebec should be on the way now, and for those provinces, except in the immediate neighborhood of Peterborough, must be sent on Monday to ensure delivery by Christmas Day.

Postmaster Charles Lacheur wishes it to be known that the limit for parcels to be sent through the mail is fifteen pounds.

MINISTER ASKS FOR PROPOSAL TO BE WRITTEN

Did Not Reach Agreement at Conference This Week.

CORRECTS REPORT.

Explains Functions of Department of Health Laboratories.

Further progress towards reconsideration by his Department of the decision to close down the Provincial Laboratory at Peterborough awaits action by the city, declared the Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health in the Ontario Government, in an interview with The Examiner yesterday afternoon. Correcting a press report that an agreement had been reached, the Minister said that he had gone no farther than to request Mayor Holloway to submit to him in writing a proposition made verbally by the deputation, suggesting that the Department be responsible for the salaries of a medical man to take part time charge of the laboratory, and of a technician working full time, these salaries not to exceed $1,200 and $1,000 a year respectively, with an additional grant from the Department of $800 per annum for supplies, all additional expenses to be borne by the City of Peterborough.

"When this offer was made," said Dr. Godfrey, "I was Scotch enough to ask that it be put into writing and signed by the Mayor. The same remark applies to any other proposition. There is no department in this government which accepts propositions conveyed by word of mouth.

BELL OFFICIALS TRANSFERRED

Announcement has recently been made of the transfer of W. R. Northgrave, District Manager of the Bell Telephone Company of Peterborough to a similar office at Kingston. His removal from this city will be sincerely regretted by a wide circle of friends and business associates who, nevertheless will wish him success in his new field.

Seventeen years or more have passed since Mr. Northgrave entered the service as groundman at Walkerton, but during that time he has steadily climbed the ladder of promotion. In 1919 he became chief clerk of the commercial department at Orillia and in 1923 he was moved to Midland as manager of the branch there. In the same year he was transferred to Sault Ste. Marie in like capacity. However, it was following his appointment as manager at Guelph, that he came to Peterborough as manager of the entire district, which includes Lindsay and northern offices, Newcastle, Campbellford, Stirling, Port Hope, Cobourg and other places, totalling some twenty-four offices.

During his term of office here, the local branch has enjoyed increased business and has given better service. In 1925 there were about forty-five hundred telephones in the city with an average of twenty-seven hundred calls daily, but now there are at least fifty-two hundred phones with an average of thirty-two hundred local calls daily.

W. C. Beamer, though younger in years of service, has proven a most efficient officer of the Bell Telephone system and he it is who succeeds Mr. Northgrave. The new manager is a graduate of Western University of 1923, in which year he was appointed salesman at London. However, in 1925 he was transferred to the general commercial staff, Montreal, as supervisor of commercial results, and from this position he steps into the Peterborough office.

Mr. Northgrave, who regrets departing from his adopted home city, will leave for Kingston after showing his successor over the district.

Kingston, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—A. J. Evans, local district manager of the Bell Telephone Company, has been transferred to Montreal, where he will be district manager of the West district. He is being succeeded here by W. R. Northgrave manager at Peterborough, Mr. Evans entered the service of the Bell Telephone in 1913 at London and was chief clerk in Windsor before being appointed to Kingston in 1924.

CHURCH THROWN INTO CHAOS BY REJECTION OF PRAYER BOOK

Will Make Search For Lost Kamloops

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press). Captain Henry Gehl, of the big ice-breaking and harbor tug Champlain, in an interview yesterday, stated that before hope was abandoned for the Kamloops, a more thorough search should be made of the Isle Royale shore line.

It was on the shore of Isle Royale that Captain Simpson of the Quedoc and others believed the Kamloops met her fate. The freighter Midland Prince was sent out on such a mission but remained only half a day and could in that time cover only a portion of the shore.

"It might be that some members of the crew got ashore and are wandering about on the island," said Capt. Gehl. "It must be made certain that such is not the case before the search is given up. I certainly would like to have a chance to take a look around," he added.

The Champlain is temporarily out of commission with a damaged propeller.

DR. G. M. FRASER RESIGNS OFFICE

Dr. Waite Has Not Been a Member of Local Laboratory Staff.

MAY SUCCEED HIM.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, who has had complete charge of the provincial laboratory and the venereal diseases clinic in this city since the resignation of Dr. McNair in May, 1925, has tendered his resignation to the Department of Health to take effect the first of the year.

Dr. C. B. Waite has been asked to fill the vacant position for one year, and has consented, only in the hope that the laboratory would be preserved for the city and district. Dr. Waite, who is patheologist for Nicolls and St. Josephs' Hospitals has not been on the provincial laboratory staff, and has not been drawing a salary from the department, as reported in last night's issue, and has only been connected with the laboratory in so far as he performed some of his work for St. Joseph's hospital there.

Dr. Fraser has also acted as bacterologist for the city hospitals. His action in resigning, which he has contemplated for several months, has merely hastened the determination of the Department of Health to close the laboratory in this city.

High Dignitaries Nonplussed As To What Next Step Will Be.

APPEAL FOR PATIENCE.

Archbishops To Hold Discussion on Latest Turn of Events.

LONDON, Dec. 17 (A.P.).—Seldom has a decision of Parliament thrown this great community into such confusion as did the rejection in the House of Commons Thursday night of the revised Book of Common Prayer.

Rejection seems to have been a possibility which no one contemplated in view of the fact that the revised book had been endorsed by the bishops of the Church of England and had been approved by the House of Lords. Consequently, chaos reigns supreme in church circles and even high dignitaries appear nonplussed as to what their next step will be and are awaiting with great concern the meeting early next week of the Archbishops of Canterbury and York to discuss the latest turn of events.

Convocations of the diocese of both Canterbury and York had been fixed, and railway vouchers had been issued for attending members who were to formally ratify Parliament's expected approval. Now nobody seems to know whether these convocations will even take place, although it is supposed that members will assemble and discuss the present position of the Church. Preparations were completed for printing millions of copies of the new prayer book during the coming year and now all this work of printing and binding has suddenly ceased ,throwing hundreds of workers out of employment.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of England, yesterday issued a statement appealing for patience and

PREMIER SENDS CONDOLENCE

Expresses Sympathy To Mayor of Quebec For Recent Disaster.

CABLE FROM BALDWIN.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 17. Canadian Press. — The Prime Minister, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, yesterday sent condolences to the Mayor of Quebec in the tragedy of the Hospice St. Charles' fire. The premier's telegram follows:

NEW EXPEDITION TO SCALE EVEREST

British Party Awaits Permission of Tibetans To Make Attempt.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press.) — A new attempt to scale Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world, has been projected by Capt. N. Obell, geloogist and oxygen officer with the British expedition, that lost two of its members in an effort to reach the summit in 1924. Only the permission of the Tibetan government is necessary before the new expedition will start out, Obell told the Overseas League last night. With the knowledge gained in three previous efforts, the next expedition would almost certainly succeed, he asserted. The expedition of 1924 came within 902 feet of the 29,000 foot summit.

TRANS-ATLANTIC HERO PLANS FLIGHT TO CENTRAL AMERICA

Accepts Invitations To Visit Gautemala, Honduras, Salvador and Panama.

MOTHER TO JOIN HIM.

Expects To Reach Havana During the Pan-American Conference.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Mexico safely captured, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh yesterday made plans to extend the Lindbergh air line to Central America.

He announced his acceptance of invitations to visit Guatemala, Honduras, Salvador and Panama, and as he told newspapermen of his plans, an invitation was speeding from President Diaz of Nicaragua asking him to drop in out of the air on Managua.

No details have been worked out, but after leaving Mexico City, he will fly to the Central American countries and then visit Havana, Cuba, before pointing the nose of the Spirit of St. Louis toward its home port, St. Louis, Mo.

Col. Lindberg expects his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindberg, to come to Mexico City to spend the holidays with him, and his new "good will" flights will not start until after Christmas. He expects to reach Havana during the Pan-American conference.

"Lindbergh Day"

The flier spent a "Lindberg Day" yesterday. He was in demand from morning to night. His activities including a speech, newspaper interview and chat with an official committee of the Mexican government.

The colonel was interviewed by newspapermen in an office at the United States Embassy. Seated on a desk with his long legs hanging over the sides, he talked aviation, bull fighting and the charm of Mexico.

Of aviation, he said that the day is at hand when regular flights can be made with comparative safety from the United States and its neighbors to the south. The practicability of all-water hops over the Atlantic must come later. Land is friendlier than the ocean, he said, in consequence of misadventure in the air.

Will Attend Bullfight

He was queried as to his position on bullfights, in view of receipt at the embassy of protests against acceptance of a possible invitation to attend a bullfight.

"Yes, I will go to see a bullfight Sunday if the invitation coincides with my official program," he said in reply to questions.

Stressing a disinclination to interfere with national customs of his hosts, he added:

"I think Mexico is perfectly capable of choosing its own national sport."

The speech of the day was made at the American School, one of the outstanding educational institutions of Mexico City. He visited the school with Ambassador Morrow and met with a loud welcome from the 500 students of many nationalities assembled to greet him.

The students, ranging in age from kindergarten to college graduates, knew no years as they cheered. The cheer leader had his gang ready when the flier and Ambassador appeared and the campus resounded with yells.

Lindberg, standing on the balcony of the building, addressed the children and youths in the yard below:

"I think you would all like to hear something about the new means of communication coming into use throughout the world," he said.

"The air is the coming means of transportation between the United States and Mexico. Even today aeroplanes can be flown at no greater expense than automobiles can be driven, and an aeroplane will outlast an automobile.

"The Spirit of St. Louis has flown 35,000 miles, practically with no overhaul or replacement, only a few minor parts having been replaced.

"In the future, we will be flying regularly between Mexico and the United States. By the time you are ready to travel there will be regular air lines.

"Your country here is ideally situated for flying and I know you will be availing yourselves of this modern means of transportation."

A committee of Congress representing the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate called at the Embassy to thank Lindbergh formally for his visit to Congress Thursday when he received honors never before given a foreigner and rarely extended to Mexicans.

The colonel with the ambassador at his side met the committee to hear formal assurance that Congress felt honored in honoring him. Lindbergh replied that he appreciated this expression more than he could express, and thanked the committee for its courtesy in coming to see him.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—The "Grand Gold Medal" of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, world governing body for aircraft performances, was proposed yesterday for Charles A. Mr. Adams' recommendation was made in a letter to Paul Tissandier, secretary-general of the Federation.

BETHANY PERSONALS

BETHANY, Dec. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Mark Rogers of Parry Sound are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lowes and other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cavano left by automobile on Sunday to visit with friends in Toronto and Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tolbert have returned to their home in Toronto after spending the past week visiting friends in the village.

Miss Mary Fowler returned to Lindsay Saturday after a short visit with friends in the village.

The Oard family, who have occupied the C.P.R. station house for a number of years, are expecting to move to Cavan station where Mr. Card is operator and station master. The family will be greatly missed in the village.

It would seem as though the village will shortly contain only married people and older men and women as all the young people are moving away either with their families or separately.

Homes which contained large families are now occupied by one or two, and one wonders if this continues what the village will be like in the next ten years.
